Crowds of people gathered near the Kodak store in the center of the city to see the devastation. The explosion was so powerful that windows in the offices across the street were shattered.

''Nobody was injured,'' a police sergeant on the scene said.

A Kodak represenative who requested anonymity said the explosion damaged the developing machine, but the extent was not year clear.

''More serious were losses in the Kodak chief office, where computers were damaged following the explosion,'' he said.

MOSCOW (OCT. 5) UPI - Sergei Lapin, former ambassador to China and prominent Soviet journalist, has died at the age of 78, the official Tass news agency said Friday.

An obituary, signed by President Mikhail Gorbachev and other Soviet leaders and to be published Saturday, noted Lapin's service as a director of Soviet Radio during World War II.

Tass did not provide the date or cause of Lapin's death.

Lapin worked in the Foreign Ministry from 1953 to 1967, serving as his government's ambassador to Austria and China and rising to the rank of deputy foreign minister.

Lapin held the highest posts in Soviet journalism between 1967 and his retirement in 1985. He was general director of Tass until 1970 and then took over helm at the U.S.S.R. State Television and Radio Committee, which controls all broadcasting in the country.

AUSTIN, Texas (OCT. 5) UPI - The ultimate cost of the nation's thrift crisis will be much higher than current estimates as the federal inventory of repossessed assets from failed thrifts continues to rise, a report said Friday.

''Many of the properties are physically deteriorating and dropping in value. Postponing liquidation in hopes of higher prices someday is likely only to increase the ultimate cost to the taxpayer,'' said Alex Sheshunoff, president of the financial consulting firm bearing his name.

''The final cost of the thrift crisis is going to be significantly higher than current estimates. By financing the bailout through 30-year government bonds, we place an enormous financial burden on generations to come.''

He said politicization of the thrift crisis would only further prolong and intensify the debacle.

''We are not yet in an unmanageable financial crisis, but a combination of political grandstanding and an unwillingness to deal straightforwardly with hard realities may create one,'' he said.

In the first six months of this year, Sheshunoff said, the nation's 2,918 operating thrifts lost $6.35 billion.

Of this number, 1,892, or 65 percent, were profitable, earning $2.4 billion. But the remaining 35 percent of the thrifts had a combined loss of $8.7 billion, producing an industrywide net loss of $6.35 billion.

The thrifts reported year-to-year earnings, on a collective basis, in only 21 states, led by Ohio with $71 million, Washington state $61 million and Hawaii and Indiana with $33 million each.

''Many institutions,'' Sheshunoff said, ''are operating in either overbuilt or overpriced real estate markets, and a few have been weakened further by ill-advised investments in risky assets such as 'junk bonds''' - risky, high-yield instruments used many times to finance leveraged buyouts of companies in the 1980s.

Thrifts in seven states - Texas, Massachusetts, California, Arizona, New York, New Jersey and Florida - accounted for three-fourths of the total industry loss.

The Midwest, which never experienced the real estate booms seen in other regions over the last decade, currently has only 1.6 percent of its loans as nonperforming.

The majority of the nonperforming loans are still concentrated in the Southwest and the Northeast. The Southwest led in terms of nonperforming loans as a percentage of gross loans, with 8 percent, or $3.7 billion, at the end of the second quarter. The Southwest is the only region where thrifts have an overall negative tangible capital position.

Thrifts in the Northeast, facing growing real estate troubles, reported $6.7 billion in nonperforming loans, or 4.9 percent of the gross loans.

NEW YORK (OCT. 5) UPI - Cincinnati Bengals Coach Sam Wyche, who violated NFL policy by barring a woman sports writer from the team's locker room, Friday was fined one-seventeenth of his salary by Commissioner Paul Tagliabue.

The fine - the equivalent of one week's pay during the season - is the heaviest one assessed a coach by the league. Wyche is believed to make about $300,000 a year, bringing the fine to more than $17,500.

An NFL spokesman said Tagliabue wanted to impose a ''severe'' fine without ''disrupting'' the Bengals on the field.

The commissioner said in a four-paragraph statement that Wyche would face even stiffer disciplinary action should he flout the league's media policy again.

Wyche disobeyed media access rules in 1986 and 1989 and was fined by then-Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Following the Bengals' Monday night loss in Seattle, Wyche refused to let USA Today reporter Denise Tom into the dressing room after the game. He said he did so to ''protect the privacy'' of his players.

The incident came two weeks after several naked New England Patriots players allegedly harassed a Boston Herald reporter in the locker room and made lewd suggestions to her. The matter is under investigation by the league.

In the aftermath of Monday night's controversy, Wyche said he would keep his all his players dressed for 20 minutes after games and then clear the room of reporters.

Tagliabue said in his statement such a plan is ''not consistent'' with league policy and the locker room must stay open until the players leave.

CHICAGO (OCT. 5) UPI - A class-action suit was filed on behalf of more than 400 people in town for a True Value Hardware convention who were stricken with salmonella poisoning linked to a dinner at the Hyatt Regency Chicago hotel.

The suit, which seeks in excess of $15,000, claims chicken and/or bread pudding served at a recognition dinner Sunday night ''was in unreasonably dangerous condition.''

The suit was filed Thursday in Cook County Circuit Court against the Hyatt Corp. by Andrea Field on behalf of herself and all the conventioneers who got sick Monday and Tuesday. Field, of Chicago, is an employee of Cotter & Co., the Chicago company which owns True Value.

Although city health officials have not yet pinpointed the source of the salmonella, investigators have said they are focusing on chicken and bread pudding, which had a glaze made of eggs.

Attorney Robert F. Lisco, who's representing Field, said she was sick for two days and spent about six hours in the hospital for treatment.

Lisco estimated about 500 of the 2,000 conventioneers who attended the dinner got sick Monday or Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Hyatt President Darryl Hartley-Leonard announced Thursday that the Chicago-based hotel chain would help victims who stayed at the Hyatt, by covering their hotel bills and emergency room bills. The company is also considering helping victims who stayed at other area hotels but attended the dinner at the Hyatt, he added.

''True Value is a very valued client and these are our customers,'' Hartley-Leonard said, adding that the hotel is not admitting any liability, however.

''We do not know if we are the source of the outbreak,'' he emphasized.

Hartley-Leonard said the hotel has hired Dr. Bernard Turnock, former director of the Illinois Department of Public Health, to advise the hotel in its own investigation into the outbreak.

(OCT. 5) UPI - Published reports quote Pentagon officials who say Iraq has developed a new form of high-explosive that is NOT even in the U-S arsenal. There are NO known defenses against the so-called fuel-air explosive, or F-A-E. It is 10 times as powerful as a conventional weapon of the same size and can be used against air bases, oil fields or troops out in the open. It works on a principle similar to that of filling a room with natural gas and then striking a match.

President Bush is meeting with congressional leaders as everyone tries to stop a growing budget crisis that is well past the 11th hour. In fact, it is racing toward a midnight deadline that will mandate across-the-board budget cuts that Congress will be unable to stop. Leaders of both parties had worked out the compromise with the White House but then they failed to deliver the votes needed for passage. The rank-and-file revolt found 105 of 176 Republicans voting NO. 149 of 256 Democrats did the same.

A one-day rebellion apparently is collapsing in the Philippines. The army colonel who yesterday proclaimed indepedence on the island of Mindanao says his intentions were misunderstood and he only wants to talk of reforms. Government warplanes have blasted some of the rebels out of one garrison and are prepared to recapture the other they hold.

News reports from India say prison guards shot and killed at least seven inmates and critically wounded 12 others during a riot today at the maximum-security central jail in New Delhi. The Press Trust of India says rioting prisoners rampaged through the facility, setting fires and attacking police to protest the death of an inmate. The report says the inmates climbed onto the roof of one building and pelted authorities with bricks... injuring at least 20 guards and jail officials.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 5) UPI - The House's stunning rejection in 20 minutes early Friday morning of a bipartisan budget plan it took four months to develop was less a defeat for the politicians who created it than for the painful policies it contained.

As weary House Democrats and Republicans began the 1 a.m. EDT vote Friday, a majority of members apparently decided there was too little in the $500 billion, five-year deficit reduction plan they could vote for and a whole lot they could easily vote against a month before November's elections.

The congressional leaders of both parties who spent weeks negotiating it won bipartisan applause when they spoke on the floor in support of the plan. Members knew that their leaders had worked hard and done the best they could, given the political obstacles and realities they faced.

But the applause quickly died when the House's electronic voting board lit up. The package was soundly beaten on a 254-179 vote, with a majority of both parties opposing it.

Assistant House Democratic leader William Gray of Pennsylvania said after the vote that his party could have produced a majority of Democrats in support of the plan had Republicans done so.

But no one will ever know since there were at least as many Democrats who disliked the package as Republicans, albeit for different reasons.

Despite days of arm-twisting, cajoling, pleading, horse-trading and even a national television pitch by President Bush aimed predominantly at his own party, Republicans never came around to embrace the plan.

That is at least a bit ironic since among the GOP opponents were dozens of conservatives who could not bring themselves to belly up to the bar of deficit reduction despite years of bellyaching about the need to cut the deficit and get government spending under control.

In large part, the deficit plan was defeated because Bush and the five top congressional leaders who drafted it neglected a critical element that may have made the package more palatable.

They forgot to put a little sugar coating on the bitter pill they were asking members to swallow in the name of deficit reduction. The critical need for deficit reduction itself was not enough to carry the day given the odious elements of the package.

Democrats may have been more enthusiastic had they gotten a tax increase on the wealthiest Americans who, from the Democratic view, now pick up a big chuck of the deficit reduction tab since they were the ones invited to the party during the Reagan years when their taxes were drastically reduced.

But Bush and the Republicans, while making some concessions on tax rates, would not go far enough to appease Democrats.

Republicans may have swallowed tax increases had they gotten a lower tax rate on capital gains - profits from selling assets such as stocks, bonds and real estate - or other economic growth incentives.

But Democrats demanded a tax rate increase on the rich as the price for capital gains or other pro-growth elements that Democrats said benefited the wealthy. Republicans were unwilling to pay the political price.

Without those elements, there was little to rally support for the plan on either side.

What lawmakers got instead was an unpopular package of tax increases on gasoline, alcohol, cigarettes and other items, and spending cuts.

Those taxes disproportionately hurt the middle and lower classes, to the chagrin of both parties who try to court middle class voters.

And they forced many Republicans to decide whether to break a no-new- tax pledge they took for political reasons in 1988 after Bush made the same pledge. Most balked.

The biggest red flag to most Democrats, however, was the package's $60 billion cut in Medicare over five years, including a doubling of the annual premium paid by beneficiaries.

Democrats also had trouble accepting what many saw as a too-small cut in Pentagon spending and a doubling, to two weeks, of the waiting period before unemployed people could begin getting benefits - particular problem in Midwestern states like Ohio and Michigan with high unemployment rates among factory workers.

Adding salt in the wound for Democrats was the last-minute inclusion in the package, in lieu of a capital gains cut, of a series of tax breaks for venture capitalists investing in small-growth companies.

Democrats saw that as just another break for the rich and a bid by the GOP to ''muck up'' the tax code and re-establish the tax shelter swept away by the landmark Tax Reform Act of 1986.

Sources in both parties also felt that Bush's TV speech in support of the package was too little and too late to change members minds.

His request to voters to contact members of Congress in support of the plan certainly backfired, since lawmakers reported being swamped after the speech by calls from constituents who opposed the Medicare cuts and tax increases.

What happens next is unclear but it's almost a sure bet that any alternative package leaders produce over the weekend or next week will have smaller Medicare cuts, a different mix of taxes and will not be accompanied by a plea from Bush to call your congressman with your thoughts.

DETROIT (OCT. 5) UPI - Family Circle magazine announced Friday the Toyota Camry and Chevrolet Lumina have been named its Import and Domestic Cars of the Year, although the bulk of Camrys sold in America are now assembled in Kentucky.

The New York magazine selected the two cars after judging responses from over 4,200 owners of the 10 import and domestic 1990 models most popular among households with at least one child aged under 18.

Domestic models included the Lumina and Chevrolet Geo Prizm and Jeep Cherokee, as well as the Dodge Caravan and Plymouth Voyager minivans from Chrysler Corp.

Import brands included the Camry, Honda Accord and Civic, Nissan Maxima and Mazda MPV minivan.

It is the second year in a row that the Camry was named Car of the Year by Family Circle magazine, published every three weeks by the New York Times Co. Magazine Group in New York.

''We're delighted with the award,'' said company spokesman John McCandless from Toyota's Detroit office. ''Although it is for Import Car of the Year, it really reflects our U.S. built cars.''

But the Camry is technically considered an import car because its North American-made parts content is still under 75 percent.

The Camry was the best selling car in the United States for the first time ever in August, although the Honda Accord - the best selling car for the entire 1990-model year - outpaced it in September.

The magazine's research showed size and body type, brand reputation and price were the most frequently mentioned influences when buying a particular make or model.

The most popular options chosen by those polled included upgraded stereos with either a tape cassette or compact disc player, power windows and power brakes. Least considered extras were sun roofs, special seat coverings and power-adjusted seats.

''One interesting finding of our poll this year was the overwhelming number - nearly 75 percent - of new family vehicle owners who said they would be willing to pay extra for features that preserve the environment,'' Family Circle President Charles Townsend said. ''Nearly six in 10 said they approved of increasing taxes for this purpose.''

The winning cars and awards will be showcased in the publication's Nov. 6 issue that goes on sale Oct. 16.

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (OCT. 5) UPI - South and North Korea clashed Friday over U.N. membership with Seoul damanding the two countries join the United Nations separately and Pyongyang urging that they share a single U.N. seat.

Diplomats of the two sides met behind closed doors for 2 1/2 hours at the border village of Panmunjom hoping to settle differences over the U.N. membership issue.

At the meeting, chief Southern negotiator Lim Dong-won stressed that ''the only realistic way of promoting peaceful reunification is for the two Koreas to obtain U.N. seats at the same time,'' officials said.

Lim proposed the two Koreas, after joining the world body separately, jointly declare that the arrangement is temporary, and that they will continue efforts to move up reunification and merge the separate seats into one, the officials said.

North Korean negotiator Choe U-jin reiterated his government's stand that South and North Korea should share a single U.N. seat because separate membership for them will freeze and legalize Korea's division.

The South Korean representative pointed out that North Korea recently proposed talks to normalize relations with Japan in an apparent change of policy, and hoped the North will adopt new thinking concerning the U.N. membership issue, the officials said.

The North-South meeting Friday was the second contact between the two countries on the U.N. membership question. Another meeting will be held before the second round of inter-Korea prime ministers talks is held in Pyongyang on Oct. 16-19, South Korean officials said.

South Korea, meanwhile, proposed three separate working-level contacts for Monday at Panmunjom to discuss details for a proposed exchange of soccer teams the dispatch of 17 musicians and reporters to attend a music festival in North Korea this month and the second round of prime ministers' talks.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (OCT. 5) UPI - Newly revealed evidence suggests people at Salvadoran military headquarters had prior knowledge of the operation in which six Jesuit priests were murdered last November.

Prosecuting attorneys said this week that log books kept at military headquarters contain false entries of rebel attacks on the priests' living quarters before and during the operation in which members of the Atlacatl Battalion, trained for combat by U.S. instructors, allegedly carried out the killings.

The prosecutors interpreted the first log entry, made before the killings took place, was a prior attempt to frame the rebels.

The entries ''reveal a prior knowledge of what happened,'' prosecutor Alvaro Henry Campos told reporters. ''It seems that someone anticipatedly attributed the deed ... to other armed men, in this case the guerrillas.''

The killing of the Jesuit university professors, their housekeeper and her teenage daughter prompted an international outcry and sparked an intense debate in the U.S. Congress that has resulted in proposals to withhold half of the $85 million dollars in military aid the Bush administration has requested for El Salvador in 1991.

Members of the U.S. Congress and Salvadoran Catholic Church officials have accused high-ranking military officers of trying to obstruct justice, possibly to cover up their own involvement.

In written and personal court testimony, military officers have been unable to explain who made the log entries that appeared at 12:30 a.m. and 2:30 a.m. on Nov. 16, 1989. All the officers claim they knew nothing of the killings until the following day.

Members of the Atlacatl Battalion's commando unit told investigators they killed the priests at about 2 a.m. acting on orders from superiors. The soldiers said they considered the Jesuits to be ''intellectual ringleaders'' of the rebels, and attributed the deaths of the domestics to orders to ''leave no witnesses.''

The commandos were part of a special security detail set up to protect the military complex during a massive rebel offensive centered on San Salvador. The complex houses the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and lies only a few blocks from the University of Central America campus where the priests lived.

Col. Guillermo Alfredo Benavides, who was commander of the security detail, has been charged with ordering the killings. Four soldiers and three lieutenants also charged with murder in the case have admitted their participation to investigators. Another soldier has been charged but is a fugitive.

If convicted, Benavides will be the first Salvadoran military officer brought to justice for a political murder, despite claims by human rights organizations that the military has killed thousands of rebel sympathizers during the decade-old civil war.

Criticism of the military's role in the effort to solve the Jesuit case has generally centered on accusations of perjury, destroying evidence and withholding information during judicial investigations leading up to a formal trial.

But prosecuting attorneys criticized the U.S.-funded Special Investigative Unit, which handled the initial stage of the investigation.

Prosecutor Campos said the unit, all of whose members are military personnel, failed to investigate anyone higher in rank than Lt. Jose Espinoza Guerra, the officer who said he led the operation on orders from Benavides.

''It has been clearly demonstrated that the (unit) did not want to go any further than Lieutenant Espinoza,'' Campos said. ''They have not insisted on investigating essential points in the case of Benavides or people who were further up the (military) hierarchy than Benavides.''

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (OCT. 5) UPI - A power struggle between the federal government and Slovenia heated up Friday after the staff of the republic's military reserve force moved out of their headquarters to evade a federally ordered takeover by the Yugoslav Army.

The army's unannounced takeover late Thursday of the headquarters of the Slovenian Territorial Defense Units provoked a demonstration by hundreds of Slovenes Friday in front of the building in the center of the republic's capital of Ljubjana, 350 miles west of Belgrade, state- radio reported.

Some of the protesters managed to enter the building, but left after being confrontated by rifle-wielding military police officers, the radio said.

The crowd dispersed without incident following appeals by senior officials for calm.

The Slovenian government of President Milan Kucan issued a protest to Yugoslavia's eight-man federal presidency denouncing the army's action as a ''provocation.''

Civilian employees of the reserve force signed a declaration pledging their loyalty to Kucan's government.

A senior army official said the takeover of the headquarters was in line with orders from the presidency.

''Our legal obligation is to carry out orders by the Yugoslav state presidency. In doing so, we are not going to take from Slovenia any part of its sovereignty,'' said Lt. Gen. Drago Tominc, deputy commander of the 5th Military Region, which covers the republics of Croatia and Slovenia.

''We hope there will be enough wisdom and reason so that for all people we will be able to ensure a peaceful and secure life,'' he said.

The situation exacerbated a challenge to federal authority by Kucan's United Democratic Front coalition of Slovene nationalist parties, which ousted communists from power in April in multi-party assembly elections, the first held in Yugoslavia since the end of World War II in 1945.

Kucan's government began pressing for greater self-rule for Slovenia, the most liberal and economically advanced of Yugoslavia's six republics, and in July declared sovereignty, making republic laws pre- eminent over federal statutes.

On Sept. 28, the Slovenian Assembly approved legislation giving the republic's government peacetime command of the Slovenian Territorial Defense Units, comprised of civilians who serve on a part-time basis under regular army control.

Kucan dismissed the contingent's regular army commander, Gen. Ivan Hocevar, and appointed a reserve major as the acting chief.

The federal presidency, which acts as a collective head of state, on Tuesday declared Slovenia's actions illegal and ordered the Yugoslav Army to resume control of the reserve force.

Apparently anticipating army action, the Slovenian government moved the reserve force staff out of its headquarters to another building on Thursday evening, officials said.

Later in the evening, 16 regular military police officers drove to the reservists headquarters, cut telephone lines and locked the doors from inside, a Slovenian Information Ministry official told United Press International by telephone from Ljubljana.

An Slovenian government statement said the officers moved into the building after Hocevar asked military police to secure it on the basis of the federal presidency's orders.

Officials said reserve the force staff was working normally in their new location.

Leaders of Yugoslavia's 1.8 million Slovenes and 4.6 million Croats back proposals to convert the loose Yugoslav federation into a confederation of independent states because of fears that the demise of strong, national communist rule early this year will lead to domination by the 8.5 million-strong Serbian majority.

The federal government, weakened by the loss of communist power, has been hard-pressed to block Slovenian and Croatian moves designed to enhance the confederation plan.

MONROVIA, Liberia (OCT. 5) UPI - The port of Monrovia is sufficiently secure to allow urgently needed food supplies to arrive in the Liberian capital by sea, the commander of the West African peacekeeping force said Friday.

Five days after Charles Taylor's rebel forces launched their most recent artillery attack on the port, Major Gen. Joshua Dogonyaro said the port was under his control and relief supplies could safely be brought in.

The food and medicine are badly needed for thousands of people who have been left hungry and sick by the civil war.

In his first news conference since becoming field commander of the Economic Community of West African States peacekeeping force, he told aid agencies not to use the rebel-held port of Buchanan, 75 miles east of Monrovia.

''ECOWAS cannot be held responsible for accidents,'' he said. But he refuted claims by Taylor that Nigerian aircraft had carried out up to 30 bombing raids on the port.

Dogonyaro did not rule out the possibility of military action at the port, saying, ''there are more weapons there than there is food in the containers that are unloaded there.''

Taylor has fought to take control of the West African country since December. A rival rebel leader, Prince Johnson, subsequently joined the fray, and his troop killed President Samuel Doe last month.

Doe loyalists are holed up in the presidential mansion in the city center.

The ECOWAS commander appealed to Taylor to stop the carnage, saying ''Liberians don't need to suffer so much because of one person.''

Asked about ECOWAS's relations with the leaders of the two other warring factions, Dogonyaro commended their support for the peacekeeping operation.

''If I asked General (David) Nimely to leave the mansion, he would leave it,'' he said, referring to the leader of a thousand government soldiers.

Dogonyaro also released ECOWAS's casualty figures for the past 10 days. Two soldiers, one Nigerian and the other Sierra Leonean, were killed and 11 others wounded.

ECOWAS fought its heaviest battle north of Monrovia where two Nigerian battalions, with artillery backup, pushed Taylor's forces back to Barnerville, 5 miles from the port, ECOWAS spokesman Major Chris Otulana said.

Sierra Leonean troops manning roadblocks along Somalia Drive, linking the port area with the eastern suburb of Paynesville, repelled a dawn infiltration by Taylor's troops Friday as they tried to cross by boats to the city through mangrove swamps.

On the other battlefront, after several days of fierce fighting around the presidential mansion, ECOWAS troops were within striking distance of Spriggs-Payne airfield, in the eastern district of Sinkor, Dogonyaro said.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 5) UPI - The last time Congress imposed a federal tax on alcohol, President Harry Truman was completing his second term in office. With the exception of 1984, when the government slapped an 8- cent tax on each pack of cigarettes, the tobacco industry has not been hit with a tax increase since 1951, either.

Although Congress defeated a budget proposal Friday morning that would have imposed nearly $16 billion in new taxes on tobacco and alcohol, these two industry groups agree they are now unlikely to escape some sort of tax levy.

Still, over the years they have managed, with remarkable tenacity, to stave off numerous proposed tax increases.

Part of the reason for the leniency is due to the fact that states have levied regular, sometimes stiff, excise taxes.

But the tobacco and spirits lobbies have not been shy about twisting arms on Capitol Hill to ward off tax increases.

The two industries have pumped millions of dollars in campaign contributions into the campaign coffers of key lawmakers, targeting tobacco state representatives and members of the leadership who will be responsible for drafting any budget proposal that Congress ultimately accepts.

Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., the House Republican leader, was the top recipient among congressmen, receiving $83,400 from tobacco and spirits interests from 1987 through last September, according to a United Press International review of campaign finances.

In the Senate, Michel's counterpart, Robert Dole, R-Kan., was the third top recipient in political action committee money from those interests, Federal Election Commission figures show. Dole received $79, 300 from the groups since 1983.

Not surprisingly, two tobacco state senators outpaced Dole. Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., ranked first, receiving $108,600, while Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. got $97,800.

Other top recipients in the Senate included Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D- Texas, chairman of the tax-writing Finance Committee, who received $69, 700 and Sen. Bob Kasten, R-Wis., who netted $69,500.

In the House, Michel was followed by Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the Energy and Commerce Committee, who received $49,800 since 1987, Rep. Tom Bliley, R-Va., who collected $45,500, Rep. Robert Matsui, D-Calif., who netted $45,400 and Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Mich., who received $43,700.

Lawmakers from tobacco states informally met during the budget summit between congressional leaders and the White House to kill any attempt at imposing excise taxes, particularly on tobacco, several members reported.

Several senators, included McConnell of Kentucky, frequently urged White House Budget Director Richard Darman to stop any tax increase on tobacco.

Meanwhile, President Bush promised Helms, who is in a tight re- election bid, that he would not approve tax increases on tobacco, several officials said.

In an early victory for tobacco producers, summit leaders gutted a proposed 16-cent tax increase on each pack of cigarettes and adopted aa 8-cent tax over three years. Revenues from the tax would yield an estimated $5.9 billion.

The tobacco lobby is formidable on Capitol Hill. Since 1983, Philip Morris Inc. has contributed $1.9 million in PAC money to lawmakers, FEC reports show. R.J. Reynolds, now part of RJR Nabisco, contributed $1.1 million during that period and the Tobacco Institute, the companies' trade group, donated $760,000 to lawmakers.

Among spirits interests, the National Beer Wholesalers Association has contributed $1.3 million to lawmakers since 1983, while Joseph E. Seagram & Sons Inc., producers of distilled products, has funneled $572, 000 to lawmakers.

While tobacco and spirits producers have killed numerous attempts to levy higher taxes on their products, representatives of those groups acknowledge that severe deficit figures would almost certainly mean higher taxes.

''I think that when it became clear to everyone that (Congress was) going to have to make tax and spending cuts, we knew that there were going to be taxes '' said Brennan Dawson, spokeswoman for the Tobacco Institute.

Former Connecticut Rep. Ronald Sarasin, who is director of the National Beer Wholesalers Association, said beer producers have always opposed excise taxes, which any budget agreement would likely contain.

But, he added, ''We're willing to carry our share of the burden.''

The original agreement that was defeated in the House on Friday would have raised $10 billion from alcohol sales. It would have doubled the beer tax to about 32 cents per six-pack, increased taxes on wine from 3 cents to 24 cents a bottle and raised liquor taxes $1.20, to $13.70 a gallon.

Despite the sharp increases, Rep. Timothy Penny, D-Minn., said before the vote ''I think compared with what could have happened (the tobacco and spirits lobby is) walking away from this feeling that they have dodged a bullet.''

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 5) UPI - Charles H. Keating Jr., the former owner of failed Lincoln Savings and Loan, pleaded innocent Friday to securities fraud charges stemming from the sale of $250 million of now-worthless junk bonds.

''Absolutely not guilty,'' Keating replied defiantly in a loud, clear voice when asked to enter his plea at an arraignment in Superior Court before Judge Gary Klausner.

Keating, 66, is accused in a 42-count state grand jury indictment of lying to regulators and duping more than 22,000 investors into buying the high-risk uninsured bonds. His three co-defendants also all pleaded innocent.

The charges are the first criminal counts filed in connection with the collapse of Lincoln Savings, which will cost taxpayers more than $2 billion to bail out, making it the most expensive thrift failure on record.

Lincoln Savings was seized by federal regulators in April 1989, one day after its parent company, American Continental Corp. in Phoenix, filed for bankruptcy protection.

Keating, whose role in the thrift's failure has come to symbolize the nation's savings and loan scandal, seemed confident but nevertheless appeared gaunt at the 15-minute proceeding.

Keating, who claims he is a pauper, has been held in Los Angeles County Jail in a 6-by-8-foot cell since Sept. 18 in lieu of $5 million bail. So far, he has failed to get the bail lowered, his appeals now before the state Supreme Court.

After the hearing, Keating attorney Stephen Neal, in response to questions about Keating's state of mind, said, ''He is looking forward to the opportunity to have a full, fair trial and looking forward to vindication.''

Klausner ordered Keating and the others to appear on Oct. 15 before Judge Lance Ito for trial-setting.

Neal, meanwhile, railed against the court for refusing to lower his client's bail, saying Keating's rights to prepare for this case have been violated.

Keating's attorneys, in seeking a lower bail, have insisted that he is broke. His accountant told the court last month that Keating, who once had assets of nearly $40 million, is now more than $5 million in the red.

In court, Klausner refused to rule on a defense motion to keep the transcript of the grand jury proceedings sealed and said Judge Ito should rule on the issue. He then said the transcript, consisting of 4, 500 pages, will remain sealed for the next 20 days.

Keating's three co-defendants in the case are Judy Wischer, 42, American Continental's former president; former Lincoln president Ray Fidel, 32, and former Lincoln chief executive officer Robin Symes, 37.

The trio was arrested along with Keating but released after less than a week in jail after the judge agreed to cut bail from $1 million each to $200,000 for Wischer and $100,000 for Fidel and Symes.

Keating and the others allegedly victimized investors who bought American Continental bonds through Lincoln's 29 Southern California branches in 1987 and 1988. Although thousands of investors bought the bonds, the indictments focus on 20 victims who lost between $50,000 and $100,000 each.

(OCT. 5) UPI - White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says he's confident that the House will be able to reach agreement on a budget package. Early this morning, the House overwhelmingly defeated a compromise budget plan. President Bush called on Congress to enact a new budget agreement by midnight or face shutdown of the government.

The Pentagon says Iraq has the capability to produce a powerful propane gas bomb with a destructive effect similar to that of a small nuclear weapon. A report calls it a ''new type'' of explosive, but the Pentagon says the technology dates to World War Two and U-S forces used weapons like it in Vietnam.

The State Department says it's planning to charter another Iraqi Airways jetliner next Wednesday to airlift American women and children out of Iraq and Kuwait. It will be the 10th major U-S evacuation flight. There are about 350 Americans in Kuwait and another 350 in Iraq. At least another 101 Americans are being held hostage in Iraq.

A federal judge in Washington today rejected a last-ditch bid by anti-nuclear activists to block tomorrow's launch of the shuttle Discovery. That clears the way for firing of the nuclear-powered Ulysses probe to the sun. In Florida, a handful of activists staged an anti- launch demonstration at the Kennedy Space Center. .

NASA managers say they see NO major damage aboard the space shuttle Atlantis from a 70-pound beam that banged through the ship's cramped engine room on Wednesday. Officials say the damage identified so far can be fixed in routine launch processing. And they say Atlantis still will be on track for lift-off around November 7th on a secret military mission.

(OCT. 5) UPI - A prison revolt in India left at least nine inmates dead and 200 others injured. Officials at the maximum-security jail say about 15-hundred inmates rampaged through the prison... in a revolt that erupted after the death of an inmate last night. Prison guards shot dead at least nine inmates.

Police in Detroit say a 50-year-old man is in custody... after a fire possibly set by an arsonist raced through an apartment building for senior citizens today. Five people were killed and about 15 were injured in the blaze. Officials say the Majestic Manor building had NO fire escape or sprinklers.

U-S Customs officials at the Otay Mesa, California, border crossing say drug enforcement agents seized nearly four tons of cocaine found stacked inside a propane tanker truck returning from Mexico. Officials say the cocaine... which had a street value of more than 262-Million dollars... was ''stacked to the gills'' inside the cylindrical tank.

Hurricane Klaus swirled in place today with 80-mile-an-hour winds. At last report, Klaus was 30 miles east-northeast of Antigua in the Leeward Islands, part of the West Indies. Another storm, Hurricane Josephine, packed 75-mile-an-hour winds as it meandered through the north Atlantic toward the Azores.

The southern region of New Zealand's North Island was shaken by a moderate earthquake today. But officials at the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research in Wellington report NO major damage or injuries. The quake measured five-point-three on the Richter scale and was centered near Cape Palliser, 30 miles southeast of Wellington.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 5) UPI - In Zanesville, Ohio, Jan Mercer and her co-workers worry every day now - worry about their own jobs and worry about their programs to help the blind.

Mercer, a mother of two young children, is a word processing specialist for the state Bureau of Services for the Visually Impaired and she is living with the prospects of draconian cuts in federal spending because of the failure of Congress and the administration to agree on a federal budget.

''It's the talk of the smoking table down the hall,'' Mercer said. ''A lot of our programs use federal money. It's all matching monies.

''You're just worried down the road, that if the government doesn't fund our program, you might not have a job in a few years,'' she said. ''When it comes to cuts (the federal government) worries about the big items like education and forgets smaller problems like the blind and the mentally retarded.''

Under a worst case scenario, services affecting virtually every American would be affected if Congress and President Bush fail to adopt a budget for the 1991 fiscal year.

-Meat inspectors would be laid off, automatically closing slughterhouses and processing plants.

-Farmers would lose crop loans and payments.

-Treatment slots for 30,000 drug addicts would be slashed.

-The Food and Drug Administration would have to curtail inspections of such items as blood and review of new drug applications would be delayed.

-Vaccinations for 1.6 million children and lead poisoning screening for 22,00 children would be eliminated.

-Up to 6,000 airline flights could be canceled because air traffic controllers would be furloughed.

-Weather stations would shut down from 6 p.m. until 6 a.m.

-Amtrak rail service would try to go on, but a lengthy impasse on the budget would mean closing some routes.

-Health and safety inspections in the workplace and in mines would be affected.

-Student loans would be delayed.

-In-patient and out-patient care at veterans hsopitals would be curbed.

-Federal court proceedings could be postponed, leading to release of prisoners under the Speedy Trial Act.

-Enviromental cleanup and safety initiatives would be disrupted.

Some of the impact could be softened if President Bush declares certain programs - air traffic controllers and meat inspections are most frequently mentioned - as essential services and therefore exempt.

Automatically exempt from sequestration are Social Security benfits, military personnel, veterans compensation and benefits.

With the administration and Congress unable to agree on a budget, 1.1 million federal employees face furloughs of varying lengths under a mandatory $106 billion reduction in federal spending.

And, if Congress fails to approve or Bush refuses to sign a stopgap resolution to fund the government, there will be no federal spending - except for the most essential services.

About 50 federal employees paraded around the White House, chanting ''furlough Bush'' and carrying placards reading, ''furlough politicians, not workers.''

Patrick Kirwan, a policy analyst with the International Trade Commission at the Commerce Department, lamented, ''Since I've been here less than five years I'll be one of the first to get furloughed. I'll be out on Monday.

''Up until now I've been putting the blame on the administration,'' he said. ''Now, my opinion has changed, and I blame Congress more than anyone else.

''Hopefully, in fighting back, the American people will throw the bums out,'' Kirwan said.

Maria Fisher, a secretary at the Treasury Department, who thinks ''I'll probably be furloughed,'' is angry that the budget negotiators ''were all joking about'' their secret sessions at Andrews Air Force Base in surburban Maryland.

''That made me angry because it's not a joke to us, the people working here,'' she said. ''I look at members of Congress as people who aren't affected by these decisions as much as the average American.''

Jan Mercer's boss, James Babb, area manager for the Ohio Rehabiliation Services Commission, turns the abstract figures of a spending cut into reality noting that a few of the agency's actities are 100 percent federally financed.

''Those people with severe disabilities who need independent living services are going to take the biggest cut,'' he said. ''These are people who are quadraplegic, visually impaired, a whole range of disabilities.

''They won't get the service,'' he said. ''In many cases that may mean they would have to go to a nursing home or be institutionalized.''

Still, people who work for the federal government and those who administer federal programs, all at the mercy of the of the nation's leaders in the Capital, keep on hoping.

CINCINNATI (OCT. 5) UPI - A jury Friday acquitted an art gallery and its director of obscenity charges filed after they displayed an exhibit of works by controversial photographer Robert Mapplethorpe.

The jury deliberated about 3 1/2 hours before returning the verdicts in favor of the Contemporary Art Center and its director, Dennis Barrie.

They each had been charged with obscenity and with using a minor in nudity-oriented material for showing seven controversial Mapplethorpe photographs in an exhibit last spring.

The 175-picture show included five photographs depicting sadomasochistic homosexual acts and two of children with their genitals exposed.

The trial was the first in which an American museum was prosecuted on obscenity charges.

The verdicts came at the end of the second week of the trial in the courtroom of Municipal Judge David Albanese.

Mapplethorpe died of an AIDS-related illness in March 1989. The exhibit of his photographs drew 8,100 people last spring to the Contemporary Art Center. It was then shown in Boston, where it ended its run Friday.

In written testimony during the trial, the mother of a girl depicted in one of the pictures had said the image Mapplethorpe had taken of her daughter was charming and that she had given permission for it to be displayed.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 5) UPI - A deadly combination of civil war, drought and a government that is described by U.S. officials as ''the Khmers Rouges of Africa'' means that as many as 6 million people in Sudan face death by starvation, senior administration officials said Friday.

The officials confirmed reports that 4 million to 5 million Sudanese people displaced by war and another 1 million refugees from Ethiopia are already facing famine conditions that will grow dramatically worse by the beginning of 1991.

The tragic irony, as the officials described it, is that the food is available in Sudan or nearby but the Sudanese government has forbidden U.S. and U.N. mercy flights from carrying available food to refugee centers.

Another 25,000 metric tons of wheat flour was on its way to Sudan where it was to be sold by the United States, but that was diverted by U.S. authorities when the Sudanese government began bombing refugee centers in the southern part of the country.

The bombing, as the officials described it, was as inept as most of the other actions by the Sudanese government, which is now dominated by an Islamic fundamentalist party known as the NIF.

The Sudanese ''bombers'' are old Soviet-made cargo planes. The 500- pound bombs are simply kicked out of the cargo door, and since the planes fly at 20,000 feet and higher the chances of hitting targets are slim.

Far more effective is the Sudanese refusal to let relief planes fly food into the refugee centers. Since the Sudanese army has SA-7 Soviet- made heat-seeking anti-aircraft missiles, the relief planes are not able to fly the existing food supplies to the people who need it.

One senior administration official said, ''As far as I am concerned they are the Khmers Rouges of Africa,'' comparing them to the murderous communist group in Cambodia that killed more than 1 milllion people in a political bloodbath after taking over the country in 1975.

Because of human rights abuses and the failure of the Sudanese government to keep humanitarian food supplies out of the hands of its army, the U.S. government has withdrawn $140 million in aid that was supposed to go for development projects in Sudan.

According to a ''Famine Early Warning Bulletin'' issued by the U.S. Agency for International Development, some 12 million people in Sudan and Ethiopia are at risk of starvation in the next few months.

One senior U.S. official said, ''The Sudanese government doesn't care. They think that the relief operations are feeding the enemy.''

It is estimated that Sudan alone needs 1 million tons of food supplies, but no shipments have been moving because of the Sudanese military orders.

One food relief train has been sitting on a siding in southern Sudan for 13 months, filled with grain, but unable to move because the local commander refuses to give permission for it to move.

(OCT. 5) UPI - Iraq said it released four Germans Friday as a gesture of good will in honor of German reunification, but an Iraqi official veered away from his country's recent soft-line on the crisis and stressed Iraq will keep Kuwait.

Iraqi Presdident Saddam Hussein met in Baghdad with Soviet envoy Yevgeny Primakov, who reportedly gave him a message from President Mikhael Gorbachev that other Mideast problems could be solved if Iraq withdraws from Kuwait.

Saddam, who announced early in the week his readiness to discuss a French peace proposal for the immediate withdrawal from Kuwait, appeared to back up his call for peace by releasing nine French hostages and 100 Brazilians.

A spokesman for the German foreign ministry in Bonn confirmed Friday that four Germans had been allowed to leave Iraq, apparently after talks in Baghdad between former East German deputy Brigitta Koegler and Iraqi officials.

''Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has allowed four German guests to leave or stay to mark German reunification,'' the state-owned radio said.

Some 400 Germans still remain in Iraqi custody, and about 73 of them are held in strategically important economic and military sites, German officials said. Iraq is holding some 5,000 Western hostages as human shields against possible attack by U.S.-led forces in the Persian Gulf region.

Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said Primakov, the Soviet envoy, delivered a message from Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to Saddam and that the two discussed the chilled relations between their countries.

The Soviet Union, formerly Iraq's largest supplier of arms, has not joined the U.S.-led multinational military force but has supported U.N. resolutions to force Iraq out of Kuwait through economic sanctions.

Soviet sources said Primakov emphasized the need for a peaceful settlement to the crisis and explained to Saddam the Soviet position. They said the two also discussed the possible departure of about 5,000 Soviets in Iraq, several hundred of whom were serving as military advisers.

There was no indication Friday that Saddam was ready to allow the Soviets to return home.

Iraqi Deputy Premier Taha Yassin Ramadan gave no sign of a softer line when he told Iraq's official news agency Friday that his country was willing to establish peace in the region on condition that its right to remain in Kuwait is not questioned and Israel withdraws from the West Bank and Gaza Strip, Syria's Golan Heights and its self-declared security zone in south Lebanon.

The statement by Ramadan, who had welcomed the French peace proposal during talks in Amman with Japanese Premier Toshiki Kaifu, indicated Saddam sees the French initiative as a jumping-off point to more negotiations, rather than a hard-and-fast plan.

French President Francois Mitterrand proposed in a speech to the United Nations last week that the 2-month-old crisis be settled by a complete Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait, free elections for the emirate and a comprehensive attempt to solve the Palestinian problem.

Some anaylsts have suggested Saddam likes the French plan because by linking the occupation of Kuwait with the Palestinian problem, he may emerge from the crisis as a hero to many in the Arab world.

British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd again tied the crisis to the Arab-Israeli conflict, saying that once Iraq is driven out of Kuwait an international conference should be called to discuss a homeland for Palestinians.

''New initiatives over Palestine can only take place once Saddam Hussein has been driven out of Kuwait,'' Hurd said in a speech to the Diplomatic and Commonwealth Writers' Association.

''I can see no hope of progress until that has happened. Anyone with a sense of humanity must sympathize with the Palestinians.''

Egypt's leading newspaper Al Ahram reported Saturday that 33 suspected Iraqi and Palestinian terrorists have been arrested on charges of planning acts of subversion for Cairo's opposition to the invasion of Kuwait.

The newspaper quoted Egypt's security chief, Major General Nabil Osman, as saying that four of the Palestinians arrested were members of the radical group of Abu Nidal, the world's most-wanted Palestinian terrorist.

President Hosni Mubarak said Thursday his security services had arrested an undisclosed number of pro-Iraqi Arabs suspected of terrorist activities and warned thousands of Palestinians residing in Egypt not to cooperate with Iraqi terrorists or risk dire consequences.

In the United States, the Bush administration prepared to evacuate more Americans from Kuwait Oct. 10. A chartered jet will carry the Americans, mostly women and children, from Kuwait to Baghdad, London and then Raleigh, N.C. They are scheduled to reach Raleigh on the afternoon of Oct. 11, the State Depapartment said.

The Voice Of America reported Friday that an American frigate had intercepted a Sudanese cargo vessel and asked it to change course because it was believed to be carrying industrial equipment to Iraq. Warships in the Persian Gulf have intercepted more than 1,000 ships in past weeks.

In the United Arab Emirates, Spainish Crown Prince Felipe de Borbon y Borbon was scheduled to visit Abu Dhabi late Friday for talks with UAE leaders and to inspect Spanish forces in the region. Prince Felipe was to be accompanied by Spanish Defense Minister Narcis Serra and other officials.

The Pentagon, responding to a report in the Los Angeles Times, said Iraq can make a powerful propane gas bomb with a blast that can reach for miles, but Air Force spokesman Capt. Sam Grizzle emphasized, ''This is not a new secret weapon.''

GENEVA (OCT. 5) UPI - The International Organization for Migration said Friday it has moved 73,520 refugees from Iraq and occupied Kuwait out of camps in Jordan, Turkey, Iran and Saudi Arabia during the past month.

Another further 37,126 refugees are expected to be repatriated to their homelands, mostly in the Far East, between Oct. 4 and Oct. 15, a spokesman for the organization said.

The spokesman said the organization, which has received some $60 million so far to fund the airlift, hopes to be able to maintain the flow at around 10,000 persons a day but said it is running out of money.

The non-governmental organization affiliated with but not part of the United Nations transported 73,520 refugees between Sept. 3 and Oct. 3 from Iraq and Kuwait. Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2 and subsequently annexed it.

NEW YORK (OCT. 5) UPI - Stocks closed broadly lower Friday in moderate trading after the Dow industrials recovered virtually all of an early plunge tied to the House's defeat of compromise legislation aimed at reducing the size of the federal buget deficit.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 27.47 Thursday, lost 6.19 to close at 2510.64 after having bottomed out with a loss of about 60 points shortly after the opening, triggering the exchange's rule curbing program selling.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 0.63 to 170.70 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index eased 1.19 to 311.50. The price of an average share lost 11 cents.

Like the Dow, the broad market recovered much of its early weakness. Declines led advances 903-589 among the 1,952 issues crossing the NYSE tape after having led by a margin of more than 10 to 1 in early trading. Big Board volume totaled 153,380,000 shares, up from 145,410,000 traded Thursday.

The House, under strong public pressure, defeated the deficit-cutting package by an overwhelming 254-179 vote early Friday morning.

An unpalatable mix of taxes and spending cuts - including higher charges for Medicare recipients - doomed the compromise reached between administration and congressional negotiators that President Bush announced last Sunday with great fanfare.

The Hose vote sent prices plunging from the opening, with a 60-point loss after about 15 minutes of trading. But the Dow then rebounded, eventually retracing almost all 60 points as investors were heartened by renewed efforts to get a budget passed.

''The market tanked this morning on the news that the agreement fell apart but rose on chatter that they would work through the weekend to work something out and it looks like they will,'' said Jeff Kaminsky, head of institutional sales trading at Mabon, Nugent & Co.

Late Friday, Bush said he would not sign another stop-gap spending bill and appealed to Congress to enact a budget agreement by midnight Friday or face a shutdown of the federal government.

With the specter of a government closed down except for essential services, the administration and Congress launched a frenzied drive to come up with a substitute plan.

Meanwhile, House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., met with key Republican and Democratic leaders to consider another temporary spending bill. He told reporters he would seek passage of the stop-gap measure by midnight.

Kaminsky said the Dow also was helped in its recovery by the Bank of England's full-point cut in the central bank's prime rate, which was a necessary component of Britain's entry into the European Monetary System's exchange rate mechanism.Both moves were announced Friday.

The move is considered both a boon to British business and a major step towards European monetary union.

On the trading floor, Hanson PLC was the most active issue, up 3/4 to 19 3/4.

Philip Morris followed, down 1/4 to 47 3/4. Waste Management was third, off 1/8 to 32.

The new issue of RJR Nabisco convertible preferred stock was next, down 1/2 to 19 1/4.

Among other blue chips, AT&T lost 1/2 to 31 3/4, American Express fell 3/8 to 20 5/8 and Sears fell 1 to 25, while IBM rose 3/8 to 108 1/4, Coca-Cola gained 1/2 to 42 1/4 and General Motors gained 1 to 37.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 186,447,570 shares, compared with 176,027,490 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices fell in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 5) UPI - The top Soviet military official stressed Friday that the Persian Gulf crisis should be resolved by political means and expressed doubt Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would go to war against the world.

Gen. Mikhail Moiseyev, chairman of the general staff, also said the rapid withdrawal of Soviet armored forces from Eastern Europe in advance of a treaty with the United States on reducing conventional forces did not mean his nation is stockpiling weapons for future offensives.

Gen. Colin Powell, Moiseyev's U.S. counterpart as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said he was ''reassured'' by the Soviet general's explanations and that U.S. concerns that the Soviet might be trying to cheat on a weapons count before the treaty is complete had been eased.

He said Moiseyev had told him that the equipment being withdrawn will be used to modernize forces east of the Ural Mountains and that older weapons being replaced may be destroyed.

''We have no plans to store or mothball large amounts of equipment'' or to ''dream up'' new uses for it, Moiseyev told a news conference at the Pentagon. It culminated a six-day tour of U.S. military installations and cities with Powell, who will make a similar visit to the Soviet Union next year.

The two generals, both in uniform, appeared comfortable together. Powell escorted Moiseyev on a cross-country tour of seven sites that stretched from New York City to San Francisco, with NORAD headquarters in Wyoming in between.

A powerful symbol of the Cold War, the North American Air Defense Command is buried in Cheyenne Mountain and its purpose is to detect a nuclear missile or air attack against the United States.

The Russian is scheduled to visit Cuba after leaving Washington.

Moiseyev emphasized several times, in accord with his government's stated policy, that a political, not a military, solution should be found to achieve an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait, which it invaded Aug. 2.

''I want to stress again: you've got to find a political settlement and not be thinking of military force,'' Moiseyev said.

More than 200,000 U.S. and allied forces, including more than 170,000 American military, are in the Persian Gulf region in a face-off against Iraq. A United Nations economic embargo has been imposed on Iraq to force Saddam out of Kuwait.

''The most important thing for all of us is not to allow a military conflict to develop out of this situation,'' Moiseyev said. ''We must seek a political solution.''

Later, he said, ''I really exclude the possibility that Saddam Hussein would take on and fight the rest of the world.''

Moiseyev said there were 206 Soviet advisers in Iraq, most specialists who have been training the Iraqis to use Soviet military equipment that has been transferred to Iraq. He said 77 of them will be withdrawn this month.

He said 146 of them were technical specialists, 42 were interpreters and 15 were management personnel - for a total of 203. There was no opportunity to ask for a clarification.

Pentagon officials have estimated that between 500 to 1,000 Soviet advisers are in Iraq.

CAGAYAN DE ORO, PHILIPPINES (OCT. 5) UPI - Leaders of a two-day rebellion in the southern island of Mindanao surrendered Saturday, ending the seventh attempt to overthrow President Corazon Aquino, the armed forces chief said.

Gen. Renato de Villa said army Cols. Alexander Noble and Victor Erfe surrendered peacefully at 3 a.m. and were under the custody of Sen. Aquilino Pimentel.

De Villa said 240 rebels involved in the two-day rebellion had surrendered, and mop-up operations were being conducted in the cities of Butuan and Cagayan de Oro in Mindanao, 500 miles south of Manila.

''The pocket rebellion is over. We are now restoring order in these two cities '' de Villa said in a radio interview in Manila.

De Villa told hundreds of troops who escaped the government counterattack to surrender to their commanders, civilian officials or priest, saying ''it's useless to fight.''

Noble and an estimated 600 soldiers and militiamen captured garrisons in the two cities shortly after midnight Thursday and proclaimed Mindanao an independent federal state.

But officials said similar uprisings he expected in other parts of the country did not materialize and the plan to pull off a coup attempt in Manila fell apart.

By Friday evening, Noble appeared forlorn, completely backtracked on his grandiose plans for independence, and talked of negotiating an amnesty. He said his friends had deserted him.

The announcement that Erfe had surrendered came as a pleasant surprise to the Aquino government. Erfe was one of the key leaders of the six previous coup attempts against the Philippine president.

Noble and Erfe left Camp Evangelista and surrendered unconditionally to Pimentel at an undisclosed site in Cagayan de Oro. Pimentel told reporters local leaders and priests persuaded the two colonels to surrender.

Opposition politician Reuben Canoy, leader of the Mindanao Independence Movement Noble had adopted, escaped. De Villa urged Canoy to surrender or he would be pursued relentlessly.

Pimentel said he would fly Noble and Erfe to Manila later Saturday.

Noble was former deputy chief of Aquino's presidential guard. He had been the subject of a massive manhunt in Mindanao, but on Thursday came down from the hills with the Higa-onon tribes he had trained in the fight against communist insurgents and seized the cities without firing a shot.

De Villa said the government counterattacked Friday morning, sending two T-28 Tora Tora planes on bombing runs against the rebel-occupied base in Butuan. Witnesses said the planes made about a dozen bombing runs, sending hundreds of mutineers scampering away. De Villa said the only casualty was one wounded soldier. He said 40 mutineers surrendered.

Another 200 soldiers who were enraged by the bombing in Butuan and announced in the nearby industrial city of Iligan they were supporting Noble also surrendered at dawn, de Villa said. He said another 40 confronted government troops at a street in Iligan.

De Villa said troops entered the Butuan camp before dawn.

In Cagayan de Oro, de Villa said Noble's men did not offer resistance when elite Marine troops moved in shortly after midnight Friday. ''They were giving up in small groups. Thank God they did not fight,'' de Villa said.

Aquino had placed the 159,000-member armed forces on red alert - the maximum state of readiness - after Noble seized the garrisons and vowed to end the crisis swiftly.

''We will crush these pretenders, as we did before, for our people will never support their naked attempt to grab power,'' she said in a speech Friday to the annual Philippine Business Conference.

Aquino has survived six coup attempts. The worst challenge to her four-year rule, a bloody coup attempt in December, left 119 people dead and more than 500 wounded.

Businessmen have expressed fears of a recession in the cash-strapped country following a particularly difficult year. It was hit by a major earthquake, typhoons, bombings and finally the Persian Gulf crisis, which has forced Aquino to raise petroleum prices and triggered worker unrest.

Air and sea services to the area have been suspended since Thursday and schools and offices have remained closed.

Mindanao, the country's second-largest island, rich in minerals and timber and inhabited by a quarter of the 60 million Filipinos, has been wracked by a Moslem separatist insurgency for the past two decades. More than 50,000 people have died in the fighting.

Communist guerrillas battling Manila for 21 years also operate in northeastern Mindanao.

BOGOTA, Colombia (OCT. 5) UPI - An influential group that includes two former presidents and a Catholic Church representative proposed Friday negotiations with the Medellin cartel of cocaine traffickers believed to be holding seven kidnapped journalists.

The group offered its services as an intermediary between the cartel and the government to negotiate an agreement.

Signing the proposal were former presidents Alfonso Lopez Michelsen of the Liberal Party and Misael Pastrana Borrero of the Conservative Party. Joining them were Catholic Church Monseigneur Mario Revollo Bravo and Diego Montana Cuellar, member of the leftist M-19 political party and former rebel group.

The government said this week it believed a sector of the Medellin cartel, a powerful cocaine manufacturing and exporting organization, was holding the journalists.

They include Diana Turbay de Uribe, daughter of former President Julio Turbay, and Francisco Santos, news editor of El Tiempo newspaper and the son of publisher Hernando Santos.

In a statement, the group said if the seven were being held by the Medellin cartel members, ''their object would be to make certain demands to the government.''

''It would be through an exchange of ideas without pressures that advances could be made and in that sense we want to offer our services to the government and the captors to put an end to this stalemate,'' the statement said.

Government Minister Julio Sanchez Garcia said any proposal for help in freeing the kidnapped journalists ''is welcome.''

President Cesar Gaviria has stated numerous times he would not negotiate with cocaine traffickers. But the government has offered traffickers reduced prison sentences if they surrender.

Turbay de Uribe, owner of a television news program and a magazine, left Bogota Aug. 30 with five other journalists supposedly for an interview with the leader of a leftist guerrilla group. They have not been heard from since.

Santos was kidnapped Sept. 19 in Bogota and his bodyguard was killed.

A caller to El Tiempo who identified himself as a spokesman for The Extraditables, the cartel hit squad, said the journalists were in the hands of the cartel. The cartel wants to negotiate a political settlement with the government similar to that proposed for guerrilla groups, the caller said.

Gaviria in a speech to government officials Friday reiterated his policy with cocaine traffickers, calling terrorism by narcotics traffickers ''the principal threat to our democracy.''

''The major challenge we face is to leave behind the violence,'' Gaviria said. ''We must construct with patience, dedication and optimism a new country, where the conflicts are treated through legal and peaceful means.''

Gaviria issued a decree Sept. 5 in which he offered reduced prison sentences to traffickers who surrender and confess their crimes. Those who participated also would not be extradited to the United States.

GUATEMALA CITY (OCT. 5) UPI - A former interior minister running for congress as an opposition candidate emerged unscathed from a machine gun attack Friday by unidentified assailants, party officials said.

The gunmen fired a stream of bullets from two vehicles at Juan Jose Rodil Peralta's passing car a few blocks from his home in a residential neighborhood of the capital, said a spokesman for Rodil's party, the National Center Union.

He said Rodil, who was traveling in an armored car, was unhurt.

Rodil served as interior minister of Guatemala in President Vinicio Cerezo's Cabinet from 1986 to 1987.

No official confirmation of the attack was immediately available. Interior Minister Carlos Morales and police officials said they had no knowledge of the incident.

Rodil could not be reached for comment.

Rodil has publicly opposed the candidacy of former military ruler Efrain Rios Montt, who has been given conditional approval to run for president in the Nov. 11 general elections.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 5) UPI - The House ended a week of rare bipartisanship with a direct challenge to President Bush Friday, passing a stop-gap spending bill designed to keep him from implementing his pledge to shut down the government at midnight.

The 300-113 vote sent the temporary spending measure to the Senate, where an uncertain fate awaited it later Friday night. Some senators had said they might attempt to amend the bill with highly controversial and time-consuming proposals, such as the capital gains tax cut or a rollback in Social Security taxes.

The shut down of government services, ordered earlier in the day by the administration, was made necessary after the House early Friday morning defeated a bipartisan budget plan worked out between the Bush administration and congressional leaders.

Had that budget bill passed, Bush would have agreed to a second temporary spending bill keeping government agencies and services funded through Oct. 19 and delaying imposition of automatic spending cuts required by the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law.

But after it failed on a 254-179 vote, a disappointed Bush said Friday he would not accept another temporary spending bill that delayed the automatic spending cuts. He said he would neither sign the bill nor veto it, which would have the effect of letting the government shut down at midnight.

Bush urged Congress to quickly develop an alternate budget plan and to pass it before the midnight deadline when the government would officially run out of money.

White House press secretary Marin Fitzwater said Bush wanted a government shutdown or the imposition of the automatic cuts to ''discipline'' members of Congress.

''We do not believe at this time there should be a cessation of programs of the federal government and consequently we hope the ''
House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said after an emergency caucus of House Democrats earlier Friday.

The defeated budget plan included a politically painful package of tax increases on gasoline, alcohol, cigarettes and other items, a $60 billion cut in Medicare and other provisions that angered members of both parties and the voters, who registered their disgust in calls to congressional offices.

While Bush and Congress squabbled publicly over whether to keep the government operating or to impose the automatic cuts, administration aides and top congressional leaders met privately in a frenzied drive to craft an acceptable substitute for the rejected budget plan.

At the White House, a disappointed Bush said he would refuse to sign another stop-gap spending measure and had no interest in delaying the start of automatic spending cuts called for under the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law as a penalty for failing to slash the deficit.

Bush urged Congress to enact an alternate budget plan by midnight Friday or face a governmental shutdown.

Fiscal year 1990 ended at midnight on Sept. 30, the day Bush and Congress agreed to the bipartisan budget accord after four months of negotiation. Bush gave Congress five days, until Friday, to pass the budget plan and agreed to a temporary spending bill and a dealy in the automatic cuts until then.

Bush summoned his Cabinet to an emergency meeting late Friday afternoon to arrange for the shutdown, and budget director Richard Darman dispatched instructions to all department and agency heads on suspending non-essential activities.

Darman said only designated essential government workers should report to work on Tuesday - Monday being the Columbus Day holiday.

Among the essential services cited were air traffic controllers and meat inspectors and well as others concerned with health and safety.

11-On Capitol Hill, House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., met with key Republican and Democratic leaders to consider another temporary spending bill to keep the government in business. He told reporters he would seek passage of the stop-gap measure by midnight.

It was not clear, however, whether there were enough votes in Congress to pass a short-term funding bill by a veto-proof margin.

The defeated deficit-cutting plan had proposed $134 billion in new gasoline, cigarette, alcohol, airline and other taxes and fees over five years; $67 billion in military spending cuts; limiting domestic spending increases to the rate of inflation; $60 billion in Medicare savings, and new tax breaks for investing in small companies.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater expressed confidence the House, which handed Bush his first major defeat by repudiating the unpopular budget compromise, would be able to reach agreement on a comprehensive budget resolution.

''We think we can get a budget today,'' Fitzwater told reporters. ''If all that fails ... we would close down the government at midnight.''

Bush stayed up to watch the critical House vote that he had strenuously lobbied for and insisted that it was ''right for the people, right for the economy,'' said his spokesman.

But he conceded that congressmen, facing the Nov. 6 elections, felt the pressure of irate constitutents, many of whom had written or called the lawmakers.

Fitzwater said that an increase in unemployment reported Friday was an added factor in the need for a quick agreement.

Some House Republicans joined Democrats late Thursday during floor debate on the bipartisan budget plan in urging that the government not be shut down even if the plan were defeated. The president, who withdrew his ''no new taxes'' campaign promise to reach a deficit- cutting compromise, also told congressmen before the vote to ''blame me'' if it would help them politically.

''We're asking Republicans and Democrats alike to come together during the day today on a new resolution that is responsible, honest and fair. The job can be done. We're asking the Congress to get on with it,'' Fitzwater said.

But the spokesman said, ''If all that fails, then as we said, he won't sign one that just extends (government operations without an agreement).''

Not signing the stop-gap spending measure would be tantamount to a veto, Fitzwater said.

ASTORIA, OR (OCT. 5) UPI - A diesel fuel tanker docked near the Columbia River's mouth Friday to inspect damage from an ocean storm that injured three crew members and spilled about 80,000 gallons of cargo, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

The 334-foot tanker Contessa from the island nation of St. Vincent, with a crew of 17, ran into the storm after leaving Astoria Wednesday, said Lt. Dave Gault. One of the three injured was flown by Coast Guard helicopter to a hospital Friday, he said.

The Columbia River bar pilot, who took the tanker back across the bar and into the river, said the craft was listing to starboard and the decks were awash, Gault said. Coast Guard choppers airlifted pumps to the vessel, which was anchored at Young's Bay near Astoria around 4 p.m.

The tanker will remain docked until surveyors determine if it's safe to travel Gault said.

The fuel spill occurred in the ocean, he said, and no sheen was spotted by late Friday afternoon. Gault said it might break up without being seen on the surface.

(OCT. 5) UPI - In the Philippines, where it's now Saturday, the seventh attempt to overthrow President Aquino's four-year-old government has ended. (OCT. 5) UPI - The House adjourned this evening after voting 300-113 in favor of a stop-gap spending bill designed to keep President Bush from shutting down the federal government at midnight. The move is a direct challenge to Bush, who said he would NOT approve another stop-gap measure.

Iraq's deputy permanent representative to the United Nations delivered a hard-line speech to the U-N General Assembly today. He accused the United States of leading a ''Western imperialist alliance'' that's trying to gain control of the Persian Gulf's oil fields.

Iraq today did offer a gesture of good will in honor of German reunification, releasing four German captives. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein hosted a Soviet envoy in Baghdad... reportedly to discuss five-thousand Soviets being held in Iraq.

(OCT. 5) UPI - An E-P-A study released today says lead in school children's drinking water is still a widespread problem... almost two years after Congress passed a law to protect them from exposure. The study estimates half of all school districts have NOT tested their water for the toxic metal.

President Bush today vetoed a bill to limit imports of textiles, clothes and shoes. Bush said the measure would've hurt the economy, led to increased prices for Americans and violated international trade agreements.

Customs inspectors in Otay Mesa, California, have made the largest cocaine bust ever at the U-S-Mexico border. Inspectors were tipped off to the nearly four-ton bust because a propane tanker truck carrying the 262-Million-dollars worth of drugs was UNusually overweight.

A nationwide study conducted by researchers at the University of Wisconsin at Madison shows that workers whose performance is tracked by computers and other electronic devices suffer more health problems than those watched by human managers.

Negotiations have ended in New York without Washington and Moscow able to resolve outstanding issues standing in the way of a strategic weapons accord. Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze and Secretary of State Baker met for more than four hours at the United Nations... took time out... and then resumed. On Wednesday, the two ministers announced an agreement in principle on conventional arms reductions in Europe.

Iraq delivered a hard-line address to the United Nations General Assembly late today... after postponing it earlier in the week. The speech, read by Iraq's deputy U-N representative, accused the United States and its Western allies of trying to gain control of Persian Gulf oil fields. The regular Iraqi U-N representative postponed the speech three times because of social engagements and illness.

A study by the Environmental Protection Agency indicates more than 250-thousand children nationwide remain exposed to harmful levels of lead in school drinking water. The revelation comes almost two years after Congress passed a law to remedy the problem. The E-P-A estimates half of all school districts have NOT tested their water for the toxic metal linked to brain, kidney and nerve damage and stunted growth. The agency says it does NOT have enough money or proper authority to crack down.

(OCT. 5) UPI - NASA managers at Cape Canaveral are hoping the shuttle program's five-month hiatus is about to end. NASA today cleared the way to begin fueling the shuttle Discovery tonight with an eye toward a morning lift-off. Discovery's flight will be the 36th in the shuttle series, but the first since April 24th. Hydrogen fuel leaks grounded the Columbia and Atlantis in May, July and September.

President Bush issued the 14th veto of his administration today. The ax fell on a bill to limit imports of textiles, clothes and shoes. Backers say the legislation is needed to protect U-S industries from a growing foreign competition. But the president says the measure would hurt the economy, lead to increased prices for Americans and violate international trade agreements.

Researchers at the University of Wisconsin say their nationwide survey of 762 workers in the telephone industry links electronic monitoring to health problems. The study shows workers whose job performance is tracked by computers and other devices suffer considerably more headaches and other pains than NON-monitored employees. Electronically monitored workers also are more prone to depression, tension, extreme anxiety and severe fatigue.

CINCINNATI (OCT. 5) UPI - Paul O'Neill drove in both of Cincinnati's runs and snuffed out a Pittsburgh threat with a rocket throw from right field, sending the Reds past the Pirates 2-1 Friday and evening the National League playoffs at one victory each.

O'Neill singled Barry Larkin home from third in the first inning and delivered a game-deciding double in the fifth to score Herm Winningham from second.

In the sixth, O'Neill put his rifle arm on display before the sellout crowd at Riverfront Stadium. He caught a fly ball and unleashed a perfect throw to nail Andy Van Slyke trying to advance from second to third. It was the second straight game O'Neill has gunned down a runner.

The Reds and Pirates will take Saturday and Sunday off before the series resumes Monday in Pittsburgh.

Cincinnati starter Tom Browning limited Pittsburgh to one run and six hits in his six innings. The left-hander struck out three and walked three. Rob Dibble pitched 1 1-3 innings and Randy Myers worked 1 2-3 innings for the save.

O'Neill's strong defense in right field was complemented Larkin. The shortstop made two defensive gems in the ninth, cutting off potential hits by Barry Bonds and R.J. Reynolds to hold off the Pirates.

Pittsburgh's Doug Drabek, who won an NL-best 22 games this season, went the distance and took the loss, yielding only five hits and two runs. The right-hander struck out eight and walked two.

O'Neill's second RBI in the fifth staked Cincinnati to a 2-1 lead. With two outs, Winningham reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored when O'Neill doubled off the left-field wall.

The Pirates, trailing 1-0 since the first, tied it in the fifth on an unlikely home run by Jose Lind to left. Lind, the eighth hitter in the lineup, hit just one homer during the season and has just six in his three years.

The Reds grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first, but splendid clutch pitching by Drabek kept them from scoring more. Larkin drew a leadoff walk, stole second, moved to third on Winningham's line single to right and scored on O'Neill's flare to right, just past the glove of second baseman Lind.

Cincinnati did a lot more base running in the inning, but with nothing to show for it. Winningham raced to third on O'Neill's hit and a few pitches later O'Neill stole second. After Drabek struck out Eric Davis, Hal Morris was was given an intentional one-out walk to load the bases.

Drabek got Chris Sabo to ground back to the mound and forced Winningham at home, with Sabo safe at first on the fielder's choice, leaving the bases full with two outs. Drabek then ended the inning by striking out Joe Oliver.

Pittsburgh blew several good scoring chances. The Pirates had runners on first and second with no out in the first, but Browning pitched out of the jam by getting Van Slyke to fly out, Bobby Bonilla to pop up and Bonds to strike out.

Pittsburgh put a pair of runners on in the second with one out, but Browning came through unscathed by picking Jeff King off second and fanning Drabek.

In the sixth, Van Slyke and Bonilla opened with singles, but Van Slyke was nailed by O'Neill as he tried to advance. Browning struck out Reynolds to end the threat.

Third baseman King left the game in the bottom of the second because of a bruised lower back, with right fielder Bonilla moving to third and Reynolds inserted in right.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 5) UPI - More than 800 additional people from four Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard units have been called to active duty and the Army has alerted two more Army Reserve outfits for possible mobilization, the Pentagon said Friday.

The call-up and the alert were in connection with Operation Desert Shield in the Persian Gulf area.

A total of 844 people from the following Air Force selected command and control, flying, maintenance and combat support groups have been called:

_914th Tactical Airlift Group, Air Force Reserve, Niagara Falls, N.Y., 206.

_927th Tactical Airlift Group, Air Force Reserve, Selfridge Air Force Base, Mich., 187.

_130th Tactical Airlift Group, Air National Guard, Charleston, W.Va., 224.

_136th Tactical Airlift Wing, Air National Guard, Dallas, 227.

In addition the Army said two units may be called to active duty ''as they are needed during the operation in response the crisis our nation faces.''

The units will perform duties in the United States as well as in forward areas it said.

The two units are the 416th Engineer Command Detachment in Chicago and the 300th Adjutant General Detachment in Homewood, Ill., a postal outfit.

NEW YORK (UPI) _ The government bond market showed some disappointment Friday at Congress's refusal to pass the budget-cutting package proposed by the White House and bipartisan leaders but still posted gains for the week.

Uncertainty in Washington carried over into the Treasuries market, hostage to Congress just as it seemed to be shaking itself free of the baneful influence of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's Persian Gulf adventurism.

Market watchers said the effect of the House of Represenatives' defeat of the bipartisan budget plan early Friday was offset by a highly recessionary Labor Department unemployment report released hours later saying 101,000 jobs were lost across the country during September.

Considerably worse than expected, that drove the unemployment rate up to 5.7 percent last month from 5.6 percent in August.

''Those two factors have sort of canceled each other out, and the market is ending more or less unchanged on the day,'' said Mike Casey, international economist with Maria Ramirez Capital Consultants in New York.

The benchmark 30-year bond, the 8 3/4 of 2020, ended at 99 17/32 to yield 8.79 percent, compared with 98 and 8.94 percent a week earlier. That represented a gain of more than 1 1/2 points, or $15 for every $1,000 face value.

The additional evidence of economic slowing was helpful to bonds, whose fixed return becomes more attractive as other investments falter.

But Capital Hill was the bond market's main focus.

''The follies that went on there ... were probably more disappointing'' than the bond-positive jobs data, said Daniel Laufenberg, a senior economist with IDS Financial Services in Minneapolis.

The market has a number of concerns, Laufenberg said. First, even the package as proposed would result in a higher federal budget deficit for fiscal 1991 _ yet another record at an estimated $250 billion.

Beyond that, the economist said, ''Congress seems to be out of control here on budgetary issues. I think that's the view many investors, particularly foreign investors, would take.'' That could mean reduced foreign purchases of U.S. Treasury bonds _ also pushing long- term rates upward.

Held in abeyance, by all indications, was a Federal Reserve- engineered cut in short-term rates. Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan has made clear that lower rates depend on passage of ''credible and enforceable'' deficit-reduction legislation.

Fed officials ''don't want to throw out their trump card here without some action on the part of Congress,'' Laufenberg said. ''If they eased before we had a budget package, I think the market would be uncomfortable with that.''

Economist Casey said Congress probably would cut some face-saving deal over the weekend, allowing the Treasury to proceed with bond auctions.

But ''there is still, at a gut level, no real consensus as to how the country should proceed at this point,'' he said.

So a quick fix on Capitol Hill could leave bond investors unconvinced of the eventual package's credibility, causing a rise in long-term interest rates to compensate for higher perceived risk. That would mean higher home mortgage rates _ another blow to an already struggling economy.

Ten-year Treasury notes ended at 100 21/32 to yield 8.65 percent, against 99 21/32 and 8.80 percent the week before. Five-year notes ended at 100 28/32 to yield 8.28 percent, compared with 100 6/32 and 8.44 percent.

Three-year Treasury notes closed at 100 2/32 to yield 7.97 percent, against 99 20/32 and 8.14 percent seven days before. Two-year notes were at 100 18/32 to yield 7.81 percent vs. 100 8/32 and 7.99 percent.

Six-month Treasury bills were discounted at a rate of 7.08 percent to yield 7.44 percent vs. a 7.16 percent discount and 7.53 percent yield the previous week. Three-month T-bills ended at a 7.04 percent discount to yield 7.26 percent vs. a 7.13 percent discount and a 7.36 percent yield.

The Shearson Lehman Brothers long-term Treasury bond index rose 1.4 percent on the week to 1,262.02, up 17.09 points.

The federal funds rate ended at 8 percent, its current perceived target rate.

Fed officials manipulate this rate, set on short-term lending of reserve funds between banks, to signal financial markets that central bank monetary policy has changed and to set the tone on interest rates.

(OCT. 4) UPI - The Kansas City Chiefs couldn't ask for a more ideal opportunity to grab a share of the AFC West lead.

The Chiefs, 3-1, go to Indianapolis Sunday to face a 1-3 team with an injured quarterback and Eric Dickerson unavailable. The Colts earlier this week were backed by the league in their move to put Dickerson on the physically-unable-to-perform list under the running back's protests.

The front-running but home-loving Los Angeles Raiders are on the road Sunday, and Denver, the struggling defending conference champion, does not play until Monday night.

The Raiders are 9-0 at home in the year since Art Shell was named head coach but on the road are 2-5, and the Bills, 3-1, are a tough challenge.

With a triumph, Kansas City will be 4-1 for the first time since 1971. Indianapolis No. 1 pick Jeff George has a strained abdomen but backup Jack Trudeau was named AFC Player of the Week for engineering the Colts' only victory, a 24-23 decision over Philadelphia.

He was 19 of 40 for 329 yards and sparked an 82-yard drive for the winning touchdown on the final play.

''That was really satisfying,'' Trudeau said. ''Sure I want to start more. I've been through a lot of stuff. But why get in a tizzy about not playing? I'll do what they ask.''

The Colts offense ranks last in NFL rushing with just 56.8 yards a game and its average possession time is an NFL-low 24:37. The Colts ran only 14 rushes at Philadelphia, the fewest in any triumph in team history. Indianapolis has been outscored 43-3 in points off turnovers.

Their defense is fourth-worst in the league and third-most vulnerable to the pass. Indianapolis has allowed league-highs of 83 first downs and 26 third-down conversions.

Steve DeBerg, a 14-year NFL veteran, is the AFC's top-rated passer with 63 completions in 115 attempts for 907 yards and six touchdowns. He has thrown 128 straight passes without an interception and is the only NFL starter not picked off this season.

''I've done a good job keeping the ball away from the defense but that goes back to the overall unit,'' DeBerg said. ''The receivers run great routes. I get great protection and the rushing game keeps the presure off.''

DeBerg's cause was aided Thursday when Colts linebacker Duane Bickett went down with a pulled right hamstring. Bickett, the Indianapolis tackles leader with 34, is questionable for Sunday.

The Raiders have a chance to become the first 5-0 team in franchise history _ the Oakland Raiders were 6-0-1 in 1969 _ and the first in the NFL this season. The San Francisco 49ers return from their open date at 3-0 in Houston and the 4-0 New York Giants are idle Sunday.

In other games Sunday, it's Detroit at Minnesota, Green Bay at Chicago, New Orleans at Atlanta, the New York Jets at Miami, San Diego at Pittsburgh, Seattle at New England, Tampa Bay at Dallas, and Cincinnati at the Los Angeles Rams. Monday night, Cleveland plays at Denver.

New England, a loser by 34 and 24 points since revelation of a sexual harassment controversy, meets a Seattle team also burdened by problems on and off the field. Like the Patriots, the Seahawks are 1-3 and have made non-sports news.

Running back Derrick Fenner, the NFL touchdown leader, was involved in a parking-lot confrontation after the team's victory over Cincinnati Monday night. In 1987, Fenner was found guilty of cocaine possession. He was also jailed that year for a first-degree murder charge that later was dropped.

At Anaheim, Calif., the Cincinnati Bengals are on a five-game road trip because of the baseball playoffs. The Bengals, 3-1, come off a short week after their Monday night loss to Seattle facing the rested Rams, who had a bye last week.

The Rams are 1-2 but are averaging 359 yards a game in offense. They get back Pro Bowl cornerback Jerry Gray, who missed the first three games because of a knee injury.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) _ Iraq delivered a hard-line address Friday in the U.N. General Assembly, accusing the United States and a ''Western imperialist alliance'' of trying to gain control over the Persian Gulf's oil fields.

It also lashed out at the U.N. Security Council for shutting off the views of Third World nations while it tried to implement the worldwide trade and arms embargo on the Iraqi government of President Saddam Hussein.

In the address read by the country's deputy permanent representative to the United Nations, Sabah Talat Kadrat, Iraq said the United States and Britain have applied a double standard by sparing Israel, which continues to occupy southern Lebanon, while punishing Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Kadrat read the speech on behalf of his chief of mission, Ambassador Abdul Amir Al-Anbari, who suffered repeated severe cases of nosebleed and had been hospitalized. Al-Anbari postponed the address thrice this week because of social engagements and illness.

''The United States and its Western allies are not defending international law and the U.N. Charter,'' Kadrat said.

''They are seeking to gain control over the oil reserves in the gulf so as to have a free hand in manipulating the needs of the world,'' Kadrat said.

He accused Washington of raising ''artificial fears'' about Iraqi control of 20 percent of oil reserves ''while it was quite happy when those reserves were under the control of a handful of sheiks.''

Kadrat reiterated Saddam's proposal to link a solution of the gulf crisis to the resolution of other issues in the Israeli-Arab conflict, including the Palestinian question of the Israeli-occupied territories.

He said all those issues should be considered on an ''equal footing.''

The Security Council should seek to set up ''common principles and criteria to deal with these issues, and these principles and criteria should be applied to all the issues of the region without ignoring the particularities and antecedents of each,'' Kadrat said.

He said a few countries have voiced support for parallel resolution of the crises in the whole region, ''but America and Britain have sought to suppress any tendency to give them consideration.''

The 15-nation Security Council began Friday a debate on the occupied territories at the request of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The PLO's foreign minister, Farouk Kaddoumi, told the council that it was time to deal with the issue in the West Bank and Gaza Strip ''in a comprehensive manner.''

''The issue was the root of the current tension in the gulf area and in Lebanon,'' Kaddoumi said.

CINCINNATI (OCT. 5) UPI - The Pittsburgh Pirates ran themselves into a 2-1 defeat Friday, enabling the Cincinnati Reds to even their best-of-seven National League Championship Series at one game each.

The Pirates, who battled back from a 3-0 to deficit to win Game 1 with No. 4 pitcher Bob Walk on the mound, were over-aggressive in Game 2. Largely because of three base-running mistakes, they wasted eight masterful, five-hit innings from ace right-hander Doug Drabek.

The first big goof came after Drabek pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the first inning to escape a potentially huge Cincinnati inning, trailing 1-0.

Reds starter Tom Browning opened the second slightly out of synch, walking Jeff King. An out later, the left-hander also walked Jose Lind, bringing Drabek, a good bunter to the plate.

King took a generous lead off second, and Browning took a shot at picking him off. King got back - but barely - before shortstop Barry Larkin took the throw.

Despite the close escape, King tried again, and this time he wasn't as lucky. Umpire Dutch Rennert said Browning's throw got there first, and King picked himself up out of the dirt to find he somehow had bruised his back. Drabek struck out to end the inning, and King ended up leaving the game, forcing Manager Jim Leyland to move Bobby Bonilla from right to third and put pinch-hitter R.J. Reynolds in right.

The next base-running gaffe came in the third, with Pittsburgh still trailing 1-0. Gary Redus drew a leadoff walk, bringing Jay Bell, baseball's best bunter this season to the plate with none out. But Redus didn't wait for Bell's sacrifice attempt; he took off for second, and catcher Joe Oliver nailed him with a perfect throw to Mariano Duncan. Bell followed with a wasted single to right. Deflated, the Pirates left the inning quietly on Andy Van Slyke's popout and Bobby Bonilla's fly ball to center.

The two miscues seemed unimportant when Lind led off the fifth inning with what was just the sixth home run of his career to tie the score at 1-1.

But Paul O'Neill's RBI double put Cincinnati back on top, 2-1, in the bottom of the fifth, and the Pirates realized they had better get their offense going before Reds Manager Lou Piniella went to the bullpen for one of his Nasty Boys.

Van Slyke and Bonilla opened the sixth with back-to-back singles, and it appeared the Pirates were back in business. But then Barry Bonds flied out to right-field, and Van Slyke made the mistake of tagging up and challenging O'Neill's arm.

The right-fielder nailed him with a perfect throw to third baseman Chris Sabo for the double play, and Reynolds ended the inning by going out on Browning's last pitch of the game, a called third strike.

Each of the involved Pirates defended his base-running game.

''I thought I got back. Unfortunately, the umpire didn't see it that way,'' King said.

''With Oliver behind the plate, you don't get a good jump you're out, '' Redus said. ''But I got a good jump. He made a perfect throw.''

Similarly, Van Slyke swore: ''I'll do the same thing again in Pittsburgh if I have to.

''I decided he (O'Neill) would have to make a perfect throw to get me, and that's exactly what happened. He threw low and at the base. He might have even hit the base, that's how good the throw was.''

The defense of their actions is understandable. The Pirates' aggression played a huge role in their capture of the National League East. But those who play by the sword also occasionally lose by it.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 5) UPI - President Bush vetoed a bill to limit imports of textiles, clothes and shoes Friday, saying the measure would hurt the economy, lead to increased prices for Americans and violate international trade agreements.

''It would also reverse the tremendous progress we are making to generate a global economic renaissance,'' Bush said in issuing the 14th veto of his administration. Thus far, Congress has not been able to override a Bush veto and it appeared this one also would stick.

The House gave final approval to the bill on Sept. 19. Backers said the legislation was needed to protect the U.S. textile and shoe industries from growing foreign competition.

Bush, in his veto message to Congress, said, ''Economic indicators illustrate that the problems this bill is intended to address do not exist. Despite assertions to the contrary, the textile industry has done well.''

The Senate passed the bill with enough votes _ 68-32 _ to override a veto but the House tally _ 271-149 _ indicated such an effort would fall short. In 1985 and 1988, President Ronald Reagan vetoed similar bills and was sustained.

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said through a spokesman: ''It won't be easy, but I'm hopeful that this veto will be overridden. The survival of the textile industry is at stake.''

The legislation would allow only a 1 percent annual increase in textile imports and would freeze imports of non-rubber footwear, such as leather shoes and sneakers, at their 1989 levels.

The bill drew support from both Democrats and Republicans who said it was necessary to save the U.S. textile and footwear industries, with 2.1 million workers, from extinction at the hands of unfair foreign competitors who pay their workers low wages and receive subsidies from their governments.

''We just want fair trade. Free trade doesn't work. It's fair trade that works '' Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., argued during debate on the bill.

Supporters said imports now account for 60 percent of the textiles and 80 percent of the footwear sold in America. The growth in imports has cost half a million jobs since 1980, they said.

Opponents of the bill, also from both parties, said quotas would boost costs for consumers while inviting retaliation against U.S. exports, particularly agricultural products.

They also argued it was illogical to protect ''inefficient'' industries. They said the United States should instead seek to relax trade rules to help growing sectors of the economy in foreign markets.

Bush, in agreeing with the bill's foes, said the Textile, Apparel and Footwear Trade Act of 1990 ''is simply not the panacea advertised by its proponents.''

''Instead,'' he insisted, ''it is blatantly protectionist, unwarranted, economically harmful and internationally unviable.''

Bush said, ''We already have very effective laws that provide remedies to unfair competition from abroad.''

Furthermore, he said, ''Our best hope of opening new markets overseas and for sustaining our textile and apparel industries is not this legislation,'' but the Uraguay Round of global trade talks now in their ''critical final weeks.''

More than 100 nations are involved in these discussions.

Bush also charged that the bill would be ''reprehensible at a time when the United States' highest international priority is to strengthen international cooperation.''

''Many of the countries whose interests would be damaged ... such as Turkey and Egypt, are ones that have cooperated effectively in resisting Iraqi aggression in the Persian Gulf,'' the president said.

He also said the legislation would pick ''the pockets of U.S. consumers in order to subsidize the textile industry at a cost of $70, 000 annually per job saved.''

MIAMI (OCT. 5) UPI - Hurricane Klaus, whose torrential rains were blamed for six deaths among islanders in the Lesser Antilles, could threaten the southeastern United States within five days, forecasters said Friday.

Meanwhile, another hurricane, Josephine, sped harmlessly in the open Atlantic.

Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center did not expect Klaus _ which grew Friday from a tropical storm to become the sixth Atlantic- Caribbean hurricane of the season _ to strengthen much during the next 24 hours.

At 9 p.m. EDT, Klaus's maximum sustained winds were 75 mph, just 1 mph over the hurricane threshold and down from 80 mph earlier in the day. It was centered near latitude 18.1 north, longitude 61.7 west, or about 70 miles north of Antigua.

Forecasters predicted Klaus could dump 10 inches to 15 inches of rain over the northeastern Caribbean islands, possibly producing flash floods and mud slides.

Klaus was moving north-northwest at near 6 mph, and forecasters at the National Hurricane Center expected the storm to continue in that direction for the next 24 hours.

''Three days from now, it will still be fairly far away from the southeastern U.S., but what happens after that, what our guidance models suggest, is that the system could move closer to the southeastern U.S., threatening the U.S. mainland sometime around Wednesday,'' said hurricane specialist Miles Lawrence.

A ridge of high pressure north of Klaus was expected to strengthen over the next week, pushing the storm to the west toward the United States.

On Thursday, heavy rains from the system produced flash flooding on Martinique and neigboring islands in the northern-most chain of the Lesser Antilles. Six people were reported killed and two others were missing, said a spokeswoman at the French Embassy in Washington.

Hurricane warnings were issued Friday for the northern Leeward Islands from St. Martin eastward, including Nevis, Barbuda, Montserrat, Antigua and surrounding islands.

Tropical storm warnings were in effect for Guadeloupe and neighboring French islands, while a hurricane watched continued for the British and U.S. Virgin Islands.

Forecasters warned boaters in the northeast Caribbean from Puerto Rico eastward to stay near port.

Hurricane force winds extended as far as 30 miles and tropical storm force winds extended as far as 115 miles east of the center of Klaus. Tropical storm force winds extended as far as 40 miles west of the center.

Probability charts from the hurricane center indicated a 10 percent to 14 percent chance that the storm's eye would pass within 65 miles of St. Croix and St. Thomas in the U.S. Virgin Islands and San Juan and Ponce, Puerto Rico, by 2 p.m. Monday.

Klaus was the 11th named storm of the 1990 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season which runs from June 1 to Nov. 30. It sprang from a tropical depression that rapidly strengthened Wednesday.

The 10th named storm, Josephine, achieved winds of 80 mph Friday as it sped through the north Atlantic toward the Azores.

Josephine formed off the African coast Sept. 16 and has waxed and waned as it followed an erratic northward course through the Atlantic.

At 6 p.m. EDT, Josephine was centered near latitude 35.5 north, longitude 37.0 west, or about 585 miles west southwest of Terceira in the Azores.

The storm was moving north-northeast at near 29 mph, and was expected to continue that direction Friday night. Forecasters predicted some decrease in strength over the next day.

Hurricane force winds extended as far as 30 miles from the center, with tropical force winds extending as far as 175 miles.

Josephine was considered a threat only to marine interests.

BURBANK, CA (OCT. 5) UPI - Emmy Award-winning television director Rudy Vejar died this week of respiratory failure, a spokesman said Friday. He was 57.

Vejar died Wednesday at St. Joseph's Hospital, publicist Ward Grant said.

Vejar served as co-executive producer of NBC's daytime drama ''Generations'' and most recently resumed special directorial assignment's for CBS's ''The Young and the Restless,'' where he won his Emmy Awards as outstanding director of daytime drama for four consecutive years from 1985-1988.

Prior to his stint on ''the Young and the Restless,'' Vejar directed multiple episodes of ''Tribes,'' ''Romance Theatre'' and ''Days of Our Lives.''

He also served eight years as a freelance stage manager and director for ''General Hospital.''

Vejar, born in Los Angeles, graduated from the University of Southern California with a masters degree in music and drama. Following college, he appeared in musical theater on and off-Broadway as a singer and actor.

A memorial service is planned Oct. 13 at St. James Church in Los Angeles, the spokesman said.

BAGHDAD, (OCT 6) - A senior Soviet envoy Saturday ended a two-day visit to Iraq during which he met with President Saddam Hussein to deliver a message from Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, official Iraqi sources said.

Soviet embassy sources here said the message delivered Friday by Yevgeni Primakov, Mr. Gorbachev's foreign policy advisor, dealt with the condition of Soviet citizens trapped in Iraq and the possibility of settling the Gulf crisis peacefully.

(Soviet television reported Friday that Mr. Hussein told Mr. Primakov that the some 5,100 Soviets in Iraq would be allowed to leave the country, Soviet television reported Friday.)

(A Soviet journalist reporting from Baghdad quoted Mr. Hussein as saying that "there is no political reason to prevent Soviets from returning home."

("The Iraqi president has given his assurances that a large group of Soviet citizens will be leaving Iraq soon," the correspondent said.)

Only a few Soviets have been granted exit visas by the Iraqi authorities, who have been detaining Westerners and Japanese in a bid to deter a possible attack by the U.S. and allied forces massed in the Gulf.

Moscow, traditionally a close ally of Iraq, angered Baghdad by joining in the international condemnation of the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. Over the years, it had sent Iraq large numbers of military and technical experts.

The Iraqi media said Saturday that Mr. Primakov and Iraqi leaders had stressed their desire for peace in the region and better bilateral ties.

Mr. Primakov met separately with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz and also held talks with Palestine Liberation Organisation Chairman Yasser Arafat during his visit, part of stepped-up diplomatic efforts to end the Gulf crisis.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (OCT 6) - Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu arrived here Saturday for a 24-hour visit during which he is to discuss the Gulf crisis with King Fahd of Saudi Arabia.

Mr. Kaifu, who arrived from Ankara on the fourth leg of a five-nation Middle East tour, was met at the royal airport terminal by Crown Prince Abdullah.

Mr. Kaifu, the first Japanese prime minister to visit Saudi Arabia in 12 years is to hold talks with the Saudi monarch and crown prince later Saturday.

From Jeddah, Mr. Kaifu flies to Oman for the last stop of a tour that has already taken him to Egypt, Jordan and Turkey.

MONACO, (OCT 6) - Stefano Casiraghi, the Italian-born husband of Princess Caroline of Monaco, was buried here Saturday after two separate funeral services.

Princess Caroline, her father Prince Rainier, his two other children, Prince Albert and Princess Stephanie, and other family members attended a private service at the Peace Chapel in the tiny principality's old town.

More than 1,000 people, including Danielle Mitterrand, wife of the French president, crowded Monaco cathedral for a public funeral service.

Stefano Casiraghi, 30, was killed Wednesday when his speedboat flipped over as he was defending his offshore championship title.

His death by accident is the second to strike the Grimaldi family in eight years.

Princess Caroline's mother, Princess Grace, was killed in September 1982 when her car veered off a road in the hills behind Monaco. Princess Stephanie was injured in the accident.

Prince Rainier was watching the offshore race from Monte Carlo port when Wednesday's accident happened during a world championship heat. Mr. Casiraghi's parents were also in Monaco for the championship's second round.

Untitled Mr. Casiraghi had three children with Princess Caroline.

He was her second husband. They got married one year after the death of Princess Grace, former Hollywood actress Grace Kelly.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA, (OCT 6) - Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu arrived here Saturday for talks with King Fahd of Saudi Arabia on Japan's contributions to international efforts to restore stability in the Gulf.

Mr. Kaifu was given a red carpet welcome at the royal airport terminal here by Crown Prince Abdullah at the start of a 24-hour visit, the first to Saudi Arabia by a Japanese premier in 12 years.

Mr. Kaifu had been scheduled to begin his talks with King Fahd at a royal palace here shortly after his arrival, but the meeting was put back by three hours by the Saudis at the last minute. No reason was given for the delay.

Japanese Foreign Ministry sources said that during their talks, Mr. Kaifu would extend an invitation to King Fahd to visit Japan. The Saudi monarch was invited to Japan previously, in 1976, but never made the trip.

Mr. Kaifu's discussions here with King Fahd and the crown prince were expected to touch on the possibility of Japan contributing unarmed military personnel to the multi-national force assembled in Saudi Arabia following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

ROME (OCT 6) - The last two Italian diplomats in Kuwait left for Iraq on Saturday because they had run out of food and water, the Italian foreign ministry said.

Ambassador Marco Colombo and the first secretary at the Italian embassy had been living under conditions of extreme hardship for nearly two months, the ministry said.

Foreign ministry sources said that life at the embassy had become unbearable because of the blockade by Iraqi troops seeking to force foreign diplomats to leave.

Iraq annexed Kuwait after its August 2 invasion and ordered foreign embassies to close and evacuate their personnel.

The foreign ministry said the decision to evacuate the diplomats did not mean that Italy was closing down its embassy in Kuwait.

ATLANTA, (OCT. 6) PR NEWSWIRE - Scientific-Atlanta, Inc. (NYSE: SFA) has received a $2.7 million order from the U.S. Navy for compact range equipment used to determine radar reflectivity of low radar cross section (RCS) vehicles and other equipment. The order represents the first application of compact ranges for indoor bistatic measurements.

Under terms of the contract, issued for the Navy's Radar Signature Branch of the Pacific Missile Test Center at Point Mugu, Calif., Scientific-Atlanta's radar systems business area will construct a compact range for installation in a large anechoic chamber currently under construction at the Missile Systems Evaluation Laboratory.

The compact range will provide the free-space and far-afield conditions necessary for performance of both bistatic and monostatic RCS measurements. Most RCS measurements are monostatic -- that is, the receiver is located in the same line of sight as the transmitted signal. However, when the bistatic measurement facility is complete, the Navy will be able to conduct RCS measurements under bistatic threat conditions in which the directions of the transmitted signal and received signal can be separated up to 180 degrees.

William G. Luehrs, manager of Scientific-Atlanta's radar systems business, said, "This award is significant because it provides the Navy with the ability to measure very large targets in a compact range that contains a quiet zone or test area larger than 30 feet. It will also be the first time bistatic measurements will be made with the aid of a compact range. This allows the Navy to conduct a great variety of tests day or night in all types of weather with complete security.

"We are proud to have our compact range equipment chosen for this effort because, once the new facility is complete, it will be the most modern, state-of-the-art ground-based threat environment in the world," Luehrs said.

Scientific-Atlanta, Inc. is a key supplier of electronic instrumentation for industrial, telecommunications and government applications as well as a leader in cable television electronics and satellite-based communications networks.

LANDOVER, Md. (OCT. 6) UPI - One victory does not make team shrug off the loss of a player like Mario Lemieux, but it sure makes living without the scoring machine a little easier.

Kevin Stevens scored two goals, including the game-winner with 7:15 left in the game, and assisted on four others Friday night to pace the Pittsburgh Penguins to a season-opening 7-4 victory Friday over the Washington Capitals.

Lemieux, the team's top scorer the last six seasons, will likely be out through December with an ailing back. The victory also came in Bob Johnson's first game as the Penguins' coach. He coached the Calgary Flames for five seasons from 1982-83 through 1986-87.

''It was a good start,'' Johnson said. ''We came back and I'm happy about that.'' Stevens, who scored 29 goals last season, was pleased the Penguins could produce so well without Lemieux: ''We wanted to get off to a good start because everyone was doubting us.''

John Cullen added five assists for the Penguins.

Stevens' second goal put Pittsburgh up 5-4. Capitals goalie Mike Liut had little chance as Stevens blasted his shot from only 10 feet out in front of the net.

''We fell a goal behind and we started to gamble,'' said Capitals coach Terry

Murray, starting his first full season at Washington after taking the helm Jan. 15 and leading the team to the Patrick Division playoff title.

Mark Recchi added two insurance goals less than two minutes later for the Penguins, both assisted by Cullen and Stevens.

It was only 38 seconds before Stevens' game-winning goal that the Caps had tied the score at 4-4 on a goal by Peter Zezel.

Stevens scored the game's first goal at 4:58 thanks to a poor pass by Capitals defenseman Kevin Hatcher, who only joined the team this week following a contract dispute.

Cullen grabbed Hatcher's attempted clearing pass with his left glove, and got the puck to Stevens in front of the net, who scored on a backhander to the left of Liut that grazed off the goal post.

The Capitals, on a power play, took less than two minutes to tie the game at 1-1. Dale Hunter backhanded the puck past goalie Tom Barrasso at close range.

Paul Coffey, one of hockey's best scoring defensemen, put the Penguins back on top, 2-1, at 8:36. Coffey scored from close in after receiving a pass from Stevens behind the Capitals net.

Pittsburgh outshot Washington 11-5 in the first 20 minutes and 29-24 for the game.

The Patrick Division rivals exchanged power-play goals in the second period. Penguin center Barry Pederson, who scored only six goals in 54 games last season, went unchallenged when he beat Liut to his right with five minutes gone in the period.

The Capitals narrowed the Penguins' advantage to 3-2 on Mike Ridley's scoring shot from in front.

Among those scouting the game was Detroit Red Wings coach and general manager Bryan Murray, who was fired as coach of the Capitals late last year and replaced by his brother, Terry Murray.

The Red Wings play the Capitals Saturday in Landover.

''Of course, I'm interested because of Terry,'' Bryan Murray said between periods 2 and 3. ''I want my team to do well here tomorrow. But they're young and it's tough coming in here.''

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 6) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and Secretary of State James Baker said they were unable to reach an accord on strategic weapons because of unresolved details but expect to iron out the issues later this year.

Both expressed hope to hold more talks on the long-range, nuclear weapons and conclude an agreement on Strategic Arms Reduction Talks by year's end.

''We made some good progress on this today (Friday) and there are some very good possibilities,'' said Baker, standing alongside his Soviet counterpart outside the U.S. Mission to the United Nations.

The two ministers announced Wednesday an agreement in principle on conventional forces that would drastically cut the number of troops, aircraft, artillery and armored vehicles in Europe. Baker said at the time that ''only peripheral'' issues remained.

Shevardnaze said for the final stage of the strategic weapons talks, ''very, very detailed work is necessary. Therefore it shouldn't be any surprise to you we were not able to reach agreement on every and all things.''

Baker said, ''As far as START is concerned, 'non-circumvention' issues have not been finally concluded.''

These issues include the transfer of Trident nuclear submarines to Britain, a move opposed by the Soviet Union.

Baker expressed hope ongoing negotiations in Geneva will be able to close the gap. ''If we're able to do that then a number of other issues that were outstanding will be able to fall into place.

''Once we've reached agreement on this other issue, and I think as I indicated just a minute ago, we made good progress on non-circumvention, but we're not quite there yet,'' he said.

The two officials interrupted their Friday meeting at 4:45 p.m. after talking for more than four hours at the Soviet mission to the United Nations in order to dedicate a sculpture marking the ending of the Cold War. The sculpture was erected on the north garden of the U.N. headquarters.

They resumed their talks two hours later at the U.S. mission to the United Nations.

Baker told reporters that the two sides had made ''very good progress'' on conventional, or non-nuclear, arms.

One remaining issue was determining how many Soviet troops will be allowed to be stationed near the Norwegian border.

Another point involves helicopters and how they fit into the overall aircraft limit, which is about 6,700 for both sides. The sub-limit on helicopters, within that overall number, will be about 2,000, but there is a continuing dispute about how to count the various types.

At issue is whether a helicopter gunship can be counted the same as a troop-carrier like the Huey helicopter and how do both sides ensure that a troop carrier, such as the Huey, is not transformed into a gunship by strapping rocket pods to its side.

In a photo opportunity inside the Soviet mission to the United Nations Friday morning, Baker told reporters, ''I hope we can make some progress today.''

Shevardnadze added: ''I think as regards the Vienna talks so far as the Soviet-American bilateral positions are concerned, we will complete the work today.''

''I'll agree to that,'' Baker said. ''We've already had discussions with regard to the withdrawal of equipment before the treaty is executed. We have some understandings that cover that. I think if we are not in complete agreement, we are very close to complete agreement.''

The remaining issues in the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks include verification, meaning how to accurately inspect weapons that are being limited but not eliminated; the Soviet-made ''Backfire'' bomber, which Washington wants it included in the treaty while Moscow opposes.

Another issue is modernization of heavy missiles, including the Soviet deadliest missile SS-18, which is the only existing weapon that fits into that ''heavy'' category. The Soviet Union, which is now up to Mod 6 in their successive generations, wants the right to ''modernize'' even further through testing. The United States wants to limit flight testing, since that is the best way to halt advances in missile design.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (OCT. 6) UPI - Attackers fired shotguns and tossed a grenade into the home of a family believed related to African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela Saturday, Mandela's daughter and police said.

An 18-month-old girl was killed in the attack.

Police declined to speculate if the attack could be related to a wave of factional black violence, which killed up to 800 people in Soweto and other townships around Johannesburg before being quelled by tough military-style measures in mid-September.

Mandela, 72, was due to leave his Soweto residence Saturday for a weekend trip to strife-torn Natal province.

Police spokesman Lt. Govindsamy Mariemuthoo said a number of attackers, ''whom we believe were black men, tossed a grenade and fired shotguns'' into the Soweto township home of Modi Mandela, 43, and his wife Suzanne, 29, injuring them and killing their 18-month-old baby girl.

Mariemuthoo said the family had been living in the married quarters of a workers' hostel in Soweto just south of Johannesburg. Nelson Mandela also lives in the township, the nation's largest.

The small child was killed and the couple was being treated in Soweto's Baragwanath Hospital, he said.

''We don't know the motive for the attack or if these three people were even the targets,'' Mariemuthoo said. ''We've been told these people were related in some way to Nelson Mandela, so we are also working on that angle. We're investigating all possibilities.''

Zinzi Mandela, who reported the attack from the Mandela family home, noted she was not ''immediately related'' to the grandson.

There is no record of a Modi Mandela among Mandela's 12 grandchildren - seven from his first marriage and five from his present one, to Winnie. An ANC spokesman said ''The man could be part of a more extended family, or regarded as family in some way.''

Mandela is chieftain of the Madiba clan, which is a scion of the Xhosa tribe, and scores of people in the original southeast-coast tribal territory of the Transkei bear his surname.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL. (OCT. 6) UPI - The leak-free shuttle Discovery ended a long launch drought and rocketed toward orbit Saturday with a five-man crew to dispatch a European probe on a voyage over the uncharted poles of the sun.

Showing no signs of the hydrogen fuel leaks that grounded the shuttle program all summer, Discovery thundered away from launch pad 39B at 7:47 a.m. EDT, 12 minutes late because of concern about rainy weather and a last minute technical glitch.

At the controls were commander Richard ''Dick'' Richards, 44, and co- pilot Robert Cabana, 41. Seated behind the pilots on Discovery's flight deck were William Shepherd, 41, and Bruce Melnick, 40, with crewmate Thomas Akers, 39, strapped in alone on the ship's lower deck.

Nestled in the shuttle's cargo bay was the European Space Agency's nuclear-powered Ulysses probe, the centerpiece of an unprecedented $750 million mission to study the poles of the sun. The robot spacecraft is to give scientists their first three-dimensional look at Earth's life- giving star.

Akers planned to deploy Ulysses six hours after Discovery's launch to kick off the explorer's five-year voyage to the sun by way of distant Jupiter, a celestial bank shot to overcome the gravitational bonds holding the planets - and space probes - in orbits around the sun's equator.

Clearance to proceed with the flight came after a review of launch preparations Friday by NASA managers and after U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch in Washington rejected a request by anti-nuclear activists to cancel the countdown because of concerns about plutonium used to generated electricity aboard Ulysses.

The astronauts plan to devote the rest of their four-day mission to a variety of medical and scientific experiments, including one to help measure the amount of protective ozone in Earth's atmosphere. Landing is scheduled for Wednesday morning at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Discovery's ground-shaking takeoff, NASA's first since April 24, ended a launchless, leak-plagued summer of setbacks and delays for the shuttle program. The summer was marked by near-constant criticism over problems with the Hubble Space Telescope and the planned space station project.

It also marked a major milestone for the European Space Agency and its Ulysses solar probe. The project had been delayed repeatedly because of problems with NASA's shuttle program, including the 1986 Challenger disaster, which grounded the mission for four years.

But scientists and engineers were confident Ulysses' day in the sun, so to speak, was finally at hand.

''This is truly a mission of discovery,'' said Lennard Fisk, NASA's associate administrator for space science. ''And like other missions of discovery, it's going to re-write the textbooks. It's going to revolutionize our knowledge of the sun and the region of space that surrounds it.''

But the price is high. ESA spent $250 million on the probe and NASA chipped in another $500 million to cover the cost of the shuttle launch and the spacecraft's unique $87 million three-stage booster.

The big rocket was required because to get into an orbit around the poles of the sun, Ulysses must first journey to distant Jupiter so it can use the giant planet's gravity to bend its trajectory down, out of the plane of the solar system and back toward the south pole of Earth's star.

Despite Ulysses' small size - just 850 pounds - the one-of-a-kind three-stage rocket had to be built to boost the probe out of Earth orbit at a record 34,130 mph - nearly 10 miles per second, fast enough to make a trip around the world in about 45 minutes.

Ulysses originally was to have been part of a two-spacecraft assault on the sun, but budget trouble in 1981 forced NASA to cancel plans for a similar spacecraft, leaving the European Space Agency to continue the project on its own.

Virtually all of humanity's knowledge about the sun is limited to studies conducted in the plane of the solar system, that is, from the vantage point of Earth's orbit around the star's equator.

To understand the problem for astronomers, imagine trying to gain a complete understanding of the forces shaping Earth and its environment by only looking at the planet from the vicinity of its equator.

Ulysses represents the first attempt ever made to gain a three- dimensional understanding of the sun, its powerful magnetic field and the stream of electrically charged particles that are constantly blasted away in the form of the streaming solar wind.

BEIRUT, LEBANON (OCT. 6) UPI - The respected Lebanese daily An-Nahar reported Saturday that a number of foreign hostages held in secret hideouts on Lebanese soil could be set free next week.

An-Nahar, quoting ''well-connected'' sources, said ''a number of foreign captives held in Lebanon, including Anglican envoy Terry Waite, may be freed next week.''

''The hostage release would indicate a development in international interest concerning the Lebanese crisis,'' An-Nahar said.

The new report on a possible hostage release could not be confirmed.

Friday, Britain's Foreign Office denied a report that London intended to resume ties with Syria over the plight of three British captives.

The office branded as speculation a report by a well-connected Lebanese newspaper, Ad-Diyar, that kidnapped Britons would be freed shortly after the restoration of British-Syrian ties next week.

A key fundamentalist figure in Beirut reported that Syrian President Hafez Assad during a recent visit to Tehran asked the Iranians to refrain from exerting efforts to free hostages until London resumes ties with his country.

There are 12 Western hostages, including Waite, held in Lebanon by zealots believed affiliated with the Iranian-funded Hezbollah group.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (OCT. 6) UPI - Attackers fired shotguns and tossed a grenade into the home of a family related to Nelson Mandela Saturday, killing a 1 1/2-year-old distant relative of the African National Congress leader, authorities said.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (OCT. 6) UPI - The shuttle Discovery's crew rocketed into orbit Saturday, opened the ship's cargo bay doors and readied a European probe for a voyage over the uncharted poles of the sun, ending NASA's five-month launch drought.

Showing no signs of the hydrogen fuel leaks that grounded the shuttleprogram all summer, Discovery triumphantly thundered away from launch pad 39B at 7:47 a.m. EDT, 12 minutes late because of concern about rainy weather and a last-minute technical glitch.

''Liftoff of Discovery and the Ulysses spacecraft bound for the polar regions of the sun!'' said NASA launch commentator Lisa Malone as the 4.5-million-pound spaceplane climbed smoothly toward the heavens.

Eight and a half minutes later, Discovery's three main engines shut down on schedule and at 8:29 a.m. the shuttle's twin maneuvering rockets fired for two minutes, putting the ship in a circular orbit 184 miles up. The maneuver completed NASA's first launch since April.

''We're obviously pleased,'' said launch director Robert Sieck. ''The mood? I don't know whether you would say is one of euphoria or relief. But it's certainly good to be back in the air again and on orbit. The team worked real hard for this. They earned it and they got their reward.''

In orbit, commander Richard ''Dick'' Richards, 44, co-pilot Robert Cabana, 41, William Shepherd, 41, Bruce Melnick, 40, and Thomas Akers, 39, opened Discovery's cargo bay doors shortly before 9:30 a.m., exposing the Ulysses probe to space.

ATLANTA (OCT. 6) UPI - New Coke, packaged in red, white and blue colors and sporting a new name - Coke II - has again failed, but marketers say the cola that has become a business nightmare also is the drink that will not die.

Marketing experts said Friday the company will keep marketing the drink created to replace the original formula. The attempted change in 1985 created a national outcry, leading the company to bring the original formula back as Coca-Cola Classic.

Coke II's most recent failure came in Spokane, Wash., where the new marketing plan was launched in April. In mid-May the cola had a 1.3 percent share of the city's market, but by the middle of August the brand had slipped to a 1.1 share, said Information Resources Inc., a Chicago research company.

Coke II is seen by many as an attempt to lure Pepsi fans into the Coca-Cola camp. The new packaging even boldly proclaims, ''Real Cola Tast Plus the Sweetness of Pepsi.''

''Even if this (Spokane) test doesn't work, I doubt they'd pull the brand off the market,'' said Al Ries, a Connecticut marketing consultant. ''I think they'll continue to fiddle with it. They don't want to withdraw it completely from the market because it would leave them open to the Pepsi Challenge.''

Coca-Cola created a new formula despite its large market lead because Pepsi consistently beat Coke in Pepsi Challenge taste tests.

Coca-Cola executives did not return telephone calls seeking comment.

MANILA PHILIPPINES (OCT. 6) UPI - President Corazon Aquino ordered the court martial Saturday of the leader of the seventh uprising against her and urged the Philippine Congress to swiftly pass a law increasing penalties for rebellion.

In a nationally televised address, Aquino announced the unconditional surrender of Army Col. Alexander Noble after his 48-hour takeover of two cities in Mindanao and his proclamation of the country's second largest island as an independent federal republic.

''There was no way out unless he was willing to die. Obviously he was not willing to die,'' said Aquino, who has crushed six other coup attempts since she took power in a civilian-backed military revolt in 1986.

''He miscalculated, mistaking the sound from his own band of civilian cheerleaders as people's acceptance. He miscalculated in expecting that corollary supportive action from fellow renegades and mercenaries would follow '' Aquino said.

Hours after Noble's surrender, one person was wounded in an explosion that ripped through a jeep parked inside suburban Camp Aguinaldo, the Philippine Armed Forces headquarters.

Armed Forces chief Gen. Renato de Villa said troops remain on the maximum state of readiness clamped on military camps across the nation following the rebellion in Mindanao, while mopping up operations were continuing in the island.

Noble, 42, Aquinos former deputy security chief, walked out at 3 a.m. at the garrison in Cagayan de Oro in Mindanao, 500 miles south of Manila, he had occupied since Thursday after taking Butuan east of the city.

Accompanied by priests and local officials who negotiated his surrender, Noble gave up to Sen. Aquilino Pimentel, a former mayor of the city, at the provincial capitol.

Also surrendering with Noble was Col. Victor Erfe, 43, a classmate in the Philippine Military Academy who has been implicated in previous coup attempts.

Opposition politician Reuben Canoy, leader of the Mindanao Independence Movement who helped Noble launch the uprising, was captured at the VIP hotel in Cagayan de Oro.

Noble and Erfe were flown to Manila for investigation at suburban Camp Aguinaldo.

Aquino's Executive Secretary Catalino Macaraig said Noble and Erfe would face a court martial. Canoy will be charged with rebellion before a civilian court.

Aquino called on Congress to pass immediately laws she had recommended for urgent approval in December increasing penalties for rebellion and making a coup attempt a capital crime.

Noble took over Cagayan de Oro and Butuan without firing a shot before dawn Thursday. But after warplanes bombed Butuan Friday, he decided to surrender.

''I am asking kind treatment for my men,'' Noble said. ''I am taking full responsibility.''

The only fatality reported during the uprising was a pilot killed when his plane crashed in the central island of Cebu while returning to base from a mission in Cagayan de Oro.

Armed forces chief Gen. Renato de Villa said 240 soldiers and militiamen have either surrendered or have been captured and only mopping up operations remained.

He said Col. Hercules Galon, commander of Butuan, and Brig. Gen. Miguel Sol, commander of Cagayan de Oro, were undergoing investigation for abandonment of their posts.

Defense Secretary Fidel Ramos said the expected support from army supporters, communist guerrillas and Moslem separatists Noble was counting on did not materialize, dooming the rebellion.

De Villa urged Noble's men still at large to surrender.

''It is not a pleasant task to fight your own kind, but for those who insist on violence, we will have to use force if necessary,'' de Villa said.

Aquino thanked the United States, Japan and countries in Asia and Europe that immediately expressed support for her government at the outbreak of the uprising.

The United States provided air support for Aquino in quelling the December uprising in which 119 people were killed and more than 500 were wounded.

Noble, in mounting the coup, accused the government of corruption and inefficiency - a charge previous mutineers had voiced.

FORT WORTH, TX (OCT. 6) UPI - A veteran astronaut fears the public views the space program as entertainment rather than a vehicle for the serious advancement of science and space exploration.

Astronaut Kathryn Sullivan, who has made two space flights, says many youngsters think flying in space is impressive but lose interest when the subject turns to space-related jobs and the skills needed to hold them.

''If they can buy a ticket and go 'into space', that's OK, but the investment 'as a profession' seems hefty,'' said Sullivan, a marine geologist, during an appearance at Texas Christian University Friday.

''It's an exciting place to be, a challenging place to be, but a smaller and smaller number of people come to take the challenge,'' she said.

Sullivan said she is concerned about the general lack of interest in math and science. She urged parents to find ways to tempt their children into space-related occupations and to pressure schools to provide the skills that children need to enter those fields.

The nation needs to look at its priorities and recognize that space exploration has a long-term role in advancing science and economics, she said.

Sullivan also conceded that NASA may have some lean days ahead because of the war potential in the Middle East and the budget debate.

''It's a temptation and all too easy to let the immediate short-term problems ... distract us from the long term,'' the 12-year astronaut said. ''That's how people wreck their health. I see it on a human scale all the time.''

Those who work for NASA do so out of loyalty, dedication and commitment to the nation, Sullivan said. ''We could earn twice the money in outside jobs.''

She said the program is sound, despite recent problems with hydrogen leaks in fuel systems that grounded the space shuttle for several months.

''We have had hydrogen leaks before and they are elusive,'' she said. ''But the overall batting average at NASA is exceptional.''

FALLS CHURCH, VA (OCT. 6) UPI - Police surrounded a crowded shopping center outside Washington, D.C., Saturday after a gunman barricaded himself inside a restaurant, seized a manager and traded shots with police.

The standoff began about 9 a.m. as stores in the Plaza 7 shopping center were opening for business. Police negotiators maintained contact with the gunman as a police helicopter hovered overhead.

Police SWAT teams cordoned off the area and scores of spectators watched from a safe distance. Two ambulances and several paramedics waited nearby.

The gunman, who also was suspected of breaking into a house overnight in nearby McClean, took a restaurant manager hostage and exchanged gunfire with a police officer at the rear of the shopping center, said Warren Carmichael, spokesman for the Fairfax County Police Department.

Police said they did not believe anyone other than the restaurant manager was inside with the gunman. Another man left the shopping center earlier in the standoff but his role in the incident was not immediately clear.

The shopping center is home to a number of Vietnamese businesses and a popular gathering place for refugees who fled Vietnam in the 1970s.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 6) UPI - A defiant President Bush vetoed a stop-gap spending bill Saturday and defended his decision to virtually shut down the government, promising ''no more business as usual'' until Congress passes a budget he can accept.

Congress, meeting in an rare Saturday session, scheduled a vote on whether to override Bush's veto later in the day. The House vote was set for about 4 p.m. EDT with the Senate to follow if the House overrides the veto.

Bush, talking with reporters at the White House, said he would sign a temporary spending bill to fund the government if the measure allowed automatic spending cuts required by the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law to take effect.

But House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., told reporters that congressional Democratic leaders would not accept such a bill because they oppose the imposition of the spending cuts while they search for an alternative to a bipartisan budget plan defeated by the House Friday.

''No, it's not acceptable,'' Foley said. ''We do not think there should be any interruption of the federal government or any imposition of sequestration.''

As federal agencies, parks and tourist sites began closing their doors and gates, Bush sent a letter to Congress demanding that they end the fiscal crisis by promptly passing a new budget resolution.

Complaining about dozens of previous stop-gap spending bills, Bush said: ''Responsible congressional action to reduce the deficit can be delayed no longer. It is time for the Congress to act responsibly on a budget resolution - not time for business as usual.''

The House and Senate, by wide margins, passed the stop-gap spending bill late Friday, less than 24 hours after the House overwhelmingly rejected the bipartisan deficit-cutting budget pushed by the president.

The measure, had it been signed, would have provided funding to keep the government operating for seven days, would have delayed the expiration of the government's ability to borrow money and would have prevented the automatic cuts from taking effect.

Foley declined to predict whether Democrats would be able to get the two-thirds vote in the House to override the veto, but Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas insisted enough Senate Republicans would stand by the president to sustain the veto.

As Congress prepared for the showdown vote on the veto, leaders of both parties continued meetings aimed at finding an acceptable alternate budget plan to replace the bipartisan budget defeated in the House on Friday.

Foley said there was a chance that leaders could reach agreement sometime Saturday but said it could take until Sunday.

He criticized Bush's decision to veto the bill, calling the move ''unnecessary unjustified, harmful to the negotiating process of reaching a bipartisan (budget) agreement and to millions of Americans.

But Bush was defiant in defense of the veto that shut down of virtually all but essential government services and led to an uproar from some in Congress and to anger from tourists in Washington and elsewhere who found the doors to popular museums and parks locked Saturday.

''No more business as usual,'' Bush said. ''I am absolutely convinced this is right. And even those who are inconvenienced by this are going to say thank God we are getting the American people's business done. Sometimes you got to take a little heat.''

Foley rejected Bush's ''business as usual'' allegation, saying Congress was meeting on the weekend and that leaders had been busy trying to reach another budget compromise. He said the temporary spending bill Bush vetoed was only for a week, not the rest of the year, and should have been signed.

Bush, continuing to blame Congress for the budget impasse, said he made a mistake in July when he acquiesed to the pleas of congressional leaders who urged him not to keep lawmakers in session to work on the budget during its traditional month-long August recess.

''I'm not going to do it anymore,'' he said, referring to congressional requests that he not veto the spending bill.

Asked how long he can take the heat of keeping the government closed until a budget agreement is reached, Bush said, ''It's not a question of how long I can take it. It's a question of how long the Congress can take it.''

He said the American people outside Washington ''are fed up with business as usual and so am I.''

On Sept. 30, the day Bush and the bipartisan leaders of Congress announced agreement on a joint budget compromise, Congress passed and the president signed a five-day spending bill to keep the government running through midnight Friday, to delay the Gramm-Rudman cuts and to continue government borrowing authority, which was about to expire.

But the House defeated the bipartisan budget plan early Friday, meaning another temporary money bill was needed to keep the government operating beyond midnight, when agencies legally ran out of spending authority.

That bill is the one Bush vetoed Saturday.

The federal government began shutting down all but essential services at 12:01 a.m. EDT Saturday, when it technically became broke because Congress had not passed a budget and agencies had no legal spending authority.

Bush, in vetoing the stop-gap spending bill, said: ''I urge the Congress to concentrate its energies on passing a satisfactory budget resolution,'' with enactment of such a package no later than Oct. 19.

Dole said he would seek approval of a stop-gap spending bill that included about $40 billion in Gramm-Rudman spending cuts, a move Foley rejected.

Foley said he and Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine and House Democratic leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri said they urged Bush during their meeting Saturday to sign the stop-gap measure that would waive the automatic spending cuts and prevent unpaid furloughs of thousands of federal workers.

But Bush refused and vetoed the measure instead.

FALLS CHURCH, Va. (OCT. 6) UPI - Police Saturday surrounded a shopping center outside Washington, D.C., where a gunman held a restaurant manager hostage after releasing four other captives. A fifth person escaped.

No injuries were reported and police say they arrested the gunman's accomplice. Police negotiators were in contact with the gunman inside the restaurant, said Warren Carmichael, a spokesman for the Fairfax County Police Department.

The incident apparently started during the night when at least two men broke into a home in nearby McLean, burglarized it and then drove the owner to his jewelry store in the Plaza 7 shopping center, about 5 miles south of Washington.

The shopping center is home to predominantly Vietnamese businesses and is frequented by refugees who escaped the war-torn nation in the 1970s.

Police, responding to a call for help at the shopping center in mid- morning, arrested the accomplice as he tried to flee.

Later, they traded shots with the gunman in the rear of the shopping center, Carmichael said.

At that point the jewelry store owner escaped. The gunman raided a restaurant and held five people hostage before releasing all but the restaurant manager.

Melvin Dawson, a brick mason who was using a pay phone at a nearby service station, said he heard the shots and saw police take one man into custody.

''This guy came running down there in a brown jacket, a little old bitty guy and the police put him in the back of the paddy wagon,'' Dawson said.

Hundreds of spectators surrounded the shopping center, which was cordoned off by police. A police helicopter regularly circled the businesses and paramedics waited nearby.

(OCT. 6) UPI - A ranking Soviet envoy left Baghdad Saturday with assurances that some of the 5,000 Soviet citizens in Iraq will be allowed to go home but apparently without a breakthrough in finding a peaceful settlement to the Persian Gulf crisis.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein met Friday with envoy Yevgeny Primakov, who reportedly gave him a message from President Mikhail Gorbachev that explained the Soviet position in the crisis and asked him to release the Soviet citizens.

''On instructions from the Soviet president, Primakov raised the question about the departure of Soviet specialists from Iraq,'' the official Soviet news agency Tass said. ''Hussein assured him that a group of Soviet citizens may leave for the U.S.S.R. in the near future.''

Iraq allowed four Germans to leave the country Friday.

Most of the 5,000 Soviets in Iraq are technicians and agriculturalists, but several hundred were military advisors who presumably have a store of sensative information about Iraqi military capabilities.

The Soviet Union, formerly Iraq's largest supplier of arms, has not joined the U.S.-led multinational military force but has supported U.N. resolutions to force Iraq out of Kuwait through economic sanctions.

''During a lengthy meeting, the Soviet side stressed that the U.S.S.R. is for a political settlement of the crisis, having in mind the return to a situation which existed before Aug. 2,'' Tass said in a dispatch from Baghdad.

But diplomats said the Soviet envoy left Baghdad without an apparent breakthrough.

In other developments Saturday:

-An Iraqi official said Iraq was considering putting Kuwaitis on Iraq's National Council, or Parliament. Sadi Muhdi Saleh, speaker of the council, told an Iraqi newspaper ''this matter is not complicated and only entails finding out the population statistics of Kuwait's election constituencies.''

-Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk Sharaa criticized Saddam Hussein for linking the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait with the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip, saying the move will give Israel a chance to justify its control over the Arab areas.

-Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu was scheduled to arrive in Saudi Arabia on the last stop of a Middle East tour. Kaifu was expected to reassure King Fahd that his country supported the withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait, even though it preferred to back up its sentiments with money rather than the deployment of Japanese personnel to the region. Japan, which received close to 72 percent of its oil from Iraq, has made a $4 billion commitment to the effort to oust Saddam from the tiny emirate.

-A popular Jordanian legislator, threatening a vote of no confidence, urged the government ''to turn Jordan into a jungle of weapons to be in harmony with our brother Iraq.'' Laith Shbeilat, a two-time elected member of the lower house of Parliament, said he has presented to the prime minister and the legislature the so-called ''initiative to arm the people and to establish a wide-scale popular resistance'' to possible aggression against Jordan.

-European Community foreign ministers met in Venice, Italy, to discuss a common security policy for the 12-nation grouping, whose military response to the crisis has been fragmented. The EC currently lacks a defense structure, and many feel the gulf crisis has highlighted the need for a security policy to complement the EC's economic coordination.

-Egyptian police arrested five Egyptian landlords who rented property to several of the 30 suspected pro-Iraqi terrorists caught earlier by Egyptian authorities, security sources said. Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak has charged that Iraq had sent the alleged terrorists into Egypt to retaliate for Mubarak's opposition to the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait.

-Spain's Crown Prince Felipe de Borbon y Borbon held talks with senior officials of the United Arab Emirates on developments in the crisis. Prince Felipe, the only son of King Juan Carlos and Queen Sophia of Spain, arrived in Abu Dhabi Friday to inspect Spanish naval ships serving with the U.S-led multinational force deployed in the gulf.

President Bush and congressional leaders may begin crafting an alternative budget proposal as early as today on Capitol Hill. CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (OCT. 6) UPI - Ending a five-month launch drought, the shuttle Discovery's crew rocketed into orbit Saturday and dispatched a European science probe on a $750 million quest to explore the uncharted poles of the sun.

The small 807-pound Ulysses probe, bolted to the top of a massive 43, 000-pound three-stage booster, was gently ejected from its cradle in Discovery's cargo bay on time at 1:48 p.m. EDT, six hours and one minute after the ship's ground-shaking launch on the 36th shuttle mission.

''A good deploy, Houston, Ulysses is on its way,'' said shuttle skipper Richard ''Dick'' Richards as the probe gracefully floated away from Discovery.

''That's a great job,'' replied astronaut Kathryn Thornton from mission control in Houston.

Built by the European Space Agency, Ulysses is the centerpiece of an unprecedented project to study the polar regions of the sun, giving scientists their first three-dimensional look at Earth's life-giving star, its complex magnetic field and the tenuous ''solar wind.''

Launch from Discovery set the stage for a crucial rocket firing later in the day to boost the spacecraft toward Jupiter for a gravitational boost down, out of the plane of the solar system and back toward the south pole of the sun, completing the major goal of Discovery's mission.

Richards, 44, co-pilot Robert Cabana, 41, flight engineer William Shepherd, 41 Bruce Melnick, 40, and Thomas Akers, 39, thundered triumphantly into orbit at 7:47 a.m. EDT, 12 minutes late because of concern about distant rain and a last-minute technical glitch.

The ground-shaking launch was NASA's first since Discovery carried the Hubble Space Telescope into orbit April 24, finally ending a nightmarish string of delays caused by hydrogen fuel leaks that grounded the shuttles Columbia and Atlantis in May, July and September.

Given near-constant criticism over trouble with the Hubble Space Telescope and other problems, Discovery's successful launch gave NASA's sagging morale a major shot in the arm.

''We're obviously pleased,'' said launch director Robert Sieck. ''The mood? I don't know whether you would say it is one of euphoria or relief. But it's certainly good to be back in the air again and on orbit. The team worked real hard for this. They earned it and they got their reward.''

Discovery's takeoff also was a major milestone for the European Space Agency, which nursed the Ulysses project through a long string of delays caused by problems with the shuttle program, including the 1986 Challenger disaster.

''I am quite impressed with the way this launch went,'' said Roger Bonnet, director of scientific programs for ESA. ''Seeing the pictures of the spacecraft in the payload bay in deep space was very good.''

Ulysses represents the first attempt ever made to gain a three- dimensional understanding of the sun, its magnetic field and the stream of electrically charged particles that are constantly blasted away in the form of the streaming solar wind.

But the price is high. ESA spent $250 million on the probe and NASA chipped in another $500 million to cover the cost of the shuttle launch and the spacecraft's unique three-stage booster.

Ulysses could not be fired directly into an orbit around the sun's poles because no available rocket has enough power to counteract Earth's orbital velocity of 47 miles per second in the plane of the sun's equator.

Instead, Ulysses was designed to fly past distant Jupiter so it can use the giant planet's gravity to bend its trajectory down, out of the plane of the solar system and back toward the south pole of Earth's star.

If all goes well, Ulysses will zoom past Jupiter on Feb. 11, 1992, and begin a four-month pass over the sun's south pole in May 1994. After crossing the sun's equator, the spacecraft will make a four-month study of the north polar region in May 1995.

Virtually all of humanity's knowledge about the sun is limited to studies conducted in the plane of the solar system, that is, from the vantage point of Earth's orbit around the star's equator.

By flying over the polar regions of the sun, Ulysses will be able to directly study processes and features that cannot be observed from Earth, giving scientists a more complete understanding of the star's structure and the forces that shape its destiny.

Ulysses' orbit will never carry it closer to the sun than about 120 million miles and the probe is not equipped with a camera. Still, its many instruments are expected to revolutionize knowledge about the sun and its environment.

MIAMI (OCT. 6) UPI - Some Eastern Airlines jets may be bound for Russia soon if a $200 million deal between the troubled airline and the Soviet Union's national carrier, Aeroflot, goes through, Eastern officials say.

Aeroflot's plans to expand its international service call for the possible purchase of 13 Lockheed L-1011 passenger jets from Eastern. It would be the first acquisition of Western aircraft by Aeroflot.

Aeroflot executives, including Alex Timofeev, general director of the airline's Moscow division, were in Miami last week to look at the planes and talk with Eastern officials.

The two parties were brought together by Allen Blattner, president of Jetborne International of Miami, who estimated the sale could be worth up to $200 million.

The planes themselves were valued by Eastern at about $14 million. But should Eastern upgrade the planes or offer additional services, the value of the deal could rise to the hundreds of millions of dollars.

''We've offered to either sell them the planes or run the operation for them, including flying the planes or anything in between,'' Joseph Leonard, Eastern's chief operating officer and executive vice president, The Miami Herald reported Saturday.

''They are looking for a product and we've got it. Hopefully, we can negotiate something.''

Eastern, which filed for protection from its creditors in March 1989 under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code and has been operating under it since, has been trying to sell some of its assets, including planes, to stay in business.

''Eastern has been trying to sell the planes and there are very few organizations that can absorb such a large fleet,'' said Blattner, who was introduced to Aeroflot officials by Saudi Arabian financier Adnan Kashoggi. The well-known Saudi businessman recently obtained 16 percent of Jetborne.

''Aeroflot would acquire the capability to fly newer aircraft than their own, updated with Western technology and equipment, with more customer appeal to the Western travelers than the Russion planes they fly now,'' he added. ''Also the L-1011s sell for a fifth of the cost of comparable aircraft.''

Eastern owns 10 L-1011s, which were built between 1970 and 1983, and leases three others. Aeroflot depends on the Soviet-built Ilyushin jetliner on its long-haul routes.

A preliminary agreement was not expected for 30 to 60 days. An agreement would have to be approved by the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in New York and the Department of Commerce.

Aeroflot also has ordered five mid- to long-range A310-300 jets from Airbus Industry, which it plans to introduce on international routes between November 1991 and June 1992. Those aircraft are valued at $70 million each.

On May 28, the United States and the Soviet Union signed a treaty agreement giving Aeroflot the right to serve Miami, Chicago, Anchorage, Alaska, and San Francisco beginning in April.

Service between Moscow and Miami was expected to begin in the spring of 1992 and Aeroflot may begin refueling its Latin American fleet in Miami by December. Those flights now refuel in Cuba.

(OCT. 6) UPI - Federal government services began shutting down today... after the government ran out of money because President Bush refused to sign a temporary spending bill. The bill was passed by Congress last night, but the White House says Bush is allowing the shutdown in order to pressure Congress to pass a budget plan. The House yesterday killed a compromise plan backed by Bush and congressional leaders.

The long dry spell ended for NASA today with the launch of the shuttle Discovery on a mission to deploy a European space probe to the sun. Discovery lifted off from Cape Canaveral this morning... showing NO signs of the fuel leaks that groundead the shuttle program all summer. The ship is now in orbit, and the crew opened the cargo bay doors in preparation for launching the Ulysses space probe.

Iraq delivered a hard-line address to the United Nations last night, accusing the United States and its Western allies of trying to gain control over Persian Gulf oil fields. In the speech to the U-N General Assembly, an Iraqi envoy repeated Saddam Hussein's demand that any solution to the Persian Gulf crisis be linked to resolution of other issues in the Arab-Israeli conflict. Among those issues is the Palestinian uprising in the Israeli-occupied territories.

Louisiana voters go to the polls today in an open primary that pits a Democratic incumbent U-S senator against a former Ku Klux Klan leader. Polls show Senator J. Bennett Johnston running well ahead of David Duke, who is running as a Republican without party support. The official Republican nominee Ben Bagert, dropped out of the race Thursday, saying he did NOT want to help Duke get into a runoff with Johnston.

European Community foreign ministers began a two-day conference in Venice, Italy, today. One item expected to be discussed is a common security policy for the 12-nation group. The E-C has NO defense structure... and many people feel the Persian Gulf crisis has highlighted the need for such a policy. The European Community's response to the Gulf crisis has been fragmented.

(OCT. 6) UPI - Federal buildings and parks are closing from coast to coast as the government begins shutting down all but essential federal services because of lack of money. President Bush, who refused to sign a temporary spending bill to keep the government operating, summoned congressional leaders to the White House this morning in a bid to get a final budget deal. .

On Capitol Hill, the president's decision to shut down the government drew sharp criticism from Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine. Mitchell called it- quote- ''an extremely unwise and unnecessary action'' which inflicts ''unnecessary pain'' on American. He says he shares the president's desire to pass a budget plan, but added- ''I don't think this is the way to do it.''

The shuttle Discovery thundered into space this morning from Cape Canaveral, showing NO signs of the elusive fuel leaks that grounded NASA's shuttle program all summer. The liftoff ends a five-month launch drought for the space agency. Launch director Robert Sieck said- ''We're obviously pleased.''

In the Philippines, the man who led the seventh uprising against President Aquino has been ordered court martialed. Aquino issued the order today against Army Colonel Alexander Noble after his 48-hour takeover of two cities on Mindanao island. She urged the Philippine Congress to pass a law increasing penalties for rebellion. .

Hours after Noble's surrender, one person was injured in an explosion that ripped through a jeep parked inside the Philippine Armed Forces headquarters. Defense Secretary Fidel Ramos says the bombing was a ''political message'' after the crushing of the rebellion in Mindanao, where troops continue mopping-up operations.

(OCT. 6) UPI - Louisiana voters are going to the polls today in an open primary to choose between three-term U-S Senator J. Bennett Johnston and former Ku Klux Klan leader David Duke. Both are predicting victory. Johnston says voters WON'T buy what he called Duke's ''racist message.'' Most political analysts agree that Johnston is a shoo-in for re-election to a fourth term.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 6) UPI - The Washington Monument and Independence Hall closed their doors to angry tourists and some White House cooks were furloughed under the government shutdown that began Saturday.

The Smithsonian Museums, Ford's Theater and the Statue of Liberty also locked up, and an untold number of other federal employees - from park rangers to secretaries to public information officers - were told to go home.

Much of the rest of the 2.4-million federal workforce anxiously waited to see if they too would be furloughed as ''non-essential personnel'' - or if a budget agreement would be reached by the time they are to return to work Tuesday.

Monday is a federal holiday, Colombus Day, and unless President Bush and Congress hammer out a new spending plan by then, the scheduled swearing-in that day of David Souter as a member of the Supreme Court will be postponed.

''This whole thing is silly,'' groaned Chet Prentice of Ashville, N.C., as he and his wife, Jewell, stood outside the White House gates, also closed to tourists.

''Who do I blame?'' said Prentice, a camera slung over his shoulder. ''Republicans, Democrats, Congress, (President) Bush. All of them.''

The federal shutdown of all but essential services began at 12:01 a.m. EDT Saturday when the government became technically broke because of a lack of a new budget agreement.

Bush rejected pleas from Democratic leaders and vetoed a stop-gap funding bill that would have permitted the government to operate at full tilt for at least another week while all tried to reach a budget accord.

''President Bush's decision to shut down the government is wrong and unnecessary,'' said Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine. ''It will cause unnecessary pain and anguish to thousands of families.''

Bush, speaking with reporters on the White House driveway as scores of tourists pressed against the gates for a peak of him, said: ''I am very sorry for people who are inconvenienced by this or are hurt by this.''

''But this (shutdown) is the only device one has for making something happen '' Bush said. He complained that Congress has already delayed the process dozens of times with no results. ''No more business as usual,'' he fumed.

Business certainly wasn't usual at the White House or just about any other federal building Saturday. Virtually all federal parks and museums closed or curbed services.

Marlin Fitzwater, the president's press secretary, said all but 65 of the White House's 383 employees had been furloughed. They included some chefs, some caretakers and even 10 of Fitzwater's 14 press aides.

In upstate New York, federal workers who conduct tours of Franklin Delano Roosevelt's home in Springwood, N.Y. and the Vanderbilt Mansion, in Hyde Park, were also sent home.

New York City police said they fielded a host of calls from worried tourists wondering whether they should cancel Columbus Day weekend trips to the Big Apple.

''We got calls from Boston and Maryland from people wanting to find out if the Statue of Liberty was open for the weekend,'' said a department spokeswoman. ''They didn't want to make the trip if they couldn't see the statue.''

Both the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island were shut down Saturday.

''They've been closed since this morning and will remain closed until the budget situation is resolved,'' said Manny Strumpf, spokesman for the National Park Service in New York City.

Randall Pope, superintendent of the Great Smokey Mountains National Park, said visitors would be permitted to drive through the grounds, but all exhibits would be closed.

Philadelphia's Independence Hall also closed.

''We know we receive visitors from all over the world ... for a one- time visit to the Liberty Bell and Independence Hall, and it pains us a great deal not to have those buildings open today,'' said Bernard Goodman, assistant superintendent of Independence National Historical Park.

Visitors could still see the Liberty Bell by pressing their faces against the glass walls of the bell's pavilion, but could not enter Independence Hall, where the Declaration of Independence and Constitution were signed.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (OCT. 6) UPI - A gunman who held several hostages during an 18-hour crime spree released the last of his captives Saturday and surrendered to police.

The gunman was treated for a wound suffered earlier in the day in a brief gun battle with police.

''He was grazed in the abdomen,'' a police officer said. The gunman was carried away from the scene by paramedics.

Police had surrounded the shopping center outside Washington, D.C., where the gunman held a restaurant manager hostage after releasing four other captives. A fifth person escaped.

No injuries were reported and police said they arrested the gunman's accomplice earlier. Police negotiators were in contact with the gunman inside the restaurant, said Warren Carmichael, a spokesman for the Fairfax County Police Department.

The incident apparently started during the night when at least two men broke into a home in nearby McLean, burglarized it and then drove the owner to his jewelry store in the Plaza 7 shopping center, about 5 miles south of Washington, police said.

The shopping center is home to predominantly Vietnamese businesses and is frequented by refugees who escaped the war-torn nation in the 1970s.

Police, responding to a call for help at the shopping center in mid- morning, arrested the accomplice as he tried to flee.

Later, they traded shots with the gunman in the rear of the shopping center, Carmichael said.

At that point the jewelry store owner escaped. The gunman raided a restaurant and held five people hostage before releasing all but the restaurant manager.

Melvin Dawson, a brick mason who was using a pay phone at a nearby service station, said he heard the shots and saw police take one man into custody.

''This guy came running down there in a brown jacket, a little old bitty guy and the police put him in the back of the paddy wagon,'' Dawson said.

Hundreds of spectators surrounded the shopping center, which was cordoned off by police. A police helicopter regularly circled the businesses and paramedics waited nearby.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 6) UPI - On Inauguration Day, President Bush extended the hand of friendship and cooperation to the Democratic Congress. Saturday, he pulled it back.

In sharp, defiant tones, he rejected the urgent pleas of Democratic leaders and vetoed legislation to keep the government operating under a stop-gap money bill.

No one watching the inaugural ceremonies on Jan. 20, 1989, believed that a Republican president and Democratic Congress could, or would, bed together for very long.

Yet, during the traditional ''honeymoon'' period offered every new president and for a time thereafter, there was a spirit of what lawmakers like to call comity.

There have been fights, some big ones, over policy and legislation; there have been a raft of vetoes; there has been Congress-bashing on the part of Bush; and there has been severe criticism of the president by Democrats.

But that is normal operating procedure in the partisan world of politics and leaves few lasting scars as Republicans and Democrats, pursuing their own goals, manage together to make government function.

The sharp split on the budget, however, is a new turn that could harm the delicate relations between the White House and Congress for a long time to come.

In one of the most dramatic votes of recent years, the House in the early Friday hours killed a budget agreement worked out by the administration and congressional leaders after four painful months.

Republicans, as well as Democrats, cast their votes against the proposed budget despite a nationally televised plea for passage by Bush and a major elbow-twisting campaign by the White House and congressional leaders.

At midnight Friday, the U.S. government started to shut down and Congress offered Bush a short-time resolution to keep it in operation until a new budget could be worked out.

Bush said no. He said no on a brilliantly sunny Saturday afternoon after a meeting with congressional leaders who pleaded with him not to allow the government to shut down.

In fact, the Washington Monument, the Smithsonian and every attraction luring visitors to the nation's capital was already closed. Only the Capitol was wide open.

At a news conference, Bush said, ''I am not going to be part of business as usual by the United States Congress.

''The average American is smart. The average American knows what is going on '' Bush said. ''They know the Congress has continued to kick this can down the road.''

''We'll have to use a little discipline to go with the nice guy stuff,'' the president said.

Bush's refusal to give Congress another seven days to work out a budget left Democratic congressional leaders furious.

To get the summit agreement with the administration, the negotiators for the Democrats gave up a lot - too much for most House Democrats to swallow.

The agreement that was defeated included punitive increases in Medicare payments, a gas on heating oil tax, and increases on the staples of many working people - gasoline, beer and cigarettes.

But, as Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine repeatedly pointed out, that was part of the compromise.

Yet, a top Democrat said all the pain could have been avoided by an increase in the income tax rate for the wealthiest people - even coupled with a cut in the capital gains tax. And only Bush refused.

''If this had been up to the congressional leadership, it would have passed long ago,'' Mitchell said.

Congress now will have its chance, ''welcoming and inviting'' the views of the White House - but at a distance.

As for the administration, Bush said, ''Our people will stay in touch'' and will tell Congress ''if there's something so outrageous, I can't live with it.''

Eventually it is certain to happen, but it may take a period of time before Bush again extends the hand of friendship - and Congress accepts it.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 6) UPI - The government, citing dangers from tensions across the globe, issued travel warnings Saturday to Americans in the Middle East, South Asia, North Africa, the Israeli-occupied territories and Yugoslavia.

Because of increased tensions from the 2-month-old Persian Gulf crisis, the State Department said demonstrations may pose a danger to U.S. citizens in Middle Eastern nations, North Africa and South Asia.

''Americans are urged to keep in mind the possibility of sudden changes in the security situation when making travel plans for these areas,'' the department said in a statement.

''Travelers and resident Americans throughout the region should exercise caution and contact the nearest U.S. embassy or consulate to register their presence and receive information on the local situation,'' the department said.

The government also addressed travel in the Israel-occupied terrorities: ''Due to recurrent disturbances and increased tension in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, the Department of State advises all U.S. citizens to avoid travel to these areas until further notice.''

The department said, ''There have been disturbances in East Jerusalem. If Americans decide to travel into East Jerusalem they should check first with the Consulate General for an update on security conditions.''

In another advisory, the State Department advised U.S. citizens ''to exercise caution when traveling to or in certain areas of Yugoslavia because of the potential for ethnic demonstrations. In particular, travel to the Yugoslav province of Kosovo should be deferred until further notice.''

The State Department later advised Americans to delay all travel to the East Central African nation of Rwanda, where rebels and government forces have been battling: ''The U.S. Embassy in Kigali has advised U.S. citizens to stay indoors and to stay in contact with the U.S. Embassy.''

The U.S. Embassy in Kigali, Rwanda, is helping Americans who choose to leave the country, the department said.

VIENNA (OCT. 7) UPI - Austria's two main political parties braced for losses of up to 10 percent of their combined parliamentary strength as the country prepared Saturday for the first general elections since 1986.

The Socialists, the dominant party since 1970, were seen as particularly vulnerable after being stung by a series of financial scandals that led to charges being brought against a former Socialist chancellor and other top officials.

Up to 5.6 million Austrians are eligible to vote in Sunday's elections. Voter turnout is traditionally around 90 percent, but political analysts predicted fewer Austrians would go to the polls this year because of dissatisfaction with the two traditional parties, the Socialists and their coalition partner, the conservative People's Party.

The Socialist and People's parties, which currently control 43 and 41 percent of the National Assembly seats, respectively, faced strong challenges from two smaller parties, the populist Freedom Party and the environmentalist Greens.

The right-leaning Freedomites, under the dynamic leadership of Joerg Haider, have made substantial inroads on the political bases of the two traditional parties in regional elections and were expected to improve significantly on their current 18 seats in the 183-seat Parliament.

The Greens were expected to double their current eight seats, with the Socialists and People's parties losing about 10 percent of their combined strength, opinion polls showed.

Despite the losses, the Socialists are likely to remain the largest party in the Parliament. But they could find themselves in opposition for the first time in 20 years if the People's Party refuses to renew the 4-year-old governing partnership.

Some anaylsts predict the People's Party will team up with the Freedomites, who share a similar economic philosophy, favoring greater deregulation and privatization. Others fear that pan-German nationalistic elements in the Freedom party could be viewed negatively abroad and jeopardize Austria's chances for admission to the European Community.

Police in Belfast, Northern Ireland, say a masked gunman shot and killed a 19-year-old Catholic man sitting in a car with his girlfriend early today. Police believe the killing at a scenic spot near Belfast was carried out by a Protestant paramilitary group in retaliation for the I-R-A murder of a young soldier in the same spot two weeks ago. Authorities say the gunman tapped on the car window of Denis Carville and asked what was his religion before shooting him twice in the neck. Carville's girlfriend escaped unharmed.

AMMAN, Jordan (OCT. 7) UPI - A popular member of Parliament said Saturday he had urged Jordan's prime minister to arm citizens with ''a jungle of weapons'' to support ''our brother Iraq'' and defend against possible aggression by Israel.

Independent Islamist Laith Shbeilat, who has been elected twice to the lower house of Parliament, told a news conference he presented memorandums both to Prime Minister Mudar Badran and to members of Parliament urging the adoption of what he termed a ''parliamentarian initiative to arm the people and to establish a wide-scale popular resistance.''

''We call on the government to turn Jordan into a jungle of weapons to be in harmony with our brother Iraq, where 6 million people, one- third of the population, carry arms,'' Shbeilat stated.

Shbeilat, who intends on establishing an Arab nationalist Islamist party that would include independents such as himself, told reporters he was still waiting for a response from the government on his initiative, which he said he delivered to the prime minister last week.

Jordanians have been staunch supporters of Iraq since the United States and other Western countries began deploying troops to Saudi Arabia and the gulf following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. Since then, Jordanians have called for arms to defend Jordan and Iraq, lest the West or Israel use force to oust Iraq from Kuwait.

Shbeilat said that in his appeal he urged that 1 million of Jordan's aporoximately 3.5 million people be allowed to carry light weapons and be organized in ''a wide-scale popular resistance, complementing the popular army and supporting our officers in the armed forces.''

Shbeilat is considered one of the 80-member lower house's most popular representatives because of his outspoken opposition to the government in the previous Parliament, when opposition was conducted underground. He won election in 1984 and again last November, in Jordan's first free parliamentary elections in 30 years.

Unlike members of the Muslim Brotherhood, who are somewhat extreme in enforcing Islamic law in the country, Shbeilat enjoyed the support of both the Islamists and the leftist progressives for his moderate and tolerant position.

In his memo to the prime minister, Shbeilat said he warned that if Badran did not act on this proposal, he would gain support for his initiative in Parliament, and that if the government did not respond then, Parliament would dissolve the government with a vote of no confidence.

He said that consecutive Jordanian governments had made a mistake by keeping arms away from the people and by ''basing our security policies on American promises that suddenly fell apart, as was expected.''

Shbeilat said he told Badran that if Jordan's people were armed, Israel would think twice before invading because ''the real ally of the army is the people and properly organized popular resistance.''

''More than two months have passed since the gulf crisis began, and our people remain very distant from preparedness in case of war. The battlefield does not end in Iraq, but will also take place in Palestine and Jordan, where Iraq is seriously threatenend from the western end of our borders because the Americans and the Israelis are planning a Zionist invasion on Jordan to head toward the western border of Iraq,'' he stated.

In his appeal to the lower house, which is currently in recess, Shbeilat said he urged immediate adoption of his proposal because it was the demand of the people. Parliament was to return after a four-month recess at the beginning of October, but was postponed until Nov. 17 after a royal decree from King Hussein.

(OCT. 6) UPI - President Bush today vetoed a stop-gap spending bill and promised ''NO more business as usual'' until Congress passes a budget he can accept. The president complained about dozens of previous temporary spending bills to fund the government, saying it's time for Congress to act responsibly on a budget resolution. .

The veto came as federal agencies, parks and tourist sites began closing because of lack of funding. Congress, meeting in a rare Saturday session, scheduled a vote later today on whether to override the veto. Congress passed the the stop-gap spending bill late yesterday after the House killed a deficit-cutting budget compromise backed by Bush.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 7) UPI - A U.S.-sponsored program to improve Guatemala's judicial system is being suspended because ''the government lacks the political will'' to solve crimes involving human rights abuses by security forces, a recently released human rights report charges.

In its 117-page report released this week, The Minnesota Lawyers International Human Rights Committee also charged the Guatemalan army with organizing vigilante civilian self-defense patrols and providing them with drugs as an incentive for attacking dissidents and committing human rights abuses.

The report ''Justice Suspended: The Failure of the Habeas Corpus System in Guatemala,'' said foreign assistance provided by the U.S. Department of Justice and by Harvard Law School's Center for Criminal Justice ''will soon cease its operations in Guatemala.''

''According to Harvard Professor Philip Heymann, Director of the program, the program was canceled when it became apparent that Guatemalan authorities had no intention of resolving crimes of political violence that where likely to involve members of the military, police, or extremist groups which the government did not want to challenge,'' the report said.

The U.S.-sponsored program has been assisting courts in Guatemala City and the department of Totonicapan province.

The Minnesota lawyer group's findings are based on interviews with government, Church and military officials, members of the Guatemalan Lawyers College and judiciary, and activists in non-governmental human rights organizations in Guatemala.

''Political killings, kidnappings and disappearances remain a grave problem in Guatemala after four years of civilian constitutional government,'' the report said. ''The army and armed civil patrols violate fundamental human rights of Guatemalan citizens with impunity.''

''The current Guatemalan government bears responsibility for failing to investigate the crimes and for failing to put an end to extra-legal activity of the armed groups that perpetrate these crimes,'' it said. ''The government lacks the political will, as well as the capability, to guarantee the enjoyment of human rights to its citizens.''

The report also detailed incidents of army soldiers distributing drugs to members of the civilian patrols and encouraging them to assault members of the Mutual Support Group, an organization of relatives of the ''disappeared'' - people kidnapped and never seen alive again - when the latter gathered for a demonstration March 2 in the village of Chupol, department of El Quiche.

In another incident, on March 27, ''Soldiers incited civil patrollers and other residents of Parraxtut, El Quiche, to attack Cesar Alvarez, deputy human rights procurator, and Amilcar Mendez, president of the Ethnic Communities Council 'Ranujel Junam,''' the report said.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (OCT. 7) UPI - The Salvadoran government threatened state workers Saturday with jail terms of up to one-year if they go through with their threat to strike.

In a full-page advertisment published in major newspapers, the government formulated ''a call to reflection'' warning workers not to let themselves be used by union agitators ''who pursue political objectives disguised as labor-style demands.''

''At the same time, the government would like to remind you that these types of acts of agitation are against the law,'' the advertisment said, citing a constitutional article that prohibits public and municipal employees from striking.

The ad said according to the penal code, striking public employees can face a three-month to two-year jail term, and strike organizers can spend up to four years in prison.

''Just the call to the suspension or collective abondonment of work referred to in this law will be sanctioned with three months to one year in prison,'' the government said.

El Salvador is in the midst of a decade-old civil war in which more than 72,000 people have died. Government officials have accused union leaders of pushing unreasonable demands in an attempt to destabilize the government to help rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN.

In recent months, public works employees in San Salvador and public school teachers have defied the constitutional ban and have held limited strikes.

WARSAW (OCT. 7) UPI - Poland reversed an earlier decision Saturday and temporarily lifted its visa requirement for citizens of what was East Germany as an ''act of good will'' following Germany's unification earlier this week.

The suspension of the visa requirement was effective immediately and will last until Nov. 7, and Poland will seek a similar move by Germany, said a communique carried by the news agency PAP.

Poland also seeks prompt signing of the border treaty it had been promised during talks before the unification, and wants to re-negotiate trade agreements it had with East Germany, Polish officials said.

''The present decision by the Minister of Foreign Affairs is an act of good will in the first days of Germany's unification,'' said the communique. Germany was united Oct. 3 after 45 years of division since the end of World War II.

Tens of thousands East Germans were crossing daily to Poland for shopping at considerably lower prices than those at home following the unification of markets and monetary systems of the two Germanys in July.

The trade has resulted in a boom for border areas, bringing income to citizens and local authorities with dozens of markets set up at any available place including sidewalks along the frontier.

East Germany was Poland's second-largest trading partner, and the unification will adversely affect much of its trade, putting an extra strain on the economy in a painful transition to a market system.

Austria has imposed a six-month visa requirement for Poles. Other countries, including Czechoslovakia and Hungary, do not demand visas and use other ways to control the influx of Polish tourists to protect their consumer markets.

JIZAN, Saudi Arabia (OCT. 7) UPI - Yemenis are streaming across the border at three to four times the normal rate, returning to their country following Saudi orders to register and find a sponsor.

A border official at the nearby crossing point of Al Tawal said Saturday 3,000 to 4,000 Yemenis would cross during the day, compared to the normal crossing of about 1,000. The official, who did not give his name, said 8,000 Yemenis crossed each day Thursday and Friday, the Arab world's weekend.

So far, officials estimate about 100,000 of the roughly 2 million Yemen residents in Saudi Arabia have left because of orders to register with the government and find personal or corporate sponsors. Those with businesses also were asked to get a Saudi partner.

Yemen, which to some degree relies on the money its citizens in Saudi Arabia send home to their families, initially sided with Iraq in the gulf crisis. But Yemen's government appears to be softening its position toward a more neutral stance because of the Saudi moves.

Despite the Saudi orders, there appeared to be little resentment at the hot and dusty border crossing. One man, who would not give his name, proudly proclaimed that he and his family were headed back into Saudi Arabia after having taken care of paperwork within Yemen.

Hamaoud Redman, 41, who for the past 21 years has worked in Saudi Arabia, is now employed in Riyadh by the Boeing Corp. He said he took the firm up on its offer to send his family home to Yemen when the gulf crisis erupted and was headed home to look after his wife and four children.

''Everyone is happy,'' he said, despite the fact he has no job waiting for him in Yemen. ''Everything is OK. Everyone wants to stay working here.''

Redman said he hoped to return in two or three months and resume his previous position.

Another man, who would not give his name, said he had been working in Saudi Arabia doing construction work in Riyadh for 13 years and said, ''I am finished here.''

At the station, those with cars - many more than overloaded with their springs sagging and tires bulging dangerously - took one lane to have their Saudi license tags removed. Those who came by bus took another path and switched to Yemeni buses or trucks on the Yemen side of the border.

Elsewhere in southwest Saudi Arabia Saturday the defense minister, Prince Sultan, reviewed another graduating class of volunteers for the Saudi military reserve forces that have been swelling since the gulf crisis began.

Before sitting down to a feast that fed 600, Sultan announced that Saudi Arabia would build a fourth military city in the southwestern section of the nation. The military cities are literally that, huge enclaves for a large number of troops, officers and their families, along with airfields and associated facilities.

NAIROBI, Kenya (OCT. 7) UPI - Heavy fighting raged in rural areas Saturday between Rwandan forces and rebels who invaded the tiny east African country a week ago, Western diplomats in the capital Kigali said. There were unconfirmed reports Belgian military advisers had been killed in the fighting.

As French and Belgian troops sent to protect European nationals were deployed around the capital, Kigali experienced its first day of calm since groups of rebels infiltrated the town two days ago, the diplomats said.

''Everything is very quiet,'' said one diplomat who requested anonymity. ''We have cars travelling around the city taking tourists and businessmen to the airport. There were some shots at around 7 last night - probably a nervous soldier - and really there has been no shooting since 6 a.m. yesterday.''

About 100 French women and children flew to safety in Paris overnight.

Seventy Westerners left aboard a Belgian military plane Saturday; 200 more, including about 35 U.S. tourists, were due to leave on a Sabena airlines plane late Saturday, a spokesman at the U.S. Embassy in Kigali said. A Lufthansa plane was also due to fly 200 Germans to Nairobi Saturday night.

The U.S. Embassy was not aware of any casualties among Westerners so far, he said.

The State Department issued a travel advisory Saturday warning all U.S. citizens to defer travel to Rwanda until further notice. U.S. Embassy officials in Kigali advised U.S. citizens still in the country to stay indoors and said they would assist Americans wishing to leave Rwanda.

On Rwanda's northern border with Uganda, the shooting war between an estimated 2,000 heavily armed rebels, who crossed the frontier last Sunday, and about 4,000 Rwandan soldiers continued.

Belgian defense minister Guy Coeme told a parliamentary debate he had confirmed reports of overnight rebel attacks on the border town of Byumba, 30 miles north of Kigali on the main road from Uganda. He said Rwandan troops were back in control of the town, however.

According to officials from Rwanda's southern neighbor, Burundi, rebels troops Friday shot down two Rwandan military helicopters, apparently killing two Belgian military observers. The report, from diplomats who asked not to be named, could not be confirmed.

European diplomats in Kenya said they understood that Belgian forces were unlikely to restrict their role to a purely defensive one and would actively assist the armed forces of their former colony.

Rwandan rebels Saturday warned Belgium to keep out of their war and stop deploying troops, the news agency Belga reported. Callers claiming to represent the National Patriotic Front, or Inkontanyi, telephoned threats to embassies in the capital Kigali and in Uganda's capital Kampala.

''Stop meddling in our affairs or we will bring this war to Belgium and we will attack Belgian citizens,'' said the caller in Kampala.

Belgian Prime Minister Wilfried Martens stressed again Saturday to Parliament that his country was not interfering as the rebels claimed.

''The government only decided to put in place sufficient means to assure the evacuation of Belgian nationals who wish to leave the country of their own free will,'' he said, noting that his military contingent was now fully operational.

A second planeload of Belgian troops flew overnight into Kigali, bringing the total number of Belgians deployed to about 600, the diplomats said.

Belgian ambassador to Kenya, Christine Funes-Noppen, said she was unaware of the alleged helicopter incident but that ''everything is possible in life.''

She restated emphatically, however, that ''our presence is purely humanitarian. The reason we are there is to protect the Belgians,'' she said.

French Prime Minister Michel Rocard repeated Friday that the sole objective of 300 French soldiers in Rwanda was ''to defend our citizens and no more than that.''

Air France flew 96 people overnight out of Kigali, meanwhile, after French legionnaires, Belgian and Rwandan soldiers beat off a rebel attempt Thursday to take the airport. A Belgian plane intended for a similar airlift was forced to leave empty, however, after evacuees were unable to reach the airport.

The rebel army that stormed into Rwanda Sep. 30 is led by one Maj. Gen. Fred Rwigyema, an exiled member of Rwanda's Tutsi tribe who was once commander of Uganda's armed forces.

ELMONT, NY (OCT. 7) UPI - Flying Continental and Fly So Free established themselves as top Breeders' Cup contenders and undefeated superfilly Meadow Star continued to thwart every challenge Saturday in three Grade I stakes races at Belmont Park.

Flying Continental surged to the lead in the final strides to score an upset victory in the $750,000-added Jockey Club Gold Cup, which included several contenders for the Oct. 27 Breeders' Cup Classic.

Jockey Corey Black broke Flying Continental alertly, then settled the 4-year-old son of Flying Paster behind early leaders Thirty Six Red, Steinlen and Canadian Triple Crown winner Izvestia. Those three raced together down the backstretch until Izvestia, under Craig Perret, wrested the lead from Thirty Six Red after running six furlongs in 1:11 2-5.

''I don't know why he went to the lead so soon,'' said Izvestia's trainer, Roger Attfield. ''I really thought he could win today.''

Jockey Angel Cordero rushed De Roche into contention on the far turn, and De Roche and Izvestia raced noses apart down the stretch. When De Roche took the lead at the eighth pole, Cordero thought the race was over.

''I thought he was home free,'' said Cordero. ''I never thought Flying Continental would come back again after we passed him.''

But Black and Flying Continental were gaining on the leaders with every stride and finally hit the front with 100 yards to go.

''He is a competitive horse,'' said Black. ''He runs hard.''

Earlier in the day Meadow Star scored the most impressive victory of her undefeated six-race career, tying the stakes record (1:35 2-5) with a wire-to-wire performance in the one mile Frizette stakes for 2-year- old fillies.

Jockey Jose Santos confidently sent the daughter of undefeated Meadowlake to the lead at the start of the race, with Champagne Glow pressing her from the outside and Flawlessly challenging on the rail. The three raced as a team until the quarter pole when Santos asked for more and Meadow Star responded like a champion, drawing away to a 14- length lead over Champagne Glow at the finish.

''What can I say, she's the best,'' said Santos. ''She's classy and she has a very big heart. I only had to hit her maybe eight times, but very lightly. The way she's running, next year, she'll beat the colts. She's definitely the best filly I've ever been on.''

Next stop for Meadow Star is the Breeder's Cup Juvenile Filly race and almost certain divisional honors.

''We'll probably come back in the Breeders' Cup and hope to be second,'' admitted Joe Pierce, trainer of Champagne Glow.

Santos also won the $500,000 Champagne stakes for 2-year-olds with Fly So Free who unleashed a furious stretch run to vault into favoritism for the Breeders' Cup Juvenile.

Santos rated Fly So Free patiently behind a killing pace set by favored Deposit Ticket, who was pressed all the way by Subordinated Debt. While the two leaders blazed through fractions of :22 2-5 and :45 1-5 for the half, Santos was content to Keep Fly So Free running evenly far from the rail in seventh place.

Santos began asking Fly So Free to run on the far turn, and the son of Time for a Change swept past the leaders five-wide entering the stretch, then drew off to a 5 1-4 length victory.

''This is a nice colt,'' said Santos. ''I hit him about six times, and he started going and going and never stopped.''

The fast-closing Happy Jazz Band edged out a stubborn Subordinated Debt for place. Deposit Ticket, 2-year-old division leader going into his last race, faded to finish last.

''He just didn't run his race at all,'' said jockey Gary Stevens of Deposit Ticket. ''I didn't know if he'd win, but I didn't think he'd get beat that badly. We finished last and I just pretty much eased him up the last part.''

(OCT. 7) UPI - DIGEST:

Baseball

Tom Spencer will join the New York Mets coaching staff, replacing Chuck Hiller who has been returned to his position as roving infield instructor in the Mets minor league farm system. Otherwise, the coaching staff will remain the same, the team said. Spencer coached the San Jose Giants of the California League to a 74-68 record. He will be an outfield and base running coach, and also will coach first base.

Cycling

Dutchman Fred Rompelberg is to attack the world speed record for cycling behind a motorized vehicle set by American John Howard five years ago. Rompelberg, 44, will make his attempt on a salt lake near Boneville, Utah between November 12-15. Rick Vesco will drive the car, using the same vehicle

Howard used to set the current mark of 152.2 mph. Rompelberg tried and failed to break the American world record several times two years ago, breaking 14 bones in two crashes. His maximum speed at the time was 136.7 mph.

Games

Kenya dominated the African Track and Field Championships at Cairo, Egypt but the men's marathon on the final day was ruled by Ethiopia, which captured the top three places. Ethiopian Tesfayi Tafa caputred the gold for the marathon with an extremely slow time of 2 hours 33 minutes 38 seconds, falling far short of the 2.06.50 African men's record. ... China put the finishing touches on one of the most dominating displays in Asian Games history, winning eight of the 11 gold medals on the event's final day. The Chinese national team won 183 of a possible 310 gold medals in the 16-day competition, twice as many as the combined total of its two nearest rivals. South Korea took two golds Saturday to place second with 54 and Japan finished a distant third with 38.

Golf

Women previously barred from early tee-off times on holidays and weekends at the 68-year-old Laconia Country Club celebrated the change of an unwritten rule not allowing women on the course before 9 a.m. because they allegedly play slower than men. The long Columbus Day weekend was the first holiday weekend to fall under the new policy, which allows women to tee off with men at 6:30 a.m.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 7) UPI - The House voted Saturday to sustain President Bush's veto of a temporary seven-day spending bill, handing him a key political victory and ensuring that all but essential government services will remain shut down.

Also Saturday, House negotiators trying to craft a new budget plan to replace the bipartisan package defeated by the House on Friday reported making ''good progress.'' They said it was possible they would have a new budget plan ready for congressional action on Sunday.

That new package was expected to have a significantly smaller Medicare cut, a different tax mix and other changes to help mollify both parties who despised elements of an earlier, defeated budget plan.

After the 260-138 House vote sustaining Bush's veto, it was unclear late Saturday how long non-essential government agencies and services would remain closed due to lack of legal spending authority.

But it was possible that when Congress met in a rare Sunday session it would consider stop-gap spending bill to provide funds and government borrowing authority through midnight Friday.

President Bush has said he would sign such a bill as long as it did not delay imposition of the automatic spending cuts required by the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law as a penalty for failure to cut the deficit by Oct. 1.

Congress passed Friday and Bush vetoed Saturday a temporary spending bill that did waive Gramm-Rudman cuts, setting up the showdown override vote.

At midnight Friday, an earlier temporary funding bill passed last Sunday and signed by Bush expired, leaving the government broke.

The House vote fell six short of the two-thirds vote needed to override a presidential veto. Had six votes switched from no to yes, the outcome would have been reversed.

Nine Democrats broke ranks and joined Republicans to sustain the veto. Had they not done so, the House would have voted to override the veto and sent the matter to the Senate.

Bush's veto of the temporary spending bill was his 15th since taking office and all 15 have been sustained by Congress.

After the vote, one angry senior congressional Democrat, who requested anonymity, called Bush's veto ''a terrible, awful political judgment'' that was ''unnecessary, unfair and foolish.''

The Democrat said the veto forced Congress to spend Saturday in a partisan dogfight instead of focusing its efforts, as Bush had asked, on crafting a replacement for the defeated $500 billion, five-year bipartisan budget plan.

That defeated plan contained what proved to be a politically unpalatable mix of $134 billion in new taxes on gasoline, alcohol, cigarettes and other items, a $60 billion cut in Medicare, including a doubling of the annual premium paid by seniors, and new tax breaks on small business investments.

Many lawmakers felt the package disproportionately and unfairly placed most of the burden of deficit reduction on lower and middle income taxpayers while the rich got off too lightly.

House floor debate on the override during the rare Saturday session was emotional, partisan and even rowdy at times.

In perhaps the most poignant moment of the hour-long debate, Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., spoke to the House dressed in coat and tails. He said his son was due to get married in about 20 minutes and he wanted to be there.

Frustrated tourists, unexpectedly locked out of Washington's popular Smithsonian museums and prevented from going to the top of the Washington Monument because of the federal shut down, cheered from the House gallery when one speaker referred to their dilemma.

When Democrats started hissing one speaker, Rep. Robert Dornan, R- Calif., demanded order, saying, ''The House is not in order. There are snakes in the House.''

There was rhetorical bluster on both sides.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee, split with Bush to vote for the override, saying, ''The American public did not cause this mess and they should not be made to suffer. Federal workers should not have to take the heat for our failure. ... The burden for inaction should not be born by the American people.''

MANILA, Philippines (OCT. 7) UPI - A bomb exploded Sunday on a street between the finance and executive department buildings, but the second blast since the crushing of a 48-hour mutiny caused no injuries, police said.

The blast Sunday at 5:45 a.m. in Manila was believed caused by a C-4 high explosive used by the military, police Col. Pacifico Villarin said. It damaged a tree.

The bomb explosion was the second in nine hours and followed the ending Saturday of the mutiny on the southern island of Mindanao.

A blast at 8:20 p.m. Saturday set a jeep ablaze and injured one person in the parking lot of the defense department, which is inside the Camp Aguinaldo armed forces headquarters in suburban Quezon City.

Defense Secretary Fidel Ramos said the Camp Aguinaldo bombing was a ''political message'' after the uprising that was mounted by Col. Alexander Noble in Mindanao, 500 miles south of Manila.

Noble surrendered after deciding his support had fizzled. He had seized garrisons in Butuan and Cagayan de Oro cities and declared Mindanao an independent state during the two-day uprising. A former deputy security chief for President Corazon Aquino, Noble faces court- martial proceedings in Manila.

Ramos said the Noble rebellion was a plot to overthrow Aquino.

There have been more than 40 bombings reported by police in Manila over the past two months. The incidents have been blamed on rebel soldiers who have tried seven times to oust Aquino during her four years in power.

Ramos said terrorist bombings were something Filipinos in the capital would have to ''live with'' until the rebels responsible are all arrested.

(OCT. 6) UPI - The House today failed to muster the two-thirds majority needed to override President Bush's veto of a temporary seven-day spending bill. The 260-138 vote sustains Bush's 15th veto since taking office... and ensures that all but essential government services will remain shut down. The president rejected the temporary spending bill after the House gave similar treatment early yesterday to a bipartisan budget plan supported by Bush and congressional leaders.

(OCT. 6) UPI - President Bush scored a key victory today when the House sustained his veto of a stop-gap spending bill to keep the government running. PESHAWAR, Pakistan (OCT. 7) - A barrage of rockets hit a sparsely populated Pakistani area on the border with Afghanistan early Sunday, killing one person official Pakistani sources said.

At least 17 rockets fired from somewhere inside Afghanistan landed in the Darosh region, about 35 kilometres (20 miles) south of Chitral in the mountainous northern part of Pakistan, the sources said.

A few hours later, two Afghan MiG aircraft intruded into Pakistan airspace, they said.

After circling over Chitral for some time, the planes flew towards the strategic Afghan Wakhan salient bordering Pakistan, the Soviet Union and China the sources added.

The Afghan resistance claims that the Soviet Union has continued to maintain a troop presence in the Wakhan corridor after their withdrawal from other parts of Afghanistan in February 1989.

JEDDAH (OCT. 7) - Saudi Arabian King Fahd has asked Japan for a greater financial contribution to the international force in the Gulf, according to unconfirmed radio reports in the region.

The reports cited Japanese sources, which said that Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu promised to consider the request.

Following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, the Japanese promised to contribute 2 billion dollars to the multinational force in the Gulf and 2 billion dollars to ''frontline states'' like Turkey and Jordan suffering from the United Nations trade embargo against Baghdad.

Kaifu, meanwhile, continued his political talks here Sunday. The official Saudi news agency Spa said that he met with Finance Minister Sheikh Muhammad Ali Aba al-Khail and Petroleum Minister Sheikh Hisham Mohi ad-Din Nazer.

Japan is Saudi Arabia's second most important trading partner, while the Gulf kingdom is Japan's most important oil supplier.

Kaifu is the first Japanese head of government to visit Saudi Arabia in 12 years. During his Mideast tour, he has already visited Egypt, Jordan and Turkey and met in Amman with Iraq's Deputy Prime Minister Taha Yassin Ramadan.

Kaifu will conclude his trip with a visit to Oman.

LONDON (OCT. 7) - Two members of the British embassy staff in Iraqi-occupied Kuwait arrived in Baghdad on Sunday, a day after leaving the embassy premises, the Foreign Office announced here.

Security officer Brian McKeith, and Donald Macauley, first secretary of the embassy's trade section, will stay at the British embassy in the Iraqi capital after Iraqi authorities refused to grant them exit visas.

A spokesman for the Foreign Office said a British television crew were detained for several hours for trying to film their arrival. The two had left Kuwait City early Saturday.

Iraqi soldiers stationed near the Kuwait mission had stopped them from travelling to Baghdad earlier this month despite an Iraqi authorization.

The British government decided to cut its embassy staff late last month in a bid to ensure that Ambassador Michael Weston and Consul Larry Banks can live on ample food stocks at the isolated embassy for a longer period of time.

VIENNA (OCT. 7) - About 20 per cent of Vienna voters had turned out for parliamentary elections by noon -- roughly as many as in the last poll four years ago, radio reports said Sunday.

Opinion polls predicted both the socialist and conservative parties, joined in a coalition government, would take a beating.

The vote for Austria's 183-seat parliament was expected to be a close race between the Socialist Party of Chancellor Franz Vranitzky and the conservative Peoples' Party headed by Vice Chancellor Josef Riegler.

The latest polls showed that the two ruling parties could lose some 10 per cent of their score in the last general election, held in 1986.

The major beneficiary of such a result is likely to be the rightist Freedom Party, headed by Joerg Haider, which could win up to 18 per cent of the vote, doubling its showing in the 1986 elections.

Mr. Haider, chancellor of the southern Austrian state of Carinthia, has campaigned on a platform denouncing corruption scandals which have tarnished the image of the Socialist Party and against a recent massive influx of immigrants from eastern Europe.

Both the socialists and the conservatives have said they would continue to cooperate in a coalition government regardless of which comes in first.

The Greens are hoping that increasingly ecology-conscious Austrians will give them at least eight per cent of the vote, up from 4.8 per cent in 1986.

Although the latest polls showed the socialists with a 3.5 per cent lead over the conservatives, the Socialist Party has warned that anything could happen given the large percentage of undecided voters.

For the first time Austrians residing overseas have been enfranchised and 21,000 voters have registered. But the count of their votes will not be known before Wednesday.

Polls opened at 7 a.m. (0600 GMT) and were to close at 5 p.m. (1600 GMT).

DAMASCUS (OCT. 7) - Egypt's Foreign Minister Ismat Abdul-Maguid arrived here Sunday for talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad.

The Egyptian press agency Mena reported that the foreign minister, accompanied by Osama al-Baz, the head of the Egyptian president's office, was carrying a message from Egypt's President Hosny Mubarak.

According to Mena, the Gulf crisis, the situation in Lebanon and the two countries' bilateral relations would be the focus of discussions during the two-day visit.

Press reports in Cairo on Sunday said that Egypt and Syria want to coordinate their efforts at resolving the Gulf crisis. Following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, both sent troops to protect Saudi Arabia.

Egyptian Information Minister Safwat al-Sharif, also bearing a message from Mubarak, left Cairo on Sunday for Tripoli, where he is to meet with Libyan leader Muammar al-Qaddafi. Mena said the note dealt with bilateral issues and the effects of the Iraqi invasion on the Arab world.

ISLAMABAD (OCT. 7) - The release of U.S. financial aid to Pakistan for the fiscal year has been frozen until President George Bush certifies that Islamabad's nuclear program is for peaceful applications, a U.S. diplomat said here Sunday.

Under current law, Mr. Bush must certify to Congress that Islamabad does not possess nuclear weapons and that its nuclear program is for peaceful applications before Washington can release the some 600 million dollars in aid for the fiscal year which began October 1.

The diplomat said the current situation parallels events in 1987 and 1988, when then-president Ronald Reagan delayed his October signing of certification by as long as two months.

"High-level talks are under way in Washington and Islamabad," the U.S. diplomat said, denying that the delay in certification was linked to uncertainty over the October 24 elections here.

The daily Dawn reported that U.S Ambassador Robert Oakley returned from home leave in the United States last month with a message from Mr. Bush for Pakistan's President Ghulam Ishaq Khan.

Dawn said Mr. Bush told his counterpart he would not issue the certificate unless Pakistan's nuclear facility at Kahuta is opened for international inspection.

The report said Mr. Ishaq Khan had refused the request and Mr. Bush was retaliating by not issuing the certificate.

Western experts believe Pakistan is capable of manufacturing nuclear warheads, but Islamabad has long insisted its program was for peaceful applications.

Pakistan, Washington's major ally in the region and a conduit for U.S. supplies to the Afghan mujahedeen, is the third largest recipient of U.S. aid after Israel and Egypt.

Asked about Washington's position toward the upcoming elections here, the diplomat said that the United States, like Western European nations, was insisting that the elections be free and open to all the country's major political leaders.

Benazir Bhutto, who was premier for 20 months before being sacked by Mr. Ishaq Khan on August 6, is facing trials on charges of abuse of power and misconduct. Under new exceptional rules, if she is found guilty, she will be barred from taking part in the elections.

A team of 40 international poll watchers, including U.S. members, is expected here to monitor the elections.

Ms. Bhutto has accused the interim government headed by her political adversaries of seeking to fix the balloting.

Dawn meanwhile suggested that the United States has long been pressing Pakistan to open its nuclear facilities at Kahuta, near here, for international inspection.

Pakistan has never refused to oblige but has asked Washington to also urge India to open its nuclear facilities to international inspection "in the interest of regional balance," the newspaper said.

According to Dawn, Washington apparently accepted this argument in the past and never pressed the point.

The freeze in aid for this South Asian nation comes at a particularly unpropitious time for Pakistan, which has been hard hit by the Gulf crisis.

Officials estimate the country's losses so far at more than 1.5 billion dollars due to the soaring cost of oil, lost of remittances from workers in the Gulf and the cutoff in trade with Iraq and Kuwait.

The caretaker government, facing what is expected to be a close election, has so far failed to take the necessary but unpopular measures needed to generate revenue such as raising the price of domestic petroleum products.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 7) - Tourists became the first victims of instructions by the White House to shut down government operations this weekend.

The shutdown, which began Saturday morning, was caused by the failure of President George Bush and the Congress to reach a budget agreement.

Disappointed children pressed their noses against the windows of the U.S. capital's popular Air and Space Museum on Sunday - closed because there's no money to pay the employees. Tours of the White House were out, too.

The scene was similar elsewhere. Tourists wishing to take the ferry to the Statue of Liberty waited in vain, and Philadelphia's Independence Hall was dark.

Approximately half of the country's 2.4 million government employees face a forced, unpaid holiday beginning Tuesday if a budget compromise is not reached sometime Monday, the Columbus Day holiday.

Essential government workers such as police, health officials, soldiers and air-traffic controllers are not affected by the shutdown.

On Saturday, Bush vetoed emergency legislation from Congress that would have kept the government running for another week.

The crisis arose after the House of Representatives (lower chamber) rejected a budget that would have reduced the federal deficit by 500 billion dollars over the next five years through tax increases and benefit cuts.

MOSCOW (OCT. 7) - A 26-year-old Soviet man was arrested Sunday in the Arkhangelsk region of northern Russia after attempting to hijack an airliner to to Sweden, Tass news agency reported.

The hijacker, identified as Gavilov, an unemployed man from Perm in central Russia, ordered the Aeroflot Antonov 24 crew to fly to Sweden as the plane, on a scheduled Perm-Kotlas-Arkhangelsk flight, was approaching Kotlas.

The man, who had threatened to blow up the plane, was arrested on board. No explosives or weapons were found.

On Friday, a Soviet Yak-40 airliner with 19 passengers and three crew members was hijacked to Helsinki while on a flight from Novgorod to Petroskoj.

MONROVIA (OCT. 7) - A West African expeditionary force and a guerrilla army on Sunday continued trading artillery fire as Liberia's nine-month-old civil war refused to die.

The West African force, whose initial purpose was to stop the civil war pitting guerrillas from two groups against the forces of President Samuel Doe, has turned to fighting the largest rebel group after Mr. Doe's death.

says it controls 90 per cent of Liberia.

The West African force, which came in by ship last month, controls the port of Monrovia, which it took over from its rebel ally, Prince Johnson, along with the Gardnersville area and the western part of the city.

Rebels of the National Front have rocket-propelled grenades and anti-tank weapons that have prevented the West African force, made up of soldiers from Nigeria, Ghana, Guinea, Gambian and Sierra Leone, from moving aggressively forward in an area ideally suited for ambushes.

But the force of over 8,000 men is strong enough to prevent the National Front from taking the rest of Monrovia, where several hundred government troops are being shielded by the force.

The result is a stalemate in which each side fires a few rounds of mortar or artillery, then waits 10 or 20 minutes. There is no indication of how many are being killed by these exchanges.

The National Front fighters have not been supplied with food and depend on an increasingly impoverished -- and fast-disappearing -- population for their survival.

The random shelling has led many fighters hidden in ambush to leave their posts for more secure spots when the shelling gets too close, and several times their officers have had to order them back to their positions.

Meanwhile, Monrovians, who have endured a siege of more than three months, have been streaming out of the city for the past week.

The Ivory Coast has received nearly 200,000, according to relief organizations there, and another 100,000 are expected. Most are members of Mr. Doe's Krahn tribe, who fear reprisals from the National Front.

Mr. Taylor told journalists on Saturday that the Krahns had nothing to fear: the only ones who will be punished are "confirmed criminals" -- those guilty of crimes against the Gios and Manos tribes.

MANAMA (OCT. 7) - Britain's military buildup in the Gulf will be complete by mid-November, British Army Minister Archie Hamilton said here Sunday.

He said the U.S. would presumably have all of its forces in place by then as well. The minister is in the region to inspect British troops and confer with Gulf leaders.

The estimated 40 to 50 Jaguar and Tornado fighters sent by Britain to the Gulf will have reached their assigned positions within the next 10 days, Hamilton said. One Tornado squadron, comprising about 12 aircraft, is to be stationed in Tabukim in northwest Saudi Arabia.

Only about half of the 7th Armoured Brigade is on its way to the Gulf, however. The other half hasn't yet embarked, he said.

''Right from the start we were prepared to take defensive positions and resist an attack,'' Hamilton said. He added that it was still too early to talk about war because there was still hope for a peaceful resolution of the crisis.

DOHA (OCT. 7) - Canadian air force troops have arrived in Qatar as part of a multinational troop deployment in the Gulf triggered by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, the official Qatari news agency QNA reported Sunday.

The agency did not provide further details.

Canada announced Thursday it would airlift troops and equipment from a base in Lahr, southwest Germany, to Qatar.

A Canadian military spokesman had said 450 air force troops based at Lahr and 100 others stationed in Baden-Soellingen, also in the southwest of Germany, would be dispatched to Qatar.

Canada has also pledged to send to the Gulf 12 C-130 Hercules transport planes as well as 18 F-18 fighter jets in a bid to provide support for three Canadian warships already in the Gulf.

JOHANNESBURG (OCT. 7) - The African National Congress called on Sunday for one-man, one-vote elections to sort out local government, even before the key issue of universal suffrage is decided at national level.

At the end of a four-day meeting here, the first of a series of national consultative conferences, the ANC resolved that "an elected interim body at local level should restructure the apartheid city and make proposals to the National Constituent Assembly" ANC leaders want.

Conference chairman Zola Skweyiya told AFP the conference envisaged several regional constituent assemblies, probably more than one for each of the existing four provinces, which he said were unmanageably large.

These local non-racial interim bodies "should be elected democratically on the basis of universal suffrage based on the principle of 'one person, one vote,'" a media statement said.

They would defend the interests of the weak, especially under-organised rural communities, against the powerful white provincial administrations who might otherwise impose unsatisfactory models for local government in a new South Africa.

Without interim bodies to standardise proposals for local government, ANC-aligned civic associations in smaller black townships would not get deals like last month's landmark Soweto Accord paving the way to a common taxbase and council for Johannesburg and its black township Soweto, Mr. Skweyiya said.

ANC local government committee convenor Thomazile Botha said the state would have to pay for the election and running the interim bodies.

Mr. Skweyiya said the proposals would be put to the ANC's national conference in December.

He shrugged off suggestions that it was putting the cart before the horse to call for universal suffrage elections at local level even before the issue, the lynchpin of the future constitution, had been settled nationally, especially as the government had rejected ANC plans for a national Constituent Assembly.

The conference also resolved that "all apartheid legislation should be abolished before the transformation of local government structures can begin."

Constitutional Development Minister Gerrit Viljoen has already said the bedrock of apartheid, the Population Registration Act classifying people by race, can be abolished only once the new constitution is ready.

Sunday's resolutions would therefore put the ANC on a collision course with the government, observers said.

The conference also warned municipalities against selling off council houses, as the policy did nothing to address the problem of homelessness.

Mr. Botha said there was no question of repossessing former council houses bought by the tenants.

INVERNESS, Scotland (OCT. 7) - The Loch Ness Monster kept a low profile at the weekend, eluding scores of "hunters" drawn to its watery home in the Scottish Highlands by a 250,000-pound (450,000-dollar) prize for evidence that it exists.

"I did not expect to be overwhelmed", commented Professor Iain Bishop of London's Museum of Natural History, the man charged with judging their findings.

As it turned out, he had nothing to judge.

A London bookmaker promised the money to anyone who could come up with "conclusive evidence" between Friday and Sunday that the monster existed.

But by Sunday no one had managed to fish the smallest scrap of proof out of Loch Ness's deep black waters.

The only reward doled out was a 1,500-pound (2,700-dollar) consolation prize for "best research method".

It went to Oceanscan, an Aberdeen-based offshore oil company, which plumbed the lake with an unmanned, sonar-equipped mini-submarine.

A video filmed at a depth of 70 meters (230 feet) showed a surprised eel, which at just 50 centimeters (1-12 feet) long was a far cry from the mythological monster.

On Saturday the sub's sonar did appear to have detected a form 40 meters (130 feet) down, off the sunken ruins of the medieval Urquhart Fortress. But Oceanscan engineer Andy Grey later dismissed this as "undecisive contacts".

Nessie, believed by some to be a survivor of long extinct dinosaurs, was first spotted centuries ago by Saint Columba, the evangelist who brought Christianity to Scotland.

The Loch -- lake, in English -- is extremely deep and dark, and folk living around here say the explanation for sightings of Nessie over the centuries is simple: there is a whole family of "monsters" living in underwater caverns and occasionally coming up to say hello to tourists.

Another method tried at the weekend, a pendulum said by 25-year-old Londoner Daniel Isted to be able to detect variations in water pressure and thus sniff out Nessie, was equally disappointing.

And perennial parliamentary candidate Screaming Lord Sutch, who regularly wins a few votes for the Raving Monster Loony Party, also failed to lure the monster when he threw a British Rail sandwich into the Loch.

However when asked if would-be hunters could conclude the monster does not exist, a man who has been returning here for the past 15 years, Adrian Shine, commented: "Certainly not. Nobody has yet conclusively proved that the monster existed" but "Somebody has yet to prove conclusively that it does not".

Professor Bishop, for his part, believes the 220-meter (715-foot) deep, 36-kilometer (22-mile) long lake will yield many secrets as underwater research methods progress.

For the moment, the favourite explanation of Nessie is that she is really an optical illusion.

But at Drumnadrochit, site of the Loch Ness Monster Museum, no one believes this reasonable thesis.

To encourage the legend, bookmaker William Hill has offered another lucrative bait -- 25,000 pounds (45,000 dollars) to whoever comes up with "conclusive evidence" in the next three years.

VIENNA (OCT. 7) - Official projections of initial results from the Austrian general election Sunday have given a convincing victory to the Socialist Party of Austrian Chancellor Franz Vranitzky.

Projections on Austrian television by the Interior Ministry have given the Socialists 43.14 per cent of the vote and 81 seats -- marginally ahead of its 43.12 per cent and 80 seat result in 1986.

The big loser of the election was the Socialists' ally in the centre-left government coalition, the conservative People's Party, which was given 32.31 per cent of the votes and 60 seats, down from 41 and 77 respectively in 1986.

The Conservative's leader, Vice-Chancellor Josef Riegler, said the result "exceeds our worst expectations". He said the party, which scored its worst result since 1945, needed a fundamental overhaul.

Third was the right-wing Freedom Party, headed by ebullient Carinthia state chief Joerg Haider, which was given 32 seats (16.65 per cent) by the projections, up from 18 and 9.73 per cent in 1986.

But the Freedom Party, which had based its campaign partly on the fear of immigrants, fell short of the 20 per cent needed to join the government.

Hopes by the ecological Greens to soar in a more environment-conscious Austria were dashed. The party was given a projected 10 seats, up from eight in 1986.

Analysts said the election result was a personal victory for Chancellor Vranitsky, a 53-year-old former banker, whose excellent personal image made up for a series of scandals which have rocked the Socialists in the past few months.

Ernst Scheiber, the Conservative's campaign manager, said: "It was not the Socialists who won. They centred everything around the chancellor. They even took their party's name off the posters."

The projected results were based on a count of nearly 54 per cent of votes cast.

LYONS, France (OCT. 7) - Hundreds of youths clashed with police in a mainly immigrant suburb of this southern French city Sunday, looting and burning a shopping centre after a youth died in an incident with police.

Violence erupted late Saturday and was still raging late Sunday.

Mayor Maurice Charrier issued an appeal for calm amid reports that seven firemen had been injured. He denounced "individuals from outside the city who are building up pressure".

Rioters also roughed up several journalists and destroyed equipment belonging to photographers from Agence France-Presse and the daily Liberation.

About 30 anti-riot police charged some 500 youths, lobbing teargas grenades in a bid to flush them out of the burning shopping centre, but failed when the youths responded by throwing stones. Demonstrators also stoned firemen.

Violence erupted late Saturday in the working class district of Vaulx en Velin after a crippled 21-year-old man of Spanish origin, Thomas Claudio, died when he fell off the pillion seat of a motorcycle.

Bands of youths set cars on fire when news of the death spread, smashing windows and setting up barricades in the suburb of 50,000 where relations between young people and police had been particularly tense.

Police said the motorbike driver, injured and arrested during the accident, had lost control after dodging a police car. His passenger was crippled from polio and neither he nor the driver wore safety helmets, in spite of the law.

However friends of the dead man, youngest of nine children, said the police car had deliberately blocked the motorbike's way.

RIO DE JANEIRO (OCT. 7) EFE - Baghdad has authorized the departure of the remaining Brazilians held in the country after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait in August, a Rio de Janeiro radio station said Sunday.

The private Radio Jornal do Brasil, quoting a Brazilian diplomat in Baghdad, said 82 Brazilians, who worked for the Mendes Junior construction company, would leave the Iraqi capital Sunday night on a charter flight to Brasilia.

Their release followed the exit of 170 Brazilians on Thursday.

Eduardo Prisco, councellor at the Brazilian embassy in Baghdad, said Brazil had made no concessions to gain exit visas and added that it would continue to observe U.N. trade sanctions imposed on Iraq because of the invasion of Kuwait.

CAIRO (OCT. 7) EFE - Egyptian authorities have refused to let Palestine

Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat visit their country, citing the PLO's ambiguous position on Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, the Cairo daily Al Wafd reported Sunday.

According to the daily, Arafat has pressed Arab leaders in the region to help him secure an interview with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, who has slammed the Palestinian leader's position on the crisis sparked by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait two months ago.

Arafat has insisted that an end to the crisis depends on the withdrawal of U.S.-led multinational forces from Saudi Arabia so as to allow for a totally Arab solution.

Egyptian officials declared Arafat persona non grata after the PLO leader criticized Mubarak for sending troops to Saudi Arabia to help defend the desert kingdom against possible Iraqi aggression.

In the past two weeks Egyptian security officers have arrested dozens of Iraqis and Palestinians who tried to enter the country with false passports.

The Cairo daily Al-Ahrem said Saturday that several of those arrested told police that they had weapons and explosives and planned attacks against key targets in the capital.

JAKARTA, Indonesia (OCT. 7) UPI - President Suharto will visit China and Vietnam next month, the first trip to the two communist nations by an Indonesian leader for nearly 30 years, a Cabinet minister said.

State Secretary Murdiono said Suharto will visit China in mid- November for a five-day official visit, following a trip to Tokyo to attend the inaugural ceremony of Japanese Emperor Akihito, the daily newspaper Kompas said Sunday.

Murdiono made his remarks in Beijing, where he attended the Asian Games in his capacity as the chief of Indonesia's Lawn Tennis Association. During his stay in the capital of China, Murdiono was given a special treatment by Chinese government and invited by Chinese Premier Li Peng for a dinner.

Li Peng, who visited Indonesia and witnessed the signing of the diplomatic relations between the two countries in early August, said Suharto would be given a warm welcome by China's government, Murdiono said.

No dates were specified for the five-day official visit to China. Suharto and his delegation are scheduled to visit several other cities and places in China besides Beijing.

Kompas said Suharto is scheduled to visit Vietnam after China.

It will be the first trip by an Indonesian president to either country in nearly 30 years. Sukarno, Indonesia's first leader, visited China and North Vietnam in the early 1960s.

Jakarta broke off relations with Beijing in 1967, charging China with complicity in an unsuccessful coup attempt. China has steadfastly denied the accusation.

The countries resumed diplomatic ties in early August. China officially reopened its embassy in Indonesia's capital of Jakarta late last month.

BOSTON (OCT. 7) UPI - Dave Stewart equalled a record with his fourth career playoff victory and Oakland embarrassed Boston with a record-tying seven-run ninth inning Saturday night, helping the Athletics open the American League Championship Series with a 9-1 rout of the Red Sox.

Stewart, 22-11 during the regular season, allowed four hits over eight innings in raising his post-season mark to 6-1. Boston's bullpen wasted six scoreless innings from ace right-hander Roger Clemens, putting Oakland in control of the best-of-seven series.

Having nullified Boston's home-field advantage, the A's Sunday night throw 27-game winner Bob Welch against Dana Kiecker, a rookie with a 3-5 record in Fenway Park.

Wade Boggs gave Boston a 1-0 lead with a fourth-inning homer but loser Larry Andersen allowed the tying and winning runs in the seventh and eighth innings, respectively. Oakland then outclassed the Red Sox in the ninth, driving a Fenway Park crowd of 35,192 to the exits.

On a warm New England night, Stewart beat Boston for the ninth straight time and the A's scored their fifth consecutive playoff win over the Red Sox.

In so doing, they displayed the elements that have put them in two straight World Series: pitching, a mastery of fundamentals, and skill in the clutch.

With the score tied 1-1 in the eighth, the A's received a sacrifice from their cleanup hitter, a stolen base from a slugger, and an RBI single by Lansford, who had fallen behind 0-2 in the count.

Stewart tied a playoff record held by six others, and can break it later in the series. Both previous playoff matchups between the clubs have ended in sweeps. Boston took three straight in 1975 and the A's swept four two years ago.

Clemens had not beaten Stewart since 1984, but led 1-0 when he departed after six. Then the bullpen turned opportunity to embarrassment.

Mark McGwire led off the seventh with a walk and Walt Weiss forced him. Jamie Quirk hit for Mike Gallego and, with Weiss running, singled him to third. After Willie Randolph ran for Quirk, Rickey Henderson hit a sacrifice fly to center.

In the eighth, Jose Canseco led off with a single and Tom Bolton relieved Andersen. Harold Baines sacrificed, his first of this season. Jeff Gray replaced Bolton and Canseco stole third. Lansford then blooped a single to right, producing the run.

In the ninth, Rickey Henderson led off with a single and advanced when Gray bobbled Willie McGee's sacrifice. Dennis Lamp relieved and Henderson stole third. McGee then stole second. Canseco lifted a sacrifice fly. Baines received an intentional walk and Lansford doubled down the left-field line, scoring McGee and starting an exodus from Fenway Park. Steinbach singled to left, delivering the third run of the inning.

McGwire walked and a run scored when ball four got past catcher Tony Pena. Weiss also walked and Randolph singled home a run. Henderson added a two-run single. The outburst equalled the most runs by one team in an inning in AL postseason play.

(OCT. 7) UPI - A report by the Minnesota Lawyers International Human Rights Committee says a U-S-sponsored program to improve Guatemala's judicial system is being suspended because of a lack of political will in the Latin American country. The report says the Guatemalan government does NOT aggressively try to solve crimes involving human rights abuses by security forces.

Recent taste tests by food science experts at Penn State University indicate that salmon raised on land tastes better than those from the sea. Farm-raised salmon beat out wild Atlantic and Pacific salmon in consumer taste tests. Officials say the results were surprising because Alaskan salmon... which was among those tested... was considered the best available.

NEW ORLEANS (OCT. 7) UPI - Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., won re-election to a fourth term in Louisiana's open primary Saturday, defeating former Ku Klux Klan leader David Duke, a Republican rejected by his own party because of his racist history.

With 91 percent of the vote counted, the unofficial returns showed Johnston leading with 667,481 votes, or 54 percent of the total, compared to 545,347 votes for Duke, or 44 percent of the total.

The margin of victory was far less than the 60 to 65 percent Johnston had predicted earlier in the day but he still said it was a big victory.

''This is very clear. This ain't close,'' Johnston said. ''I won this race by 10 full percentage points. That's a big win and I'm happy with it.''

Duke said he would file suit to challenge the disallowance of absentee ballots cast for Ben Bagert, the Republican nominee who withdrew two days before the election. Duke said he would have gotten most of Bagert's votes if citizens who voted absentee for Bagert had another chance.

''We will fight to make sure their vote is heard in the state of Louisiana... We are not going to let a political deal determine the outcome of this election,'' Duke said. ''Our preliminary indications are that Ben Bagert is drawing a number of votes, at least enough to make a difference.''

Duke had claimed Johnston cut a deal with Bagert to get him out of the race to prevent a runoff. When Bagert withdrew on Thursday, he said he was doing it because he knew he could not make a runoff and he did not want Duke to get in one.

Under state law, votes for a candidate who withdraws after his name is on the ballot are discounted. Even if the votes could be counted, it did not appear there would have been enough to help Duke.

There were 68,000 absentee ballots cast in the week before the election. Even if Duke were to have gotten all of them, it would not have been enough to overcome Johnston.

In his victory speech, Johnston acknowledged the heavy vote against him, and attributed it to tough economic times and frustration.

''To all those people across the state ... who are frustrated and had difficult times, and who didn't join with us in this campaign, and we understand there are lots of those, we offer the hand of goodwill. Unite with us,'' Johnston said.

Voting was heavy throughout the state, with some precincts reporting long lines of voters waiting to cast ballots after the official poll closing at 9 p.m. EDT.

The heavy voting appeared to bear out the prediction of Secretary of State Fox McKeithen of a near-record turnout of about 75 percent of Louisiana's 2.2 million registered voters.

''Reports say the turnout is extremely heavy,'' McKeithen said. ''Caddo (Parish) is extraordinarily heavy. Jefferson, Orleans and East Baton Rouge is extra heavy.''

Caddo Parish (county) in northwest Louisiana is Johnston's home region. Jefferson Parish, adjacent to New Orleans, is home to Duke's district. Johnston was beating Duke 3-to-1 in New Orleans, where the voter registration is 55 percent black.

There were four other minor candidates on the ballot.

In Louisiana's open primary system, all candidates of all parties, whether nominated or not, run on the same ballot. The candidate drawing more than 50 percent is automatically elected. If no candidate wins a majority, there is a runoff between the top two finishers in November.

Duke, a former grand wizard of the Knights of Ku Klux Klan who has also had ties to neo-Nazi organizations, focused his campaign on attacks on welfare recipients, affirmative action, taxes and the establishment.

Johnston said he would win in a landslide because voters would reject Duke's ''racist message.''

Republican Party officials feared a Duke-Johnston runoff campaign lasting another four weeks would allow Democrats to label the party as racist. A number of them stated they would vote for Johnston.

SEOUL, South Korea (OCT. 7) UPI - Ranking defense officials are likely to be fired soon for allegedly having military security agents conduct illegal surveillance on more than 1,300 prominent civilians, published reports said Sunday.

All major daily newspapers published in Seoul said in front-page stories that Defense Minister Lee Sang-hoon and Army Lt. Gen. Cho Nam- pung, head of the powerful Defense Security Command, will be among those to be replaced.

The shakeup may be announced after President Roh Tae-woo and Kim Young-sam, the second highest leader of Roh's ruling Democratic Liberal Party, discuss the situation at a meeting Monday, the reports said.

Political parties as well as other organizations, including the Korean Bar Association and dissident and civic groups, have been furious about the alleged military surveillance on civilians which was disclosed by an Army deserter.

Private Yoon Suk-yang, 24, came to the National Council of Churches Building in downtown Seoul late Thursday and made the disclosure in a ''declaration of conscience.''

Yoon, who was assigned to a branch office of the Defense Security Command, said agents of the command were monitoring activities of the surveillance targets including Kim Dae Jung and Kim Young-sam and other politicians, lawyers, church leaders, college professors, journalists, labor activists and dissidents.

Yoon produced documented material backing up his allegations. Military officials admitted that the data had been stolen by Yoon from an office of the Defense Security Command which is in charge of both criminal investigations and intelligence for the armed forces.

Under the previous governments the Defense Security Command was accused by the opposition of spying on politicians and meddling in politics. After President Roh came to power the government said it was reorganizing the command structure to bar such surveillance.

As protests rose, defense officials said the personal files on the 1, 300 people were prepared not out of political motivations but to protect or isolate them from ''the enemy and impure forces'' in case of war and other emergencies.

Critics countered by saying that the listed targets included few pro-government personalities who should naturally be entitled to protection if protection was what the list really aimed at.

The reports said President Roh was enraged upon learning the alleged military surveillance on civilians and told officials concerned to make clear who was responsible.

Along with the reshuffle, ''the Defense Security Command may be revamped in due course while institutional devices will be introduced to keep the intelligence organization from spying on nonmilitary figures,'' the English-language Korea Herald said.

Dissident groups said they will hold a rally in a few days to protest the illegal military spying activity against civilians.

Opposition parties proposed a joint investigation into the case and the government party welcomed it. The main opposition Party for Peace and Democracy, led by Kim Dae Jung, demanded that Roh apologize for the Defense Security Command's actions.

With losses by No. 1 Notre Dame and No. 2 Florida State, it's anybody's guess who might end up with the top ranking when the next United Press International ratings come out Sunday.

Stanford's Tommy Vardell scored four touchdowns on 1-yard rushes, including the game-winner with 31 seconds remaining, to lead the Cardinal to a 36-31 victory over Notre Dame.

Halfway across the country, two Miami runners ran for more than 140 yards in leading the Hurricanes to a 31-22 victory over the Seminoles.

Notre Dame and Florida State were the only two teams whose positions remained unchanged after a spate of losses last week, but their losses should result in a close race for the new No. 1 position.

No. 3 Nebraska seems a likely heir apparent to the top spot after its 45-8 victory over Kansas State, but the Cornhuskers could be passed over because of a soft nonconference schedule.

''I don't know,'' Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne said when asked if his team would be No. 1. ''Right now nobody's going to give us much credit for our schedule. We've played a couple of a teams that aren't too bad.

Some voters may side with No. 4 Michigan, with three big wins after losing to Notre Dame in the final minutes of the opening game. Or it could be No. 5 Virginia, idle this week with a 5-0 record and a scoring average of 51 points per game.

Miami, the preseason No. 1 until a season-opening loss to Brigham Young, made a strong case for itself as well after the way the Hurricanes pounded Florida State.

Steve McGuire busted up the middle for 176 yards in 31 attempts and one touchdown despite an attack of leg cramps in the second quarter. Leonard Conley added 144 yards in 15 carries and two touchdowns.

''Our coaches pounded in us all week we had to establish the running game to win,'' Conley said. ''We ran so well in the first half we just kept running and punched it down their throat.''

The win was Miami's 34th straight in the Orange Bowl stadium and avenged a 24-10 loss at Florida State last year that nearly knocked the Hurricanes out of the national championship they eventually won.

A Florida State win would have been its 15th in a row, tying a school record. It also would have been the 200th for Coach Bobby Bowden, but now he will have to wait for Florida State's game in two weeks at Auburn.

''If we would have won today, we were No. 1 in the land,'' Bowden said. ''Now, we have to fight back. We could have won the stinking game.''

Notre Dame created the opening by fumbling three punts that Stanford turned into touchdowns. Rickey Watters fumbled two punts and Adrian Jarrell fumbled another.

Notre Dame's top punt returner, Raghib Ismail, played sparingly because of a deep thigh bruise that has bothered throughout the season and kept him out of practice for two days earlier in the week.

''It's very disappointing. I don't know that I've ever been in a loss that's this difficult,'' Notre Dame Coach Lou Holtz said. ''There is going to be some changes somewhere when you give up 36 points. I know one thing - we'll work on catching punts this week.''

Vardell's four touchdowns marked the most for a Stanford player since Darrin Nelson set the school record with five scores in 1981.

--- AROUND THE AL ---

In other games featuring the Top 10, No. 4 Michigan waltzed past Wisconsin 41-3, No. 6 Auburn edged Louisiana Tech 16-14 and No. 9 Colorado nipped Missouri 33-31.

Also, No. 12 Illinois topped No. 25 Ohio State 34-20, No. 13 Clemson pounded Georgia 34-3, No. 14 Washington ripped Arizona State 42-14, No. 15 Texas A&M defeated Texas Tech 28-24, Texas Christian upset No. 16 Arkansas 54-26, No. 17 Oregon blasted Utah State 52-7, No. 18 Georgia Tech dumped Maryland 31-3, Iowa upended No. 19 Michigan State 12-7, Northern Illinois ran over No. 20 Fresno State 73-18, No. 21 Arizona overtook UCLA 28-21, No. 22 Indiana blanked Northwestern 42-0, No. 23 Mississippi beat Kentucky 35-29 and No. 24 Wyoming outgunned San Diego State 52-51.

In a late game, No. 11 Southern Cal knocked off Washington State 30- 17.

At Madison, Wis., Elvis Grbac passed for 154 yards and three touchdowns to lead Michigan. Grbac completed 15 of 20 attempts, including TD passes of 29, 8 and 2 yards.

At Auburn, Ala., Jim Von Wyl kicked a 30-yard field goal with three seconds left to lift Auburn over Louisiana Tech. Von Wyl's field goal, his third of the game, capped a 74-yard drive that began at the Auburn 13 with 2:02 left.

At Columbia, Mo., quarterback Charles Johnson scored on a ''fifth down'' play with no time remaining for Colorado. Eric Bieniemy failed to score from the 1 on third down and Johnson threw the ball to the turf on fourth down to stop the clock with three seconds left. After Johnson scored on the next play, officials allowed the winning touchdown to stand after a 20-minute discussion.

At Columbus, Ohio, Howard Griffith's 12-yard TD run ignited an Illinois comeback against Ohio State. Illinois also capitalized on a controversial touchdown off a blocked Ohio State field-goal attempt, in which the Illini scored following an obvious forward lateral.

At Clemson, S.C., Chris Gardocki kicked a four field goals and freshman Ronald Williams ran for two touchdowns to lead Clemson. Georgia's lone score came on a 48-yard field goal by John Kasay.

At Tempe, Ariz., Greg Lewis ran for three touchdowns and set up another with a long pass reception to lead Washington over Arizona State. The Sun Devils played the game without quarterback Paul Justin, out for three weeks with a separated shoulder.

At College Station, Texas, reserve quarterback Bucky Richardson threw a TD pass and scored on two short runs as part of a 21-point Texas A&M second half. Darren Lewis carried 34 times for a career-high 232 yards for the Aggies.

At Little Rock, Ark., Leon Clay threw four touchdown passes and scored on a 1-yard run to send Texas Christian rolling over Arkansas. TCU's 54 points were the most against Arkansas since Tulsa beat the Razorbacks 61-0 in 1943 and the most against the Razorbacks by a Southwest Conference team in 68 years.

At Eugene, Ore., Bill Musgrave threw for 187 yards and three touchdowns to lead Oregon. Musgrave, who completed 15 of 23 passes, set the school record for career total offense with 6,878 yards.

At College Park, Md., Shawn Jones passed for 271 yards and linebacker Marco Coleman recorded 5 of Georgia Tech's 11 sacks to lead the Yellow Jackets. T.J. Edwards added 97 yards rushing for Georgia Tech, whose defense has yet to give up a touchdown this season.

At East Lansing, Mich., Jeff Skillett kicked two field goals and Matt Rodgers tossed a 5-yard touchdown pass to Nick Bell to lead Iowa. Iowa has not lost to Michigan State at Spartan Stadium since 1978.

At DeKalb, Ill., quarterback Stacey Robinson rushed for an NCAA- record 308 yards and five TDs to lead Northern Illinois over Fresno State. Robinson, who carried 22 times out of the wishbone offense, scored on touchdown bursts of 39 9, 41, 67 and 11 yards, all in three quarters.

At Pasadena, Calif., Darryl Lewis returned an interception 70 yards for a touchdown with 50 seconds remaining to lift Arizona. UCLA appeared to tie the game as time ran out, but it was ruled quarterback Tommy Maddox had crossed the line of scrimmage before hitting Sean LaChapelle with a pass in the end zone.

At Evanston, Ill., Trent Green and Vaughn Dunbar rushed for two touchdowns each to lead Indiana. The closest Northwestern advanced all afternoon was to the Indiana 13 with five minutes remaining.

At Oxford, Miss., Randy Baldwin rushed for 88 yards and two touchdowns to lead Mississippi. The Rebels scored 21 straight points after spotting Kentucky a first-half touchdown.

At Laramie, Wyo., Tom Corontzos threw for a 421 yards and three touchdowns as Wyoming held off a late San Diego State charge. San Diego State quarterback Dan McGwire completed 27 of 42 passes for 415 yards and 5 TDs.

At Los Angeles, Mazio Royster, substituting for injured tailback Ricky Ervins, rushed for 203 yards and three touchdowns to propel No. 11 Southern Cal. Scott

Lockwood ran for 102 yards and a touchdown and set up Royster's second score with a 59-yard punt return. USC's Todd Marinovich completed 14 of 19 passes for 159 yards and no interceptions.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (OCT. 7) UPI - A high-ranking Iranian delegate arrived in Beirut to supervise the release of Anglican Curch Envoy Terry Waite within days, a Lebanese newspaper said Sunday.

The Ad Diyar newspaper quoted ''trustworthy sources'' as saying ''there are very serious indications on the possibility to release British hostage Terry Waite in the coming few days.''

The sources said ''secret negotiations were held in the past two months to finalize the details of the release as agreed,'' between the Iran and Britain.

They said a high-ranking Iranian delegate whose identity was not revealed arrived in Beirut's airport using an Algerian passport to finalize and supervise the release.

The newspaper said British Ambassador to Lebanon David Tetham met this Iranian delegate during a recent visit to a religious figure in Lebanon.

Last month, Tetham met the spiritual leader of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah or Party of God Ayatollah Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah. Both denied that the hostages issue was raised during the meeting.

Waite with two other Britons, John McCarthy and Jack Mann, are among 12 Westerners held captives in Lebanon by fundamentalist groups believed affiliated with Hezbollah.

Ad Diyar said the ''scenario'' of the release as agreed between the Iranians and Britons was for the British government to express its goodwill toward the Moslems and provide Iran with arms.

According to the agreement, writer Salman Rushdi would appear on television and appologize for his book ''The Satanic Verses'', which Iran considers blasphemous to Islam. Britain would then withdraw the book from book markets.

MANILA, Philippines (OCT. 7) UPI - The fugitive leader of mutinous soldiers announced Sunday a new campaign to ''steadily wear down'' President Corazon Aquino's government after a short-lived rebellion was crushed in the southern Philippines last week.

The statement by cashiered army Col. Gregorio Honasan was issued to news agencies hours after a bomb exploded outside the Finance Department building in Manila.

No one was injured in the blast, the second in the capital since government forces Saturday crushed a 48-hour mutiny in Butuan and Cagayan de Oro City in Mindanao island, 500 miles south of Manila.

Saturday night, a blast ripped through a Jeep parked outside the Defense Department inside the heavily guarded armed forces headquarters, setting the vehicle ablaze and inuring an employee.

Officials said mutinous soldiers were trying to strike back after the defeat of army Col. Alexander Noble, who led the Mindanao uprising. Noble surrendered after his expected support from disgruntled military personnel did not materialize.

Honasan said rebel soldiers will continue with ''phase II'' of their plan to oust Aquino, who has crushed six earlier coup attempts.

''Our movement for a better Philippines will persist in steadily wearing down the (Aquino government) like the irrational bull in the arena, before we deliver the coup de grace,'' Honasan said.

He did not give details of the rebel plans but defense and military officials said they expected more terrorist bombings in the capital, which has been rocked by 40 other explosions in the past two months. The blasts have been blamed on rebel soldiers.

The military said if Honasan had the capability to mount a coup, he should have launched it on the day Noble started his uprising in Mindanao Thursday. Honasan led the Dec. 1-9 coup that nearly toppled Aquino, killed 119 people and wounded more that 500 others.

Armed forces Col. Juanito Rimando said Sunday three rebel soldiers were killed during Noble's uprising Friday when government T-28 Tora Tora planes bombed the Butan garrison Noble had seized. The bodies were found Saturday, he said.

A government pilot was also killed in the Mindanao revolt when his plane crashed on returning to base from a reconnaissance mission.

At least 240 of Noble's followers have been arrested and mopping up operations were continuing, Rimando said.

Honasan said in his letter their aim was to weaken the government and force Aquino out of office to ''give way to a constitutional succession and formation of a multi-sectoral and multi-partisan executive council'' to prepare for ''clean and honest elections.''

Aquino took office in February 1986 in a civilian-backed military revolt against President Ferdinand Marcos, ending his 21-year reign.

DEARBORN, MI (OCT. 7) UPI - Bargainers for Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers union reached tentative agreement on a three-year contract Sunday, capping an all-night bargaining session.

No details were immediately available but UAW President Owen Bieber said Ford workers represented by his union ''will fully share in the gains achieved by the pattern settlement reached (last month) at General Motors'' Corp.

The cornerstone of that agreement is a $4 billion income security package. But other provisions penalizing the use of overtime had been seen as key sticking points in the Ford-UAW talks.

The UAW earlier scheduled a meeting of its Ford council for Tuesday at Fairlane Manor in Dearborn in anticipation of reaching agreement with Ford over the weekend.

''Ford employees across the country can take pride in what has been accomplished. Now the challenge is to build on the gains of this agreement,'' said Ford Chairman Harold Poling.

Jack Hall, Ford's chief negotiator, said the contract was achieved ''at a time when competition in our industry has never been tougher. The cyclical nature of our business is a hard fact of life and world events have heightened economic uncertainties.''

He said the contract took these development into consideration.

The new pact would cover 99,800 U.S. hourly workers employed by the No. 2. automaker.

If the contract is ratified, the focus will switch to No. 3 Chrysler Corp., which has indicated it cannot afford a contract like the one negotiated by GM.

The cost of a GM-style income security package would be much less than $4 billion at Ford, which has far fewer than GM's 280,000 active hourly employees.

But the overtime penalties presented a difficult problem because Ford relies more on overtime than either of its Big Three competitors.

GM now is assessed up to $5 an hour for overtime logged by workers. The company is required to pay the penalty into a joint skills and training fund.

The union contended that Ford should create more jobs instead of giving existing workers extra hours.

Ford, which only has 630 workers on indefinite layoff, vs. about 30, 000 at GM argued it needed flexibility and maintained that overtime has benefited both the company and workers, especially during the periods of softer sales such as the industry is now experiencing.

For the model year ended Sept. 30, Ford saw its share of the U.S. vehicle market decline to 23.8 percent from 24.4 percent in 1989, with the total industry shrinking 7.7 percent to an estimated 14.2 million units.

Ford spokesman Dick Routh also said Ford's hourly labor costs have grown to $30.98 a worker, including wages, benefits and average overtime, from $28.88 at the start of the last Ford/UAW pact in 1987.

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (OCT. 7) UPI - When President Ghulam Ishaq Khan dismissed Benazir Bhutto as prime minister in August, few would have predicted she could return to power within three months.

But analysts say such a possibility is becoming more likely as moves by the president to bring corruption charges against Bhutto, some of her former ministers and family members appear to have backfired badly.

Far from discrediting the 37-year-old daughter of hanged Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, a vilification campaign against her has sparked a wave of sympathy.

''The general impression is that she is being victimized, that it was all done to terrorize her into fleeing the country,'' said one senior Pakistani commentator. ''But she has stood her ground, and this has won her more friends.''

Analysts say the unraveling of the anti-Bhutto campaign has also left Ishaq Khan politically vulnerable, the more so if Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party wins a clear majority in elections he scheduled for Oct. 24.

Ishaq Khan dismissed the 20-month-old Bhutto government Aug. 6, accusing it of corruption and nepotism and of failing to control law and order, a move many believe was forced on him by the army, which has ruled Pakistan for more than half of its 43-year history.

He appointed opposition leader Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi to head an interim government until the elections.

The president also set up Special Disqualification Courts to try Bhutto and members of her administration on charges of misuse of power. If found guilty they could be barred from politics for seven years.

But independent analysts say the charges against Bhutto are not convincing and even if she is found guilty it would have little effect on the electorate. Bhutto has also said that, even if barred from running for office she would still campaign in the elections.

''The biggest case against her involves a land deal which didn't even go through. There was no transaction,'' said the commentator. ''And people here have seen the establishment plundering the country for years and they know that, whether Benazir is innocent or guilty, those people accusing her are not clean.

''Her father was hanged for murder but many believed he was innocent and they elected his daughter 11 years later.''

Ali Bhutto was ousted in a 1977 coup by the army chief of staff, Gen. Mohammad Zia ul-Haq, and executed two years later for conspiring to murder a political opponent. President Zia ruled for 11 years until his death in a 1988 plane crash.

Ishaq Khan, a close ally of Zia and his constitutional successor, immediately took office and allowed democratic elections that resulted in Bhutto becoming prime minister. Ishaq Khan was then voted president in his own right by an electoral college, largely as a result of support from Bhutto's party.

Since her ouster, Bhutto has reserved her most stinging criticism for Ishaq Khan, largely ignoring interim Prime Minister Jatoi and other former opposition leaders during her term in office.

''She's trying to prove that the contest is between him and her,'' said a senior Pakistani journalist. ''Ishaq Khan symbolizes the civil and military bureaucracy that she is trying to dissolve. It's a David and Goliath effect and its working.''

Bhutto has also received a boost from the Sept. 26 decision of the high court in the Northwest Frontier Province to declare unconstitutional the president's dissolution of the provincial assembly.

Analysts say Bhutto's opponents are becoming increasingly alarmed at the turnaround in her fortunes and their options are narrowing. Disqualifying her from the elections may just add to the sympathy vote and many fear that postponing the elections could prompt a cutoff of in U.S. aid.

During Bhutto's term in office, criticism rose of her alleged ineptitude as prime minister, even from her former supporters.

''If she'd gone to the polls on Aug. 6 she probably wouldn't have won more than 30 seats (in parliament),'' said the journalist. ''But now, I'd say she has at least a chance of a majority.''

PORTLAND, OR (OCT. 7) UPI - The lawyer who broke the Ku Klux Klan in Alabama takes a California white supremacists to court Monday, claiming the man inspired three skinheads to beat a black student to death with a baseball bat.

The $10 million civil lawsuit names White Aryan Resistance leader Tom Metzger, 52, of Fallbrook, Calif., and son John, 22. The action was brought on behalf of the family of Mulugeta Seraw by attorney Morris Dees of the Southern Poverty Law Center of Montgomery, Ala., and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Named as co-defendants were Kenneth Mieske, 23, (once known as ''Ken Death'') and Kyle Brewster, 19, two of three skinheads who pleaded guilty in the case. Mieske was sentenced to life in prison for first- degree murder, Brewster and Steven Strasser, 21, received terms of up to 20 years for first-degree manslaughter.

The three confronted Seraw, an Ethopian student, and two other blacks outside a Portland apartment in November 1988. In an ensuing fight, Mieske slammed Seraw in the head with a bat, knocking him to the ground. All three whites then kicked him in the head with their steel-toed boots. Seraw died of a skull fracture.

The Metzgers were in California at the time and were not charged with a crime, but they are accused in the civil action of recruiting the three whites to their organization and teaching them a doctrine of hate and violence towards blacks and Jews.

''We're innocent. We are not involved in any kind of liability here,'' Metzger said in an interview with United Press International.

''We had nothing to do with sending anybody any place. We've never trained anybody to kill people or even attack them in the streets. We've always said self-defense, otherwise don't bother people.''

But Dees is proceeding with a strategy that won a $7 million judgment against the United Klans of America in another wrongful-death suit arising from the 1981 Alabama lynching of a young black man.

The Klan could not come up with the money so the victim's mother was awarded the keys and deed to the Klan's headquarters and to the house and farm of the Klan leader who ordered the lynching. Some Klan members were also ordered to give up one fourth of their income for the rest of their lives.

Dees declined to be interviewed before the trial but John Egerton, a Nashville Tenn., author of several books on civil rights, said Dees is ''relentless'' in his persuit of racists.

''He will nail their butts to the door and they know it,'' Egerton said.

Metzgers trial is expected to last three weeks and he will defend himself, he says, because he cannot afford a lawyer. John Metzger has already filed for bankruptcy.

''We do have the advantage of being ourselves,'' Metzger said. ''We know what happened and what didn't happen. We talk the same kind of language a jury understands.''

In an ironic twist, the trial will be heard in the court of Multnomah County Circuit Judge Ancer Haggerty, one of the most decorated black Marines in the Vietnam War and one of two black circuit judges in Oregon.

Metzger said that doesn't bother him. ''I've seen black judges before that did a pretty good job,'' he said.

But on a telphone hot line message Metzger records for his followers, Metzger recently said: ''Our Negro Uncle Tom judge refuses to extend the trial date. So Tom and John will argue their own case against the faggots and Jews and renagade whites that wish to take my family's home away and give it to an Ethiopian national.''

Legal experts say Dees is advancing a novel theory of ''vicarious responsibility'' for the deaths. Vicarious responsibility is usually applied to collect damages from employers of people who commit wrongful acts. In Oregon, it has never been applied to the leaders of political movements.

In a friend-of-the-court brief filed late last week, the American Civil Liberties Union asked Haggerty to dismiss two of three counts against Metzger on grounds his speech was protected by the First Amendment. Those counts allege he acted in a reckless and negligent manner.

The ACLU claimed the Metzgers are free to advocate violence and lawlessness in general and can be held liable if it can be shown they were trying to incite an ''imminent'' crime.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (OCT. 7) UPI - Serbia's ruling communists Sunday suspended talks with the federal government on resolving ethnic tensions in Kosovo province, angered that two members of a federal delegation met leaders of the restive ethnic Albanian majority.

''The visit of the federal government delegation to Kosovo has been completed as far as I and the government of Serbia are concerned,'' said Serbian Vice President Momcilo Trajkovic, who has been overseeing Kosovo since the government of Yugoslavia's largest republic assumed direct control of the province on July 5.

The takeover was formalized when the ruling Socialist Party of Serbia - the new name adopted by the communists in July - approved on Sept. 28 a new constitution withdrawing virtually all autonomy from the province.

In a statement issued in the Kosovo capital of Pristina, 200 miles south of Belgrade, Trajkovic said Serbia was ending discussions with the delegation only a day after they began ''because of the behavior of some members ... who met last night with Albanian leaders behind closed doors.''

He was referring to Yugoslav Deputy Prime Minister Zivko Pregl and federal Minister for Administration Vlado Kambovski, whose delegation was among several formed by the federal government last week to seek resolutions to ethnic crises that threaten to break apart the Balkan nation of 23 million people.

There was no immediate reaction from the federal government to Trajkovic's announcement on the talks, which had been scheduled to last two days.

Pregl and Kambovski defied protests by Serbia and held talks with ethnic Albanian leaders Hisen Kajdomcaj, the former provincial president, and Husamedin Azemi, the head of the Kosovo Chamber of Commerce.

Both men support a drive by ethnic Albanians for self-rule for the province, for centuries the source of bitter relations between ethnic Albanians and Serbs, who cherish Kosovo as the birthplace of their Christian Orthodox religion and culture.

There are 8.5 million Serbs in Yugoslavia, but only 200,000 Serbs still live in the province, home to 1.7 million ethnic Albanians. Serbs charge that ethnic Albanian demands for self-rule is the first step of a plan to eventually secede from Yugoslavia and merge Kosovo with the neighboring Stalanist bastion of Albania.

Both ethnic groups claim persecution by the other and have clashed periodically. More than 30 ethnic Albanians have died in confrontations with Serbian police this year.

Anti-Albanian sentiments have been stoked by Serbia's communists to enhance their appeal to Serbian nationalist voters in Dec. 9 assembly polls, the first multi-party elections to be set for the republic since the end of World War II in 1945.

Serbia suspended the provincial government and assumed direct control of Kosovo after ethnic Albanian lawmakers declared it Yugoslavia's seventh republic. Human rights groups have alleged widespread abuses by Serbian police in a crackdown on dissent.

Trajkovic accused Pregl, a key political strategist for Prime Minister Ante Markovic, of seeking ethnic Albanian support for Markovic's recently launched political party, which is dedicated to fighting nationalism, preserving the multi-ethnic Yugoslav federation and implementing Western-style democratic reforms.

''Pregl has not come to Kosovo to solve the problems of the province, but to collect votes for the Coalition of Reformist Forces of Ante Markovic,'' Trajkovic said.

Markovic is expected to call multi-party elections for the national Parliament before the end of the year and experts believe Serbia's communists, as well as autonomy-seeking regimes in Croatia and Slovenia, have been trying to impede his policies to undermine his popularity.

Trajkovic also accused Pregl of ''behaving exactly like'' U.S. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and other members of a U.S. congressional delegation, who Serbian officials accused of siding with ethnic Albanians during a visit to Kosovo in August.

NEW YORK (OCT. 7) UPI - The female sports writer who says she was sexually harassed by several New England Patriots said Sunday she has received death threats.

Lisa Olson of the Boston Herald said in an interview with NBC television's ''NFL Live,'' ''I'm getting death threats ... (there is a) very significant danger.''

The controversy stems from a Sept. 17 incident in the team locker room, when Olson says tight end Zeke Mowatt and several other Patriots approached her while naked in a planned attempt to embarrass her by making lewd suggestions.

A target of fan abuse at the Patriots' home game last week, Olson has been under public scrutiny for more than three weeks. She took the past week off from covering the team.

Mowatt, signed in the offseason as a free agent from the New York Giants, hasn't played a down yet with New England due a severed tendon in a finger. Because of the controversy, Mowatt says he does not ever expect to play with the Patriots, NBC reported.

Mowatt's attorneys are reportedly considering the possibility of legal action against the Patriots or owner Victor Kiam. Mowatt already has been fined $2,000 by the Patriots for verbally abusing Olson. The NFL is conducting its own investigation into the incident, the results of which are expected this month.

Mowatt says he took a polygraph test which exonerates him from Olson's charges. Olson said she offered two weeks ago to NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue also to take a lie detector test.

MOSCOW (OCT. 7) UPI - About 500 people demanded a volunteer army and alternative military service Sunday at a Constitution Day protest outside the Soviet Defense Ministry.

The Radical Party, one of dozens of political organizations that have sprouted under President Mikhail Gorbachev's glasnost reforms, sponsored the rally at Moscow's famed Arbat Square on a cold and damp autumn day.

''Only the professionalization and depoliticization of the army and the implementation of alternative service can rescue the army from the depths of complete demoralization,'' said Kiril Klucherovsky, a representative of the Russian Popular Front.

A row of women stood in front of the crowd, holding up posters and photographs of their dead sons, husbands and brothers who were among the 20,000 conscripts they said have died since 1986 in non-combat military service.

Demonstrators hoisted colorful flags against a grey sky, including the blue-yellow-and-white Russian imperial banner, the white-blue-and- red nationalist Russian flag, the blue-and-yellow Ukrainian flag and a banmers from a dozen different political parties and clubs.

The protesters gathered about 150 feet from the massive white-granite Defense Ministry, festooned in honor of Constitution Day with 30 red Soviet flags fluttering in groups of three and cordoned off by a ring of police.

Roars of approval and chants of ''shame, shame'' went up from the crowd when Stanislav Filimonov, a member of the Moscow City Council, called for Defense Minister Dmmitri Yazov's resignation and his replacement by a civilian military leader.

''Yazov - your army is not our army,'' read one of dozens of signs held aloft by the ralliers. Other placards said, ''We don't want to be occupiers'' and ''Better active today than radioactive tomorrow.''

Fyodor Abramov, 16, held a sign saying, ''We don't want to serve - we want to live.''

Abramov said he hopes that a law allowing alternative service will be in place by the time he reaches draft age in 1992.

''My conscience would never allow me to shoot at another person with a gun,'' he said. ''If I had to go, for instance, to Armenia (to control ethnic unrest) I would simply desert.''

The Soviet armed forces are by far the world's largest with more than 5 million men in uniform. A number of young military officers have joined the call for a streamlined volunteer army with provisions for alternative service, but their demands have been resisted by Yazov and other high commanders.

The current army is plagued by frequent incidents of hazing and other acts of violence, which speakers at the rally Sunday said have caused 20,000 largely uninvestigated deaths in the past four years.

Ina Blinova, 50, held up a photograph of her son, Alexander, whom she said was hanged on June 4 by other soldiers. Ludmila Bezrukova, 28, said her brother, Igor Trifonov, died July 10 in mysterious circumstances that she said are being probed only halfheartedly.

The demonstration was scheduled to coincide with Constitution Day, which celebrates the Oct. 7, 1977, adoption of the present Soviet Constitution under the late Leonid Brezhnev. The country has had several constitutions since the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution.

The Soviet Parliament is currently drafting a new constitution, and rally speakers Sunday called on deputies to act more speedily and adopt a document scrapping the constitutional article that guarantees the Communist Party monopoly rule.

Krasnaya Zvezda, the army's official newspaper, said in a commentary: ''If whole generations of people constantly see that words are at variance with deeds, it is futile to expect that they will become law- abiding citizens.''

ERFURT, Germany (OCT. 7) UPI - The right-wing National Democratic Party said Sunday in a declaration that German unification was the first step toward re-establishing Germany in its 1937 borders.

About 300 delegates of the extreme rightist National Democratic Party (NPD) approved the declaration at a party congress, which met great resistance in the former East German town of Erfurt.

The NPD, the largest fascist party in Germany with about 7,500 members, said it views the unification of East and West Germany on Oct. 3 only as a move toward creating ''Germany in its internationally rightful borders.''

Party Chairman Martin Mussgnug said that means Germany in the borders of 1937.

In 1937, Germany, then ruled by Adolf Hitler, included the eastern territories of Silesia and Pommerania which became part of Poland after World War II.

In a recent agreement with the four victors of the war - France, Britain, the Soviet Union and the United States - East and West Germany declared that the unified Germany will accept the current German-Polish border as final.

The meeting of NPD delegates in Erfurt was sharply protested by local politicians and 250 people held a demonstration against the right-wing splinter party.

About 700 policemen, equipped with whipping sticks and water canons, cordoned off the building where the meeting was held in preparation of possible clashes between the demonstrators and party members.

Earlier, a scuffle erupted at the meeting, when a man, who had pushed his way to the microphone, screamed at the right-wingers, ''I am an Erfurt citizen. My parents came from Silesia. I am ashamed of what has gathered here.''

WASHINGTON (OCT. 7) UPI - With the government virtually shut down, congressional budget negotiators seeking a new deficit-reduction plan to break the impasse met again Sunday amid predictions of a deal later in the day or on Monday.

And prior to a rare Sunday session of Congress, an irritated House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., sharply criticized President Bush for his ''gratuitous'' decision to veto a stop-gap spending bill Congress passed Friday. The House narrowly sustained that veto on Saturday.

Congress convened amid a near total government shutdown. In Washington, the popular Smithsonian museums and the Washington Monument were closed, leaving the Capitol as one of the few open buildings.

Speaking with reporters before the House convened, Foley said Bush's action, which had the effect Saturday of shutting down the government except for essential services such as air traffic control, created ''a crisis that is totally artificial'' and which could have been avoided.

Foley said Bush's veto forced the House to waste time Saturday on what Foley called a ''disruptive ... diversionary, unnecessary, divisive debate'' on whether to override him, even though Bush had asked lawmakers to focus on getting a new budget plan.

''It's like saying we ought to rebuild the fiscal hour of this country and (he) sets the house on fire for a while to get our attention,'' Foley said of Bush.

''I don't want the president setting fires up here on (Capitol) Hill that incite partisanship and division. It was a bad mistake and I hope the president doesn't continue it,'' Foley said.

An angry Foley said he had ''no intention'' of bringing before the House on Sunday a new temporary spending bill that would fund government operations through Friday.

Bush has said he would sign a stop-gap spending bill as long as it did not delay automatic Gramm-Rudman spending cuts that would require unpaid furloughs for thousands of government workers and disrupt federal services.

But Foley said that was not acceptable to him.

''I do not want to see this government shut down for any purpose at any time '' Foley said. ''The purpose is to keep government open, not shut government down.

''I respect the president but I am not going to take the House and Senate down a long series of votes that are disruptive and useless. I do not want another big grenade lobbed onto the floor of the House.''

After convening at 1 p.m. EDT Sunday, the House almost immediately went into recess until 4 p.m. EDT. Both parties planned mid-afternoon caucuses, possibly to discuss the new budget deal that would replace a bipartisan $500 billion, five-year deficit-reduction package the House soundly defeated early Friday.

Foley predicted there would be a new budget package Sunday or Monday but that he hoped it would be Sunday.

The new budget plan is expected to be far less specific than the earlier version, which was worked out between the Bush administration and top congressional leaders.

''The new package reduces the increased cost in the Medicare program and provides a more equitable and fair distribution'' of new taxes needed to slash the deficit.

The original proposal called for $60 billion in Medicare cuts and beneficiary payment increases over five years and for $135 billion in new taxes on gasoline, alcohol, cigarettes, airline tickets and other items.

Foley said many of the details will be worked out in House and Senate committees and added, ''There's not a dime's worth of tax increases, 10 cents worth of cuts in the budget resolution. It allows the committees to consider these issues.''

Foley acknowledged some softening of earlier Republican and administration oppositon to raising income tax rates on the wealthiest taxpayers in exchange for a cut in capital gains taxes that Republicans want.

On the CBS program ''Face the Nation,'' budget director Richard Darman, who fought such a deal when the earlier budget plan was negotiated, did not rule it out but said he did not expect to see such a deal struck in the budget plan which has not force of law and only tells committees what they must do to cut the deficit.

''I would be very surprised to see that as far as any agreement between now and Tuesday morning,'' Darman said.

(OCT. 7) UPI - House negotiators say they may have a new budget plan ready for a vote later today. All but essential government services remain shutdown, following a veto by President Bush of a stop-gap spending bill to temporarily fund federal operations for a week. The House voted to sustain the president's veto yesterday and federal museums and parks began closing down. Tourists found the doors closed at the Statue of Liberty, the Washington Monument and Independence Hall today. .

President Bush is blaming Congress for the budget impasse, saying there will be NO more ''business as usual'' until the crisis is passed. The new budget plan under consideration reportedly would have a significantly smaller cut in Medicare than the bill defeated by the House... as well as a different mix of taxes.

PARIS (OCT. 7) UPI - Beatrice Saubin returned home to France Sunday after 10 years in a Malaysian prison on charges of drug trafficking that she always denied.

Dressed in a green suit, wearing sun glasses and carrying a bouquet of flowers Saubin, 31, arrived at Charles de Gaulle Airport outside Paris after a flight from Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

Her return ended a 10-year ordeal that began with her arrest Jan. 27, 1980, at Bayan Lepas International Airport in northern Malaysia when authorities discovered 2.2 pounds of heroin in her suitcase.

Saubin always denied she knew about the heroin, insisting it was placed in the suitcase by a Chinese friend. Didier Decoin, a French writer who in 1977 won the Prix Goncourt, France's most prestigious literary prize, wrote a book in 1984 on the case in which he concluded that Saubin was the victim of a judicial error.

The young woman, a former Paris secretary who had spent several months travelling through Asia, was condemned to death by a Malaysian court shortly after her arrest. But two months later Malaysia's highest tribunal reduced the sentence to life imprisonment following a public outcry in France.

Saubin left Kajang Prison in northern Malaysia Friday evening, warning about the dangers of drug abuse and wearing the traditional black robes used by practicing Muslims in a vain effort to avoid being recognized.

Authorities said the young woman was released because of her good conduct in prison.

During her detention Saubin learned Malaysian and worked closely with other inmates. She spent the past three years working in the prison hospital, where she says she learned the devastation drugs can cause.

Seventy persons, including 36 foreigners, have been hanged in Malaysia for drug trafficking since 1975.

ANZIO, Italy (OCT. 7) UPI - Masked bandits immobilized six guards of an armored truck Sunday and escaped with up to $1.7 million in weekend takings from a chain of department stores, police said.

Investigators said five or six men with accents suggesting they were from Rome and Naples staged the daring heist by first disarming two night watchmen at the Standa department store at this seaside town 30 miles south of Rome.

According to police, the criminals also captured a watchmen at a nearby store and locked all three in a closet before dawn, then waited two hours for the arrival of an armored truck with cash from 15 Standa stores in the region.

Investigators said the robbers surprised three more guards aboard the truck, locked them up and fled with the money in 15 large plastic garbage bags.

Police later found one of the cars used by the hijackers abandoned in the center of Anzio. Police set up roadblocks but failed to find a trace of the men.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 7) UPI - With the government virtually shut down, congressional negotiators said Sunday they had agreed to the general outlines of a new bipartisan budget plan to replace the $500 billion five-year package rejected by the House last week.

Negotiators presented the proposal, believed to be far less specific than the original plan, to separate Democratic and Republican caucuses Sunday afternoon. Depending on whether rank-and-file members were inclined to accept the proposal, the new package could still come to the House floor for a vote later in the day, party leaders said.

House Budget Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif., one of the negotiators, confirmed they agreed on the ''general outlines'' of a new plan and were presenting it to members of both parties.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., predicted there would be a new budget package Sunday or Monday.

The new plan is expected to be more vague than the version worked out between the Bush administration and congressional leaders.

Foley said ''the new package reduces the increased cost in the Medicare program and provides a more equitable and fair distribution'' of new taxes needed to slash the deficit.

CAIRO, Egypt (OCT. 7) UPI - Like mad dogs in a noonday sun, more than 1,000 car enthusiasts gathered at the great Pyramids of Giza Sunday afternoon for the start of the Pharaohs Rally, a rollicking 12-day road race that loops through desert, ancient cities and along the Nile.

In the shadow of the Sphinx - what little there was under a searing sun - the racers were given the green flag and a hefty instruction book detailing the rules of the road - what little road there is along the route.

''We try to have a good safe race that at the same time is exciting,'' said organizer Rami Siag, whose Pyramids Hotel was the base for the racers and their friends.

Siag said more than 1,000 assorted vehicles had registered for the event, including 160 racing cars, 130 motorcycles, 13 sidecars and 120 trucks, representing more than 30 countries.

The race is conducted in stages - the first day's leg was from Cairo to the port city of Alexandria, about 140 miles to the north - with the racers racking up points each of the 12 days based on performance.

They will be followed by a swarm of support cars, helicopters and light aircraft to ensure they follow the rules, stay on the course and don't get into trouble.

Less than a third of the 3,000-mile course is along paved road.

For the first time in the nine years the race has been held, the pack is splitting, with half traveling in the opposite direction of the other half.

Siag said the change was necessary to prevent Egypt's roads and facilities from being overtaxed by the increasingly popular event. In the evenings, racers stay at hotels or tent campsites provided by organizers.

It will end Oct. 17 at the third Pyramid of Giza, built 4,500 years ago.

Spokesmen for the Ministry of Tourism, co-sponsor of the race, said they had thought about canceling the event because of the Persian Gulf crisis, but later figured it would be good publicity for Egypt.

Hotel bookings have been down since the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and officials hope the rally will lure tourists back to the country.

NEW YORK (OCT. 7) UPI - Readers of Conde Nast Traveler magazine voted San Franciso their favorite city to visit in the United States and Paris their top choice in the world, according to a survey released Sunday.

Paris replaced Florence, Italy, last year's international winner, and was followed by Rome, San Francisco, Florence, Vienna, Austria, Lucerne, Switzerland, London, Seattle, San Diego and Venice, Italy.

San Francisco was followed on the domestic list by Seattle, San Diego, Boston, New Orleans, Washington, D.C.; New York, Oahu, Hawaii, Chicago and Orlando, Fla.

The 1990 Readers' Choice poll, to be published in the magazine's November issue, was conducted by Mark Clements Research Inc.

Awards for top billings were to be presented Sunday at the American Society of Travel Agents World Congress in Hamburg, Germany.

In other categories, Singapore Airlines won for the overall best airline, Alaska Airlines took the award for best U.S. air carrier, followed by Midway Airlines and American Airlines.

While Singapore received top marks for an international carrier, Swissair, which came in second overall, finished first for punctuality.

Other award winners were: best U.S. mainland resort, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho; best tropical resort, Halekulani on Hawaii's Oahu; best hotel in world, The Oriental in Bangkok, Thailand, and best hotel in the United States, The Crescent Court, in Dallas, Texas.

The best cruise line selected was Holland America Line, and the best spa, the Canyon Ranch of Tucson, Ariz.

(OCT. 7) UPI - An all-night bargaining session ended this morning with a new contract between Ford Motor Company and the United Auto Workers Union. The two sides worked out the tentative three-year agreement at Ford headquarters in Dearborn, Michigan. The new contract would cover 99- thousand-800 hourly workers employed by the Number two automaker in the United States. .

MOSCOW (OCT. 7) UPI - Thousands of office workers were bused to fields around Moscow Sunday to harvest potatoes in an effort to ease the great spud shortage.

''You see the way we are spinning our wheels,'' said Volodya, 35, a driver for a Moscow business as he made his way with shovel and green pail through the mud in a field within earshot of the capital's Sheremetyevo international airport.

Moscow Mayor Gavriil Popov ordered the mobilization of urban workers to the countryside when it became evident last month that state farm workers would not or could not harvest the entire crop of potatoes as winter bore down.

With shelves bare of potatoes and the fields laden with spuds on the verge of rotting, the Soviet press has had a field day in hatching anti- perestroika theories in a land where sabotage is often a ready explanation for deficits.

''It is not the weather, it is not a lack of tractors, it is the system (that is to blame),'' said Andrei, 32, a building engineer, standing beside his burlap bag of potatoes that he washed in a muddy stream.

The ''volunteers'' are allowed to buy the potatoes they dig out of the earth at about 16 cents a pound, half the price of potatoes in a state store.

''I think this autumn has been good a lesson for us,'' Andrei said. ''This system (of state farming) does not work. Next year it will be different.''

''If a private farmer owned this land, you can be sure he would gather his potatoes. ''

Only 50 percent of the crop has been harvested, and in the still centrally planned system authorities must fill the storage bins so they can dole out the potatoes to state stores through the winter.

Unless the potatoes are harvested within the next 10 days or so, they could rot or a frost could ruin the crop.

The Gudok newspaper, organ of the railway workers, said Sunday that 400,000 tons of potatoes will be imported from Germany, and 500,000 tons from Poland in October alone, more than the 705,000 tons purchased abroad in all of 1989. A total of 300,000 tons of the imported spuds are for Moscow, Gudok said in the article headlined ''No threat of hunger.''

The office workers, wearing the blue track suits that Russians prefer on their days off, clambered aboard buses at pickup points around Moscow to be driven to various state farms just outside the city.

One city man, who had just stuck a pitchfork into the rain-soaked earth bristled at a reporter when he asked why he was forced to dig potatoes and then haul them off in a nylon bag onto the waiting bus.

''Why ask me, ask the authorities,'' he said.

''What you see here is an attempt to save a drowning man by mobilizing the very fingers of the drowning man,'' said Arkady, 35, who grew up in the countryside.

He blamed the the monthlong rain in September and the lack of tractors and equipment to mechanically gather the crop, steering clear of political explanations.

Arkady said he would pick as many potatoes as he could and would stay in the fields until his daughter, 6, became too fidgety. In her blue rubber boots and under a kerchief, she seemed content to watch her mother and father turn the earth.

But Andrei, 32, a city driver, watching from the road in his car, did not participate in harvesting potatoes on what was a holiday, Constitution Day, and said he would not.

''The farmers say the hell with it, but I believe those who plant the crops should harvest them,'' he said.

He blamed the system of state and collective farming where the state- owned farms sell their products to the state who in turn supply them to the stores.

''Farmers must decide for themselves how much to plant and where, and the most important thing,they must sell the potatoes themselves,'' he said. ''Obviously they planted much more than they could harvest.''

''If individual farmers could sell their own products, the stores would be full of potatoes instead of in the fields.''

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 7) UPI - Retail gasoline prices increased nearly 6 cents a gallon nationally during the past two weeks, an industry analyst said Sunday.

Trilby Lundberg, director of the Lundberg Survey, said a check of gasoline prices at 13,000 retail outlets Friday showed an average weighted price, including taxes, of 144.20 cents per gallon. The average price increased by 5.84 cents per gallon, compared to a similar survey Sept. 21, she said.

''There was a slight improvement in the retailer's profit margin, which has been long awaited since the period of (price) instability began in August,'' Lundberg said. ''During most of the period, gasoline retailers have lost some of their (profit) margin. Wholesale prices have increased faster than retail.''

''Future prices depend entirely on crude oil prices,'' she said, noting the instability produced by the crisis in the Middle East. ''There will be pressure for the retailers to try to recover more of the profit they have lost. Whether they will be successful remains to be seen.''

Lundberg said the latest price increases have been fairly uniform throughout the nation, with the largest hikes at self-service pumps. She said her survey Friday turned up scattered instances of $2 per gallon gasoline for premium unleaded fuel.

The average national price for a gallon of regular unleaded gasoline at self-service pumps was 133.56 cents; self-service premium unleaded was 149.95 cents per gallon; regular unleaded was 130.59 cents per gallon at the self-serve pumps.

At full-service pumps, the price for a gallon of regular unleaded was 155.11 cents; premium unleaded was 168.79 cents per gallon; regular leaded was 152.21 cents per gallon.

(OCT. 7) UPI - Ford Chairman Harold Poling says Ford workers across the country can take pride in the tentative new contract reached today between the automaker and the United Auto Workers union. The accord came after an all-night bargaining session at Ford headquarters in Dearborn, Michigan. U-A-W President Owen Bieber says the pact will allow nearly 100-thousand hourly Ford workers to ''fully share'' in the gains achieved by the pattern settlement reached last month at General Motors Corporation.

School children in Louisiana's largest public school system may be back in the classrooms this week after an agreement to end a three-week strike by some 45-hundred teachers. The two sides reached agreement yesterday. Teachers are scheduled to vote on the proposed pact tonight. United Teachers of New Orleans President Nat LaCour says he'll recommend the teachers accept the proposal and return to school.

President Bush and Congress stand accused today of budget brinkmanship gone awry. Some of the nation's most popular parks, monuments and sights are closed in the wake of a government shutdown ordered after the House killed a deficit-reduction plan hammered out in tough negotiations between the administration and Congress. President Bush vetoed a stop-gap spending bill yesterday that would've kept the government in operation and bought more time for the budget negotiations.

More manuevering today as Arab diplomats continue efforts to find a peaceful end to the Persian Gulf crisis. A high-level Egyptian delegation arrived in Damascus for talks with Syria on coordinating efforts to force Iraq out of Kuwait. Both countries have sent troops to serve in the U-S-led multi-national force in Saudi Arabia. Although they reportedly differ on many issues, relations between Cairo and Damascus have strengthened because of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

(OCT. 7) UPI - Israel today began the first phase of the nationwide distribution of gas masks to its citizens. The personal protection kits were given out in three small towns. Military officials plan to expand the distribution next week to include the larger urban areas. .

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir denies Israel is passing out the gas masks because it intends to strike at Iraq. Shamir says Israel is taking seriously threats by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to wipe out half of the Jewish state with chemical weapons if it attacks Iraq or any Arab nation.

Egypt reportedly is denying P-L-O chief Yasser Arafat permission to visit Cairo as the deeply divided Arab world maneuvers to adjust to the Gulf crisis. The denial came as Arafat met with Jordan's King Hussein in Amman to discuss the crisis that has united them after years of animosity. Both are sympathetic toward Iraq.

Kidnapped Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite could be freed within days. That's according to a Lebanese newspaper. The paper says a high-ranking Iranian delegate is in Beirut to supervise Waite's release. Waite is among 12 Westerners held captive in Lebanon by fundamentalist groups believed affiliated with the pro-Iranian Hezbollah .

Budget negotiators are reported making ''good progress'' in fashioning a new budget plan to replace the bi-partisan package voted down by the House Friday. The negotiators say it's possible they'll have a new budget ready for congressional action today. It's expected to have a much smaller Medicare cut and a different tax mix and other changes.

MOSCOW (OCT. 7) UPI - Crew members and passengers Sunday disarmed a man who tried to hijack a Soviet plane to Stockholm, and the aircraft landed safely at the White Sea port city of Arkhangelsk.

An unemployed 26-year-old man, identified only by his last name of Gavrilov, threatened to blow up the Aeroflot AN-24 jetliner en route to Arkhangelsk from the Ural Mountains city of Perm, where he lived, the official Tass news agency said.

''The crew decided to take the risk and with the help of passengers disarmed the hijacker,'' Tass said. ''No bomb was found on him. Authorities are investigating the incident.''

The news agency did not say what kind of weapon was in Gavrilov's possession when he was disarmed.

The incident was the most recent in a spate of hijackings or attempted acts of air piracy conducted by Soviets trying to leave their country this year.

Most of the successful hijackers have commandeered planes to Stockholm or Helsinki, and the Swedish and Finnish government have extradited some of the air pirates back to the Soviet Union.

Igor Suslov, one of a group of Soviet convicts who hijacked an Aeroflot jetliner to Pakistan in August, committed suicide Friday in his jail cell in Karachi, prison officials said.

Suslov and 10 other hijackers were facing trial before a special terrorist court in Karachi.

(OCT. 8) UPI - Home has turned sour for the Minnesota Vikings, while the road is as sweet as ever for the San Francisco 49ers.

Minnesota's 34-27 loss to Detroit was their second straight at the Metrodome after 14 consecutive victories, including a 1988 playoff game. The Lions snapped a seven-game losing streak against the Vikings, beating them for the first time since 1986 and dropping them to their worst start in 23 years.

The 49ers rallied to a 24-21 victory in Houston, setting an NFL record with their 12th straight road victory. The scenario was familiar for the defending champions, a Joe Montana 46-yard touchdown pass to John Taylor with 6:31 left for the winning points.

The games in Minnesota and Houston were typical of a Sunday in which eight of 10 day games were decided in the fourth quarter or overtime.

Bob Gagliano, starting in place of injured Rodney Peete, threw three touchdown passes and nearly 300 yards to rally the Lions to 24 straight second-half points.

Minnesota, pre-season favorite to repeat as NFC Central champion, fell to 1-4 and dropped three games behind Chicago in the division race.

''I know what you guys want,'' Vikings Coach Jerry Burns said. ''You want us to throw in the towel. You're nuts. Anything can happen in this game. Don't write this club off yet. There's not much to be optimistic about right now. But these guys aren't quitters. They'll bust their butts. I don't have any magic potion to lay on them.''

Gagliano completed 16 of 31 for 299 yards and touchdown passes to Barry Sanders, Terry Greer and Richard Johnson.

Sanders caught a 22-yard Gagliano pass for a first half TD and scored on a 1-yard run late in the fourth period to put Detroit ahead 34-20. He rushed for 82 yards on 15 carries.

''Bob did a super job for us,'' Lions Coach Wayne Fontes said. ''He made the big plays when he had to make them.''

So did Montana in bringing San Francisco back to dump the Oilers. He threw two TD strikes to Taylor and one to Jerry Rice, while completing 20 of 28 for 318 yards.

Perhpas the biggest play was an Oilers' timeout, allowing Montana back in the game to throw for the winning score.

San Francisco, trailing 21-17, took over on its 36 after a Houston punt. At the Houston 46, Montana had his wind knocked out by Ezra Johnson and had to leave.

Steve Young relieved and fumbled the snap. Houston's Ray Childress recovered, but the Oilers had called timeout before the play. The timeout wiped out the turnover, and allowed Montana to return without missing a down.

On the next play, Montana threw to Taylor, who shook Cris Dishman for a 46-yard touchdown with 6:31 remaining. Dishman was the defender on all three San Francisco touchdowns.

Under NFL rules, Montana could not re-enter the game until the 49ers ran one play or the Oilers called timeout.

''With Young coming in like that, we wanted to make sure who else was in the game and in our substitution package,'' Houston Coach Jack Pardee explained. ''With their late substitution and the clock running, we didn't want to get caught with too many guys on the field.

''We were expecting him (Young) to bootleg it. It was such a key play for us, we had to make sure to get them stopped.''

Warren Moon completed 18 of 33 for 191 yards and three touchdown for the Oilers, who were impressive early. They converted all four third downs in the first quarter, then failed on all eight second-half conversions and fell to 2-3.

In other games decided in the final quarter or overtime, Cincinnati trimmed the LA Rams 34-31 in OT, Indianapolis stunned Kansas City 23-10, Miami edged the New York Jets 20-16, Atlanta nicked New Orleans 28-27, Seattle belted New England 33-20, and Dallas shaded Tampa Bay 14-10.

-- AROUND THE NFL --

Bengals 34, Rams 31

At Anaheim, Calif., Boomer Esiason threw for a club-record 471 yards and engineered the drive that set up a 44-yard field goal by Jim Breech at 11:56 of overtime to lift Cincinnati. Esiason completed 30 of 44 passes for three TDs and no interceptions. Jim Everett hit 25 of 46 for 372 yards, two touchdowns and no interceptions to rally the Rams from a 21-0 deficit.

Colts 23, Chiefs 19

At Indianapolis, Albert Bentley scored two touchdowns, both set up by turnovers, and the Colts rallied for 13 fourth-quarter points. The Colts' Dean Biasucci missed a 42-yard field goal with 2:58 remaining, but Mike Prior intercepted Kansas City quarterback Steve DeBerg five plays later to set up an 18-yard Biasucci field goal with 23 seconds remaining.

Miami 20, NY Jets 16

At Miami, Dan Marino fired two TD passes to Mark Duper, including a 13-yarder with 1:03 left, to lift the Dolphins, 4-1, from a 13-0 halftime deficit. Marino and Duper connected on a 69-yard TD pass for a 13-13 tie in the third quarter.

Falcons 28, Saints 27

At Atlanta, Chris Miller threw for three TDs and ran for another to rally the Falcons. The Falcons, 2-2, drove 80 yards in 82 seconds to Miller's game-winning 3-yard TD pass to Andre Rison with 1:33 left. Miller completed 23 of 44 passes for 366 yards and an interception. Rison caught 10 passes for 154 yards and two touchdowns.

Seahawks 33, Patriots 20

At Foxboro, Mass., Jeff Chadwick caught a 45-yard scoring pass from Dave Krieg with 2:37 remaining for the go-ahead points and Derrick Fenner added his second TD run for insurance. Fenner's TD was his eighth of the year.

Cowboys 14, Buccaneers 10

At Irving, Texas, rookie Emmitt Smith gained 121 yards and scored on a 14-yard run early in the fourth quarter to lift Dallas. Smith put the Cowboys in front with 14:08 left. Dallas also scored on a 12-yard throw from Troy Aikman to tight end Jay Novacek in the first period. Gary Anderson caught a 58-yard TD pass from Vinny Testaverde, giving him a TD in all five Tampa Bay games this year.

Also, Pittsburgh slammed San Diego 36-14 and Chicago clipped Green Bay 27-13.

Steelers 36, Chargers 14

At Pittsburgh, rookie Eric Green caught two touchdown passes from Bubby Brister for the first two offensive TDs scored by the Steelers this season. Pittsburgh had gone through 17 quarters without registering an offensive TD until Green's 8-yard catch for his first pro reception 58 seconds into the second quarter.

Bears 27, Packers 13

At Chicago, Neal Anderson rushed for 141 yards and a TD and Kevin Butler connected on field goals of 50 and 51 yards to lift the Bears. Green Bay scored on Don Majkowski's 76-yard fourth-quarter pass to Sterling Sharpe and two Chris Jacke field goals.

(OCT. 7) UPI - The government remains virtually shut down today, but congressional negotiators working on a budget plan have agreed to the general outlines of a new pact. The proposal... which is believed to be far less specific than a plan rejected on Friday... was presented to separate Democratic and Republican caucuses this afternoon. The proposal could come to a vote on the House floor later today.

Israel today began the first phase of a nation-wide program to protect its citizens from a possible Iraqi chemical attack. Israeli citizens in three towns began receiving gas masks as part of their protective kits. Iraq has threatened to wipe out half of Israel with chemical weapons.

A Justice Department report today shows the nation's prison population has grown in the past decade to a record three-quarters of a Million men and women. The number of inmates increased by 80-thousand people for the year ending June 30th, 1990... and it more than doubled during the 1980's. The statistics also show that the number of prisoners per capita has reached its highest level ever... 289 prisoners for every 100-thousand residents in the United States.

(OCT. 7) UPI - House negotiators are working on a budget plan that would slash 40- BILLION dollars from the deficit in fiscal 1991... but without relying as much on money from Medicare. The plan outlined today would reduce aid to Medicare by 42-BILLION dollars during five years. A plan rejected by the House Friday called for 60-BILLION dollars in Medicare cuts.

It appears that it's two down and one to go for the United Auto Workers union. The U-A-W today reached tentative agreement with Ford Motor Company on a three-year labor contract for Ford's 99-thousand 800 hourly workers. The union says today's pact preserves the framework of a deal reached last month with General Motors. Ratification is expected by October 21st, at which time the union will focus on the number three automaker, Chrysler.

Portland, Oregon, was the scene of a march today to denounce racism. About one-thousand people... protected by 100 police officers... joined Mayor Bud Clark and other civic leaders in the march. It comes on the eve of a civil trial seeking 10-Million dollars in damages from California white supremacy leader Tom Metzger. (OCT. 7) UPI - TODAY'S PEOPLE:

MARILYN CONTEMPLATES CASTRO'S DEATH: If Ivana Trump can write a book, so can Marilyn Quayle. The wife of Vice President Dan Quayle and her sister, Nancy Northcott of Tullahome, Tenn., have written a novel based on a power struggle in Cuba after the deat of Fidel Castro.''It delves into the factions that would coalesce in the leadership vacuum,'' a source told New York magazine. ''It talks about what could be one of the great struggles among the powers. It's actually quite a good read.'' The magazine says the fledgling authors have show their work, titled ''The Rage of the Lamb,'' to a ''very limited'' number of publishers so far. Trump recently signed a contract to write two romance novels.

007 PLUS OTHER ROLES: Sean Connery doesn't want to be remembered just for his James Bond roles. Connery was honored Sunday night in London by the British Academy of Film and Television Arts for his 34 years in the entertainment business but gave strict orders that his non-007 roles not be overlooked. ''He makes no bones about it,'' said an organizer. ''He knows we cannot ignore his work as 007 but he would be upset if we dwelt on it for too long.''

TRUDEAU TRIVIA: Garry Trudeau treasures his privacy but opens up in an interview for Newsweek, which marks the 20th anniversary of the syndication of his ''Doonesbury'' strip by putting Trudeau on the cover. Trudeau says he is writing a ''MASH-like'' black comedy with director Alan Pakula about AIDS researchers and also reveals that he works half a day each week at a New York City center for the homeless. Trudeau says he would have loved to have done some ''Doonesbury'' strips about how NBC ousted his wife, Jane Pauley, from the ''Today'' show but he has banned himself from using Pauley and her competitors, such as Connie Chung, as subjects. Newsweek says the interview marks the first time Trudeau has allowed anyone to watch him draw and also is the first time he has revealed the inspiration of his ''Doonesbury'' characters. Mike Doonesbury, for example, is based on one of Trudeau's Yale roommates, Charlie Pillsbury, of the Pillsbury flour family.

SPORTSWRITER THREATENED: Boston Herald sportswriter Lisa Olson says she has received death threats since complaining about being sexually harassed by members of the New England Patriots in their lockerroom last month. Olson was the target of fan abuse at last week's Patriots' home game and took the past week off from covering the team. ''I'm getting death threats,'' she said in an interviewon NBC's ''NFL Live.'' ''(There is a) very significant danger.''

FUNKY'S FRIEND: Marching bands have a true friend in cartoonist Tom Batiuk, creator of the ''Funky Winkerbean'' comic strip. Batiuk has been using the cartoon to urge television networks, especially ABC, to broadcast the halftime shows at college football games and on Saturday he mingled with members of the Ohio State University marching band at the Buckeyes' game with Illinois. ''We are just sort of holding an impromptu poll for ABC to let them know how much interest is out there,'' said Batiuk, who played trombone in his junior high school band. OSU band director Jon Woods was among those who wrote network executives for air time. ''The marching band is one of the things that separates college football from the pro game,'' he said.

GLIMPSES: Capt. Kirk didn't need Scotty to beam him up Saturday. ''Star Trek'' star William Shatner took a 10-minute ride in the cockpit of a fighter jet with the Navy's Blackbird Adversary Fighter Squadron in Key West, Fla., to promote ''Blackbirds in the Sun,'' a public television documentary about the squadron. The squadron, based at Boca Chica Navy Air Base, plays the bad guys during training flights for U.S. fighter pilots ... Bill Cosby had some words of inspiration for black students attending a weekend gala to promote the John B. Slaughter Endownment for Science and Technology at the University of Maryland. ''Take over the campus academically and stop waiting for role models to come and speak to you,'' Cosby said. ''I don't want to see anything except a black graduating class with over 75 percent getting a 3.0 (grade) average.''

SANTA MONICA, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Retix, the leading supplier of OSI products, Monday announced a network-management center that uses SNMP (Simple Network Management Protocol) to manage Retix internetworking products and other devices in multivendor networks.

Called the 5025 Network Management Center, the product provides users with an integrated set of monitoring and diagnostic capabilities on a powerful workstation platform.

The 5025 is the first in the Retix family of network-management products to support the industry-standard SNMP. SNMP is the most widely used open standard for network management and allows management interoperability with many vendors' products. In a heterogeneous network environment, the use of an SNMP management product minimizes equipment replacement and retraining costs.

Through an easy-to-use graphical interface on a Sun SPARCstation, the 5025 gives network administrators a comprehensive view of network operations to pinpoint errors and troubleshoot specific problems.

Automatic alerts eliminate the need to continually monitor the network, and user-configurable parameters let administrators home in on particular devices in the network to determine whether operational thresholds have been exceeded.

The 5025 provides statistics that are critical to the successful management of a corporate network, including monitoring of traffic levels, error rates, system parameters, traffic flow and link capacity. Using these statistics, network administrators can plan for network growth and change.

In addition to the network-management center, Retix also announced SNMP support for its complete family of internetworking products, including the 4880 High Performance Remote Bridge, 4820 Remote Bridge, 4660 High Performance Local Bridge, 2265M Local Bridge and the new 4942 Remote Bridge/Router.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Vitalink Communications Corp., a leading LAN internetworking company announced Monday it plans to add Digital Phase V router support, including OSI and the Digital Network Architecture (DNA) Phase V Integrated Intermediate Systems to Intermediate Systems (IS-IS) protocol, to its bridge/router product line.

The Digital IS-IS routing protocol will be used in both Digital and Vitalink products to support DECnet Phase IV, OSI and TCP/IP. Digital's IS-IS protocol has been accepted as a Draft Proposal by the International Standards Organization (ISO DP10589).

In addition to implementing Phase V routing, Vitalink also plans to implement Digital's HDLC protocol on router serial interfaces. With these additions, Vitalink bridge/routers will interoperate with Digital Phase V routers across point-to-point data links, as well as 802.3 LANs.

An original member of the DECmcc Strategic Vendor Program, Vitalink intends to utilize DECmcc Access Modules to ensure its implementation of Phase V is manageable from a common DECmcc network management system. In July Vitalink successfully demonstrated a prototype Access Module for DECmcc at DECWORLD in Boston.

Since 1984 Vitalink and Digital have been working together under an agreement to develop products, and provide marketing and service support, for remote bridging technology. In November 1988 the relationship was strengthened when Digital became a reseller of Vitalink's TransLAN Ethernet remote bridges.

Digital Equipment Corp., headquartered in Maynard, Mass., is the world's leading supplier of network computer systems and services. Digital offers a full range of computing solutions and systems integration for the entire enterprise -- from the desktop to the data center.

Founded in 1980, Vitalink Communications Corp. manufactures and markets a family of LAN interconnect processors including Ethernet and Token-Ring bridges and bridge-routers, and a comprehensive network management system. Over 13,000 systems are installed worldwide, reflecting the company's position as a leading supplier of advanced internetworking systems used to build large, multivendor computer networks.

MILPITAS, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Octel Communications Corp. has named Douglas C. Chance as president and chief executive officer.

The announcement was made Monday by Robert Cohn, chairman and co-founder.

Chance, formerly executive vice president of Hewlett-Packard Co., joined Octel on Oct. 6. He has been a member of Octel's board of directors since November 1988. Chance, 48, joined HP in 1966 and most recently headed the Networked Systems Sector.

''Fundamental to Octel's success has been our philosophy of hiring senior managers with experience in managing the long-term growth we would like to achieve,'' said Cohn.

''In keeping with this philosophy, I recommended to the board, early this year that we search for a top executive with the experience needed to carry us to our next milestone. Octel is fortunate to have attracted Doug and I am very pleased with the selection.

Chance was the general manager of HP's Santa Rosa Microwave Division from 1973 until 1977. Since then Chance has held senior management positions in HP's computer and systems groups. His most recent responsibilities as head of the Networked Systems Sector included management of HP's family of RISC computers, networking products, computer manufacturing, and office products.

Robert Cohn founded Octel in 1982 with Peter Olson, executive vice president. Cohn has served as president and chief executive officer since the Company was founded. In his role as chairman he will focus on strategic planning, relations with major customers, investor relations, and business development.

Octel Communications Corp. designs, manufactures and markets a full line of high-performance voice processing systems, posting sales of $127.8 million for fiscal year 1990. Octel's Aspen product line is sold in the United States, Canada and overseas to small businesses and large multisite corporations. The new Sierra multiple-application platform is a very large capacity system designed to meet the special needs of telephone companies and other voice information service providers.

Octel recently was chosen ''Entrepreneurial Company of the Year'' by the Stanford University Business School Alumni, joining other notable former recipients such as Apple Computer, Sun Microsystems, Genentech, LSI Logic, Cypress Semiconductor, and Acuson corp.

Octel shares are traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol OCTL.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Cabletron Systems Inc. (NYSE:CS), an established and recognized leader in network management, Monday announced at Interop 90, development of an application for competitors' personal computer cards, transforming the unintelligent cards and network stations into Simple Network Management Protocol (SNMP) manageable devices.

The application, initially available for 3Com cards, will allow network managers to gather critical receive and transmit statistics from each user station, as well as control all information from one central network management station.

Through the incorporation of Cabletron's Remote LANVIEW or SPECTRUM network management software packages, and a local traffic SNMP Management Information Base (MIB) program written specifically for each 3Com card, managers and users will be able to identify and solve network-traffic or workstation-access problems more quickly and easily than previously possible with unintelligent cards. The enhancement makes Cabletron the first vendor to provide network-wide management and analyzer capabilities for a competing vendor's PC cards.

In January, the company introduced its own full line of intelligent Desktop Network Interface (DNI) cards, including cards for PC/AT, PC/XT, MicroChannel (PS/2); and Apple Macintosh SE, SE30 and Mac II computers.

According to Michael Welts, Cabletron's marketing manager, ''Our strategy is to tap into the existing pre-installed base of unintelligent 3Com cards, turning them into manageable devices. This approach will further strengthen our position in the PC card market, allowing us to bring comprehensive network management capabilities to all customers, regardless of which vendor's devices are installed on the network.''

With the release of the SNMP application, Cabletron provides network administrators the ability to monitor network traffic, along with additional capabilities to determine the operation of the entire subnetwork, what each PC is doing in relation to total network activity, and the status of the user's PC and its ability to gain access to the network.

Through Cabletron's Remote LANVIEW and SPECTRUM advanced management system network management software, PC cards report receive and transmit statistics to an IBM 286 or higher management workstation on the network. These statistics are also available through an on-board local management program which is operated locally at the user's PC.

Cabletron's application is available immediately and is priced at $59.00 per card.

Cabletron Systems Inc., headquartered in Rochester, N.H., develops and manufactures networking products based on its Integrated Network Architecture, a strategy which provides standards-based products and services necessary to build and manage a global, distributed platform of interconnected local area networks. The company currently has a worldwide installed base exceeding 1.3 million nodes.

Cabletron's common stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol CS. The company reported record revenue of $104.7 million and earnings of $22.3 million for fiscal year 1990.

WICHITA, KS (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - High Plains Corp. (NASDAQ:HIPC) Monday reported net income of $380,720 and earnings of 14 cents per share for the fiscal 1991 first quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990.

This compares to net income of $288,167 and earnings per share of 12 cents for the same period last year.

Revenues totalled $4,822,720 for the quarter, down six percent from the same quarter last year due to plant retrofitting during July 1990. Net income, however, was positively affected by significantly higher profit margins per gallon of High Plains' fuel ethanol product.

Based in Wichita, High Plains Corp. is the only publicly traded company whose sole business is ethanol, and is one of the largest producers of ethanol west of the Mississippi River. Clean-burning ethanol reduces pollutants in automotive gasoline and increases octane levels for better engine performance without increasing gas pump prices.

CAMARILLO, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Vitesse Semiconductor Corp. announced Monday the availability of the MegaSwitch VSC864, a VLSI, gallium arsenide 64 x 64 Crosspoint switch supporting data rates up to 200 Mbits/sec.

This level of performance represents a four-fold improvement in speed performance over existing silicon crosspoints. The VSC864 is intended for high speed digital applications including data distribution for telecommunications, computer networks, and multiprocessing environments.

''GaAs once again breaks the silicon speed barrier and paves the way to meet the next generation of computer networking, array processing, and telecommunications switch requirements,'' said Tom Dugan, director of Standard Products at Vitesse.

''The VSC864 exemplifies our technology's speed/power advantage over silicon. A silicon part running at this speed at this level of complexity would literally fry. Our closest competitor for this part is stretching the limits of their technology just to reach 50 Mbits/sec. We have already seen widespread interest in this product from most of the major computer and telecommunications companies throughout the world,'' he added.

The VSC864 addresses a basic function which is needed in a wide variety of complex digital communications applications. A common applications for this product will be in the core of central switching networks on large multiprocessor computer systems.

The VSC864 can also easily be implemented as a SONET STS-3 protection switch in telecommunications systems. In addition, the VSC864 is ideal for building large networks of PCs, workstations and mainframes that are communicating via higher speed TAXIchip links.

Any of the 64 inputs of the VSC864 can be switched to any, some, or all of its 64 outputs. The VSC864 can be operated in either asynchronous flow-through mode or synchronous clocked mode through the use of its input and output data registers. In flow-through mode the data propagation delay is less than 7 ns.

Vitesse Semiconductor Corp. is the world's leading supplier of digital gallium arsenide integrated circuits. The company was founded in 1984 to develop, manufacture and market cost-effective VLSI GaAs ICs.

VENTURA, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - The board of directors of Bank of A. Levy announced Friday the bank's purchase of deposits of Midwest Savings Association's Fillmore and Orange County offices.

Total purchase price of the deposits, which total about $58 million, was approxiamtely $725,000 in cash. The acquisition put Bank of A. Levy's total assets at more than $680 million with $51 million in primary capital, well in excess of regulatory capital standards, the bank reports.

Bank of A. Levy, which has had a Fillmore branch for more than 20 years, bought deposits of Midwest's two California operations from the Resolution Trust Corp., a federal government agency that liquidates insolvent savings and loans.

The Midwest branch in Fillmore had been home to 3,098 accounts, mainly consumer savings accounts and certificates of deposit. The entire deposit base will be under the direction of Fillmore Bank of A. Levy Branch Manager Don Tello.

Midwest customers may call 805/524-3991 during normal business hours if they have any questions about their accounts.

Prior to the purchase, Bank of A. Levy's Fillmore operation maintained about $12 million in deposits. The Midwest acquisition increases Bank of A. Levy's Fillmore strength by more than 200 percent, bringing total deposits to about $38 million, excluding deposits transferred from Midwest's Orange County office.

The Orange County office of Midwest Savings Association maintained deposits of approximately $31 million, primarily in large, high-interest-earning accounts such as jumbo certificates of deposit. The Orange County accounts, now administered by the Fillmore office, will continue to be honored according to their terms.

Founded in 1882, with headquarters in Ventura, Calif., Bank of A. Levy reported increased earnings in its last eight consecutive quarters. The locally owned and managed bank now has 21 locations throughout Ventura County, with a new branch opening soon in the North Ranch Mall in Westlake Village, Calif.

Midwest Savings Association, based in Minneapolis, had 46 offices throughout Minnesota, Iowa and Oklahoma plus the two California branches.

CAMPBELL, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Mountain Network Solutions Inc., an industry leader in data management solutions for personal computers, workstations and LANs, had introduced the industry's highest performance, highest capacity mini-cartridge tape subsystem -- the FileSafe 8500 -- the first tape drive to incorporate the Integrated Device Electronics (IDE) embedded AT interface.

For the first time, the FileSafe 8500, the newest product in Mountain's extensive line of 3.5-inch half-height form factor mini-cartridge tape drives, brings the benefits of IDE now being incorporated into a growing number of small footprint Winchester disk drives into the realm of secondary storage devices.

The incorporation of IDE technology in the FileSafe 8500 removes the need for a separate tape controller card -- as required by most high-performance tape drives -- and frees all available PC expansion slots for other use. The Mountain-proprietary embedded electronics communicates with the IDE motherboard electronics, controlling the operation of the tape drive in the same manner the system controls the resident IDE Winchester disk drive, while remaining fully compatible with the disk ROM BIOS.

Using high capacity DC2120 mini-cartridges, the FileSafe 8500 allows for storage of up to 304 megabytes in a 3.5-inch half-height form factor while maintaining the fastest data throughput rate of any mini-cartridge-based system -- up to 10 megabytes per minute -- when operating in data compression mode.

The IDE interface transfers data at approximately an order of magnitude faster than the SA450 floppy interface used on existing QIC-40/80 format mini-cartridge devices. End-to-end tape positioning takes less than 40 seconds, while average file access time clocks in at 20 seconds -- equal to, or better than, virtually every storage alternative now available.

Software-implemented error correction code (ECC) is incorporated in the FileSafe 8500 for unsurpassed data integrity. This results in an error rate no greater than one hard error in every 10(14) bits read -- 1 -- 100 times better than achieved by most Winchester disk drives or the equivalent of one error for every 125,000 mini-cartridges.

The company was founded in 1977 and is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Nakamichi Corp. Mountain Network Solutions has headquarters at 240 Hacienda Ave. Campbell, Calif., with manufacturing and engineering facilities in nearby Scotts Valley, and advanced software research and development facilities in San Diego.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Allied Telesis Inc. introduced

this week two high performance, MAC (Media Access Control) layer self-learning bridges for Local Area Network applications.

''This is the most significant new product introduction by Allied Telesis in its three-year history,'' said ATI President Takayoshi Oshima. ''It brings our arsenal of volume priced network building blocks close to 100, and it expands our technological capabilities into new areas.''

Both new products, CentreCOM models AT-6870 and AT-6875, support communications protocols such as TCP/IP, NetWare and DECnet. Model AT-6875 also supports Simple Network Management Protocols (SNMP), so that it can be easily integrated with existing network management schemes that are compatible with SNMP.

ATI bridges can be used to optimize LAN operations by partitioning work groups from the backbone, thus keeping local traffic from going through the main network, or to connect two heterogeneous network segments. The ATI bridges have connectors for both thick and thin Ethernet, and they comply with IEEE 802.3 specifications for 10BASE5 and 10BASE2.

The new bridges feature a dynamic look-up table algorithm to constantly improve performance through faster filtering. They also support the IEEE 802.1 Spanning Tree Protocol (STP), which is designed to avoid unwanted loopback traffic problems and bring a degree of fault tolerance to the network.

Sustained high speed filtering is maintained at 25,000 data packets per second with a sustained forwarding rate of 12,500 packets per second.

The new products are available for immediate delivery through ATI resellers. The suggested retail price for the AT-6870 is $2,495, while the AT-6875 (with SNMP support) is $2,995. A special introductory promotion, in effect until the end of this year, makes the two products available for $1,795 and $1,995, respectively.

Allied Telesis Inc. provides network building blocks based on industry standards. These include single and multiport transceivers, multimedia concentrators, repeaters, bridges and other related products. The company markets products worldwide through dealers and distributors.

HOUSTON (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Tescorp Inc. (NASDAQ:TESC) reported Monday that an additional 104,200 shares of its Series 1990 convertible preferred stock will be distributed to former holders of American Century Corp.

Pursuant to American Century's confirmed plan of reorganization, record holders of debentures on July 11, 1990, previously received a distribution of 69.8 shares of Tescorp convertible preferred stock for each $1,000 debenture, in addition to Tescorp common stock and warrants. Record holders of American Century debentures on July 11, 1990, will now receive an additional 12.85 shares of Tescorp convertible preferred stock for each $1,000 debenture.

The American Century plan of reorganization provided that 134,800 shares of Tescorp convertible preferred stock would be held in escrow and utilized to satisfy the claim of the indenture trustee for the debentures for reimbursement of its reasonable fees and expenses as determined by the bankruptcy court.

Following this determination, 30,600 of the escrowed shares were sold in the open market at the price of 3-15/16, the proceeds of which, plus dividends on the escrowed shares, will be used to satisfy the indenture trustee claim. The remaining 104,200 escrowed shares are accordingly being distributed to former American Century debenture holders.

Tescorp manufactures and sells cable and cable connectors to the geophysical industry through its Tescorp Seismic Products division. The company also manufactures and distributes oil and gas production equipment through its Clif Mock division. For the three months ended June 30, 1990, Tescorp's revenues were $6,165,000 and net income was $382,000, or 7 cents per share.

SANTA CLARA, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Intel Corp. Monday introduced its Flash Memory Card, the first personal computer memory card based on flash memory technology.

This credit card-sized package stands to replace floppy and hard disk drives in portable PCs of the future.

The Flash Memory Card provides up to four-megabytes of solid-state memory. It significantly increases the performance and durability of portable personal computers, while substantially reducing the computer's power consumption (when compared with traditional mechanical disk-drive memories).

''When compared to the desktop PC memory alternatives -- floppy and hard disk drives -- the Intel Flash Memory Card offers lower power dissipation, lighter weight, ruggedness and improved performance... the ideal solution for the portable notebook PC of the 90s,'' said Dr. Richard D. Pashley, general manager of Intel's Memory Components Division.

Flash memory is a nonvolatile memory medium (it ''remembers'' even when the power is turned off) that can easily be updated. It is so reliable that users could operate a computer equipped with a flash memory card 24 hours a day for more than 180 years without worrying about a memory failure.

Battery-operated computers using flash memory instead of mechanical memory can experience 10 to 100 times longer battery life due to the low power consumption characteristics of solid-state electronics.

Intel's Flash Memory Card is available in one- and four-megabyte densities, allowing portable computer users to install their favorite application software in their flash memory cards and still have room to store their working documents.

Intel's one-megabyte Flash Memory Card is priced at $298, while the four-megabyte card costs $1,198 in 1,000-piece quantities. Samples are available now, with volume production beginning in December.

Intel is an international manufacturer of microcomputer components, modules and systems.

HOUSTON (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Westworld Resources Inc. (NASDAQ:WSTW), together with the other owners of Empresa Minera Inti Raymi, S.A., announced that it has established the existence of 4.1 million ounces of proven and probable gold reserves and 26.8 million ounces of proven and probable silver reserves contained in a sulfide ore body underlying its Kori Kollo mine in Bolivia.

The company has defined 55.1 million short tons of minable sulfide ore and 5.7 million short tons of minable oxide ore at Kori Kollo, grading 0.0674 troy ounces gold per ton and 0.44 troy ounces silver per ton. This represents a significant increase over the earlier estimates of commercial mineralization at the property.

Approximately three million tons of oxide ore will be processed in the current leach facility prior to start up of a milling operation. The ore body remains open to adding reserves in two lateral directions. Six drill rigs are currently working to define possible extensions of the deposit.

Due to the nature of the ore, it is estimated that the recovery values will average 63 percent for gold and 25 percent for silver. Cash operating costs are for the sulfide project are estimated to be less than $180 per ounce. These costs do not include depreciation of capital, interest on financing, royalties or taxes.

The owners of Inti Raymi anticipate the construction of a 15,400 tons per day carbon-in-leach (CIL) facility at an anticipated cost of between $90 million and $100 million.

Currently, some 45,000 ounces of gold per year are being produced from the minable oxide ore and assuming a positive development decision, production from the sulfide ore could begin in late 1992 at an annual rate of approximately 240,000 ounces of gold.

Westworld Resources Inc.'s share of this production will be approximately 58,800 ounces of gold per year. A development decision is expected by the end of 1990.

Westworld Resources Inc. is a gold and silver mining company based in Houston. Empresa Minera Inti Raymi, S.A. is a Bolivian mining company based in La Paz, Bolivia. Westworld owns 24.5 percent of Empresa Minera Inti Raymi, S.A.

SANTA ANA, Calif. (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Alpha Microsystems (NASDAQ:ALMI) Monday announced the resignation of Richard C. Wilcox, vice chairman of the board and chief technology officer.

Wilcox along with Robert B. Hitchcock, chairman of the board, founded the company in the late 1970s based on Wilcox's creation of a fast, efficient multi-user operating system known as AMOS. By pairing AMOS with microcomputer technology, the first multi-user microcomputer was developed, thus forming the basis for Alpha Microsystems' future success.

''It is with sincere regret that we accept Mr. Wilcox's resignation, however, he has chosen to pursue other business opportunities and we respect that decision,'' said John S. Cain, president of Alpha Microsystems.

''Since the early days, Mr. Wilcox has worked closely with our development group resulting in a solid core of personnel highly knowledgeable in the technology which has made AMOS so powerful,'' said Cain. ''We plan to continue our direction of making AMOS the cornerstone of our future growth, relying on this group so aptly trained by Mr. Wilcox.

''In addition, the company will continue to benefit from Mr. Wilcox's experience and expertise through an ongoing consulting agreement, and look forward to working closely with him on future research and development projects.''

With headquarters in Santa Ana, Alpha Microsystems designs, manufactures, markets and services multi-user, multitasking hardware and software products. Operating software environments are provided for Alpha Mircosystems' AMOS and RECAP proprietary, multi-user business-oriented operating systems, as well as industry standard software including XENIX, Pick Open Architecture, Thoroughbred Basic and MS/DOS.

Distributed worldwide, the company's family of high-performance systems provide cost-effective multi-user computer solutions for businesses of all kinds.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Beginning next month, Pacific Western Bank will be the first Northern California bank to offer its customers an electronic bill paying by phone service.

The bank's ''EZ Pay'' system does not require the use of a home computer; any push button phone will provide access to the system's toll-free number. With a minimal fee of 25-cents per bill paid, usage can be less expensive than bill paying by mail.

''The simplicity, low cost and time-saving features of the service should be the primary attractions for our customers,'' said Phillip R. Boyce, chairman and chief executive officer of Pacific Western Bank. ''Using the system is very easy -- customers call in, enter the vendor number and payment amount, then let the service do the rest.

''And, if customers still want to pay bills by mail, our tellers can sell them postage stamps,'' continued Boyce.

''EZ Pay is one example of our ongoing program to introduce innovative financial services and products to our marketplace. By tailoring new services directly to our customers' lifestyles we not only meet all their banking needs but simplify their daily routines.

''In the past year, we have also been the first, or among the first banks in the state to offer Saturday banking, 24-hour customer service by telephone and check purchase protection,'' said Boyce.

A future benefit to the bank will be its exclusive marketing rights for the EZ Pay service to independent banks operating in its three-county market: Santa Cruz, Santa Clara and Monterey counties.

When customers sign up to use EZ Pay, they will receive an account number and personal security code to access the system. Their monthly account statements will record all transactions in detail. Customers will be able to personalize the system to expand it beyond those credit cards, utilities and major department stores which are pre-programmed by the bank.

Boyce noted that similar services have been previously offered by some banks, but that they were usually managed manually by bank employees. ''These services were inefficient and expensive to maintain, and customers were charged high fees for usage. Consequently, the services were not popular with customers and tended to be discontinued,'' said Boyce.

Headquartered in San Jose, Pacific Western Bank is one of two major independent banks in Northern California. The bank has $1.3 billion in assets and operates 28 locations in Santa Clara, Santa Cruz and Monterey counties. Pacific Western Bank is a subsidiary of Pacific Western Bancshares Inc., a bank holding company also based in San Jose.

SANTA CRUZ, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - TGV Inc. announced that it will unveil the XView for VMS development toolkit at INTEROP '90 (booth 1408) this week.

XView for VMS enables easy porting of windows-based applications written for Sun Microsystems' UNIX platform to Digital Equipment Corp.'s VAX/VMS network environment. XView for VMS is a server-based, object-oriented toolkit designed for the X Window System and DECwindows.

The XView for VMS application architecture is identical to SunView and utilizes the OPEN LOOK X Window graphical user interface and window manager, and includes pull-down and/or cascading menus, dialog boxes, and full keyboard and mouse support.

''Many users today want window applications,'' said David Kashtan, co-founder of TGV. ''That means X and ideally, a friendly interface.'' Few such applications are currently available for the DEC platform but over 2,000 third-party UNIX applications have been developed for Sun systems.

XView for VMS not only enables developers to design or port software to VAX/VMS but applications developed for the VAX can be easily ported to other hardware platforms as well.

Scheduled to be available December 1990 directly from TGV Inc., XView for VMS, is compatible with VMS 5.2 or greater.

Based in Santa Cruz, Calif., TGV Inc. designs, manufactures, markets and supports standards-based networking and application software for Digital Equipment Corporation VAX/VMS computers. TGV Inc. is located at 603 Mission Street, Santa Cruz, Calif. 95060. Telephone: 408/427-4366.

SANTA CRUZ, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - At INTEROP '90 this week, TGV Inc. (booth 1408) will introduce MultiNet Network Management Software (NMS), the first network status monitoring tool for the VAX/VMS environment based on the Simple Network Management Protocol (SNMP).

MultiNet NMS runs in real-time and provides X Windows graphical user interface features to examine variables and performance data at each node/link in a TCP/IP network.

MultiNet NMS employs SNMP 'trap directed polling' to regulate the focus and intensity of polling to update the fault- management display. Network devices are mapped, with each link and node shown in one of several colors to indicate its current status.

SUNNYVALE, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - On Oct. 1, the USAF successfully launched the ninth operational Navstar Global Positioning System (GPS) satellite from Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, Fla.

This launch marks the ninth successful launch in the last 20 months and brings the total number of active GPS satellites to 15. Current plans call for launching one Navstar GPS satellite about every 60 days. This launch schedule should provide full 24-hour GPS coverage for North America by the end of 1990.

Navstar GPS is a space-based radio navigation system designed to provide three-dimensional position and velocity information. When fully operational, a constellation of 21 satellites, plus three on-orbit spares, in six orbital planes, will constitute the space portion of the systems.

Primarily developed as a military system, Navstar will provide navigation position and time information to civilian users as well. GPS advantages include worldwide, all-weather operation and position accuracies of 25 meters in three dimensions.

Trimble is the world leader in the emerging commercial market for satellite-based navigation and position data products using the U.S. Government-funded Global Positioning System (GPS). Trimble designs, manufactures, and markets electronic instruments for determining precise geographic location.

These products are sold in a variety of markets including survey and mapping, GIS, marine, aviation, vehicle tracking, military applications, and differential GPS systems. The company, founded in 1978 and located in the heart of Silicon Valley, Calif., has been selling GPS to the world market since 1984.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Advanced Computer Communications (ACC) Monday announced the addition of IP routing to the ACS 2100 Local Ethernet Bridge at Interop '90 in San Jose, Oct. 8-12.

The enhancement means the ACS 2100 will support simultaneous bridging and routing between local Ethernet segments.

''The ACS 2100 lets users build integrated multiprotocol networks and at the same time take advantage of the efficiency of IP routing,'' said Gary Krall, ACC's director of Marketing. While bridging transparently connects heterogeneous LANs, routing adds the ability to forward data packets more efficiently, reducing network traffic.

According to Krall, when network traffic reaches a point where segmentation is required, the ACS 2100 will partition the network and increase performance.

For network connections that require both bridging and routing, the ACS 2100 enhancement combines the full features of MAC-layer bridging and IP routing. TCP/IP packets are routed between Ethernets while all other network protocols are bridged.

For those packets that are bridged, address tables are automatically learned. Routing tables are built and maintained using dynamic routing protocols. By combining techniques, network managers can optimize all resources.

The ACS 2100 is targeted for small- to medium-sized networks typically found in departments or divisions. The ACS 2100 works as a local compliment to ACC's Series 4000 line of remote bridge/router products to form large, integrated networks.

With a sustained throughput rate of 12,500 packets/sec., the ACS 2100 operates at twice the speed of other local bridge/routers and sells for half the price, listing at $3,250. The ACS 2100 also supports industry standard protocols, such as standard or thinwire Ethernet connections, the Simple Network Management Protocol, the IEEE 802.1 Spanning Tree Algorithm.

Since its incorporation in 1975, ACC has been developing and manufacturing data communications hardware and software products that focus on customer needs.

Its internetworking products were introduced in 1988. Since that time, ACC has become a market leader in the remote bridge/router and network management arena. Worldwide, ACC products are connecting local and wide-area networks in government and commercial industries.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Cypress Semiconductor Monday announced the appointment of Bill DeMatteis as manager of corporate product marketing.

In this position, he has strategic marketing responsibility for Cypress products.

DeMatteis, who reports to Cypress's vice president of marketing and sales, Lowell Turriff, fills a position previously held by Tom North, who was recently named president of Cypress's Aspen Semiconductor subsidiary.

Most recently, DeMatteis was director of marketing, with operational responsibility, for the memory division of VLSI Technology. Prior to that he held a range of senior marketing positions with Advanced Micro Devices and Fairchild Semiconductor. While at AMD, DeMatteis was named Marketeer of the Year for 1982.

''Bill DeMatteis brings tremendous depth of experience to this key position at Cypress,'' said Lowell Turriff. ''Bill's strong marketing background, particularly in the memory area, complements the strong marketing team Cypress already has in place.''

DeMatteis holds an engineering degree from the University of Detroit. He resides in San Jose, Calif., with his wife and daughter.

Cypress Semiconductor Corp. is a leader in the design, development and manufacture of a broad line of high-performance digital integrated circuits, fabricated using its proprietary 0.8 and 1.2 micron CMOS and BiCMOS technologies.

Cypress offers a range of products, including RISC microprocessors and peripherals, CMOS PLDs (programmable logic devices), static RAMs (random-access memories), PROMs (programmable read-only memories), logic devices, high-speed bipolar and BiCMOS ECL (emitter-coupled logic) devices, and high-speed static RAM modules.

DENVER (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Rocky Mountain Beverage Co. (NASDAQ:RMBC), producer of ''Colorado Crystal'' sparkling water, announced Monday the expansion of distribution of its product line into the states of Missouri, Nebraska and Wyoming, with approval being given to distributors in each area.

This follows the recent introduction of ''Colorado Crystal'' in Arizona.

''These additions to our distributor network are part of the strategic growth plan for the company,'' said Raymond A. Murtha, president and chief executive officer of Rocky Mountain Beverage Co. ''By the close of the fourth quarter, an additional five states will be brought on line, some of which represent much larger markets than those in which we are currently doing business.''

By the close of the third quarter the company expects gross sales to exceed total company sales for all of 1989. This is attributed in part to increased sales of ''Colorado Crystal,'' as well as substantial growth in the RMBC's private bottling segment.

''Colorado Crystal'' is a naturally flavored mountain spring water bottled at the source in the Grand Mesa area of western Colorado.

CARPINTERIA, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Digital Sound Corp. (NASDAQ:DGSD) Monday announced it has entered into a two-year agreement with GTE Telephone Operations to provide voice processing systems for the telco giant's rollout of enhanced voice services for business and related customers.

Under the terms of the contract, which the companies believe will result in several million dollars, Digital Sound will supply GTE with its VoiceServer platform and InfoMail application software for GTE's central-office-based Personal Secretary Service and CentraNet Voice Messaging service. In addition Digital Sound will provide its VoiceServer platforms for resale through GTE's CPE distribution channels.

Using the VoiceServer and InfoMail, GTE CentraNet now offers its customers basic voice-messaging capabilities, including call answering, send, reply, scan messages, attendant transfer and urgent message notification. Other options will allow customers to retrieve messages from a location away from home or office and customers can be notified of a message via pager.

In addition, guest mailboxes can be set up by the user. This service is available to customers with CentraNet Service, a central office-based digital switching system for business customers.

GTE's Personal Secretary Service offers residential and business customers with a single phone line the following standard features: call answering, wake-up and reminder/personal calendar. Optional features include individual message boxes, broadcast and pager notification.

''Our relationship with GTE has solidified our presence in the CO market and we're pleased to be such an integral part of the Personal Secretary and CentraNet rollout,'' said John Kennedy, vice president of sales and marketing for Digital Sound.

''We specifically designed the VoiceServer to handle the high load requirements found in the CO market and we feel GTE recognized the performance capabilities of the system. In addition, because the VoiceServer is designed to perform multiple applications at the same time, we can meet the immediate needs of GTE and its customers, as well as their evolving needs that undoubtedly will include more than just voice messaging.''

PALO ALTO, Calif. (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Legato Systems Inc. Monday announced an agreement with Sequent Computer Systems Inc. (NASDAQ:SQNT) to implement the Legato NetWorker network backup and recovery product on the complete line of Symmetry computer systems.

Under the terms of the agreement, Sequent has licensed NetWorker technology to serve as the basis of its network backup and recovery product to be made available in late 1991.

''Commercial customers running business-critical online transaction processing applications are demanding higher levels of data integrity from their UNIX-based systems,'' said Ralph Hedberg, Sequent's director of product marketing.

''The Legato NetWorker product will give Sequent customers valuable online backup and recovery features which are completely transparent to the end-user.''

Sequent and Legato will also jointly develop new features important to the Sequent commercial customer, including enhancing NetWorker to take advantage of the Sequent multi-processing architecture.

''Legato is being selected by more and more OEMs as partners of choice in the development of state-of-the-art technology,'' said Legato President and Chief Executive Officer Louis C. Cole.

''Sequent is noted throughout the industry as the leading manufacturer of UNIX-based systems for OLTP applications. The combination of Legato's leading backup and recovery product with Symmetry's multi-processing architecture will produce the best solutions available.''

Sequent Computer Systems Inc. is a leading provider of open-systems computing solutions for the commercial OLTP market. The company, which employs more than 1,600 people, reported 1989 revenues of $145.6 million, and second quarter 1990 revenues of $58.2 million.

Since the launch of its parallel processor family in 1984, Sequent has installed more than 2,500 systems worldwide.

Legato Systems Inc. is a leading-edge supplier of network administration products designed to enhance and simplify network computing. The company's mission is to make administration and sharing of multiple, heterogeneous network resources simple, reliable, consistent, cost-effective and efficient.

The company's products, Prestoserve and Legato NetWorker, are designed to allow organizations to utilize to maximum advantage their significant investment in existing technology, resources and personnel.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - The Colad Group Inc., a 46-year-old paper products design and packaging manufacturer based in Buffalo, has acquired New Age Pad & Paper Inc. of Las Vegas.

New Age Pad & Paper, a company whose gross sales exceeded $7.5 million in its first year of operation, was formed as a distributor of major television and movie licensed school supplies and paper goods on Oct. 1, 1989.

The acquisition on Sept. 1, 1990, less than one year later, represents a transformation in emphasis from merely sales to manufacturing and marketing. With management and financial support from its new parent, the company has already acquired a broad range of licensed properties as a manufacturer.

New Age president, Miles Rothman, feels the company is strategically geared for growth. ''With our properties and distribution in place,'' said Rothman, ''management believes it has the largest selection of licensed school supplies available from one company anywhere in the United States or Canada. This is our niche. We intend to double our sales in 1991.''

Selling direct, as well as through distributors, New Age school supplies and paper goods are already being sold at major national accounts, that include K-Mart, Eaton's, J.C. Penney's, Target, Toy's R Us, Wallgreen's, Wal-Mart, etc.; over 150,000 retail locations through over 17,000 accounts in the United States and Canada.

EMERYVILLE, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Farallon Computing Inc. announced worldwide availability of the Timbuktu Gold Plan, its volume purchase agreement for users of Timbuktu software over Macintosh AppleTalk networks.

The Gold Plan now offers customers around the world the convenience of purchasing large numbers of Timbuktu software units at more attractive prices.

Farallon created the Timbuktu Gold Plan in response to customer requests for an easier and less expensive way to install Timbuktu software on larger Macintosh networks. Under the Gold Plan, resellers work with their customers to provide customized Timbuktu packs containing precisely the number of software copies the customers need at reduced pricing. Because the Gold Plan is tailored to meet each customer's needs, it eliminates unnecessary software purchases.

Previously offered only in the United States, the wider availability of the Gold Plan is the latest step in Farallon's strategy to offer personal communications solutions to customers worldwide. Other steps in the strategy include the recent announcement of Farallon's European organization, based in London.

Timbuktu Product Manager Tim Fredel said, ''Now users with large Macintosh networks who have taken advantage of the Timbuktu Gold Plan in the United States, such as British Petroleum and other multinational companies, will be able to purchase the Gold Plan for their offices around the world.''

Farallon's Timbuktu software allows AppleTalk network users to share screen-based information and transfer files with other network users who have installed Timbuktu. The software also enables network managers to easily support Macintosh computer users on large networks. The net manager can connect to any user's machine without leaving his or her desk to provide training and support. He or she can also use Timbuktu software to manage shared network resources such as file servers. In addition, Timbuktu software's point-to-point file transer gives the network manager the ability to update users' software directly over the network.

CARSON, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - TRW's Systems Engineering and Development Division (NYSE:TRW) has been awarded a two-year, $34 million contract extension to continue to provide integration services support for the Consolidated Space Operations Center (CSOC) at Falcon Air Force Base, Colo.

TRW has been under contract since 1982 to the Air Force Space Systems Division.

CSOC is an Air Force facility which will plan and control Air Force space missions, supplementing the capabilities of the Air Force Consolidated Space Test Center in Sunnyvale, Calif. As the systems integrator for CSOC, TRW evaluates and coordinates technical activities of all associate contractors, schedules program activities, provides technical analyses to ensure the separate parts of the system safisfy total system requirements, and performs system testing and final verification.

''The magnitude of CSOC is daunting,'' said program manager Al Nicol. ''Remote tracking stations around the world and numerous orbiting satellites must be made to speak the same language.''

CSOC is made up of three mission control centers; an operations command center that coordinates real-time operations with the Air Force Satellite Control Network; a communications system; a network control systems that controls all network resources at CSOC, the Satellite Control Network and the Consolidated Space Test Center; and supporting elements, including a technical data center developed by TRW.

This center provides the overall CSOC management information system and includes the Falcon Air Force Base Technical Library.

CSOC must support the Colorado Tracking Station as well as satellite control systems for the Global Positioning Systems and the Military Strategic and Tactical Relay System (MILSTAR). The National Test Facility for the Space Defense Initiative (SDI), also located at Falcon, has been using CSOC facilities until its own facility is completed. This test facility provides planning and control for SDI technology experiments.

''Eight years ago there was nothing out there at Falcon, only an empty field '' remembers Nicol. ''Today there is an advanced facility partially operational that is controlling Air Force satellites. Under this contract, CSOC will transition from a research and development facility to a fully operational facility to be managed by the Air Force Space Command.''

''TRW has been the systems integrator on many large-scale programs,'' said Jack R. Distaso, vice president and general manager of the Systems Engineering and Development Division. ''The biggest challenge is to coordinate the activities of numerous contractors. TRW has developed methods for technical surveillance to ensure the correct work is done at the right time and we understand how to control complex installation activities.''

Cleveland-based TRW Inc. is an international company that provides high technology products and services to the space and defense, automotive and information systems markets. The company's 1989 sales totaled more than $7 billion.

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Due to erroneous reports published earlier Monday, Advanced Micro Devices issued a statement clarifying an order issued from the bench by U.S. District Court Judge William Ingram on Friday, Oct. 5.

Judge Ingram issued a temporary restraining order that bars AMD from using the numbers ''80386'' or ''386'' in the name of any new product announced prior to a further hearing scheduled for Oct. 15.

The order does not prohibit AMD from announcing, introducing or selling any new microprocessor products.

Judge Ingram's order deals only with issues raised by Intel's claim that it has exclusive rights to use the numbers ''80386'' and ''386'' to designate 32-bit microprocessors. That claim is disputed by AMD. AMD has stated that it will comply with the temporary restraining order.

SUNNYVALE, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - MIPS Computer Systems Inc. Monday announced that certification of the R3000A has been completed for its five semiconductor partners, providing assurance that components produced from mask-level data by each partner are pin- and specification-compatible.

The R3000A, an enhanced version of the MIPS R3000, is the highest performance CMOS microprocessor commercially available worldwide, achieving system performance of 33 VAX MIPS at clock speeds up to 40 MHz. In addition, its die size is 36 percent smaller than the R3000, which lowers manufacturing costs and offers increased performance.

Chester J. ''Chest'' Silvestri, vice president of MIPS' Technology Products Group, explained that in addition to performance and cost improvements, the R3000A consumes 20 percent less power than the R3000, provides new features for fault-tolerant systems and reduces the number of SRAMs required to build a cache memory.

The R3000A also offers dynamic endian switching, a feature that enables application software programs to run on machines configured in either big endian or little endian byte order without recompiling. Because of its lower cost and pin compatibility with the R3000, the R3000A may be used in place of the R3000 in existing designs at 25 MHz and lower clock speeds.

The wide variety of products using MIPS' microprocessors span many industries, including telecommunications, business and technical computers, laser printing and aerospace. MIPS' design wins underscore the adaptability of its technology in applications ranging from embedded control to desktop workstations to fault-tolerant systems.

In addition, the Joint Integrated Avionics Working Group (JIAWG) has selected MIPS' Instruction Set Architecture (ISA) as a standard for the Common Avionics Processor (CAP-32) specification. Today, MIPS microprocessors have been designed into a large number of products in programs developed by the U.S. Army, Navy and Air Force.

MIPS Computer Systems Inc. is a leading supplier of technology based on RISC, including computer systems, optimizing compilers, and technology products. The company licenses its technology to semiconductor companies, which supply components for the embedded control and computer markets.

MIPS also markets a line of high-performance computer systems based on RISC, from desktop workstations to deskside and data center servers.

IRVINE, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Taking advantage of the spiraling international market, AMKLY Systems Inc. of Irvine Monday announced it has signed agreements with 13 overseas distributors to market its personal computer memory-enhancement products.

AMKLY was founded in 1989 by Albert C. Wong, one of the founding partners of AST Research Inc., to develop and market memory-enhancement products for the United States and international markets.

The newest distributors are:

-- Micro Australia, Lane Cove, N.S.W., for Australia;

-- AB Computers, Brussels, for Belgium and Luxembourg;

-- Electrosoft Distributing, Willowdale, Ontario, for Canada;

-- Softmart International, Paris, for France;

-- Wetronic Automation, Munich, for Germany;

-- Infocom, Madrid, for Spain;

-- ETS A.B., Solna, for Sweden;

-- Euro Software, Nyon, for Switzerland;

-- Lancastrian International, Preston, Lancashire, for the United Kingdom and Ireland.

According to Albert Wong, the distributors will perform sales/marketing functions, including market development, promotion, warranty service and post-sales service and support. ''We prefer to give our international distributors as much flexibility and autonomy as is necessary to make them successful,'' Wong stated.

''The opportunities for success in the international markets are growing as quickly as the world is changing,'' said Wong. ''In Europe especially, our ability to take advantage of these opportunities with quality products and quality service will enhance our chances of becoming a truly worldwide company '' he said.

FREMONT, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Mylex Corp. (NASDAQ:MYLX), the first and only manufacturer to offer a complete product line based on the Extended Industry Standard Architecture (EISA), Monday announced shipment of the MAE486-33, an Intel 80486 microprocessor-based 33-MHz system board.

Mylex also introduced its own BIOS.

''The addition of an 80486 33-MHz board is another example of our continued commitment to provide advanced EISA solutions to our customers,'' said Dr. Akram Chowdry, Mylex's president.

The MAE486-33 board is designed for high-end applications in a multi-user, multi-tasking environment. To provide added performance, the product has 128K write-back cache in addition to the 8KB cache provided on the '486 processor chip, allowing more memory operations to occur at zero wait-state.

The MAE486-33 also includes a socket for the Weitek 4167 floating point co-processor. It has achieved 14.5 MIPS with the Power Meter (v.1.5) performance-rating benchmark and a Landmark speed rating of 146.8 (v.1.14).

The EISA I/O bus design allows the use of industry-standard 16-bit and 8-bit I/O cards in the eight 32-bit I/O slots provided on the Mylex MAE486 board.

Support for 4-megabyte SIMM devices allows configurations of up to 32 megabytes on the AT-sized system board. Each MAE486 comes with the industry-standard EISA configuration utility, which programs the on-board 8KB non-volatile RAM with the current system configuration.

Mylex BIOS shipments for the MAE486-33 will begin in October, and the BIOS will be retrofitted to other Mylex products.

With headquarters in Fremont, Mylex Corp. specializes in the design, manufacturing, and marketing of high-technology computer products which include 80486 and 80386 system boards, peripheral controller boards and custom design and manufacturing services.

With revenues of more than $40 million in 1989, the company employs over 150 people and operates a full-scale design and manufacturing facility in the United States.

NEW YORK (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Unisys Corp., Blue Bell, Pa., and Chorus

Systems Inc., the U.S. subsidiary of Chorus systemes, S.A., Paris, Monday announced an agreement to develop for commercial use a standards-compliant, distributed UNIX operating system based on Chorus' microkernel architecture.

The cooperative alliance, which began last year, calls for joint design work to be completed over a three-year period ending in 1992, with the goal of accelerating the development of a high-performance commercial UNIX system based on AT&T's UNIX System V Release 4 (SVR4). The first development milestone is expected to be announced during the first half of 1991.

Under the agreement, Unisys and Chorus will develop a transparently distributed, fault tolerant, scalable operating system architecture, based on Chorus' CHORUS microkernel-based operating system and AT&T's UNIX System V Release 4 (SVR4). The architecture will adhere to current industry standards such as POSIX and X/Open's Portability Guide (XPG). Further, Unisys will have first rights to market systems using the new operating system technology. Chorus will have the exclusive right to license the new technology to others.

The joint development plan calls for extending the CHORUS architecture and technology to support the System V.4 release of the UNIX operating system. Further, it calls for tying together loosely-coupled, distributed nodes via CHORUS into a high-end, scalable single system image. Finally, it provides for combining the CHORUS technology with reliable message broadcast extensions and transaction-like techniques in the operating system to support fault tolerance.

These forces have pushed today's operating systems to the limits of complexity and performance, and have hindered further development of new computer architectures. System builders need a new operating system architecture that will let them move up the ladder to next-generation systems. That new approach is microkernel architecture.

Chorus systemes, S.A. designs and markets a family of microkernel-based, cooperative operating systems that provide computer system manufacturers, telecommunications equipment vendors, and board-level computer vendors with a powerful development environment in which to build next-generation systems.

Unisys Corp. is a leading provider of commercial UNIX systems. Unisys participates actively in the development of open systems standards as a founding member of UNIX International and as a member of X/Open. Unisys was the first company to receive an XPG2 compliance certificate from X/Open.

Unisys Corp. is a $10 billion manufacturer of commercial information systems, defense systems and related services. It has approximately 75,000 employees and 60,000 customers in more than 100 countries throughout the world.

MATTICUCK, N.Y. and WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (OCT. 8) - BUSINESS WIRE - North Fork Bancorporation, Inc. (NYSE:NFB) and Eastchester Financial Corporation (NASDAQ:ECFC) have entered into a new agreement providing for the acquisition of Eastchester by North Fork at a price of $15.50 in cash for each Eastchester share, for a total price of approximately $62 million.

Eastchester will be merged into and operate as a division of Southold Savings Bank, a wholly owned subsidiary of North Fork. The merger is conditioned on, among other things, approval by Eastchester stockholders and the receipt of required regulatory approvals by both companies. The agreement supersedes a previous agreement entered into in April of this year pursuant to which North Fork had planned to acquire Eastchester for $20 per share.

The parties said the revised terms reflect a reassessment of Eastchester's assets in light of the significant further deterioration in the regional economy during the past quarter and Eastchester's recent financial results, including a substantial provision that Eastchester plans to make to its allowance for loan loss4s for the period ending September 30, 1990. Eastchester said it expects to release its financial results for the third quarter within the next two weeks.

The revised agreement permits Eastchester, until November 16, 1990, to solicit or receive inquiries from any other parties interested in the possible acquisition of the Company and, as appropriate, to provide information to and enter into discussions and negotiations with such parties in connection with any such indicated interest. North Fork has been granted the right to be apprised of any proposals submitted to Eastchester relating to the foregoing. In connection with the revised transaction, Eastchester and North Fork agreed to terminate an earlier agreement which granted to North Fork an option to purchase 780,000 shares of Eastchester common stock, exercisable at $14.00 per share upon the occurrence of certain events.

The new agreement has received the unanimous approval of the Boards of Directors of both North Fork and Eastchester.

North Fork Bancorporation, Inc. is the holding company for North Fork Bank and Trust Company and Southold Savings Bank. The company provides commercial and savings banking services through a network of 32 offices in Suffolk and Nassau Counties. North Fork Bancorporation had total assets of $1.9 billion at June 30, 1990.

Eastchester Financial Corporation is the parent of Eastchester Savings Bank, which operates nine branch offices in Westchester and Rockland Counties. The company had total assets of $530.6 million as of June 30, 1990.

TORRANCE, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Throughout the fall selling season, Epson America Inc. is offering Manzana Microsystems' DrivePort free with the purchase of an Equity LT-386SX laptop computer.

Using an external drive port enables laptop owners to maximize the utility of Epson's removable hard drive. The promotion, which runs from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31, offers customers a $399 savings based on Manzana's suggested retail price.

The removable hard drive and DrivePort provide the flexibility needed for true multi-location computing. The hard drive lifts easily out of the Equity LT-386SX chassis, allowing users to exchange data among different laptops or to access their hard drive data directly from a personal computer via the DrivePort.

Unlike the traditional file transfers and disk-copying procedures, the DrivePort allows full use of the removable hard drive with any compatible system, as well as immediate hard drive access from a variety of operating systems and platforms.

Manzana Microsystems' DrivePort connects to a 16-bit I/O slot of most 286- and 386-based computers. This allows users in office settings to share a hard drive among several desktop PCs, eliminating the duplication of information that arises when identical files are stored on floppy disks and different users' hard drives. A shared hard drive can be particularly valuable in the absence of a network file server.

The removable hard drive allows mobile laptop users to share hard drives or add storage in increments of 20 or 40 MB. Security is enhanced by the fact that users can easily keep the hard drive with them or store it in a locked area. Weighing less than one pound, it is convenient to transport.

In addition to data sharing, the DrivePort and removable hard drive can serve as a backup device for data stored on the hard drive of a PC. The external port operates as a secondary drive controller and does not affect the fixed hard drive.

The Equity LT-386SX includes 2 MB of RAM, VGA black-on-white backlit display and a 2/3 length AT-compatible expansion slot. The unit is available from Epson Authorized Resellers nationwide with a manufacturer's suggested retail price of $4,599. System requirements for use with the DrivePort include MS-DOS version 3.2 or higher and 16K of RAM.

SANTA MONICA, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Retix, the leading supplier of OSI products, Monday announced the first product in its internetworking family to include routing capabilities.

The 4942 Remote Bridge/Router combines the bridging functions of Retix' high-performance remote bridges with TCP/IP routing to offer users greater control of their network traffic.

Combining bridging capabilities with IP routing, the 4942 offers an advanced level of traffic control for larger, more complex network configurations and specific applications. For example, the 4942 is ideal for network partitioning and broadcast-traffic isolation.

''By integrating the proven technology of our high-performance bridges with TCP/IP routing, we've given users a simple yet effective means of building a high-speed, multiprotocol, wide-area network,'' said Steve Frankel, president of Retix. ''With networks becoming larger and more complex, the 4942 addresses a real need in the LAN market.''

The 4942's IP routing functions let users isolate IP broadcast traffic to each LAN segment to preserve WAN bandwidth. For example, networks that have a large number of UNIX workstations may produce a level of background TCP/IP broadcasts that can be isolated to each LAN segment with the 4942. This preserves more WAN bandwidth for critical data.

The 4942 can easily partition networks by IP address for almost unlimited scalability, particularly when used in conjunction with bridging. Domains of local and remote bridges can be interconnected with Retix 4942 bridge/routers. Special filters for MAC source and destination addresses, packet type and IP addresses are available for additional security and traffic control.

For handling all other protocols, the 4942 retains all the key features of the Retix 4880 High Performance Remote bridge, including high throughput, support for routable or non-routable protocols, IEEE Spanning Tree Protocol and simple ''plug-and-play'' operation.

These features make it easy to manage a multiprotocol network, regardless of the number of protocols in use. Furthermore, the 4942's throughput does not decline as more protocols are added.

The 4942 implements both the OSI-based CMIP network management and TCP/IP-based SNMP (Simple Network Management Protocol). As part of the complete family of Retix internetworking products, the 4942 can be controlled by Retix' network-management products, including the PC-based 5010 Network Management Center and the new SNMP-based 5025 Network Management Center, also announced Monday.

The 4942 supports standard 802.3/Ethernet and Thin Ethernet. Users can select from V.35, X.21., RS-449, T1 and G.703 interfaces. The bridge/router's two ports can each support data rates of up to 2.048 Mbps. PRICING AND AVAILABILITY

The 4942 U.S. list price is $10,900 and is available 60 days after receipt of order (ARO). Until March 31, 1991, Retix is offering a special introductory price of $8,900. The product will be demonstrated for the first time at the Interop conference in San Jose Oct. 10 to 12, Booth 124.

Retix is the leading worldwide supplier of Open Systems Interconnection (OSI) products.

Founded in 1985, Retix has more than 150 OSI original equipment manufacturer (OEM) licensees throughout the world and has installed over 10,000 local and remote LAN bridges. Retix designs, manufactures and markets its products to OEMs, distributors, systems integrators, value-added resellers and large end users.

SAN BERNARDINO, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - New York City Health and Hospitals Corp. (NYCHHC) has selected San Bernardino-based Health Data Sciences Corp. (HDS) to provide an integrated clinical information-management system to all of its 11 acute-care hospitals, five Neighborhood Family Care Centers and numerous satellite clinics located throughout New York City.

This project, with a value of more than $60 million, will provide state-of-the-art access to clinical information throughout NYCHHC's facilities.

HDS is a leading international designer and supplier of advanced health-care information systems. The company's ULTICARE product integrates all patient-care records and communications via a computer teminal network operating on Data General hardware.

ULTICARE, first launched in 1984, is the first system to completely integrate all patient-care information on an organization-wide basis, greatly reducing manual record keeping and culminating in an electronic medical record.

''We are honored that the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation has recognized the potential bnefits of the ULTICARE clinical information-management system,'' said Ralph A. Korpman, M.D., president and founder of HDS.

''HDS is dedicated to developing integrated information systems that reduce or eliminate manual record keeping and documentation duplication. This ultimately enhances the quality of patient care while reducing labor hours spent on tedious clerical tasks.''

The announcement by NYCHHC comes after an extensive vendor search process that has spanned nearly five years. NYCHHC is the largest municipal health-care system in the United States, employing more than 50,000 health-care professionals and allied employees.

In 1986, the corporation issued a Request for Proposals (RFP) seeking an information system that could accommodate its significant information-processing needs for a clinical system to assist providers in the delivery of care. The selection committee concluded at that time that no system existed to adequately fulfill NYCHHC's requirements.

In June 1989, a second RFP was issued and after a lengthy evaluation process, HDS was selected as NYCHHC's clinical health-care information-system vendor.

Nancy O'Donohue, assistant vice president of NYCHHC, commented: ''After intensively studying the systems proposed, the selection committee, consisting of physicians, nurses and administrators, unanimously agreed that ULTICARE best met NYCHHC's requirements for a patient-centered and operations-optimizing clinical system which will significantly enhance our ability to deliver cost-effective care.

''ULTICARE's ability to provide a longitudinal record, integrating inpatient and outpatient care, is vital to a comprehensive health-care delivery system like ours.

''We are confident that ULTICARE, configured with terminals in each nursing station and ambulatory care unit, will contribute significantly to our ability to continue to deliver the highest quality of health care to the people of New York City,'' she said.

Installation is expected to begin in 1991, with full system implementation scheduled over approximately 54 months.

SARASOTA, FL (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - OMNI FILMS INTERNATIONAL INC. (NASDAQ:OFII) Monday announced that the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990, generated record revenues and earnings and that the new fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1990, started with a record order backlog in excess of $5.5 million.

Part of the backlog consists of a shipment to Tokyo, Japan in October 1990 of the largest seat-based motion simulator of it kind in the world. This 120-seat Motion Master, to be installed at Kure Portpialand, refects the strong international interest for motion simulators for amusement and entertainment. Other scheduled shipments include two Motion Master installations in retail shopping environments, a new market segment recently targeted by the company.

Commenting on the record performance, Fred Hollingsworth III stated: ''Our fiscal 1990 performance and the strong continuing demand, as seen by our existing backlog and expanding markets, reflects the current and long-term prospects of the company. Recent sales to the retail shopping environment have opened an entirely new market segment that will greatly enhance the earnings potential for OMNI FILMS. We look forward to another record year for fiscal 1991.''

OMNI FILMS INTERNATIONAL INC. specializes in the design and sale of advanced 70mm wide screen cinema entertainment systems. OMNI also produces, distributes and licenses 70mm films for these systems. OMNI is traded on the NASDAQ system under the symbol OFII.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Atlantic Magnetics Inc. here announces a new Toroid Transformer Tester for transformers and inductors wound on toroid (doughnut-shaped) cores.

New Model 3500A handles virtually every size toroid transformer made, from 0.060 inch to 8 inches inside diameter.

''Because our new tester is so fast, accurate and simple to use, it promises to improve manufacturing efficiencies in radio and television, local area networks, telecommunications, power converters, consumer electronics and all the many other applications requiring toroid transformers,'' notes AMI President Edward Cammarata.

Model 3500A automatically determines and displays the turns counts of toroid transformer core windings. It reduces to zero the skill required to do this testing, and eliminates human error.

The unit features optimized work space dimensions of 4 inches high, 10 inches wide and 15 inches deep. It weighs 9 lbs and consumes 10 Watts from a 115 VAC line, 50/60 Hz.

Model 3500A provides a special LOW PERMEABILITY MODE in which the unit is used to compare toroids under test to known turns-count reference transformers. ''No other product on the market can do that,'' says Cammarata.

In operation, transformers to be tested are placed over a conical mounting hub which accommodates toroids from 0.060 inch to eight inches inside diameter. Up to four secondary windings connect to the test bed via four pairs of color-coded posts.

Press a button, and a unique rotating contact arm swings automatically into position, completing the primary connection and assuring its integrity. In 100 milliseconds or less, the instrument cycles through its test procedure and indicates the turns-count on its large, easy-to-read display.

Press again, and the rotary arm retracts for the next transformer to be mounted and tested.

The entire process takes 10 or 15 seconds, and there is nothing to interpret. Results are absolutely repeatable and accurate to within two turns in 1000.

Model 3500A is priced at $1995 each. A wide selection of reference toroids is priced at $50 each. Delivery of all items is quoted off-the-shelf.

FREMONT, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Focus Information Systems Inc. announced Monday the 2-the-Max VGA 8900, a high-resolution Super VGA card for IBM compatible personal computers.

The product is available immediately.

The 2-the-Max VGA 8900 uses Trident Microsystems' TVGA 8900 graphic chip-set. Trident's 8900 graphic chip-set has significant market share and is a leading standard for high resolution graphics cards. The 2-the-Max VGA 8900 offers a flexible memory configuration expandable to one megabyte and 1024 x 768-pixel resolution with up to 256 displayable colors drawn from a palette of 16.7 million colors.

The 2-the-Max VGA 8900 is also capable of running 1024 x 768 pixel resolution with 16 colors, 1024 x 768 pixel resolution with four colors and 800 x 600 pixel resolution with 256 colors.

Additional features of the 2-the-Max VGA 8900 include:
-- Up to 132 columns by 60 rows in text mode
-- 32-bit memory architecture
-- Clock-chip (rather than oscillator) multi-frequency timing for VGA and Super VGA compatibility, CGA and EGA monitor compatibility and synchronization with advanced monitors
-- Single chip solution for IBM PC/XT/AT, PS/2 and compatibles
-- Digital 9-pin and analog 15-pin high-density outputs
-- RAM-BIOS speed-up utility
-- Dot frequency up to 65 MHz
-- 70 Hz screen refresh rate
-- Compatible with interlaced and non-interlaced monitors - dip switch
-- Feature connector
-- Flicker-free operation in all modes
-- Driver support including Microsoft Windows 3.0, 8514/A emulation, OS/2 Presentation Manager, PCAD and SCO Xenix (UNIX Systems)
-- Upgradable video memory; configurable from 256K to 1 MB
-- FCC class B approved

The 2-the-Max VGA 8900 is accompanied by a one-year guarantee and a seven-day turn-around service program. ''All of our VGA cards are covered under a seven-day turn-around service program,'' said Paul Lee, vice-president of operations.

Located in Fremont, Focus Information Systems Inc. is a two-year-old manufacturer and designer of high-resolution Super VGA cards; and, ISA and EISA 486 motherboards. SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Digital Equipment Corp. and Vitalink Communications Corp., a leading LAN internetworking company, Monday announced that Digital plans to sell, service and support Vitalink's TransPATH 350 remote Ethernet bridge/router, worldwide.

''The addition of Vitalink's bridge/router to our product line is a natural expansion of our continuing agreement to resell Vitalink's TransLAN Ethernet bridge family,'' commented Bill Johnson, Digital's vice president of Telecommunications and Networking.

Digital's decision to resell TransPATH is an extension of the companies' Technology Exchange Agreement, a milestone in the evolution of Vitalink and Digital's business relationship, which was signed this summer. Since 1984, the two companies have been working together under an agreement to develop products and provide marketing and service support for remote bridging technology.

In July of this year, Vitalink announced plans to add DECnet Phase IV routing support to its TransPATH family, distinguishing its implementation from other parties' Phase IV products with a plan to provide interoperability with both DECrouters and Digital network management tools for DECrouters.

Vitalink's initial release of Phase IV routing is scheduled for availability during the first half of 1991. Vitalink has also announced plans to add XNS and IPX protocol routing support to the TransPATH family during the fourth quarter of 1990.

An original member of the DECmcc Strategic Vendor Program, Vitalink intends to utilize DECmcc Access Modules to ensure its bridges and bridge/routers are manageable from a common DECmcc enterprise management system. In July Vitalink successfully demonstrated a prototype Access Module for DECmcc at DECWORLD in Boston.

Digital Equipment Corp., headquartered in Maynard, Mass., is the world's leading supplier of network computer systems and services. Digital offers a full range of computing solutions and systems integration for the entire enterprise -- from the desktop to the data center.

Founded in 1980, Vitalink Communications Corp. manufactures and markets a family of LAN interconnect processors including Ethernet and Token-Ring bridges and bridge/routers, and a comprehensive network management system. Over 13,000 systems are installed worldwide, reflecting the company's position as a leading supplier of advanced internetworking systems used to build large, multivendor computer networks.

OWINGS MILLS, MD (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - UNIVERSAL SECURITY INSTRUMENTS, INC. (NASDAQ Symbol: USEC) Monday announced that it has settled claims with its insurance carrier for inventory, property and equipment damage resulting from the March 1990 fire.

As a result of the settlement, the Company will report an extraordinary gain of $1,002,078, or $0.29 per share, for the second quarter ended September 30, 1990. The settlement of these claims will increase the Company's book value to $2.69 per share as compared to $2.40 as of June 30, 1990. Operating results for the second quarter ended September 30, 1990 will be reported later this month.

The Company is in the process of preparing its only remaining insurance claim for business interruption and expects to have this claim settled before March 31, 1991, the end of the Company's current fiscal year. At the present time, the Company is unable to predict the amount of reimbursement it expects to receive for its business interruption claim.

MILPITAS, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Qume Corp. announced that, in its second quarter ended Aug. 31, the company incurred a net loss of $1,476,000, or 13 cents per share.

For the corresponding quarter last year, the company reported net income of $3,122,000, or 26 cents per share, which included a pre-tax capital gain of approximately $3.3 million relating to a private placement of common stock of Qume Corp. Taiwan (Qume Taiwan) on Aug. 31, 1989.

For the six months ended Aug. 31, the company incurred a loss of $3,307,000, or 29 cents per share. For the corresponding six month period last year, the company reported net income of $6,820,000, or 57 cents per share, which included a pre-tax capital gain of approximately $4.9 million relating to private placements of common stock of Qume Taiwan and DTC Technology Corp.

Revenues for the current quarter were approximately $53.2 million, a decrease from revenues of approximately $55.3 million during the same quarter last year.

Revenues for the six months ended Aug. 31, were approximately $110.2 million, a decrease from revenues of approximately $111.8 million in the prior six month period.

The decrease in revenues was due primarily to decreased sales of the company's storage controller and other products, partially offset by increased distributor sales. Intense competitive pressures, which began during the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 and continued through the current quarter, caused a substantial reduction in storage controller revenues and a decline in storage controller margins, although the controller portion of the company's business remained profitable.

These changes are due primarily to continued price erosion of the company's low-end PC controller boards (IBM PC/XT and IBM PC/AT) and the replacement of such low-end boards by IDE (integrated drive electronics) disk drives.

The company hopes to increase sales of its high-end PC controller boards (SCSI ESDI, and EISA) and other new products in order to offset the decline in the sales of low-end boards.

The company also said that it will not return to profitability in the third quarter of the current fiscal year, due to continued softness in sales of computer peripheral products generally and to expenses incurred (or to be incurred) during the third quarter relating to the failed buy-out transaction. Such expenses are currently estimated to total approximately $1.5 million to $1.8 million.

Qume Corp. (NASDAQ:QUME) manufactures and markets page and daisywheel printers display products and supplies and accessories.

In addition, the company's Data Technology Division offers disk drive controller boards, chip sets and high-capacity flexible disk drives and subsystems.

Qume's products are marketed worldwide through a variety of distribution channels and OEMs.

CLINTON, NJ (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Foster Wheeler Corp. Monday announced the signing of a contract between Pertamina, the Indonesian state oil company, and Java Petroleum Investment Co. Ltd. (JAPIC) for the financing of EXOR-1, a new $1.8-billion ''grass roots'' oil refinery.

The installation will be built at Balongan on the northeastern coast of West Java, some 250 kilometers east of Jakarta.

The contract, an ''advanced payment agreement'', signals the start of the project, enabling funds to be released in accordance with contractual provisions. Its signing follows four years of planning by an Anglo-Japanese engineering and construction consortium led by Foster Wheeler in the United Kingdom in response to an invitation in 1986 from the Indoesian government to develop an export refinery in that country, the capital cost of which would be financed by subsequent production.

The consortium members are Foster Wheeler and the BP Group from the United Kingdom; JGC Corp. and Mitsui from Japan.

Louis E. Azzato, chairman, president and CEO of Foster Wheeler Corp., said, ''This is a significant project that will add materially to our backlog of orders. With increasing uncertainty about oil prices and supplies, a project such as this underscores that considerable financial resources are available to support major engineering and construction efforts,'' he added.

EXOR-1 will process 125,000 barrels per day of Indonesian crude oils to produce gasoline, kerosene, gasoil, diesel fuel, liquified petroleum gas, propylene and decant oil - mainly for the Indonesian domestic market. Initial operations will start in 1994.

Japanese sources are providing 100 percent of the financing for the project. This has been arranged through JAPIC, with funds coming from a syndicate of 21 Japanese banks led by the Industrial Bank of Japan.

Two other significant contracts were signed earlier this year with Pertamina. They were the engineering, procurement and construction contract involving Foster Wheeler, JGC, Mitsui and FEOT and the ''offtakers contract'' with BP for the lifting and sale of products from the refinery.

The detailed engineering, procurement and construction of the installation will be undertaken by Foster Wheeler and JGC working together as a joint venture. The two companies have already exchanged staff in each others' offices. At peak, Foster Wheeler will have more than 200 engineering personnel working on the project. The use of Indonesian resources will be optimized and there will be substantial purchases of Indonesian equipment and materials.

The project will employ state-of-the-art heavy oil upgrading facilities and meet the most exacting international environmental standards. Foster Wheeler's main engineering resonsibility will be the process design and detailed engineering of three of the refinery's process units - a crude distillation unit, a hydrogen unit and a residue catalytic cracking (RCC) complex. The RCC will be the largest of its kind ever built in the world.

Foster Wheeler will also provide support during the later construction and commissioning stages. An office for a wholly-owned subsidiary, Foster Wheeler (Indonesia) Ltd. will be opened in Jakarta next month.

Foster Wheeler in the United Kingdom is a group of integrated engineering, management and construction companies headquartered in Reading, England with 70 years of experience in energy, processing, power and industrial sectors, principally serving the refining, petrochemical, chemical, oil and gas (offshore, onshore and subsea) and pharmaceuticals/fine chemicals industries throughout the world.

Foster Wheeler Corp., the parent, is a worldwide organization offering a broad range of design, engineering, construction, manufacturing, management, real estate development and environmental services. The corporation's headquarters are at Clinton.

SAN FRANCISCO (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - American Building Maintenance Industries Inc. (NYSE:ABM) announced that the company's two principal shareholders, Theodore and Sydney Rosenberg, who together own approximately 30 percent of the company's outstanding shares, have terminated discussions with a potential buy-out group which included management.

The Rosenbergs advised the company that they are not interested in entertaining further proposals with respect to the acquisition of their shares at this time.

The company had announced in February 1990 that it was exploring with the Rosenberg's support, the feasibility of several recapitalization and restructuring alternatives, including a possible conversion from public to private ownership, and that a special committee of the board of directors had been appointed to consider any such proposals or other available alternatives.

The company's management had previously indicated its intention to submit a proposal to the special committee for its consideration. Management has now indicated to the company that, in view of the decision by the Rosenbergs, it does not intend to proceed with a proposal at this time.

ABM is one of America's leading facility service contracters, providing elevator, engineering, janitorial, lighting, mechanical, parking, pest control security and janitorial supply services to hundreds of communities in the United States and Canada.

TULSA, OK (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - American Body Armor & Equipment Inc. (NASDAQ:ABAE) the oldest manufacturer of bullet resistant vests, Monday introduced three newly-designed vests and a protective shield at the International Association of Chiefs of Police Inc. (IACP) Conference in Tulsa.

The three vests are tailored to the specialized needs of undercover agents (the Hidden Agenda Jacket), narcotics officers (the Narc vest), and those officers using the ''weaver'' position (the Weaver vest) as frequently seen in films when officers are scouting the interiors of residential dwellings. Each of these vests offers broader coverage and mobility than offered by currently existing vests.

Steve Giordanella, president of ABA said ''With an increasing crime rate throughout the country, ABA is continually working to create and design vests and equipment specifically tailored to the needs of our nation's police officers.

''Our staff is highly trained and qualified. Many of our executives have over 20 years experience working within the law enforcement field and I am confident that our products are of the highest quality available.''

The protective shield, officially called the Portable Ballistic Barrier Shield was designed by Al Baker, director of ABA's Tactical Division and former Lieutenant Special Assignment, who has over 24 years experience in law enforcement, rescue, violent crime and hostage situations.

The shield is specially designed for hostage or barricade situations, where officers apprehend danger and want to move in on the suspects. The shield is made up of three separate pieces, which can be rapidly assembled and rolled into position.

As many as three officers can stand behind the shield at one time. It also contains a view port, which enables the officers to effectively see through the shield.

Al Baker noted, ''This new shield enables officers easier mobility and heightened security when they are closing in on subjects. Additionally, the assailant cannot see behind the shield. My years of experience in hostage and barricade situations contributed greatly to my understanding of what was needed in this product.''

ABA, based in Fernandina Beach, Fla. is a leading supplier of soft body armor and armored products. Their clients include law enforcement and government agencies in the United States, the Middle East, Europe and Asia.

HOUSTON (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - HOWELL CORPORATION (NYSE Symbol: HWL) announced Monday that it has merged the operations and management of its custom chemical processing and product terminalling unit, Howell Chemical Systems, Inc. (HCS), with its technical fuels refining and marketing unit, Howell Hydrocarbons Incorporated (HH).

The newly combined entity is Howell Hydrocarbons & Chemicals, Inc. (HHC). The Company believes it will greatly benefit from the merger of these two operating units by creating a more effective management team, operating efficiencies, and strategic synergies which will positively impact operational results.

Commenting on the announcement, Mr. Paul Funkhouser, President of HOWELL CORPORATION, said ''We are excited about the merger of HCS and HH into one HOWELL CORPORATION operating segment. The newly formed HHC will enable the Company to further develop this business by capitalizing on the combined strengths of each former operating unit. Our Channelview, Texas facility will easily accommodate the anticipated increase in our technical fuels business as well as our toll processing and terminalling business as HHC marketing professionals cultivate new chemical industry relationships.''

Robert W. Haugen, formerly President of HH, has been appointed President of HHC and will relocate from San Antonio, Texas to the Channelview, Texas facility. Mr. Haugen joined the HH division in 1981 as Chief Chemist, became a Vice President in 1984 and President of that operating unit in 1987.

Robert H. Rumford has been named Vice President, Marketing of HHC. Mr. Rumford has held the same position with HH since 1987. In his new position, Mr. Rumford will coordinate and manage the marketing efforts for the two operating divisions of HHC.

Gary L. Spaid (HCS) and David M. Robinson (HH), both of whom are Chemical Engineers, continue as Vice Presidents of HHC, with the added responsibility of managing daily operations at each respective site.

HOWELL CORPORATION is an energy industry holding company. The Company's four wholly owned operating units are involved in oil and gas exploration, production and marketing, specialty chemicals processing, marketing and services, product terminalling, and common carrier bulk liquid transportation of hydrocarbons and chemicals.

SANTA CLARA, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - 3Com Corp. Monday announced it will demonstrate leading-edge internetworking technologies this week at InterOp '90 (booth No. 1800) in San Jose.

Additionally, 3Com will showcase products in four InterOp-sponsored interoperability demonstrations and participate in seminars and technical panels at the week-long show.

In its booth, 3Com will demonstrate internetworking protocols that provide customers with the ability to better manage and control complex internetworks. Routing protocols, being demonstrated on 3Com's NETBuilder internetworking platform, include Point-to-Point Protocol (PPP), Intermediate System to Intermediate System Interdomain routing protocol (IS-IS) and Open Shortest Path First (OSPF).

Also, 3Com will demonstrate its NETBuilder internetworking platform running on networks at greater than T1 speeds by using a T3Plus interface. And 3Com will show the first multiprotocol router for LAN Manager workgroups, 3+Open Internet/X.25.

This software concurrently routes Xerox Network Systems (XNS) and Transmission Control Protocol/Internet Protocol (TCP/IP) packets over X.25, providing the workgroup with a cost effective way to connect multiple environments.

3Com also will participate in four InterOp-sponsored showcases. Working with cisco, Telebit and Network Systems Corp., 3Com will demonstrate the PPP protocol on its NETBuilder brouters. In the Open Systems Interconnect (OSI) showcase, 3Com will demonstrate a comprehensive set of products that support the OSI protocol and facilitate the transition from TCP/IP to OSI.

3Com will also showcase products in the Simple Network Management Protocol (SNMP) demonstration and participate with more than 10 other vendors in show's 10Base-T demonstration. Speaking Engagements

HOUSTON (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Battle Mountain Gold Co. (NYSE:BMG), in conjunction with its Bolivian affiliate, Inti Raymi, Monday announced that it has delineated approximately 4.1 million ounces of proven and probable gold reserves and 26.8 million ounces of silver at its Kori Kollo gold project in Bolivia.

The company holds a 51 percent interest in the project. The new reserves bring the company's total contained proven and probable attributable reserves to approximately 6 million ounces, an increase of about 40 percent compared with year end 1989.

BMG Chairman Karl E. Elers said approximately 55.1 million short tons of mineable sulfide ore and 5.7 million short tons of mineable oxide ore has been identified at Kori Kollo, grading 0.067 ounces per ton gold and 0.44 ounces per ton silver. This represents a significant increase over the company's earlier estimates of commercial mineralization at the property.

About 3 million tons of oxide ore will be processed in the current leach facility prior to start up of a milling operation. The ore body remains open to adding reserves in two lateral directions. Six drill rigs are currently working to define possible extensions of the deposit.

Presently projected recovery values are expected to average 63 percent for gold and 25 percent for silver. These recoveries reflect the refractory nature of a portion of the sulfide mineralization in which the gold is encapsulated in pyrite. The stripping ratio is expected to be about 1.2:1.

Cash operating costs for the sulfide project are estimated to be less than $180 per ounce. These costs do not include depreciation of capital, interest on financing, royalties or taxes.

Assuming a positive development decision and acceptable financing, construction could begin in the first quarter of 1991, with gold production commencing in late 1992 at an annual rate of approximately 240,000 ounces. BMG's annual share of that production would be approximately 122,000 ounces. The company's share of silver production would be about 315,000 ounces.

Empresa Minera Inti Raymi, S.A., a Bolivian gold mining company in which BMG holds a 51 percent interest, owns and will operate the project. Other owners, in addition to BMG, are Zeland Mines S.A. and Westworld Resources Inc., each of which hold a 24.5 percent interest in the project.

Battle Mountain Gold common stock trades under the symbol BMG on the New York Stock Exchange, the Australian Stock Exchange Limited, the Frankfurt Stock Exchange, the Swiss Stock Exchanges and the Toronto Stock Exchange.

LINCOLNSHIRE, IL (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Clear Communications Corp. and Verilink Corp. Monday announced an agreement to integrate Verilink T1 CSUs with the Clearview Surveillance System.

The combination provides network managers utilizing Verilink CSUs with a powerful decision support system to monitor and manage the performance of their T1 carriers.

''Network managers are demanding decision support systems that assure the failsafe performance of their carrier-provided T1 facilities,'' stated Guy Hatfield, senior product manager at Verilink.

''The Clearview System's high-level carrier performance management and T1 outage avoidance capabilities, coupled with Verilink's own PC-based ESF CSU element management system, Verinet 2, will enhance customers' ability to control network availability and costs.''

Robert Copithorne, president and chief executive officer of Clear Communications, said that integrating the Clearview System with Verilink CSUs will extend the company's reach to a significant new set of Fortune 100 customers.

''With the addition of Verilink, Clearview is compatible with a high percentage of the installed base of intelligent CSUs,'' Copithorne stated.

''Verilink CSUs are strategic elements that provide a window into large corporations' mission critical networks for the Clearview System's T1 carrier performance management software.'' Verilink was the pioneer in Extended Superframe Format (ESF) performance management systems, and has the largest installed base of ESF CSUs.

CSUs (Channel Service Units) are located at each end of every T1 link in a wide-area network and collect critical ESF performance data available from common carriers.

The Clearview System is an expert system running on a powerful Sun Microsystems workstation that collects and processes the T1 ESF data supplied by the Verilink CSUs, presenting on-line, real-time performance information about all the carrier-provided links in the network.

Network managers utilize the Clearview System to monitor and compare the performance delivered by multiple T1 carriers, enabling them to manage network costs and productivity, ensuring that carriers deliver agreed upon levels of T1 service.

The Clearview/Verinet 2 system also enables network managers to spot and correct degraded performance or intermittent ''soft'' failures, giving them the unique ability to predict and prevent costly disruptions.

''By linking with Verilink CSUs, Clearview has added a significant dimension to its T1 carrier performance management capabilities for wide-area networks '' Copithorne stated.

Clear Communications Corp. is a telecommunications systems company that provides advanced information management and decision support systems for private corporate networks.

Verilink is a leading manufacturer of customer premise and telco T1 network access and performance monitoring equipment.

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Sega of America co-chairmen Hayao Nakayama and David Rosen Monday announced that Thomas J. Kalinske has joined Sega of America as president, chief executive officer and member of the board.

Kalinske was most recently president and chief executive officer of Matchbox International Ltd. and president of Universal Matchbox Group. Prior to that he was president of Mattel Inc. and had worked for 15 years at Mattel.

In making the announcement, Sega Enterprises Ltd. President and Chief Executive Officer Hayao Nakayama, stated: ''With the addition of Mr. Kalinske to Sega, we are reaffirming our commitment to increasing our share of the video game market, and increasing our overall business in the United States. Mr. Kalinske will also investigate new consumer product opportunities for Sega in the U.S.''

Sega of America achieved a 10 percent share of the video game market in 1989, and expects to double its share to 20 percent with the continuing growth of the Sega Genesis video game system in 1990.

Sega Enterprises Ltd./Japan is a 39-year-old worldwide leader in high-tech electronic entertainment systems and toys. Sega, a public company listed on the first section of the Tokyo Stock Exchange, is one of the fastest-growing companies in Japan.

In fiscal 1990, the sales of the Japanese corporation increased over 40 percent to $570 million. Sega is expecting 1991 to be another record year both in sales and profits.

The company conceives, creates and sells electronic entertainment products ranging from coin-operated video arcade machines to home video game hardware, software and toys.

DALLAS (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - SRX, the Dallas-based manufacturer of premium telecommunications systems and related peripherals, Monday announced the introduction of the company's new System One 4.5 and VisionMS 2.2 releases.

The new products, which contain generic hardware and software enhancements, were developed to specifically provide enhanced capabilities for SRX telecommunications systems.

''Both new releases include a 9-port ground loop start card permitting larger configurations with fewer cabinets and power,'' explained Jim Steenbergen, SRX president and CEO. ''In addition, the 2.2 and 4.5 releases also offer an analog station card with message waiting, which provides visual message waiting indication for 2500-type analog sets.''

The VisionMS 2.2 release boasts a 24-channel T1 card capable of operating in fractional T1 mode (less than 24 ports), and also handles multiple types of trunks with ease. ''With the 2.2 release, we've also created more ACD (Automatic Call Distribution) capabilities for VisionMS telephones, including silent monitoring, supervisor break-in and supervisor alert,'' Steenbergen added.

VisionMS, SRX's next-generation switching platform, was introduced in the first quarter of 1990. Its 576-port architecture represents an extension of tried and proven System One configuration. VisionMS will provide the platform for delivery of E-911, value-added ACD and other call-processing consumer markets.

Introduction of the 2.2 and 4.5 releases follows the second-quarter 1990 debut of SRX's modular new VisionPhone, which allows customers to easily snap in display, speakerphone, expansion and data component modules.

Founded in 1983, privately-owned SRX provides premium telecommunications switching equipment including patented voice and data switching technologies to customers worldwide.

WARREN, NJ (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Apple Computer and Optical Data Corp. Monday announced plans to make The Visual Almanac, Apple's interactive mulitmedia toolkit, directly available to educators, developers, enthusiasts, publishers and other interested parties.

Through generous support from Apple, The Visual Almanac can be purchased for just $100 from Optical Data.

The Visual Almanac is the product of two years of research and development at Apple's Multimedia Laboratory. It features dozens of multimedia ''design examples,'' such as student activities in science, the arts, social studies and mathematics. The Visual Almanac package includes a two-sided videodisc, a CD-ROM with 25 megabytes of HyperCard-based software, and a book, The Companion, that includes general information about multimedia as well as information about the almanac.

''We have already seen teachers' excitement when they start to use The Visual Almanac and discover for themselves how multimedia provides them with new flexibility in the classroom,'' said Kristina Hooper Woolsey, Ph.D., director of Apple's Multimedia Laboratory.

''With the Visual Almanac, teachers and students can easily browse through data, organize it to create meaningful information, and communicate their discoveries in different forms, whether it's a moving picture, graph or speech by a famous person,'' Woolsey added.

The Visual Almanac is an interactive multimedia kit that combines a videodisc and the Macintosh computer with HyperCard. It provides users with a wide range of images and resources including still pictures, short movies and sounds. Each image is attached to descriptive data, which can be modified by the user. Users can browse the images, find the images they want and then use them to make compositions of their own. Also included are activities created in HyperCard to show the potential of multimedia computing in a Macintosh environment. Other examples included are compositions made with The Visual Almanac tools by early almanac users.

To order The Visual Almanac, call Optical Data's Customer Support Line at 800/524-2481.

Optical Data is the leading publisher, producer and distributor of educational video-discs. The company has sold more than 200,000 of its educational and consumer titles in the United States and Japan. Today, 20 percent of the nation's school districts practice videodisc-enhanced instruction with Optical Data products.

CHICAGO (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T Monday announced a new product that will let telephone companies give large customers rapid and efficient access to greater bandwidth and new business services.

The BRT-2000 Access Node, the latest generation AT&T business remote terminal, is an important component of AT&T Network Systems' Service Net-2000 architecture because it delivers the bandwidth to provide services such as high-speed data, interactive CAD/CAM, video teleconferencing, and interactive classrooms. It can also support highly reliable, self-healing fiber networks.

As technologies and customers' needs for bandwidth change, the BRT-2000 Access Node will evolve smoothly to provide access to such capabilities as DS1 and DS3 switched services, Switched Multi-megabit Data Service, and broadband ISDN.

This new access node:

-- Allows for such graceful evolution without the need to scrap

today's networks and re-invest in new equipment;

-- Complies with evolving industry standards, including SONET, TR-08, and TR-303, ensuring its ability to operate in multi-vendor environments;

-- Supports both copper and optical fiber transmission media;

-- Gives telephone companies the flexibility to create access nodes comprising the digital loop carrier, multiplexing and switching products that match each customer's particular need, right at the customer's location; and

-- Is available now.

The features of the BRT-2000 Access Node reflect the expressed needs of AT&T Network Systems' customers, a theme of the company's Service Net-2000 architecture.

CHICAGO (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T Network Systems Monday introduced its next generation of SONET-based digital loop carrier systems which will give telephone companies unprecedented flexibility in providing current and future network services.

The SLCR-2000 Access System, offers immediate full service capability for narrowband and wideband services. In its basic configuration, it supports more services than any other access system available today. For instance, its provides voice and ISDN services, local area switching services (e.g. call waiting, call forwarding, caller ID), multiparty, coin and video services. And its unique architectural platform will allow it to support future services such as broadband ISDN, high definition television (HDTV), Switched Multi-megabit Data Services (SMDS) and Metropolitan Area Networks (MANs). And because the SLC-2000 Access System can evolve to an Access Interface Unit on the 5ESSR-2000 Switch module, it will offer increased services, and cost effective inventory management made possible by the reuse of channel shelves.

Fiber distribution is an integral feature of the SLC-2000 Access System. It allows service providers to begin placing fiber immediately and position themselves to respond to the anticipated broadband service demands in the 1990's. The system also supports copper technology. The SLC-2000 Access System will be generally available in 1992.

CHICAGO (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T Monday introduced an ISDN terminal adapter that is economical to own and operate, easy to upgrade, and is fully compatible with the 5ESS(a) Switch.

The PACKIT/6 ISDN Packet Assembler/Disassembler (PAD) saves money for ISDN data networking users by allowing up to six asynchronous terminals or personal computers to share a single ISDN Basic Rate Interface (BRI) line.

Telephone company customers can use the PACKIT/6 ISDN PAD to lower equipment and usage costs by eliminating the need for separate modems and by allowing multiple terminals to share a single line. The PACKIT/6 ISDN PAD accepts data input from up to six asynchronous terminals, packetizes the data using the X.25 protocol, and then multiplexes these packets of information onto a sixteen Kilobits per second (Kb/s) BRI D-channel.

The PACKIT/6 ISDN PAD supports the Hayes Smartmodem(b) interface for application software such as call control. A separate console port is provided for administration and maintenance. Network management software monitors errors and performance for easier troubleshooting and usage analysis.

Each terminal port operates at rates up to 19.2 Kilobits, and software upgrades can be quickly downloaded from any IBM-compatible PC through its console port. This makes the PACKIT/6 ISDN PAD readily adaptable to new applications.

The PACKIT/6 ISDN PAD will be distributed through telephone companies, major systems integrators, and by AT&T through its sales force and via a direct number (1-800-432-6600). It will be available for shipment in December, and carries a suggested list price of $1,995.

NASHVILLE, TN (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Northern Telecom (NYSE:NT) Monday announced a five-year agreement to supply the world's largest data transport network to SITA, the air transport industry's global telecommunications organization.

SITA's new network, to be known as ''Mega Transport Network'' (MTN), will consist of more than 300 Northern Telecom DPN-100 digital data network switching nodes, and could be worth up to $50 million.

DPN-100 nodes will be installed in most of the 185 countries and territories where SITA operates, providing a global, X.25 backbone network for more than 400 SITA member companies.

SITA's telecommunications network provides value-added services to the air transport industry, connecting 25,000 airline and air transport offices worldwide, and supporting all industry standards.

MTN will meet international CCITT X.25 packet switching and IBM data communications standards. It will supplement and eventually replace SITA's existing data switching installations.

SITA provides the air transport industry with a broad range of high-quality telecommunications and information processing products. Essential computerized applications are available in the areas of flight operations, passenger and air cargo handling.

To date, more than 400 airlines and air transport related organizations on all continents have chosen SITA's global communications solutions.

Northern Telecom is the leading global supplier of fully digital telecommunications switching systems, providing products and services to telephone operating companies, corporations, governments, universities and other institutions worldwide. Northern Telecom, with 1989 revenues of $6.1 billion, employs more than 49,000 people around the world.

NORWALK, CT (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Evaluation Associates Inc. (EAI) has announced that an additional investment of $25 million has been made to the Americas Funds Equity Trust, bringing total assets under management to $64 million.

In addition, EAI has added two new managers for the Equity Fund -- Sturdivant & Co. Investment Advisors, located in Camden, N.J. and Philadelphia, Pa. and Valenzuela Capital Management Inc. located in New York City.

Launched on May 9, with initial funding of $40 million, the Americas Funds is a pension trust managed by minority owned investment firms.

Lois Block, EAI's coordinator for the Americas Funds explained that Sturdivant and Valenzuela stood out as emerging firms in the universe of minority investment managers. Together, with the three existing equity managers, these firms offer enhanced diversification.

''Sturdivant is value-oriented, using large cap stocks and structuring diversified portfolios,'' said Block. ''Valenzuela is a 'growth at the right place' manager, using small to medium cap stocks and running a more concentrated portfolio.''

The Americas Funds were launched with Ariel Capital Management Inc., Greaves Capital Management Inc., and Taplin, Canida & Habacht Inc. as the Equity Fund managers, and as Fixed Income for active management. All managers adhere to the South Africa-free guidelines of the Funds.

Evaluation Associates Inc. -- founded in 1969 and acquired by Mutual of New York (MONY) in 1985 -- specializes in investment management, consulting and publishing for pension, endowment and foundation clients. In 1984, EAI started its first multi-manager fund, a commingled employee benefit fund. Today EAI has 18 funds under management with $1.3 billion in assets.

DFW AIRPORT, TX (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - American Airlines flew 6.2 billion revenue passenger miles in September, up 8.6 percent from a year ago and a record for that month.

The airline flew 10.3 billion seat miles, reflecting an 8.7 percent increase in its capacity since September 1989.

International traffic, which has been strong all year, grew at record levels, with Europe showing a 13.4 percent increase month over month. The European load factor was up substantially from September a year ago and the highest of all international markets since March. European capacity increased 2.7 percent.

''Once again our international routes helped carry the airline,'' said Michael W. Gunn, senior vice president-marketing. ''The September load factor for Central and South America exceeded our expectations.

''And while there was a seasonal decline in the Pacific load factor from August, it was still strong at 70.7 percent,'' Gunn said.

On the domestic front, traffic increased 2.6 percent from 4.8 billion RPMs to 4.9 billion although the load factor decreased from 59.6 percent to 58.8 percent.

Year over year, September was the best month since February, Gunn said. RPMs for the nine-month period were up 4.5 percent from 55.4 billion to 57.9 billion. ASMs jumped 7.1 percent for the same period, from 85.7 billion to 91.8 billion. The load factor fell from 64.6 percent to 63.1 percent.

As for cargo, American flew 66.9 million freight ton miles, up 21.2 percent from 66.9 percent. Year over year, freight ton miles were up 19.9 percent, from 470.3 million to 563.8 million. Mail ton miles rose 8.8 percent, from 19.9 million to 21.6. Year to date, freight ton miles were up 16.4 over 1989, from 170.5 million to 198.5 million.

''Our continuing double-digit growth in a generally flat cargo market reflects the high quality of American's cargo service,'' said William R. Boesch, American's vice president-cargo.

SIMSBURY, CT (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - ITT Hartford Insurance Group's Hartford Life Insurance Co. subsidiary has purchased an equity interest in Metrocare

National Inc., Portland, Ore., a holding company for several affiliated health care management concerns. For its 15 percent share of Metrocare National, The Hartford will obtain representation on Metrocare's board of directors and involvement in strategic and financial planning. The Hartford also will obtain certain administrative and marketing considerations. Financial terms of the transaction were not disclosed.

Metrocare National Inc., which had revenues of $15 million in 1989, operates seven preferred provider organizations (PPOs) in nine states as well as ValuTrac, a utilization review service headquartered in Portland.

The Hartford currently markets four of Metrocare's Family Health Plan PPOs and has begun marketing ValuTrac as its utilization review service for indemnity health insurance plans nationwide. ''This investment is significant because Metrocare offers unified management of a number of the managed care programs we currently use,'' said Barbara E. Rodin, vice president and director of Hartford Life's Health Care Management Services.

Stephen Gregg, chief operating officer of Metrocare, said the agreement represents a partnership between two companies that believe the best health care service is provided on a locally managed basis.

A preferred provider organization (PPO), such as the Family Health Plan, is a management company that selects physicians, specialists, hospitals and other health care providers who offer their services at reduced fees to their subscribers. The PPO also reviews health care utilization to control services and contain costs. Employers with self-funded or indemnity insurance plans may also contract with a utilization review company, such as ValuTrac, to ensure appropriate and cost-effective medical care.

ITT Hartford Insurance Group, a subsidiary of ITT Corp., is one of the nation's oldest and largest multi-line insurance and financial services operations. The Hartford markets a full line of life, employee benefit and asset management plans, as well as a wide range of property-casualty coverages. Member companies include Hartford Life Insurance Co. and Hartford Life and Accident Insurance Co.

Hartford Life Insurance Co. is a member of ITT Hartford Insurance Group, which is the principal insurance subsidiary of ITT Corp.

KNOXVILLE, TN (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Philips Consumer Electronics Monday (NYSE:PHG) confirmed that it is developing a Digital Compact Cassette (DCC) system, with the active involvement of a number of major companies from the music and hardware industry.

The system is based on a new revolutionary coding technique. This coding technique, in combination with the existing well-proven compact cassette technology and standard tape, will offer the consumer a sound quality equivalent to that of compact disc.

The new system will allow consumers to play specially designed digital compact cassettes, as well as their traditional compact cassettes on DCC players designed for home, portable and in-car use.

The DCC product range is expected to be introduced at the beginning of 1992.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Advanced Computer Communications (ACC) Monday announced it is developing an unshielded twisted pair (10BaseT) interface for its Series 4000 bridge/router products based on the newly approved IEEE specifications.

The company is also participating in the 10BaseT demonstration being staged at Booth No. 1534 during the Interop '90 Exposition in San Jose, Calif., Oct. 10-12.

The IEEE approved the 802.3 10BaseT standard for unshielded twisted pair wiring on Sept. 28.

10BaseT offers a low cost alternative to other coaxial systems. Operating at 10Mbps, the LAN system uses unshielded twisted pair phone wire in a star-configuration to reduce the cost of LAN installation and maintenance.

At the Interop 10BaseT demonstration booth, ACC's ACS 4100 bridge/routers will simulate remote links as they connect two networks. Using the high-speed unshielded twisted pair standard, each network is comprised of computer equipment from vendors such as Digital Equipment Corp., Advanced Micro Devices and Ungermann-Bass.

The ACS 4100 is a member of ACC's Series 4000 line of adaptable bridge/router products that support IEEE 802.2 Ethernet standards as well as the recently approved 802.3 Unshielded Twisted Pair standard.

Series 4000 products can be programmed to perform a variety of internetworking functions. All bridge and router capabilities are provided for one low price, according to Gary Krall. Software is included with each hardware platform allowing users to employ those bridging and routing functions needed.

Since its incorporation in 1975, ACC has been developing and manufacturing data communications hardware and software products that focus on customer needs. Its internetworking products were introduced in 1988.

Since that time, ACC has become a market leader in the remote bridge/router and network management arena. Worldwide, ACC products are connecting local and wide-area networks in government and commercial industries.

ATLANTA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Patrick H. Thomas, chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer of First Financial Management Corp. (NYSE:FFM) Monday announced that FFMC, through its subsidiary MicroBilt Corp., has entered into a major system contract for hardware, software and ongoing support with Ryder Truck Rental Inc. to provide a nationwide automated system for Ryder's U.S. One Way Truck Rental operations.

Ryder currently has over 4,500 independent truck rental dealers and is the world's largest full service truck leasing and rental company. This new system provides Ryder with totally automated reservations, tracking of fleet location and availability, and related financial and operating functions.

David J. Cotcher, president and chief operating officer of MicroBilt said,

''The contract with Ryder will facilitate the continued success and growth in market share of Ryder by providing enhanced customer service and more effective utilization of Ryder's vast rental fleet. This system is another example of how MicroBilt provides creative solutions to specific customer needs.

''The MicroBilt system will significantly improve Ryder's ability to track its revenue generating trucks to optimize rental availability. The system prepares the rental documents from information obtained at the time of initial reservations, creating efficiency for both the dealer and the customer. At destination, the system automatically notifies Ryder of the location and availability of the vehicle for future rental activity.''

Jerry Riordan, Ryder Truck Rental's senior vice president - Rental and Quality said, ''The new system will significantly increase utilization of vehicles, while improving customer service and productivity. It will truly differentiate Ryder in the truck rental industry.''

Thomas also announced the acquisition by MicroBilt of substantially all operating assets of Post-Tron Systems Corp., including its integrated point-of-sale systems. Post-Tron represents a well-recognized name in integrated point-of-sale systems for the specialty retail market and thier products and services will continue to be offered to retail chains previously served by Post-Tron.

MicroBilt will integrate the Post-Tron computer-based systems into its product offerings for the retail industry, which also includes the convenience store and specialty restaurant markets.

FFMC is an information services company which offers a broad range of data processing and related services to a large and diverse customer base. The company provides products and services to financial institutions, retail merchants, governments and other industries. It is a leader in financial institutions processing, data imaging, micrographics, electronic data base services, debt collection, and health and pharmaceutical claims processing and is one of the largest merchant credit card processors in the country.

FFMC also owns Georgia Federal Bank FSB, the largest savings institution and one of the largest retail banks based in Georgia, and its subsidiary, First Family Financial Services, a major regional consumer finance company. Its common stock is currently traded on the NYSE under the symbol FFM. Its debentures are quoted through NASDAQ under the symbol FFMCG.

INDIANAPOLIS (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - Anacomp Inc. (NYSE:AAC) and Fuji Photo Film U.S.A. (NASDAQ:FUJIY) have announced an ''OEM'' original equipment manufacturing sales agreement valued in excess of $4 million over the next two years.

The agreement between the two leaders in information and image management calls for Anacomp to provide a specific line of diazo and vesicular film, which Fuji will market under various Fuji brand names.

Anacomp is providing sign-maintaining, medium- and high-contrast, medium- and high-speed, black- and blue-diazo film used for duplication of source document microfilm images. Its lower contrast helps duplicate poor quality originals, and the film has superior reader-printer fade resistance.

Additionally, Anacomp will supply Fuji with sign-reversing medium- and high-speed, extremely high resolution, extremely high contrast vesicular print film used for duplication of conventional wet process computer output microfilm (COM) masters. It features the industry's highest possible contrast resulting in better copies, superior fade resistance and sharper, more legible duplicates.

''Fuji is a company that demands the highest standard in product quality, and this alliance speaks very well for Anacomp's abilities as a quality, cost-effective manufacturer,'' said J. Mark Woods, chief operating officer for Anacomp.

Jeff Tuomi, vice president for Anacomp's Worldwide OEM Division added that the relationship reinforces his belief that strategic agreements of this type serve the interests of customers and companies alike.

''We are pleased that another giant in the information processing industry like Fuji has chosen Anacomp as a strategic partner,'' said Tuomi. ''These business arrangements allow each company to focus on what it does best and keep overall manufacturing costs down. Conventional wisdom tells you the residuals make the client the biggest winner.''

BURLINGTON, MA (OCT. 8) BUSINESS WIRE - J.P. Barger, president and chief executive officer of Dynatech Corp. (NASDAQ symbol:DYTC), announced that the company expects to report record sales of $125 million for the second fiscal quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, a 23 percent rise from the same period a year ago.

Incoming orders were strong and backlog was at a record level at Sept 30, 1990.

''The sales growth compared to a year ago spanned U.S. and international operations, and was evident across many of our product lines, including radar detector, medical and diagnostic, telecommunications and automotive test, and specialty electronics and software products. We are gratified by these results which will enable us to report our sixth annual sequential quarter of healthy earnings increases, after providing for certain nonrecurring litigation and product line liquidation costs,'' Barger said.

''As we continue toward the completion of a 3 million share buy-back program, we are keeping a close eye on order patterns given the current economic climate,'' Barger added. ''Our diverse base of products and technologies underlie our confidence in the long-term prospects for Dynatech.''

The company's final results for the second period are scheduled for release on Tuesday, Oct. 23, 1990.

With fiscal 1990 sales of $433 million, Dynatech Corp. is a diversified supplier of high-technology products and systems used in the collection, processing, analysis, and display of information. Headquartered in Burlington, Mass., Dynatech sells its products worldwide through subsidiaries located throughout North America, Europe and Asia.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 5) UPI - When Elvis Presley swiveled his hips on national television, some Americans gasped. When John Lennon suggested the Beatles were bigger than Jesus Christ, some Americans burned records by the Fab Four.

The music industry has had its share of controversies over the years, with assorted allegations of offensive antics, lyrics and lifestyles of some recording stars. But the musicians, both naughty and not, and those who sold their records traditionally have been insulated from legal consequences stemming from the music itself.

The tune has changed as a result of legal actions in Florida.

In Fort Lauderdale, a jury convicted a record store owner on misdemeanor obscenity charges for selling an album by the controversial rap group 2 Live Crew, whose album, ''As Nasty as They Wanna Be,'' had been ruled ''obscene'' by a federal court judge in June.

The cases have sent shock waves through the music industry, with accusations of censorship and predictions of a chilling effect on those who write, perform and sell music.

''It's a sad state of affairs when you can be arrested for selling a song,'' said Dana Kornbluth, spokeswoman for National Association of Recording Merchandisers, the trade group representing some 600 record distributors.

''Retailers will have to take a second look at what they are carrying, out of fear,'' Kornbluth said, adding that some scared record store owners might ''go through their shelves and start pulling albums that may fall under obscenity statutues.''

There appears to be a national trend toward cracking down on stores stocking ''obscene'' albums - police in more than a dozen states reportedly are warning against the sale of such records. The outcome of an appeal of the Florida case could set the tone for the rest of the country and industry groups are hoping the conviction is overturned to nip the trend in the bud.

''People are looking for scapegoats for the ills of society and they're looking to the arts,'' Trish Heimers, spokeswoman for the Recording Industry Association of America. RIAA represents 55 U.S. record companies, including the CBS, Polygram, Warner Brothers, MCA, Capitol and Atlantic labels.

Heimers pointed to the obscenity trial of a Cincinnati museum and its director over the display of five specific photographs in a show of 175 pictures by the late Robert Mapplethorpe that depict sadomasochistic homosexual acts and children with their genitals exposed.

''We're going to see legislators and judges and district attorneys begin to believe that a little bit of censorship is OK,'' Heimers said. ''And the fact of the matter is that in a free society no censorship is OK.''

Charles Freeman, owner of E.C. Records in Fort Lauderdale, was convicted Oct. 3 of one count of selling an obscene instrument for selling the ''Nasty'' album to an undercover Broward County sheriff's deputy. Freeman, who faces up to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine when sentenced set Nov. 2, was arrested two days after U.S. District Judge Jose Gonzalez declared the 2 Live Crew recording obscene.

The Freeman jury was not swayed by defense arguments the store owner was protected by constitutional guarantees of free speech. The prosecution argued the right to free speech is not absolute and requires ''responsibility.''

The Miami-based 2 Live Crew, which has its day in court this week regarding June's obscenity ruling, features coarse language and lewd rhymes about sexual intercourse and oral and anal sex in its music.

The Supreme Court has established a three-pronged standard for judging obscenity: if the material appeals primarily to prurient interest, if community standards deem the material patently obscene, and if the material lacks serious artistic, literary or scientific value.

Michael Greene, president of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, which includes some 8,000 recording artists and technical experts, said he expects artists to fight back hard against censorship.

''Artists are generally rebellious and issue-driven and they haven't had a good fight since the Vietnam War,'' Greene said.

Greene agreed some record store owners might be cowed by the controversy. He also suggested the promise of notoriety and fame by being deemed ''obscene'' could encourage some artists to tread closer to obscenity.

''We certainly don't want the censorship debate to be a safe haven for gay-bashing, misogynist opportunists who are doing what they are doing for no other reasons than monetary gain,'' Greene said. ''That turns the whole issue of freedom of expression into a charade.''

''It's regrettable that this war has to be waged around a group like 2 Live Crew,'' Greene added. ''It would be much easier if it would be waged around a group that is saying some politically unsettling things or at least something which had a socioeconomic bent to it. But we're never afforded the opportunity of choosing our battlefields when it comes to censorship issues.''

DUBAI (OCT. 8) - The United Arab Emirates ordered Monday a 40-day state mourning period following the death late Sunday of Dubai's ruler, Sheikh Rashid bin Said al-Maktoum, who was also vice-president and prime minister of the Uae.

Sheikh Rashid, who is believed to have been in his late 70s or early 80s, was suffering from a long illness.

He became ruler of Dubai in 1958 and was appointed Uae vice-president when seven emirates merged in 1971. In 1979 Sheikh Rashid became the Uae's prime minister.

His illness prevented him from appearing at a number of government meetings in recent years. He has been represented by his son, Sheikh Maktoum bin Rashid, who is now expected to be named Dubai's new ruler.

Sheikh Rashid's style of government was ''the old style but remarkedly attuned to the modern age into which Dubai had been let'', the Dubai-based daily Khaleej Timnes said.

Flags in the Uae will be flown at half mast for 40 days. Government offices will close for six days.

MONROVIA (OCT. 8) - The West African expeditionary force in Liberia has opened a third front north of the capital to break the encirclement of the city by the rebel National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL).

It attacked on Sunday towards White Plains, 30 kilometres (18 miles) away, and fighting went on all night and was continuing unabated by midday Monday as the rebels put up stiff resistance and sent in reinforcements backed by artillery. There was no immediate word on casualties.

White Plains, a strategically-placed wooded hill, dominates the roads north and west of Monrovia and contains its water purification plant and the power station. The rebels' capture of it in June sealed their siege of the capital.

On two other fronts opened last week, the combatants appeared to be bogged down in the city centre and at Gardnersville, a northern suburb.

The soldiers sent by Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Nigeria and Sierra Leone had moved gradually from the immediate vicinity of the presidential executive mansion at First Street to near the small James Spriggs Paynesfield airfield.

But they were pushed back to Ninth Street, giving them an overall advance of about a kilometre and a half (almost one mile).

At Gardnersville, the many houses interspersed with marshy terrain lying between Tubman Boulevard and Somalia Drive offer ideal conditions for ambushes.

That accounts for the massive use being made of long-range artillery to clear the area first.

The intervention force sent in originally by the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) to monitor a ceasefire in the nine-month civil war has been mounting air raids too, apparently seeking out the rebels' 105mm recoilless cannon, carried on jeeps and proving very mobile, and their 82mm mortars.

That type of warfare is proving deadly for the civilians who have yet to flee the combat zones.

Reliable sources cited one air strike last week on an eastern suburb which seriously wounded 39 people, 10 of whom died during the night.

The roads north and east of Monrovia are always full of groups of refugees escaping from a city that has become unlivable. Most end up at the university campus at Fendell, where thousands of people are encamped.

PORT ELIZABETH, SOUTH AFRICA (OCT. 8) - The Cape Province branch of South Africa's ruling National Party (NP) became on Monday the party's third provincial formation to open its membership to all races, correspondents said.

The NP Cape congress in this eastern port city decided unaminously to follow in the footsteps of the Natal and Free State congresses which recently took a similar decision, the South African news agency Sapa said.

The Transvaal congress of the NP meets in Pretoria at the end of next week and is expected to follow suit.

Newly re-elected Cape leader of the NP, and Mineral and Energy Affairs Minister, Dr. Dawie de Villiers, thanked delegates for their support for the leadership's request. "I think it is a sensible decision," he said.

The NP came into power in 1948 on a policy of hardline racial segregation which permeated all aspects of South African life. In recent years, however, it has engaged in a process of dismantling apartheid.

ISLAMABAD (OCT. 8) - Pakistan has asked India to recall four staff members of the Indian Consulate in Karachi because of their "undesirable" activities, officials here said.

The Indians "have been involved in undesirable activities which were totally incompatible with their official status," a foreign ministry statement said Sunday. They will be leaving Pakistan within 10 days, the statement added.

The expulsion announcement came after government claims that it had discovered a plot to disrupt elections on October 24.

India has often been accused here of fomenting ethnic trouble and backing secessionist elements in Pakistan's Sindh province.

New Delhi Pakistani army chief General Mirza Aslam Beg said last month that trained terrorists had infiltrated into Pakistan to destabilize the country and sabotage the elections.

And caretaker Prime Minister Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi said Monday the government had "solid evidence" about a plot involving the Al-Zulfikar "terrorist" organization to disrupt the elections.

The organization is allegedly headed by Murtaza Ali Bhutto, brother of ousted Pakistani premier Benazir Bhutto.

Mr. Bhutto went into exile after the 1977 overthrow of his father Zulfikar Ali Bhutto by the late military ruler Mohammed Zia ul-Haq.

Talking to foreign correspondents, Mr. Jatoi said some of the Al-Zulfikar members had received terrorist training in India.

AMMAN (OCT. 8) - Jordan could transform its home guard into a semi-official institution to alleviate growing unemployment triggered by the Gulf crisis, Labour Minister Ghassem Obeidat said here Monday.

Mr. Obeidat told Agence France-Presse that a national fund could be set up to finance the guard.

"This army would offer support for Jordanian regular forces, particularly in the present situation caused by the Gulf crisis, and would help to control the unemployment problem," he said.

Mr. Obeidat said thousands of jobless men are already enrolled in the guard at a time when official statistics put the nationwide number of unemployed at 100,000 people from a work force of 600,000.

The Gulf tension has exacerbated unemployment, with tens of thousands of Jordanians expected to return home from Iraq, Kuwait and other Gulf states, according to some reports.

Members of the guard could earn 70-80 dinars (about 100-115 dollars) a month, Mr. Obeidat said, adding that women would not be allowed to join the force.

The force is currently estimated to number 15,000, according to the London-based Institute of Strategic Studies. There are no official figures.

PARIS (OCT. 8) - The Dalai Lama held his first official meeting with the French government when he met Culture Minister Jack Lang here on Monday.

Although the spritual leader of the world's 11 million Buddhists has paid several previous visits to France, most notably to Strasbourg in May 1988 to address the European Parliament, French government officials have been careful never to meet him officially for fear of upsetting China.

The Dalai Lama, who was on a two-day visit to France to promote his book of memoirs, accompanied Mr. Lang to a show of Himalayan art at the city's Asian Art museum and also saw the museum's permanent exhibition of Tibetan art which will soon re-open to the public after extensive restoration.

Earlier in the day the Dalai Lama had a half-hour meeting with the speaker of the French parliament, Laurent Fabius. In the afternoon he was due to meet France's junior foreign minister, Edwige Avice.

MBABANE (OCT. 8) - The United Nations High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR) said here Monday there were 32,365 South African and Mozambican refugees in Swaziland, an increase of almost 4,000 from earlier this year.

The majority were from Mozambique, from where about 300 refugees enter Swaziland every month, a UNHCR spokesman said.

But several hundred young South African refugees had also entered Swaziland to escape violence-troubled areas in their country, the spokesman added.

Most of the South Africans had been flown to other countries, mainly Zambia, where they expected to be cared for and given education and training by the African National Congress.

JOHANNESBURG (OCT. 8) - Suffering among South African children has reached shocking proportions in some areas, echoing the plight of children in Latin America, social workers and psychologists said here Monday.

They said in interviews carried by the Star newspaper that child labour and prostitution were on the rise, and children were increasingly joining in the violence currently wracking black townships.

Johannesburg Child Welfare Society (JCWS) Director Adele Thomas said there had been several cases in the past two weeks of parents selling their children into prostitution to make money, the Star newspaper reported.

Child labour seemed to be on the increase, Dr. Thomas said, quoting reports of child labour on farms and in the coal yards of Soweto black township adjoining Johannesburg.

Children as young as six were being made to do menial work such as street vending and hawking, she said, attributing the upsurge in child labour to the economic slump in South Africa.

Economists predict a zero economic growth rate for the country this year.

Also, the wave of recent black-on-black violence in townships around here which has seen nearly 800 people killed since August 13 has caused severe trauma among black children, psychologist Lloyd Vogelman told the Star.

Mr. Vogelman, the director of Witwatersrand University's project on violence, said young children were increasingly taking part in the violence.

In an interview with Agence France-Presse last month, he said many children had become sensitized to violence in battle zones.

"They believe one resolves conflict by killing," Mr. Vogelman said, adding that few parents or community leaders were able to control the young.

In Soweto alone, hundreds of children were being found suffering from acute post-traumatic stress disorders following detention by police and township violence, Dr. Thomas told the Star.

She said this stemmed from a fear of annihilation, and resulted months later in suicide, paranoia, neurosis, nightmares and drug addiction.

DJIBOUTI (OCT. 8) - About 30 armed men, half of them wearing Somali army uniforms, crossed the border eight kilometres (four miles) into Djibouti on Sunday in the Day Day region with the intention of attacking frontier troops, the army high command said here Monday.

A 15-man Djibouti patrol spotted the intruders and chased them back, with an exchange of fire occurring in the Goubed plain in Djibouti. The Somalis fired seven rocket-propelled grenades and tried unsuccessfully to make off with a herd of cattle, the military said.

There were no casualties.

The president's office has sent an official note to Mogadishu to protest about the "inadmissible" violation of Djibouti's territory.

In the past few weeks, Somali soldiers have opened fire on nomads and attempted to steal livestock from the Djibouti side, the army noted.

BONN (OCT 8) - German Chancellor Helmut Kohl on Monday called for greater investment in the former East Germany, and warned its bosses and workers there was a long way to go before its economy was rebuilt.

Mr. Kohl was addressing a pan-German economic conference here five days after German reunification.

He told senior economic officials of the five regions of the former communist state, as well as unions and businessmen, that road and rail infrastructure were needed, jobs must be created, towns must be made more attractive and pollution cut.

An encouraging sign, he added, was the fact that 170,000 new jobs had been created in the former East Germany since the beginning of the year.

But the president of the powerful German trades union federation DGB, Heinz-Werner Meyer, complained that investment promised to the region during a previous similar meeting had not materialised.

Businessmen had promised during the last pan-German economic conference in June that they would invest massively in East Germany once German economic and monetary union took effect on July 1.

But West German businesses had not kept this promise, focussing instead on "doing more business, instead of accomplishing the historic task of helping the five new Lands (the East German regions) to economic recovery," Mr. Meyer said.

The difference between the extra profits West German business was reaping in the former East Germany and the amount of investment they had been willing to put in should "make West German business leaders blush with shame," he said.

Representatives of former West German industry at Monday's meeting included the bosses of chemicals concern Bayer, electrical engineering concern Siemens, the country's second largest industrial group, and auto group BMW.

German businesses attending the meeting pledged to send 100 managers into the former East Germany within the next fortnight, chancellery officials said.

The managers would be given the job of helping the Treuhandanstalt, the holding company responsible for privatising industry in the former communist state, with its work.

The holding would set up within the next month four consultative committees on which both business leaders and unions would be represented, the officials added.

BONN (OCT 8) - The German airline Lufthansa will begin flights between Berlin and 17 European cities - seven of them in Germany -on October 28, German Transportation Minister Friedrich Zimmermann announced Monday.

Zimmermann said that Pan Am, Air France and British Airways -which had a monopoly of flights to and from West Berlin owing to former Allied control over the city - would essentially continue their previous level of service for the time being.

The non-German cities Lufthansa will fly to from Berlin are Milan, Vienna, Zurich, London, Madrid, Barcelona, Paris, Stockholm, Helsinki and Moscow.

KABUL (OCT. 8) - Heavy fighting continued for the third straight day Monday on the southern outskirts of Kabul, a government spokesman said as mujahedeen gunners broke a five-day lull and pounded the city with rockets.

Security forces have been locked in combat 40 kilometres (25 miles) south of the center of the Afghan capital since Saturday and fighting was still raging, the spokesman said.

The fighting broke out when government forces intercepted two mujahedeen infantry units moving towards the capital and killed at least 15 of them.

The foreign ministry spokesman said 47 cases of ammunition were captured from the resistance units Monday. As he spoke, several rockets hit different parts of the capital. Diplomats said there were about five explosions an hour.

It was not immediately clear if anyone was hurt in the latest rocket barrage.

The government said it had intelligence reports that the guerrillas were trying to step up rocket attacks before winter, but security forces were prepared to meet the threat.

In the eastern province of Nangarhar, bordering Pakistan, government forces continued battling guerrillas who tried to attack security posts just south of Jalalabad, the battle-scarred capital of the province, the spokesman said.

At least 10 mujahedeen, including the commander for Jalalabad, Zahid Ibrahimi of the Heszb-i-Islami group, were killed by troops backed by heavy artillery and aerial cover Saturday, he said.

The spokesman discounted guerrilla claims that they had captured three security posts in Nangarhar.

Troops were fanning out of Jalalabad towards Surkh Dewar (Red Wall) village, known for its historic Buddhist monuments, despite guerrilla resistance, the official said.

The mujahedeen are fighting to overthrow the Soviet-backed regime of President Najibullah, which they brand a vestige of Soviet occupation. More than a million people have lost their lives during the war.

FREETOWN (OCT 8) - The Guinean Embassy here had to be closed down Monday after it was stormed by hundreds of Guinean refugees from war-torn Liberia anxious to get home, officials said.

They were among 3,000 refugees, mainly from Sierra Leone, Guinea and Nigeria, who were brought into Freetown late Sunday from Monrovia on board the Ghanaian merchant ship Tano River.

They bring to 6,000 the number of West African nationals who have been evacuated over the last nine days from Monrovia, where a 10-month civil war is still raging.

Two of the refugees told Agence France-Presse that ten people, five of them children, had died from hunger and malnutrition during the 24-hour trip from Monrovia to Freetown.

The refugees paralysed work at the quay as they disembarked from the Tano River. Many were frail and malnourished, and 130 of them were reportedly admitted into a medical centre here.

Some 300 Ghanaians, mostly women and children, left here Monday for Accra on the Tano River. The Ghanaian Embassy here said they had been marooned on Sulima, an offshore island in Sierra Leone, for about a month.

A Nigerian diplomat said plans to take about 800 Nigerians home to Lagos were now underway.

Meanwhile, an intensive sea search resumed Monday for the bodies of about 60 Guinean refugees who drowned when a Guinean gunboat sank off the West African coast four days ago after reportedly hitting a sandbank.

They were among hundreds of people being taken home to Conakry after being evacuated from Monrovia. The search for the bodies was being conducted by Guinean officials and two Soviet boats based in Conakry.

According to one unconfirmed newspaper report, many of the refugees on board had died of hunger before the accident, and their bodies had been thrown overboard.

LOME (OCT. 8) - Lawyers in Togo started a 72-hour strike here on Monday to protest at the way the army broke up a demonstration in the capital last week, leaving four people dead and 34 injured.

There was no immediate government reaction to the strike decision by the bar association, which was being backed by most of the capital's 73 attorneys.

After the violence last Friday, lawyers had a meeting with President Gnassingbe Eyadema to voice their "indignation" at the way troops had forcefully evacuated people from the law courts, where two men were given maximum five-year jail terms for distributing anti-government leaflets.

An official communique issued late Saturday said that before troops opened fire, demonstrators had attacked six police stations and seized arms and ammunition.

The head of Togo's bar association and president of the country's Human Rights League, Kokou Koffigoh, described a government claim that there had been a plot fomented from outside the country as "false" and "lies".

Mr. Koffigoh and the president of an official National Commission of Human Rights, Mr. Agboyibor, said about 6,000 demonstrators had gathered at the court building, singing the country's former national anthem and traditional religious airs.

A "horde" of soldiers then attacked the demonstrators in a "premeditated act", Mr. Koffigoh said.

The interior minister, General Yao Mawuliklimi, had said Friday's violence was part of an "international machination". He said 92 foreigners were among the 170 people arrested.

One lawyer said: "The people demonstrated in favour of change. That's all."

The country's lawyers were Monday drawing up an analysis of the situation for submission to the president's office Tuesday.

Lome was meanwhile quiet Monday, although a helicopter flew low several times over the city.

PARIS (OCT. 8) - France is sending 100 gendarmes to French Guiana in South America to help police the river border with Suriname which is fighting a rebel insurgency, a senior defense official said here Monday.

A first squadron arrived Sunday, on orders of Prime Minister Michel Rocard, and "others are expected imminently", secretary of state for defense Gerard Renon told France-Antilles newspaper in an interview to appear Tuesday.

Rebels on the other side of the border have been fighting governments of Suriname, a former Dutch colony, since 1986.

Mr. Renon said the gendarmes would patrol along the Maroni River and help administer refugee camps in the "sensitive region".

BONN (OCT. 8) - Germany on Monday ratified the treaty which will return it to full official sovereignty once the four allied powers that occupied post-war Germany have also ratified it.

Pending their ratification, however, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States agreed to suspend their rights over Germany as of October 3 when the two Germanies united.

The treaty was signed by foreign ministers of the two German states and the four allied powers in Moscow on September 12.

German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher said he was pleased Germany was the first to ratify the document, which "binds us for the future to a policy of responsibility, of European unification and of keeping the peace."

Walter Momper, leader of the Bundesrat, said the treaty was "a building plan for the future European home."

JOHANNESBURG (OCT 8) - South African Airways (SAA) and Kenya Airlines are to introduce weekly flights between here and Nairobi in December, SAA said in a statement here Monday.

SAA chief executive Gert van der Veer said the move was "a further step on the road to the normalisation of relationships between South Africa and other African countries".

Meanwhile, the Star newspaper reported here Monday that the Ivory Coast was likely to become the second African country after Malawi to establish diplomatic ties with South Africa.

In August, economic ties between South Africa and Madagascar were restored.

BANGKOK (OCT 8) - Military authorities have arrested a member of Burma's leading opposition party on charges of printing and distributing illegal anti-government material, Radio Rangoon said Monday.

U Maung Maung, 40, provisional member of the National League for Democracy (NLD) excutive committee in the central township of Yenang Chaung, was arrested on September 6, the radio said in a broadcast monitored here.

The official radio said he was alleged to have written and distributed anti-government pamphlets criticizing, slandering and ridiculing leaders of the military government and fomenting mistrust of the nation's defence services.

The material was said to be aimed at creating instability in the nation.

The state-run radio earlier said six senior NLD leaders, including acting chairman Kyi Maung, were arrested on the same date in the capital Rangoon and in the northern city of Mandalay.

The NLD won a landslide victory in the May general election held by the military junta which seized power in a September 1988 coup after crushing a student-led nationwide pro-democracy movement.

Since the elections, the military has refused to hand over power to the NLD.

JOHANNESBURG (OCT. 8) - Hostility between two rival South African black nationalist movements escalated here Monday when the Pan Africanist Congress (PAC) launched a blistering attack on the African National Congress (ANC).

The PAC threatened in a statement to evict ANC activists from a PAC camp in un unnamed African state following criticism from Chris Hani, leader of the ANC's military wing.

The PAC has developed as a smaller and more radical organisation than Nelson Mandela's ANC since it split from the ANC in 1960.

The rivalry between the two organisations has become more acute this year since both organisations were unbanned earlier this year and the ANC agreed to enter talks with Pretoria on a new apartheid-free constitution.

PAC political secretary Mpolose Manqangwana said in a statement: "We are warning Mr. Hani that if he does not forthwith discontinue attacking us, we will evict his cadres from our camp and reduce them to squatters."

The PAC would not say in which African country its camp was situated, but maintained that it had taken in ANC exiles when the ANC was "kicked out".

For 30 years while fighting a guerrilla war against apartheid, both organisations have had guerrilla and refugee camps in various African countries.

At the weekend, Mr. Hani attacked the PAC for its "dismal liberation record" and said it had made nowhere near the contribution the ANC's military wing had made in bringing Pretoria to the negotiating table.

Mr. Hani also claimed that Tanzania had expelled the PAC from its camp in that country because it had "only 14 people" and that the PAC was also "driven out of Uganda because they couldn't form an army".

In his statement, Mr. Manqangwana reiterated the PAC's stand that "the ANC is selling out" black people by engaging in dialogue with the government on a future constitution.

PAC general secretary Benny Alexander said at a public forum Sunday that the PAC had not only rejected the government's offer of talks but vowed to continue "armed struggle" against any compromise regime that emerged from the talks.

The PAC has not reacted officially to the government's offer that it join in negotiations on South Africa's future. It is due to do so after its congress in Harare next month.

LUXEMBOURG (EEC) (OCT. 8) - Finance ministers of the 12 EEC nations Monday welcomed the entry of sterling into the Exchange Rate Mechanism (ERM) of the European Monetary System but questioned the manner in which it was done.

Mario Sarcinelli, head of the Italian treasury and chairman of the EEC's monetary committee, criticised Britain's haste in announcing the move. He was backed by European Commission president Jacques Delors, sources said here.

The British government did not wait for the European Economic Community's monetary committee to meet before announcing an exchange rate for sterling of 2.95 Deutsche marks and a fluctuation margin of 6 per cent instead of the 2.25 per cent used by most other currencies in the ERM.

The ERM keeps tight control over fluctuations in EEC currencies, ensuring the exchange rate between them stays in a narrow band.

But John Major, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, said the pound would join the narrower fluctuation rate gradually. He said he was pleased at the "warm welcome" given sterling's entry into the ERM by his colleagues.

Mr. Major said all Britain's EEC partners had found sterling's exchange rate and fluctation margin "wise". He dismissed as "illogical" Mr. Delors' comment that sterling's entry into the ERM could endanger European monetary union.

In apparent contradiction to Mr. Hurd's comments, Dutch Finance Minister Wim Kok said he and his colleagues had been "a little surprised, to put it politely," at the way the British government had managed the affair.

"It must not happen again," he said, stressing that the British attitude could "give us reasons to worry."

But Mr. Kok added that sterling's entry into the ERM was "a positive move, even if Britain has not changed its (negative) attitude towards European monetary union."

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has frequently said that moves towards monetary union should not move as far and fast as Mr. Delors would like.

French Finance Minister Pierre Beregovoy, however, recalled that the Spanish peseta's entry into the ERM in June 1989 had also been decided before the monetary committee had met to discuss the measure, although the announcement had come only after the committee had met.

"It's a step forward, but there will need to be others," he said, adding that there were still "fundamental problems" which needed to be solved during an inter-governmental conference on monetary union in mid-December in Rome.

BRUSSELS (OCT. 8) - Fighting took place early Monday in Rwanda between rebels who have invaded the country and an expeditionary force sent by neighbouring Zaire, the Belgian news agency Belga said, quoting the Zairean news agency AZAP.

A member of the Rwandan government armed forces and two Zaireans were killed in the two hours of fighting round the town of Gabiro in northern Rwanda, according to the report.

Despite their superior numbers, the rebels then retreated with the Zaireans pursuing them, it said.

Zaire last week sent a force of 500 elite troops to Rwanda to help the government counter the invaders who came from Uganda on September 30.

Rwanda's President Juvenal Habyarimana left Kinshasa Monday afternoon after a five-hour visit for consultations, during which he thanked Zaire's leader Mobutu Seso Seko for the Zairean help, AZAP said.

MOSCOW (OCT. 8) - A total of 682,000 people have quit the Soviet Communist Party in the first eight months of this year, Tass news agency reported Monday quoting deputy party leader Vladimir Ivashko.

Some 371,000 left in the first half of the year and a further 311,000 left in July-August after the 28th party congress, Mr. Ivashko told a plenum of the party's central committee here.

The communist party, however, remains the principal political force in the Soviet Union with just over 18 million members.

Speaking of relations between the 15 Soviet republics, Mr. Ivashko also acknowledged that "the union no longer exists -- not in its old form, nor in a new one".

There was no use in lamenting a system which had outlived itself, but it was now necessary to set up a new federation of sovereign states, he added.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, the government and republican leaders are currently working on a draft of a new union treaty which Moscow wants adopted by December.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 8) - An avowed racist who espouses virtually everything America rejects, David Duke came within a hair's breadth of the nation's third highest elective office: a U.S. Senate seat.

Many nervous politicians are asking how the former Grand Dragon of the white supremist Ku Klux Klan (KKK), who was disavowed by his Republican Party's leaders, made such a strong showing in Louisiana and what it means for American politics.

Mr. Duke was unable to unseat Democrat Bennett Johnston in Saturday's election. But he emerged with an astonishingly high 44 per cent of the vote, almost twice that predicted in polls. He got 60 per cent of the white vote, which some analysts said signals a white voter backlash.

Few believe that Mr. Johnston would have won the election if the Republican Party's own candidate, Ben Bagert, had not at the last minute stepped aside and thrown his support to Mr. Johnston in an attempt to derail Mr. Duke.

"This is just the beginning," Mr. Duke said the day after his defeat, amid speculation that he would next challenge Louisiana Governor Buddy Roemer for that post.

"We are going to go on defending the cause of the majority in this country," said Mr. Duke, 40.

Mr. Duke won a seat in the state legislature two years ago and has since become an embarrassment to the Republican Party of President George Bush because of his KKK leadership during the 1970s and his links to members of the American Nazi Party.

Mr. Johnston's camp tried to capitalize on his opponent's past, showing old film footage of him in the Ku Klux Klan's flowing white, hooded robes saluting a burning cross -- both of which have become symbols group.

But Mr. Duke's populist appeal in his largely rural southern state on the Mississippi River Delta has transcended his past.

At one political rally after another, he draws rousing applause by systematically attacking racial integration and affirmative action programs aimed at advancing minorities in employment and education.

He has taken his message deep into the heart of Louisiana's Cajun country, into depressed industrial communities and rural parishes where a constituency of poor, unemployed or underemployed whites with minimal edcation have embraced him with enthusiasm.

He said the measure was necessary because lack of supplies made continuing work at the embassy impossible.

MOSCOW (OCT. 8) - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev delivered his strongest-ever declaration of faith in the free market economy here Monday and called on ''all progressive, patriotic forces'' in the country to form a coalition with the communists.

Talking at a plenary meeting of the Communist Party Central Committee, Gorbachev said ''the state property monopoly'' in the Soviet Union was the ''source of many social and economic ills''.

At the same time, in a remark directed at separatist tendencies in the Soviet Union, Gorbachev warned against a '''Lebanonisation' of the country with all its consequences''.

The Kremlin boss urged the party to help Soviet society ''cast off its resentment and fear of the free market economy''. He also called for the meeting to be extended for a further day owing to the time needed to discuss the full agenda.

Gorbachev said the three-point programme for the transformation of the Soviet planned economy he is due to present to parliament October 15, was ''not a compromise document which has had all its sharp edges honed down but rather a programme which can consolidate all levels of society.''

BAGHDAD (OCT. 8) - The Soviet embassy here on Monday began preparations for the departure of 1,500 Soviet citizens over the next month, Soviet sources said.

An agreement on their repatriation followed talks here last week between Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and an advisor to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, Evgeni Primakov.

The 1,500 people are to leave Baghdad aboard special flights by Soviet aircraft, the embassy sources added.

Officials in Moscow earlier Monday announced the return of 126 Soviet workers from Iraq aboard an Aeroflot airliner.

Soviet sources in Baghdad said 3,500 Soviet nationals working in oil installations preferred to stay in Iraq.

Prior to the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2 there were an estimated 8,000 Soviet citizens residing in Iraq, of whom roughly 5,000 remain.

Soviet authorities before Mr. Primakov's visit had complained that their nationals wishing to leave Baghdad were encountering delays and difficulties.

But newspapers in Moscow said President Hussein assured Mr. Primakov that his government was not obstructing the departure of Soviet citizens.

Iraq is however holding nationals from Western countries and Japan whose leaders have supported a huge military buildup in the Gulf region as part of a campaign to force Iraqi troops to leave Kuwait.

The Soviet newspaper Izvestia meanwhile reported Monday that 93 Soviet military experts were still in Iraq but would return home at the end of their contracts.

Moscow, once a key political and military ally of Iraq, has actively backed United Nations sanctions against Baghdad and has repeatedly denounced its invasion of Kuwait.

LAHORE, PAKISTAN (OCT. 8) - A high court here Monday turned down a petition by a group of lawyers seeking postponement of a general election in Pakistan on October 24, court sources said.

A full bench of the Lahore High Court dismissed the plea because, it said, the petitioners had no grounds for their case.

The group sought the postponement on the grounds that many candidates had not been actively campaigning because of uncertainty surrounding the legality of the election.

The national assembly and four provincial legislatures were dissolved by President Ghulam Ishaq Khan when he sacked the government of Benazir Bhutto on August 6 on charges of corruption and abuse of power.

But Ms. Bhutto's Pakistan Peoples Party (PPP) has taken the issue to the higher courts pleading that the action was illegal.

One of the country's four high courts last month declared the dissolution of the North West Frontier Province assembly illegal and ordered its reinstatement.

The judgement was stayed by the supreme court on a petition by the interim government. The PPP has moved the supreme court to review its decision and the case will be heard in court in Rawalpindi on Tuesday.

Meanwhile, in Karachi on Monday, a superior court found the detention of a former provincial minister belonging to Mrs. Bhutto's party to be illegal and ordered his release, officials said.

Syed Khurshid Shah, former Sindh province minister for education, was arrested last month under laws providing for the detention of people suspected of posing a threat to public order.

The Sindh High Court said the authorities had been unable to substantiate the grounds for his detention.

Mr. Shah is a candidate of Ms. Bhutto's PPP in the forthcoming elections.

DHAKA (OCT. 8) - One person was killed and at least 200 others were injured in weekend rioting in Dhaka sparked by a 50 percent hike in bus fares, Bangladeshi police said Monday.

The death was reportedly caused when a man who had refused to pay the increased fare was pushed from a moving bus.

Rioting erupted Saturday and police used force to disperse mobs in the Bangladeshi capital's central Gulistan Square. Five buses were said to have been damaged.

Hospital officials said one driver was hurt in a stabbing and 50 others were injured Monday morning as commuters clashed with bus operators demanding the new fares.

Homemade bombs were hurled at buses in the southern port of Chittagong, where passengers attacked shops and set up roadblocks with burning tyres, police said.

Riot police were deployed in Dhaka for the second day Monday as university students called a protest demonstration against the fare hike.

The government had announced a 75 percent increase in the price of petrol and diesel fuel to meet additional import costs of crude oil due to the Gulf crisis.

JASPER, Ontario (OCT. 8) - Canadian Secretary of State for External Affairs Joe Clark Monday praised the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) as a force for moderation and peace.

Mr. Clark made his comments at the closing ceremony of the four-day meeting here in the Canadian Rockies attended by foreign ministers from Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand.

ASEAN "has developped into a flexible organization for cooperation and dialogue among its members and others on a variety of regional and global issues, both economic and political," Mr. Clark said.

The Canadian foreign minister said the success of the Calgary and Jasper meetings underscored the growing political and economic ties between Canada and ASEAN.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 8) - Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz said Monday Baghdad was willing to let all western foreigners leave the country freely if U.S. President George Bush ''makes an explicit pledge that he is not going to wage war against Iraq.

Speaking in an interview with the U.S. television network Cnn, Aziz stressed however that this offer had nothing to do with Washington's demand that Iraq withdraw from Kuwait.

He said that Kuwait was part of Iraq and had been reunited with it. The former Kuwaitis were now Iraqis and were free to travel as they pleased.

Aziz noted that Bush had stated that the U.S. forces had been sent to the Gulf to protect Saudi Arabia from an Iraqi threat. He, Aziz, was able firmly to pledge that Iraq was not in Kuwait to threaten Saudi Arabia.

PORT ELIZABETH, SOUTH AFRICA (OCT. 8) - President Frederik de Klerk Monday ruled out the concept of "simplistic majority rule" for South Africa, the national news agency said.

Opening the Cape province congress of the ruling National Party (NP) he said his government had repeatedly rejected the concept but believed in power-sharing.

He accused rightwing Conservative Party leader Andries Treurnicht of "gross misrepresentation" when he tried to create the impression the government was in favor of "simplistic majority rule".

The NP believed in power-sharing, Mr. de Klerk said, as it would not allow a majority to abuse power.

The government's attitude to the ANC, and all other organisations, was clear: it wanted to negotiate a new constitution for all political leaders with substantial support, and this included the ANC, he said.

Lasting peace in South Africa, however, would only be attained when "the public at large rejected intimidation, killing in the streets and the burning of houses and public facilities", he said.

While such methods continued to be justified by leaders, lasting peace would continue to evade the country, he added.

ABOARD THE USS BLUE RIDGE (OCT. 8) - Western naval forces have intercepted more than 2,000 Iraqi cargo vessels and boarded 207 since the United Nations approved sanctions on Iraq following its August 2 invasion of Kuwait, a senior U.S. Navy officer said here Monday.

Vice-Admiral Henry Mauz, commander of the U.S. 7th fleet in the Pacific, said most of the search operations had been conducted by U.S. vessels participating in an international blockade against Baghdad.

Speaking to journalists aboard the USS Blue Ridge off Bahrain, he said a small number of Iraqi cargo ships were still waiting in Yemeni ports for an opportunity to return to Iraq.

Admiral Mauz disclosed that the United States had deployed 56 ships carrying 46,000 sailors and Marines in the Gulf, the Red Sea and the Gulf of Oman.

"Our mission is to defend our friends, the Saudis, and all other Gulf countries" in addition to enforcing the trade embargo, he stressed.

No mines have yet been detected in the Gulf, he said, adding that "three of our minesweepers are operating 24 hours a day to be sure that the water is clean."

At present, according to Admiral Mauz, "the Iraqis limit their naval activities to their territorial waters and those of Kuwait. They're concentrating on coastal defense."

SANAA (OCT. 8) - PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat arrived here Monday aboard a regularly scheduled Jordanian airliner after his special plane, according to a newspaper in Amman, had been refused permission to enter Saudi airspace.

The newspaper Saout al-Shaab, citing Palestinian sources, said Mr. Arafat was forced to fly Royal Jordanian from Amman, where he arrived Sunday aboard a special Libyan aircraft for a 24-hour visit, after the Saudi ban became known.

Here in Yemen the head of the Palestine Liberation Organization met with President Ali Abdallah Saleh for talks on the Gulf tension and the "presence of foreign troops in the region," Palestinian sources said.

Both leaders expressed "deep concern" about the Western military buildup in the region, which they said "endangers the security of the Arab nation," according to Palestinian sources.

Mr. Arafat and the government of Yemen have criticized the Iraqi invasion, although not with the same force as other Arab states.

In addition, they have been critical of a Saudi decision to accept U.S. and other Western ground forces as part of an effort to defend the kingdom against any Iraqi attack.

FRANKFURT (OCT. 8) - The German central Bundesbank Monday firmly denied a Financial Times report that it was preparing an internal plan for achieving European economic and monetary union (EMU) along lines proposed by the British Chancellor of the Exchequer.

"No new Bundesbank document exists concerning the upcoming phases of European monetary union," a bank spokesman said.

The spokesman said the Financial Times article referred to an old Danish proposal which the Bundesbank had commented on.

"But there is no new Bundesbank document. Our position remains the one described two weeks ago by our president Karl Otto Poehl," the spokesman said.

Mr. Poehl said he would not fix a date for the second phase of European monetary union, on grounds that things had to develop naturally.

He firmly rejected January 1, 1993, the date preferred by the executive commission of the European Economic Community and some EEC countries, notably France and Italy, for the process to begin.

The British proposal for a hard Ecu (European Currency Unit) is to allow the Ecu to be used widely alongside, and in competition with, other EEC currencies. Britain is opposed to the most urgent calls for moves towards EMU including rapid development of the Ecu as the only currency in the EEC.

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (OCT 8) - An Iraqi tanker was diverted to a port by U.S., British and Australian warships on Monday after it was found to be carrying rice, flour and other cargo violating the economic embargo of Iraq, U.S. military officials said.

The 33,600-ton Iraqi-registered vessel, the Tadmur, was on its way to Iraq's southern port of Basra when it was intercepted in the North Arabian Sea by the British frigate Brazen, the U.S. guided missile destroyer Goldsborough and an Australian vessel, the Darwin, they said.

A U.S. military spokesman said: "We don't know where the cargo was loaded but the markings on the rice bags indicate it was grown in the United States and shipped to Jordan."

The U.S. military said in a statement that the Tadmur was taken to an unidentified "non-prohibited" port "after a multi-national boarding team discovered significant quantities of rice, flour and other prohibited cargo aboard the ship."

Royal Navy marines boarded the ship from a helicopter, according to U.S. military officials, and U.S. Coast Guard and navy personnel also took part in the search.

According to a U.S. Navy spokesman, the Tadmur had been stopped once previously by warships enforcing the U.N. embargo on trade with Iraq.

On that occasion, the Iraqi tanker was intercepted in the Red Sea, was found to be empty and was allowed to continue its journey. U.S. military officials said no shots were fired during Monday's boarding of the Tadmur.

In another interception of an Iraqi cargo ship on Monday off the coast of Oman warning shots were fired across the bow of the vessel, the Al Wasitti.

The Al Wasitti was intercepted at dawn about 60 nautical miles north-east of Muscat by the British frigates HMS Battleaxe and HMS London and U.S. and Australian warships, British military authorities said.

Warning shots were fired across the bow of the Iraq ship by the U.S., British and Australian warships when it ignored repeated requests to stop, they said.

The ship was found to be empty during a search by Royal Marines and a U.S. Coast Guard party and allowed to proceed, they added.

An international flotilla of warships has been assembled in the Gulf region to enforce the economic embargo imposed on Iraq by the U.N. Security Council following its August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

NEW YORK (OCT 8) - Israel came in for angry criticism Monday at an emergency session of the United Nations Security Council called to debate the death of more than 20 Palestinians at bloody clashes in Jerusalem only hours earlier.

Several speakers, among them the Chinese and Soviet delegates,urged a clear condemnation of Israel following one of the worst days of violence since the start of the Palestinian uprising in the Israeli-occupied territories three years ago.

Israel's U.N. ambassador Johanan Bein accused the Palestine Liberation Organisation (Plo) of having staged a ''premeditated ambush'' on Jews in Jerusalem order to distract attention from Iraqi aggression against Kuwait.

Leader of the Palestine observer mission at the U.N., Zohdi Labib Terzi, accused the Israelis of wanting to destroy Moslem holy relics. Israeli zealots had wanted to lay the foundation stone of a new Jewish temple near a Moslem mosque on the walled platform, known as Temple Mount. Arabs who tried to prevent the move, were mown down by police, said Terzi.

The Palestine representative called for a U.N. commission to be dispatched to Jerusalem immediately in order to investigate Monday's incident.

Soviet U.N. ambassador Yuli Voronzov demanded ''effective measures to ensure the safety of those people who are living in the occupied territories''. The situation should be ''unconditionally condemned,'' he added.

A draft resolution calling for Israel to be upbraided for its ''criminal act'' in Jerusalem and the sending of a Security Council investigative committee to the occupied territories was said to be circling at the United Nations Monday.

BRASILIA (OCT 8) - The last 82 Brazilians who were held involuntarily in Iraq arrived Monday in Brasilia aboard an Iraqi Airways Boeing 707 after Brazilian officials negotiated for their release, officials said.

After the Brazilians got off the plane, the Iraqi Airways crew came out displaying a huge photograph of President Saddam Hussein to about 2,000 Brazilians who had gathered at the airport to welcome their returning countrymen.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said 11 Brazilians had remained in Iraq to monitor maintenance of equipment belonging to the Brazilian Mendes Junior engineering firm.

SINGAPORE (OCT. 9) - Singapore is moving closer to adopting a controversial bill that would give its home affairs minister power to crack down on anyone threatening religious harmony in this multiracial city-state.

Despite initial criticisms when the bill was introduced in February, hearings before a select committee last month showed strong public support. Government sources said it was likely to become law early next year.

Although the island republic has known no religious strife for a quarter century, Singapore authorities fear the potential for disruption among a population mixing majority Chinese with Malays and Indians.

The "Maintenance of Religious Harmony Bill" empowers the home minister to bar public speeches by any priest, monk, pastor or Moslem imam judged to be mixing religion and politics or jeopardizing communal peace.

Other potential targets of prohibition orders include those judged to be carrying out subversive activities under the cover of religion, and those who promote disaffection for the president or the government.

Penalties for violators of any order range up to two years in jail, a 10,000 dollar (5,700 U.S.) fine or both. Second offenders face up to three years and a 20,000 dollar (11,400 U.S.) fine.

The minister would be advised by a presidential council for religious harmony. But in perhaps the most controversial feature of the bill, his decision would be final and could not be challenged in court.

At last month's hearings, Trade and Industry Minister Lee Hsien Loong strongly defended bypassing the courts, arguing the need to "move before the damage was done" in the "grey areas" between religion and politics.

"In order to convict there must be proof of crime," said Brigadier General Lee the son of Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew.

"In order to prevent, there may not be proof of crime because the crime may not yet have been committed, but the danger may be down the road."

Goh Chok Tong, first deputy prime minister who will move up to the top spot next month, has called the measure a "very fine" instrument -- better for this purpose than the Internal Security Act which allows for indefinite detention without trial in matters of public order.

But not all are convinced about the religious harmony legislation.

The Singapore Democratic Party (SDP), a small but growing opposition group, rejected outright the bill which its chairman Ling How Doong called "unnecessary and unwarranted."

WELLINGTON (OCT. 9) - Seventeen pilots facing layoffs from Air New Zealand have signed up with Malaysian Airlines, MAL's New Zealand manager Philip Krishnan said Tuesday.

Air New Zealand plans to lay off 74 pilots as part of its domestic restructuring at a time when the Malaysian carrier was expanding its fleet, Mr. Krishnan said.

The 17 pilots quit at short notice from Air New Zealand and were in retraining courses in Kuala Lumpur.

He said more New Zealand pilots may shortly join Malaysian Airlines.

BEIJING (OCT. 8) - The Chinese government plans to take stock of its vast property holdings, estimated at 1.6 trillion yuan (338.9 billion dollars), during its new Five-Year Plan starting next year, a Shanghai daily says.

Wen Huibao, in its Sunday issue seen here Monday, said that due to loopholes and poor management, the state may own 300 billion yuan (63.5 billion dollars) more than accounted for.

"There are even disputes on whether some property does belong to the state," the newspaper added.

The new Five-Year Plan, to run from 1991 to 1995 inclusive, is the latest in a series of economic blueprints for China's development.

It now is in the drafting stages, pending approval at a Communist Party central committee plenum due to be held before the end of this year.

Four detailed inventories of state property have taken place since communist rule in China began in 1949, while a 1988 estimate has put its total value at 1.6 trillion yuan (338.9 billion dollars).

JAKARTA (OCT. 8) - Indonesian private banks have agreed to freeze new branch openings, tighten credit, and set a range of interest rates for deposits and loans to ease competition, a spokesman for the banks said Monday.

The 101 banks grouped in the Association of Private National Banks (Perbanas) reached the agreement at a meeting Saturday in the Central Java town of Jogyakarta, the spokesman said.

Perbanas planned to issued guidelines soon on the range of interest rates for deposits and loans for its members. The freeze on new branch openings would be effective immediately except for those already in the pipeline.

Private banks account for about a third of the Indonesian banking assets.

Besides competing among themselves, they have to take into account seven state-owned banks, which control about 60 per cent of total banking assets, and 11 foreign banks and 15 foreign joint venture banks.

Bankers said the fierce competition unleashed by banking deregulation two years ago has led to severe problems among many large and small institutions.

"If the price war continued and code of ethics are broken, the public would be confused and banks could face a major threat," LIPPO Bank chairman Mochtar Riyadi was quoted as saying by the leading Kompas daily.

Several banks have met with crisis in recent months as a result of the fierce competition and the central bank's tight money policy to fight inflation, but none had been too serious to trigger a run on banks.

Some banks have had to use the central bank's discounting facilities to help with liquidity shortages.

Bank Duta, one of the largest private banks with assets of over one billion dollars at the start of 1990, was bailed out by charity foundations headed by President Suharto after it lost 420 million dollars in foreign currency trading.

"Bank Duta crisis is an early warning to the banking industry to be more careful," said Perbanas Secretary General Thomas Suyatno.

The deregulation package in October 1988 reopened the banking industry to newcomers, both domestic and foreign.

It also lifted a ban on national banks to open up branch offices in small cities giving them an almost equal footing to the giant state banks.

A total of 42 new private banks and 15 new joint venture banks have since been established.

MOSCOW (OCT. 8) - The harvesting of potatoes and other vegetables is running late and will lead to new shortages and price increases at a time when Soviet consumers already face a catastrophic situation, the head of the Soviet state committee for statistics warned Monday.

The delays have been caused by heavy rains and a shortage of labour, and only 61 percent of potatoes and 50 percent of other vegetables had been brought in as of Oct. 1, Leonid Vashchukov told the communist party newspaper Pravda.

At the present rate, another three weeks are needed to bring in the harvest and winter is fast approaching, Mr. Vashchukov said.

"Volunteer" labour provided this weekend by trade unions, party and municipal organisations for the harvest has come too late, Mr. Vashchukov also said. "Help was needed three to four weeks ago, rather than today when the situation is becoming critical," he said.

Come end of September, farms had handed over to state procurement agencies only 25 percent of the planned potato and 43 percent of the planned vegetable crop.

Moscow in the last week of September received only 95,000 tonnes of potatoes compared to the expected 659,000 tons, the official said.

Prices have already risen and ware expected to continue to do so, he added.

JAKARTA (OCT. 8) - Indonesia Monday urged Western governments to release their oil stocks and help ease pressures on the oil markets strained by limited supply due to the Gulf crisis.

Commercial stocks in Western industrialized countries had carried the brunt of the burden recently and this had added volatility to the market, Mines and Energy Minister Ginanjar Kartasasmita told journalists.

The government stocks should be released to ease the burden on commercial stocks, he said, adding that market prices tended react to changes in commercial stocks.

World oil prices shot past 40 dollars a barrel last week, the highest in 10 years, on fears of a war breaking out in the Gulf, but they eased back to close at between 35-36 dollars by Friday.

The Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), of which Indonesia is a member, had already done "the maximum" to help stabilise the market by freeing members from output quotas, Mr. Ginanjar said.

"It is now up to consumer countries," he said.

Mr. Ginanjar said there was currently no real supply shortage as supply "just matches" the demand level.

He warned however that actual shortage might occur in the coming weeks as demand rose with the approach of winter in the northern hemisphere.

The minister also announced a plan to hold a major energy conference here next week which would be attended by three other OPEC ministers and international oil experts.

OPEC President and Algerian oil minister Sadek Boussena, and oil ministers Jibril Aminu of Nigeria and Celestino Armas of Venezuela have confirmed they would take part in the International Energy Conference on October 16-18, he said.

Also taking part are OPEC Secretary General Subroto, former U.S. secretary for energy James Schlesinger and a representative of the Paris-based International Energy Agency which represents the Western oil consumers, he said.

BANGKOK (OCT. 8) - The Bangkok-based English-language daily The Nation will start printing, marketing and distributing the Japanese newspaper Yomiuri Shimbun here early next year, a Nation spokesman said Monday.

Yomiuri Shimbun is to transmit the Japanese-language morning and afternoon editions by satellite from Tokyo to Bangkok, where it will be printed and sold under an agreement signed in Tokyo on Wedesday making The Nation its distribution and marketing representative, he said.

At around the same time, the Asian Wall Street Journal will be printed by the Nation Publishing Group under an agreement signed in September, he said.

The value of the deal, a joint venture in which a subsidiary of Mitsui Bank of Bangkok will be a minority shareholder, was not immediately known.

LONDON (OCT. 8) - The Franco-British Eurotunnel consortium said on Monday that it was close to completing arrangements for additional loans of 2.1 billion pounds (about 4.1 billion dollars) needed to complete the construction of the tunnel beneath the Channel between England and France.

The company said that "the syndication of the additional funding is proceeding to a satisfactory conclusion".

It should be signed at the end of the month, enabling Eurotunnel to go ahead with an increase in its capital of 500 million pounds (985 million dollars) in November.

Shareholders who subscribed for new shares would receive travel advantages additional to those that they already held.

The consortium needs extra finance because the cost of construction has risen from 4.8 billion pounds as forecast to 7.5 billion pounds.

JOHANNESBURG (OCT. 8) - Mercedes Benz' South African plant, closed since August 16 due to industrial action, is set to reopen this week, a report here said Monday.

The plant, in the south coast city of East London, was closed following a sit-in protest by a group of dissident members of the National Union of Metalworkers of South Africa (NUMSA).

The closure had cost the company some 13.5 million rands (5.25 million dollars) per day in lost production.

The influential financial daily Business Day reported Monday that NUMSA regional organiser Les Kettledas said on Sunday that there was nothing preventing the plant reopening in a matter of days.

Mr. Kettledas said NUMSA and Mercedes Benz management had reached agreement on outstanding issues which had prevented plant production resuming.

LONDON (OCT. 8) - World shipping rates dipped early on but ended slightly higher this past week, as shipowners became more confident ahead of the weekend following news of a better-priced grain fixing.

The Baltic International Freight Futures Exchange (BIFFEX)'s Baltic Freight

Index (BFI) ended the week up two points at 1,171.

News that 20.75 dollars per tonne was paid for a November 52,000 tonne U.S. Gulf to Japan grain shipment lifted sentiment, while further unconfirmed reports that a 22 dollar rate was being considered for further November shipments on the same route added to the firmer tone.

Traders said that the better rate, which compared with 19.85 dollars the previous week, suggested some success among owners in passing on recent increases in bunker fuel prices to charterers -- evidence that the recent downtrend to depressing levels might have halted.

Nominal BFI individual route rates ended mixed: U.S. Gulf to Japan grain was quoted at 20.833 dollars per tonne, up from 19.758 the previous week, although U.S. Gulf to Europe edged down to 11.050 dollars from 11.075.

Coal movements from the U.S. East Coast to Japan were quoted higher at 14.042 dollars per tonne against 13.992, but ore liftings from West Africa to Europe were quoted at 5.242 dollars per tonne against 5.300 the previous week.

Timecharter-based movements on transatlantic round voyages were quoted at 6,900 dollars per day against 6,866.667 the previous week.

MANILA (OCT. 8) - Finance Secretary Jesus Estanislao proposed Monday a novel way of helping ease the acute financial crisis in the Philipinnes, by levying taxes on the construction of tombs.

Mr. Estinaslao said in a radio interview that he had been amazed by the size of the mausoleums he saw during a visit to a cemetery for the wealthy on Sunday.

Anybody who built a mausoleum costing half a million pesos (194,17 dollars) or more should be taxed accordingly, he proposed.

The size of tombs, and the quality and workmanship of coffins, are considered status symbols in this largely Roman Catholic nation.

Affluent families are fond of building large, marble-inlaid mausoleums.

President Corazon Aquino has ordered a 20 per cent cut in the 1991 budget of government agencies in order to shrink the growing budget deficit, which stood at 29 billion pesos (1.13 billion dollars) as of August and which was expected to push up inflation and interest rates.

NEW DELHI (OCT. 8) - Three more students attempted suicide in the Indian capital Monday to protest a caste-based job quota scheme while others renewed attacks on government vehicles, police said.

The events coincided with the reopening of schools after a long recess due to the unrest.

The three, including a young schoolboy, tried to kill themselves while others halted traffic and attacked buses to protest New Delhi's scheme to allot nearly half of all public sector jobs to lower castes.

Atul (eds: one name), a 14-year-old, doused his clothes with kerosene and set himself on fire in the eastern Delhi district of Loni, suffering burns on 20 per cent of his body, police said.

An 18-year-old student set himself ablaze in front of an industrial training institute in East Delhi, suffering burns over 55 percent of his body before fellow students doused the flames, witnesses said.

Another teenager swallowed sleeping pills at his home on the outskirts of Delhi, but police did not say if he had succeeded.

More than 95 Indian students have attempted to kill themselves, mainly in the country's north.

At least 31 of them have died since September 19 when a Delhi university student, Rajeev Goswami, triggered the wave of suicide attempts by setting himself alight. Doctors said he was still in critical state.

The administration shut some 600 Delhi schools on August 27 due to the deteriorating law and order situation in the capital. It reopened them briefly last month, then again ordered their closure because of the student quota protests.

CAIRO (OCT. 8) - Egyptian authorities have arrested another five purported members of the Abu Nidal Palestinian terrorist group who were smuggled into the country to stage attacks at tourist sites and government facilities, according to a report Monday.

Arms and ammunition were also confiscated from the Palestinians, who were said to have entered the country using passports taken from Egyptian workers in Iraq, according to the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram.

The newspaper, quoting government sources, said the alleged terrorists took advantage of the influx of Egyptians returning from Iraq and Kuwait in recent weeks to get through customs unimpeded.

Investigations were said to be continuing in an effort to determine whether the men were involved in last February's attack on an Israeli tour bus.

Four other Abu Nidal group members and a number of Palestinians and Iraqis were arrested earlier, the government announced over the weekend.

President Hosny Mubarak accused Iraq Thursday of planning terrorist strikes against targets in Egypt in retaliation for Egypt's role in the military build-up in the Gulf.

DRESDEN (OCT. 8) - German Research Minister Heinz Riesenhuber on Monday named the German astronauts who will be taking part in the second U.S. Spacelab mission and the Soviet Mir space station flight in 1992.

The meteorologist Renate Bruemmer - Germany's first female astronaut - and the physicists Hans Wilhelm Schlegel, Gerhard Thiele and Ulrich Walter were tapped for the Spacelab mission.

Physicist Reinhold Ewald and German air force test pilot Klaus Dietrich Flade will start training for the Mir flight.

The announcement came during the 41st Congress of the International Astronautical Federation (Iaf), which opened here Monday.

Taking part in the congress, which runs until Saturday, are more than 1,500 scientists, space flight experts and astronauts from 40 countries. The participants plan to discuss the latest developments in space research and the future of space flight.

Iaf president George P. Van Reeth said the federation would accept 10 new members this week, bringing the number of its members to 123 organisations from 39 countries.

DAMASCUS (OCT. 8) - Japanese Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama was to begin a two-day visit here Monday for talks with Syrian officials on the Gulf crisis, the Japanese Embassy here said.

Japanese government sources said last month that Tokyo was considering adding Syria and Morocco to a list of countries receiving financial aid from Japan to alleviate economic problems caused by the Gulf crisis.

The statement issued by the embassy, however, said only that Tokyo "considers Mr. Nakayama's visit as extremely important to reinforce Syrian-Japanese ties".

It also expressed Japan's "high esteem for Syria's firm position on the Gulf crisis, its rejection of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, its respect for U.N. Security Council resolutions and the dispatch of troops to Saudi Arabia."

The embassy said Syria was at the forefront of efforts to reduce tension in the Gulf, triggered by Baghdad's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Mr. Nakayama's visit to Damascus comes at the end of a Middle East tour by Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu to discuss the Gulf crisis and Japan's role in the region.

Tokyo has given Jordan, Egypt and Turkey a total of two billion dollars and has pledged another two billion dollars to finance the deployment of a multinational force in Saudi Arabia, where 1,100 Syrian troops are stationed.

Mr. Nakayama will have talks with key Syrian officials, including Foreign Minister Farouk al-Shara, on international and bilateral affairs and means of bolstering economic and technical ties between the two countries.

Japan imports cotton and leather from Syria, and exports domestic appliances and cars. In 1988, Japanese exports to Syria totalled 131.1 million dollars, against 4.5 million dollars worth of Syrian exports to Japan.

MAGDEBURG, GERMANY (OCT. 8) - An international commission to clean up the heavily polluted the river Elbe was set up Monday in Magdeburg by Germany, Czechoslovakia and the European Community.

The organisation is to establish a register of all sources of contamination, coordinate the construction of sewage treating plants and set up an alarm system for industrial accidents.

German Environment Minister Klaus Toepfer, his Czechoslovak colleague Josef Vavrousek and E.C. representative Laurens Jan Brinkhorst signed a treaty and pledged that the river should once again yield drinking water and its fish should be edible again.

It was the first international signed by Germany after reunification on October 3.

A major European river, the Elbe flows from northern Czechoslovakia through Germany to the North Sea and has a length of 1,144 kilometres.

It carries an annual load of 3.9 million tons of industrial salt residues, 316,000 tons of washing agents and fertilisers, and 3,500 tons of heavy metals chiefly from chemical and paper producing plants in Czechoslovakia and the former East Germany.

MANILA (OCT. 8) XINHUA - THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT WILL EXTEND TO THE PHILIPPINES A LOAN OF 26 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS TO ALLEVIATE THE ECONOMIC DIFFICULTIES CAUSED BY THE GULF CRISIS, A PHILIPPINE HIGH-RANKING FOREIGN AFFAIRS OFFICIAL SAID TODAY.

THE OFFICIAL, WHO ASKED NOT TO BE IDENTIFIED, SAID THAT THE AGREEMENT ON THE NEW LOAN, WHICH WILL BE OVER AND ABOVE THE 17TH YEN LOAN AND THE JAPANESE CONTRIBUTION TO THE PHILIPPINE ASSISTANCE PROGRAM, WILL BE SIGNED BEFORE OCTOBER 24.

ASIDE FROM THE ADVERSE EFFECT TO THE COUNTRY'S ECONOMY, SUCH AS THE INCREASE IN PRICES OF OIL, THE PHILIPPINES ALSO LOST MILLIONS OF DOLLARS IN THE FORM OF LOSS OF REMITTANCES OF FILIPINO OVERSEAS WORKERS WHO HAVE BEEN DISPLACED BY THE MIDDLE EAST CONFLICT AND HAVE JOINED THE RANKS OF THE UNEMPLOYED.

THE OFFICIAL SAID THAT PRESIDENT CORAZON AQUINO IS EXPECTED TO DISCUSS ISSUES OF THE PHILIPPINE ASSISTANCE PROGRAM AND FOREIGN DEBT WHEN SHE MEETS WITH JAPANESE PRIME MINISTER TOSHIKI KAIFU IN TOKYO DURING THE CORONATION OF PRINCE AKIHITO AS EMPEROR ON NOVEMBER 11 AND 12.

TOKYO (OCT. 8) KYODO - THE MINISTRY OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INDUSTRY (MITI) BEGAN INTERVIEWING EXECUTIVES OF MAJOR OIL WHOLESALERS MONDAY TO DETERMINE SWINGS IN THE COST OF CRUDE OIL IMPORTS IN YET ANOTHER MOVE TO PREVENT PRICE GOUGING.

MITI OFFICIALS SAID THE HEARINGS, INVOLVING SEPARATE INTERVIEWS WITH EACH COMPANY, WILL BE WRAPPED UP WITHIN THIS WEEK AFTER THEY OBTAIN DATA ON CHANGES IN OIL IMPORT PRICES, FREIGHT COSTS, AND FOREIGN EXCHANGE MOVEMENTS SINCE AUGUST.

SUCH DATA WILL BE USED IN MONITORING A PRICE HIKE FOR PETROLEUM PRODUCTS SUCH AS GASOLINE AND KEROSENE SLATED BY WHOLESALERS FOR MID-OCTOBER.

THE MAJOR OIL COMPANIES RAISED THEIR WHOLESALE PRICES FOR SUCH PRODUCTS LAST MONTH IN RESPONSE TO THE SURGE IN WORLD CRUDE OIL PRICES SINCE IRAQ'S AUGUST 2 INVASION OF KUWAIT.

TOKYO (OCT. 8) KYODO - A MAJORITY OF JAPANESE COMPANIES FAVOR THE EMPLOYMENT OF FOREIGN TRAINEES, ACCORDING TO A SURVEY RELEASED BY THE LABOR MINISTRY ON MONDAY.

THE SURVEY, THE FIRST OF ITS KIND COMPILED BY THE MINISTRY, SAID 62.5 PERCENT OF THE COMPANIES THAT RESPONDED WANTED TO RECRUIT FOREIGN TRAINEES.

THE SURVEY, CONDUCTED BY THE MINISTRY ON JULY 1, COVERED 6,104 FIRMS -- 2,104 OF THEM LISTED PUBLICLY ON THE TOKYO, NAGOYA AND OSAKA STOCK EXCHANGES -- OF WHICH 2,718 RESPONDED.

ASKED WHETHER THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD INCREASE THE NUMBER OF FOREIGN TRAINEES, 64.1 PERCENT SAID THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD DO SO.

AS AN INDICATION OF THE RECRUITMENT OF FOREIGN TRAINEES BY JAPANESE FIRMS, 10 PERCENT SAID THEY HAVE HIRED SUCH TRAINEES, WITH THE AVERAGE BEING 16.8 TRAINEES PER COMPANY.

BY NATIONALITY, CHINA ACCOUNTED FOR 34.4 PERCENT OF A TOTAL OF 4,597 TRAINEES EMPLOYED, THE UNITED STATES FOR 17.6 PERCENT, SOUTH KOREA FOR 16.8 PERCENT, AND MALAYSIA FOR 13.9 PERCENT.

TOKYO (OCT. 8) KYODO - SALES OF NEW CONDOMINIUMS IN THE TOKYO METROPOLITAN AREA ROSE 8.3 PERCENT IN SEPTEMBER FROM A YEAR EARLIER, BUT THE RATIO OF INVENTORIES HIT A SIX-YEAR HIGH FOR THE MONTH, A PRIVATE RESEARCH INSTITUTE SAID MONDAY.

REAL ESTATE ECONOMIC INSTITUTE CO. SAID A TOTAL OF 3,843 CONDOMINIUMS WERE SOLD ON A CONTRACT BASIS, REPRESENTING ONLY 67.1 PERCENT OF THOSE GOING ON SALE DURING THE PERIOD, DOWN 11.9 POINTS FROM THE SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR.

IT IS THE FIRST TIME SINCE 1984 THAT THE SEPTEMBER RATIO HAS FALLEN BELOW 70 PERCENT, SIGNALING A WEAKNESS IN THE INTEREST-SENSITIVE HOUSING SECTOR, INSTITUTE OFFICIALS SAID.

THE SEPTEMBER STATISTICS TOOK INDUSTRY OFFICIALS BY SURPRISE AS THEY HAD EXPECTED THE RATIO OF SALES TO TOTAL OFFERS TO GO ABOVE 80 PERCENT AS DEMAND IS USUALLY STRONG IN SEPTEMBER AND OCTOBER.

INSTITUTE OFFICIALS BLAMED THE WEAK SHOWING LARGELY ON RISING HOUSING LOAN RATES AS WELL AS ON AN INCREASE IN CONDOMINIUM PRICES. THEY PREDICT A SLUMP IN CONDOMINIUM SALES IN COMING MONTHS.

CONDOMINIUM PRICES AVERAGED 59.07 MILLION YEN IN SEPTEMBER, A 13.9 PERCENT JUMP FROM A YEAR EARLIER. THE OFFICIALS SAID HIGH LAND PRICES WILL LIKELY KEEP THE LEVEL OF CONDOMINIUM PRICES HIGH FOR A WHILE.

THE INSTITUTE ALSO ANNOUNCED DATA ON SALES IN THE OSAKA METROPOLITAN AREA IN SEPTEMBER SHOWING THE SAME PATTERN AS IN THE TOKYO AREA.

THE SALES-TO-OFFERS RATIO STOOD AT 64.3 PERCENT IN THE OSAKA AREA, SHARPLY DOWN FROM 82.3 PERCENT IN AUGUST AND THE LOWEST LEVEL SINCE JANUARY 1989, WHEN IT WAS 54.1 PERCENT, THE INSTITUTE SAID.

IN SEPTEMBER, A TOTAL OF 2,747 UNITS WENT ON SALE, OF WHICH 1,767 UNITS WERE SOLD ON A CONTRACT BASIS, IT SAID.

TOKYO (OCT. 8) KYODO - GLOBAL DEMAND FOR STEEL WILL WEAKEN IN 1990-1991 IN LINE WITH THE SLUGGISH ECONOMIC GROWTH IN INDUSTRIALIZED NATIONS, ACCORDING TO A REPORT PUBLISHED BY AN INTERNATIONAL STEEL INSTITUTE MONDAY.

THE INTERNATIONAL IRON AND STEEL INSTITUTE (IISI) FORECAST THAT WORLD STEEL

DEMAND WILL INCH DOWN 0.9 PERCENT FROM AN ALL-TIME HIGH POSTED LAST YEAR TO 779 MILLION TONS IN 1990 AND WILL FALL 0.8 PERCENT TO 773 MILLION TONS IN 1991.

DEMAND IN INDUSTRIAL NATIONS WILL COME TO 369 MILLION TONS THIS YEAR, DOWN 3 MILLION TONS, WHILE THAT IN DEVELOPING COUNTRIES WILL GROW 4.1 PERCENT TO 128 MILLION TONS.

THE ECONOMIC TURBULANCE IN THE EAST BLOC NATIONS STEMMING FROM THEIR EFFORTS TOWARD MARKET-ORIENTED ECONOMIES WILL HELP CUT THEIR STEEL DEMAND BY 3.4 PERCENT TO 282 MILLION TONS IN 1990.

IN 1991, DEMAND WILL SLOW 1.9 PERCENT IN INDUSTRIAL NATIONS, RISE 5.5 PERCENT IN DEVELOPING COUNTRIES, AND FALL 2.1 PERCENT IN COMMUNIST NATIONS, SAID THE INSTITUTE, WHICH COMPRISES STEEL MAKERS IN 44 COUNTRIES.

THE DOWNWARD TREND IN STEEL DEMAND, HOWEVER, WILL STOP AROUND 1995, BOOSTED BY ROBUST DEMAND FROM DEVELOPING COUNTRIES, WHICH IS EXPECTED TO MORE THAN OFFSET THE CONTINED SLUMP IN DEMAND FROM MAJOR INDUSTRIALIZED COUNTRIES.

THE REPORT PUT WORLD DEMAND IN 1995 AT 782-828 MILLION TONS, WITH DEVELOPED NATIONS ACCOUNTING FOR 355 MILLION TONS, DEVELOPING NATIONS FOR 148 MILLION TONS, AND THE EAST BLOC FOR 279 MILLION TONS.

JAKARTA (OCT. 8) KYODO - PROMINENT INDONESIAN DISSIDENT ALI SADIKIN HAS SUGGESTED MONDAY THAT RECENTLY FREED POLITICAL PRISONER RETIRED GEN. DHARSONO SHOULD STAND AS A CANDIDATE IN THE 1993 PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

ALI SADIKIN SAID IN AN INTERVIEW WITH KYODO NEWS SERVICE THAT DHARSONO SHOULD RUN FOR PRESIDENT BECAUSE HE HAS BEEN A CONSISTENT FIGURE IN ANTIGOVERNMENT STRUGGLE, AND DOES NOT ACCUMULATE WEALTH, UNLIKE OTHER LEADERS.

A 63-YEAR-OLD RETIRED ADMIRAL, ALI SADIKIN WAS MINISTER OF COMMUNICATION FROM 1963 TO 1966, AND GOVERNOR OF JAKARTA FROM 1966 TO 1977.

HE IS LEADER OF THE LONG-STANDING PETISI 50 GROUP THAT HAS BEEN CRITICIZING PRESIDENT SUHARTO'S GOVERNMENT SINCE 1980.

DHARSONO HAD BEEN A COMMANDER OF THE PRESTIGIOUS SILIWANGI ARMY DIVISION THAT SUPPORTED THE ESTABLISHMENT OF SUHARTO'S GOVERNMENT, AND FORMER SECRETARY GENERAL OF THE ASSOCIATION OF SOUTHEAST ASIAN NATIONS (ASEAN). HE WAS ARRESTED IN 1984 AND SENTENCED TO A SEVEN-YEAR TERM FOR SUBVERSION IN 1986.

BUT DHARSONO IS NOT A MEMBER OF THE PETISI 50 GROUP. ALI SADIKIN SUPPORTED DHARSONO'S PROPOSAL FOR A NEW PARTY, SAYING IT WAS IN LINE WITH THE 1945 CONSTITUTION.

DHARSONO SAID IN A RECENT INTERVIEW WITH KYODO THAT INDONESIA NEEDS A NEW PARTY TO GIVE THE NATION SHOCK THERAPY.

ALI SADIKIN SAID THE PRESENT THREE POLITICAL PARTIES ARE CONTROLLED UNDER THE GOVERNMENT'S DEPOLITICIZATION POLICY. THIS POLICY IS A KIND OF SOCIAL ENGINEERING, SO THE GOVERNMENT IS ACTIVE AND THE PARTIES CAN DO NOTHING, HE SAID.

BEIJING (OCT. 8) KYODO - JAPAN HAS DECIDED TO PROVIDE A TOTAL OF 36.5 BILLION YEN TO CHINA IN 1990, THE FIRST YEAR OF ITS FIVE-YEAR YEN LOAN PACKAGE TO BEIJING, JAPANESE SOURCES HERE SAID MONDAY.

THE DECISION IS EXPECTED TO BE APPROVED BY BOTH COUNTRIES LATE THIS MONTH, AFTER THE DETAILS ARE DISCUSSED BETWEEN THE GOVERNMENT AND CHINESE GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS, WHO ARE SCHEDULED TO VISIT JAPAN FROM OCTOBER 9-17.

THE 1990 CREDIT, THE FIRST SINCE JAPAN REOPENED ITS THIRD FIVE-YEAR LOAN PACKAGE WORTH 810 BILLION YEN TO CHINA IN JULY AFTER A ONE-YEAR FREEZE IN PROTEST AT THE BLOODY TIANANMEN SQUARE INCIDENT, WILL FINANCE SEVEN PROJECTS, INCLUDING CONSTRUCTION OF A HYDROELECTRIC POWER PLANT IN WUGIANGXI.

AMONG THOSE PROJECTS WILL BE A DAM IN GUANINGE, AND WATERWORKS IN XIAN, CHONGGING, ANSHAN, AND FOUR OTHER CITIES, THE SOURCES SAID.

CHINA HAS CALLED ON JAPAN TO LEND 120 BILLION YEN FOR 12 PROJECTS, BUT THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT HAS YET TO DECIDE WHETHER TO INCLUDE THE OTHER EIGHT PROJECTS IN THE FIRST-YEAR DISBURSEMENT, THEY SAID.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (OCT. 8) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

IN THE NEWS:

World stock markets rally. ... The NIKKEI adds 805 points. .. In London, the FTSE is up more than 71 points in mid-day trading. ... The HOUSE approved a new five- year, $500 billion deficit-reduction package early this morning. ... Negotiators for the UNITED AUTO WORKERS and FORD MOTORS have reached a tentative agreement on a new contract. ... HEWLETT-PACKARD says it has realigned its computer business and restructured top management. ... The unions trying to buy UNITED AIRLINES have failed to line up the bank financing they were trying to get.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

The SENATE convenes at 2 p.m. to consider the HOUSE- passed new budget accord. ... The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT issues housing completion figures for August on THURSDAY and major companies report on September retail sales. with retail sales and wholesale trade from COMMERCE.

FROM THE BULLS:

GLENN CUTLER, editor of "Market Mania" newsletter, believes the Dow will rally to 2630 this month. "I feel the Dow is building a complex bottom and that a lot of stocks have already seen their lows," says Cutler. "The momentum to the downside seems to have abated and I think there's an increasing appetite to buy stocks. There's no question the economy is in bad shape. That reinforces the likelihood the FEDERAL RESERVE will ease." ("Investor's Daily" 10/8)

"I personally think interest rates are headed down here and when other people realize that, then I think the market will go up," says MICHAEL METZ of OPPENHEIMER AND CO. ("Wall Street Week", 10/5)

FROM THE BEARS:

"We believe that although more than a year old by some measures, this nasty bear market still has points and months to go," writes ALAN ABELSON, editor of "Barron's." ("Barron's", 10/8)

"At this point, I'd want to be flat or short stocks," says JON GROVEMAN, president of LANDENBURG, THALMANN & CO. "The Dow could rally to 2600, but I think the big move will be to the downside. Even if the budget is worked out and the Fed can ease it won't be enough. We are having a credit crisis and rising oil prices and the threat of war in the Middle East." ("Investor's Daily", 10/8)

BYRON WIEN, portfolio strategist at MORGAN STANLEY & CO., puts himself in the camp with those who see a cyclical bear market -- one that will last less than a year, pull price down an additional 10 percent and then rebound -- as opposed to a more serious secular bear market. "My view assumes that the safety nets will work," says Wein. "One of the safety nets is Congress. There was a belief that Congress would see that we have problems and would pass a budget compromise bill -- and it did not." As to lower interest rates in a time of no budget resolution, he says, "The Fed can act independently, but it can't act unilaterally." (NYT, 10/7)

"Most bear markets have corrected at least half of the gains of the preceding bull market," says RICHARD RUSSELL publisher of "Dow Theory Letters." "If that holds true in the present case, the Dow could easily sink back to the 1780 area. ... Students of stock market history should not be shocked if the final bear market low for the Dow is well below 1650." ("Barron's", 10/8)

STOCK MARKET:

"The market will think the budget impasse is very temporary, nothing of great consequence," says CHARLES CLOUGH, chief market strategist for MERRILL LYNCH. ("USA Today", 10/8)

"There are two possible cases on the budget for the stock market," says RICHARD HOEY, chief economist at BARCLAYS de ZOETE WEDD. "The bear case is that they will succeed in getting a deal. The other bear case is they won't. If they get one, we worsen the recession. If they don't get one, they collapse confidence and it's too late to do any good." (WSJ, 10/8)

CARTER RANDALL looks for the market to bounce around about where it is for "quite some time but I do think ... we are developing some good value in the market and I think there are going to be some good opportunities for individual stocks. I look at things like the bank stocks, both regional and major bank stocks. They're down because of the obvious problems of the banks, but they're way down, much more than the loan writeoffs would deserve. I see a big bounce back in them -- maybe after the first of the year when heavy selling is over." ("Wall Street Week", 10/5)

"For a new bull market to begin, we will have to have a resumption of rapid money supply growth," says STEFAN ABRAMS, chief investment strategist at KIDDER, PEABODY & CO. (WSJ, 10/8)

The so-called October jinx in the stock market is "always in the back of everyone's mind," says TONY WOODRUFF, head trader at KIDDER PEABODY & CO. "Kiddingly, we've said around here that maybe we should take the month of October off and avoid trouble." On a more serious note, Woodruff believes past October performances should be no indication of how stocks will react this month because "the landscape is different." Now, he says, "the market has been concerned with the financial structure of the U.S. The whole downdraft in the market is based on that." ("The Washington Post", 10/7)

Many analysts say poor earnings reports expected over the next couple of weeks are not likely to have a major effect on the stock market. "Investors are probably gloomy enough," says WILLIAM HELMAN of SMITH BARNEY, HARRIS UPHAM & CO. "I don't know they're going to be that disappointed." ("Investor's Daily", 10/8)

"At any time in the stock market there is more than one trend in effect and here the major trend is down," says BERNADETTE MURPHY. "However, I do think also that the market is starting to respond somewhat better. I think today [Friday] it had every reason to go down and test the lows, but it stopped quite short of those lows and I thought that was positive action. I do think we could get some improvement in interest rates and I think that might buoy the market. There probably are trading opportunities, but it's a high risk trade. People should be searching out stocks that did not break their January lows. But in bear market rallies, the rallies never last as long and they never go as far as you think they're going to go, so there is risk." She looks for the current bear market to end next year, somewhere around the end of the first quarter or in the second quarter. ("Wall Street Week," 10/5)

STOCK TIPS:

"I think you're apt to get the best performance in high quality, fixed income securities such as Treasuries and you've got to minimize your maturity exposure," says WILLIAM SULLIVAN, senior vice president at DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS. "Two-year to five-year notes are very attractive investments. They give you an adequate return and, with the prospect of Fed easing, you've got the opportunity of capital appreciation. I think if you go beyond the intermediate area you're just taking on too much risk and volatility." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 10/5)

The unions trying to buy the parent of UNITED AIRLINES say they have failed to line up bank financing for their effort and will be forced to bid with less cash than the $2 billion they hoped to have. "If they come in with less cash, a lower price and a lot of paper, it's not going to be accepted by the board," says EDWARD STARKMAN, airline analyst at PAINEWEBBER. (NYT, 10/8)

"What happens down in Washington with the budget isn't going to make or break the market," says JAMES SOLLOWAY, chief economist at ARGUS RESEARCH. He advises investors to concentrate on avoiding negative earnings surprises by buying such "quality" stocks as MERCK. "Don't take a flier on a CHASE MANHATTAN or a UAL," he says. "Stick with quality and visible earnings consistency." (WSJ, 10/8)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (OCT. 8) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"I wouldn't be surprised if the dollar rallies," says MICHAEL LIPPER, president of LIPPER ANALYTICAL. (WSJ, 10/8)

"The budget discord" is partly to blame for the failing dollar, "but also the weak economy," says MARTION MAURO of MERRILL LYNCH. He thinks the Fed will be forced to ease, lowering the attractiveness of the greenback. (CNBC "World

Business", 10/8)

"The long-term trend in the dollar is negative," says MICHAEL BENSON of LEHMAN BROS. He says that factor makes U.S. stocks less attractive to investors abroad. (FNN "World Business Report, 10/8)

"As recession fears mount, safety and liquidity are becoming increasingly attractive to U.S. investors," says SUSAN HERING of SALOMON BROTHERS. "This preference -- evident in widening corporate quality spreads and a sliding equity market -- is especially apparent in the abrupt reversal of an 18-month narrowing in the cash Treasury-Eurodollar futures spread in August." ("Investor's Daily", 10/8)

Several members of the FEDERAL OPEN MARKET COMMITTEE believe interest rates will need to be lowered eventually to offset economic weakness. But the minutes of the Aug. 21 FOMC meeting that were released Friday says "the timing and circumstances of any such easing would have to be weighed carefully ... to avoid an unfavorable impact on inflationary attitudes and associated upward pressure on long-term interest rates." ("Investor's Daily", 10/8)

"The employment report was sufficiently weak to justify an easing right away," says ROBERT CHANDROSS, chief economist at LLOYD BANK. "But the Fed has put itself in a corner. It can't ease unless Congress adopts a budget plan." (WSJ, 10/8)

"There's just no question in my mind that we're going to see easing of money by the FEDERAL RESERVE," says CARTER RANDALL. "We're in an economic slowdown, recession, whatever you want to call it, and lower rates are very, very much ahead of us -- no question." ("Wall Street Week", 10/5)

"It's a mistake to link monetary policy to fiscal policy because it puts the Fed in cahoots" with Congress, says DAVID RESLER, chief economist at NOMURA SECURITIES. ("Investor's Daily", 10/8)

"Even if Congress comes up with a new budget, we will still have a record budget deficit this year and that means the government will have to auction a significant amount of new supply" of Treasury bonds, says LAWRENCE LEUZZI of S.G. WARBURG & CO. "Until some of the [budget and war fear] issues are resolved, it will be a very difficult time for bond investors. There is no way of properly weighing the risks and rewards of various outcomes." (WSJ, 10/8)

THE ECONOMY:

"In this environment, a mild recession is among the least likely of scenarios " says JOSEPH DUNCAN, vice president and economist at DUN & BRADSTREET. "To an unusual degree, the future direction of the economy will hinge on psychological factors. If both business and consumer confidence hold up -- and I think they will -- then the soft landing should materialize after all. However, if a collapse in overall confidence does occur, as it very well might if the situation with Iraq boils over into an armed conflict, then hang on to your hat because we may be in for one heck of a slide." (NYT, 10/7)

"There were almost no areas of strength to be found whatsoever" in Friday's unemployment report, says DOUG HANDLER of DUN & BRADSTREET. "One has to say than when activity begins to show this much weakness, [the economy] is right on the edge of a recession," says LYLE GRAMLEY, chief economist for the MORTGAGE BANKERS ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA. ("Investor's Daily", 10/8)

"I have very strong convictions that oil prices will be below $20 a barrel in six months," says MICHAEL METZ of OPPENHEIMER AND CO. ("Wall Street Week", 10/5)

IN WASHINGTON:

The latest budget package "is a very broad outline, and pretty much of the same flavor of what was talked about before," says MARTION MAURO of MERRILL LYNCH. Mauro calls the government's performance over the past few weeks "a disturbing spectacle," and says it "may hurt us in the international arena." (CNBC "World Business", 10/8)

"Shutting down the government for a short period is acceptable," says LOUIS CRANDALL, chief economist at R.H. WRIGHTSON & ASSOCIATES. "A default is not. They have to get something done by Thursday morning" when interest payments on Treasury bills are due. "One way or another we will have a budget package and a cut in the deficit," says PAUL KASRIEL of NORTHERN TRUST CO. (NYT, 10/8)

ARNIE WOLTER of DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS wonders what Congress and federal officials would do if the market rallied on word of a government shutdown. "I wonder if they'd get the message," muses Wolter. ("Investor's Daily", 10/8)

"As we enter the decade of the 1990s, we should consider a fundamental shift in the goal we set for the accounting standards for financial institutions," says SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION CHAIRMAN RICHARD BREEDEN. ("Investor's Daily", 10/8)

NEW YORK (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - American Express Travel Related Services has entered into an agreement with Hoteleticket, the leading computerized ticketing distribution network that books reservations and prints airline tickets with boarding passes within minutes of a call to its 800 hotline. The new contract makes possible the delivery of airline tickets to American Express' clients via Hoteleticket's nationwide satellite ticket printer network.

Announcement of the agreement between American Express and Hoteleticket was made jointly by Jim Thompson, vice president, American Express Travel Related Services of American Express, and W. Edd Helms Jr., chairman and president of Hotelecopy FaxMail, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: FAXM). "In a travel environment where time is the traveler's most precious commodity, we foresee this working relationship as a boon to our clients, eliminating critical travel time lost waiting in long airport lines," Thompson pointed out. Edd Helms sees the new relationship as "an excellent opportunity to utilize our satellite ticket printer network and further reinforce our partnership with Hoteleticket's national hotel base, directing American Express' clients into our member hotels." Helms added that "Hoteleticket welcomes the opportunity to coordinate its services with American Express, the pre-eminent organization in the travel industry, whose reputation for 'travel firsts' is well-known."

Hoteleticket is a subsidiary of Miami-based Hotelecopy FaxMail, Inc., the world's largest public access FaxMail network, operating in nearly 2,000 hotels, airports and U.S. post offices. Hotelecopy FaxMail, Inc. is endorsed by the American Hotel & Motel Association as "the FaxMail network of the lodging industry."

HOUSTON (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Garnet Resources Corp (NASDAQ: GARN) today announced the current status of certain operations in the Putumayo area of Colombia.

Garnet said that the Linda No. 2 well, a confirmation test three-quarters of a mile east of the Linda No. 1 discovery well, has reached total depth of 9,340 feet and electric logs have been run. Garnet's evaluation of present well data suggests that certain pay zones may not produce oil, and further testing of the well is required to determine with certainty whether the well has oil production potential. The test program, which has been commenced, is estimated to take two weeks.

The company said it is proceeding with plans to request approval from Empresa Colombiana de Petroleos, the Colombian national oil company, to develop and produce the Toroyaco and Linda fields. If approved, the project would include construction of a 50-mile pipeline to transport oil to existing Trans-Andean pipeline facilities for Pacific Coast export. First Production is not expected before the second half of 1991.

Garnet stated further that the Mary No. 1, an exploration well approximately 6.5 miles northeast of the Linda No. 1, is presently drilling at approximately 4,000 feet toward a projected total depth of approximately 8,100 feet.

Garnet is engaged primarily in international oil and gas exploration activities. Exploration and production operations in Colombia are conducted through its subsidiary Argosy Energy International.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Control Data Corporation (NYSE: CDA) and Martin Marietta Corporation (NYSE: ML) announced an agreement today under which Martin Marietta will purchase Control Data's reconnaissance systems business segment.

Under terms of the transaction, the rights to complete development, testing, integration and production of the Advanced Tactical Air Reconnaissance System (ATARS) will transfer from Control Data, which has been the program's prime contractor, to Martin Marietta, subject to formal approval by the U.S. Air Force. Additional terms of the sale were not disclosed. As a result of the transaction, Control Data will establish a reserve of approximately $10 million in the fourth quarter.

Control Data was awarded the ATARS contract in 1988 to provide sensor integration and reconnaissance management systems to the U.S. Air Force's Aeronautical Systems Division.

ATARS is an upgrade to U.S. Air Force tactical reconnaissance aircraft with electro-optical sensor suites replacing existing camera and film systems. It includes both low and medium altitude electro- optical sensors, an infrared line scanner, a digital recorder, a jam- resistant data link and a reconnaissance management system.

ATARS records video information on magnetic tape that can be directly transmitted from aircraft to ground stations. Aircraft crews also can review and edit the video imagery.

With the acquisition of the ATARS program, contract management is being transferred to Martin Marietta Electronic Systems, Orlando, Fla.

Martin Marietta will integrate ATARS sensors into the U.S. Air Force's RF-16 reconnaissance pod, the Navy's F/A-18 reconnaissance pallet and the services' medium range unmanned air vehicle.

Control Data is a provider of data solutions that integrate hardware, software and services to meet customers' complex data collection, processing and communications needs. Its Government Systems business provides computer systems, hardware, software and related services to the defense and space industries.

Martin Marietta Corporation designs, manufactures, integrates and operates systems and products in leading edge technologies, including aerospace, electronics, information management, materials and energy.

CADILLAC, MI (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Con-Way Central Express (CCX), an Ann Arbor, Mich. based regional trucking company, has completed construction of a new service center in Cadillac that will provide next-day freight service to 600 northwest Michigan communities.

The new service center, which opens today, is located on a five-acre parcel at 7859 E. 34th Rd., Cadillac, 616-779-1900. Ken Holgate has been named service center manager for the new facility, which has 24 doors for processing freight shipments and more than 10,000 square feet of dock space.

The facility initially will employ 10 people and will have seven tractors and 14 trailers for making local freight pick-ups and deliveries, according to Gerald L. Detter, CCX president. CCX began serving northwest Michigan communities in 1988, providing service on a second-day delivery basis, Detter noted.

"In two years, our business in this region has grown considerably," said Detter. "With the new Cadillac facility in operation, we will be able to upgrade our service to next-day delivery, handle higher freight volumes for more customers, and serve additional cities on a next-day basis."

Cadillac will provide local pick-up and delivery in an area bordered on the north by Traverse City, west to Ludington, south to Big Rapids and Mt. Pleasant, and east to Houghton Lake.

The advantage of the new Cadillac center for local businesses, Detter explained, is the ability to use CCX's 98 percent on-time service as a "warehouse on wheels," moving products to and from a wider regional market, yet still making next-day delivery commitments, thereby increasing sales or reducing inventory and supplier costs.

Next-day service points from Cadillac will include cities such as Chicago and Rockford, Ill; Cleveland; Cincinnati; Dayton, Ohio; Milwaukee; and Louisville, Ky; as well as most of the state of Michigan.

CCX, founded in June 1983, operates a regional trucking network covering more than 35,000 communities across 11 Midwestern states, specializing in expedited next-day delivery for commercial and industrial freight shipments. It is one of four regional overnight trucking units of Con-Way Transportation Services, (CTS), a trucking and intermodal freight services company based in Palo Alto, Calif.

CTS's other regional carriers are Con-Way Western Express, Santa Fe Springs, Calif.; Con-Way Southern Express, Charlotte, N.C.; and Con-Way Southwest Express, Dallas. CTS also operates CF Truckload Service and CF Ocean Service, both based in Fort Worth, Texas.

TUALATIN, OR (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - In a move that demonstrates the company's innovation and expertise in Liquid Crystal Display (LCD) technology, In Focus Systems Inc. today announced it has been awarded a patent for very high-resolution (1280 x 1024 or higher), monochrome LCD display systems. In Focus is now the only LCD projection panel manufacturer that can provide the same high pixel resolution found in workstations. The new patented technology can be designed into products such as LCD projection panels, or direct-view displays for laptop and portable computers.

Prior attempts by LCD manufacturers to provide the 1280 x 1024 resolution were physically limited by inadequate refresh rates. To achieve the higher resolution, an electric current must sequentially refresh more than twice as many lines of the liquid crystal display in the same amount of time it takes to refresh 640 x 480 resolution LCDs, the current industry standard. Beyond the 640 x 480 resultion threshold, "flickers" begin to appear as the refresh rate lengthens.

In Focus overcame this limitation by coupling two 1280 x 512 resolution LCD panels to produce the 1280 x 1024 resolution. In Focus' patented high-resolution fabrication process, called interdigitating, stacks two 1280 x 512 resolution LCD panels, each containing alternating active and inactive rows, that are staggered so that each active row is in alignment with an inactive row. Interdigitating the panels reduces the number of rows that must be refreshed on a single panel. This maintains the 60-times-per-second refresh rate requirements, but provides the very high pixel resolution. The same concept can be extended to produce even higher resolution displays.

"LCD developers have been searching for the key to developing 1280 x 1024 high-resolution displays for quite some time," stated Paul Gulick, co-founder and vice president of technology of In Focus Systems. "We came up with a very straightforward concept that not only achieves high resolution in LCDs, but is easy to manufacture in quantity."

This is not the first patent awarded to In Focus for its advancements in LCD technology. The company also holds a patent for its triple supertwist nematic (TSTN1/8TM3/8) true-color LCD technology. In Focus is the only company with the capability to manufacture LCD projection panels that provide full-color, photographic-quality images. According to Gulick, In Focus has a patent pending on 1280 x 1024 resolution color LCDs.

In Focus has designed the 1280 x 1024 resolution monochrome LCDs into a projection system that is built into an overhead projector. The system projects monochrome images generated by workstations onto a wall or screen. Prototypes of the projection system have been developed for Digital Equipment Corp., who displayed the prototypes at DEC World earlier this year. The very high-resolution projection systems can be used in training and workgroup applications such as software code reviews by software engineering teams, CAD/CAM project reviews, and document editing. The company is currently taking orders for custom-made, high-resolution LCD products.

In Focus Systems Inc. was founded in October 1986 to develop, manufacture and market innovative information display products. The company shipped its first product, an LCD projection panel, in February 1987 and introduced the industry's first 640 x 480 high-resolution, color panel in October 1989. PITTSBURGH (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - National Intergroup, Inc. (NYSE: NII), announced today that it intends to call off its tender offer for all outstanding units of Permian Partners, L.P. at $3.5625 plus one non-transferable contingent value right per preference unit, if the amendment to Permian's Partnership Agreement that is a condition to the tender offer is not adopted by Nov. 6, 1990 (the date on which the New York Stock Exchange has required that all consents of the limited partners to the adoption of the amendment will expire).

NII said that as of the close of business on Oct. 5, 1990, the partnership was approximately 900,419 units short of the number of consents required to adopt the amendment. NII stated that the process cannot continue indefinitely and that it does not intend to raise the tender offer price.

NII also said that, to encourage brokers to work with their clients so that the Nov. 6 deadline can be met, it will pay to any qualified broker or dealer a fee of $0.05 per unit for each valid and unrevoked consent to the amendment solicited by him or her, provided that the amendment is adopted. NII said the fee will be paid only to brokers or dealers who represent to NII that they have disclosed to their clients any substantial interest, direct or indirect, that they have in Permian or its affiliates.

In addition, NII announced that on Oct. 5, 1990, the Order of the Delaware Court approving the previously announced settlement of certain litigation relating to the tender offer became a final unappealable judicial order in satisfaction of the settlement condition to the tender offer.

NII also announced that it is extending the tender offer until 5 p.m. (New York City time) on Oct. 22, 1990, subject to NII's right to extend the offer further. The offer was previously scheduled to expire at 12 midnight (New York City time) on Oct. 5, 1990. As of the close of business on Oct. 5, 1990, approximately 9,639,800 preference units, including 1,956,659 preference units pursuant to notices of guaranteed delivery, had been tendered and not withdrawn pursuant to the offer. The offer is conditioned upon, among other things, there being tendered and not withdrawn prior to the expiration of the offer at least 7,875,001 of the publicly held preference units, representing a majority of the publicly-held preference units.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - NWNL Companies, Inc.. (NASDAQ: NWNL) issued the following statement to correct what it believes to be a misleading opinion about its financial prospects for 1991 by a well-known short seller. The opinion was made public in the Oct. 5 issue of USA Today.

"Based on current information and our expectations for 1991, the management of NWNL Companies, Inc. is confident that the company's earnings from operations will remain strong. Our sound operating position gives us the long-term ability to earn our way through the downturn in the real estate and high yield bond markets that has affected virtually every sector of the financial services industry," said John E. Pearson, the company's chairman and chief executive officer.

"Despite the opinion by a short seller quoted in the Oct. 5 USA Today, we do not foresee the need for unusually large increases in the reserves we hold to protect against potential losses in our investment portfolio. Specifically, we expect 1991 net income to exceed the net income we have recorded during the last four quarters," Pearson said.

"It is important for investors to understand that short sellers stand to profit from the effect of negative predictions. It is also important for investors to be aware that this short seller's opinion on earnings outlook does not reflect the published opinions of any of the analysts who follow NWNL " he said.

COSTA MESA, CA (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - FileNet Corp. (NASDAQ: FILE) today said it expects to report revenues for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, of approximately $22 million, an increase of approximately 18 percent over the $18.6 million for the third quarter of 1989. It also said it expects to report a net loss for the quarter of approximately $500,000 or a loss of 5 cents per share, compared to a net loss of $1.8 million or a loss of 17 cents per share, in the comparable 1989 quarter. FileNet shipped 19 systems during the quarter, compared to 18 systems in the same quarter a year ago.

Revenues for the nine-month period ended Sept. 30, 1990, are expected to be approximately $73 million, an increase of 29 percent from $56.5 million for the same period of the prior year. The company has shipped a total of 74 systems in the nine months, up from 66 in the same period for 1989. Net income and net income per share are expected to approximate $2.9 million, or 28 cents per share, compared to $205,000, or 2 cents per share, for the same period last year.

"In addition to the usual types of delays in customer purchasing cycles, we also began to experience order delays due to the increasingly negative economic environment," stated Ted Smith, president and CEO. "A number of financial, commercial and governmental organizations changed their acquisition plans due to increasing signs of a recession and increased tensions in the Middle East. We anticipate that this economic environment will continue for some time. Therefore, we are reviewing our revenue expectations and expense plans for the balance of the year and 1991."

FileNet's financial position remains strong with cash and marketable securities of approximately $16.5 million. The company is well positioned financially with an estimated $44 million in working capital, a current ratio of approximately 3.4 to 1, and minimal long-term debt. At Sept. 30, 1990, the company estimates that shareholders' equity was $66.5 million, or $6.45 per share.

FileNet expects to release final third quarter results by Oct. 22, 1990. FileNet Corp. is the worldwide leader in manufacturing and marketing image processing systems used in paper-intensive business applications. A pioneer in its field, FileNet today has more than 370 systems installed in 29 countries. The company, which is headquartered in Costa Mesa, Calif., has sales offices in the United States, Canada, France, Germany and Switzerland. FileNet systems are sold in 25 other countries by Ing. C. NASHVILLE, TN (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Corrections Corporation of America (CCA)

(NASDAQ: CCAX) and the Metropolitan Government of Nashville and Davidson County, Tenn., (Metro) today announced they have reached an agreement for CCA to build and manage a medium-security detention facility for Metro. The prison will be built initally with 640 beds and have expansion capability to 872.

Nashville Mayor Bill Boner believes the privatization of this new correctional facility is a very positive step for Metro government with numerous benefits. "The awarding of this contract to CCA will save taxpayers dollars in both the construction and operation of this facility," stated Mayor Boner, "as well as allow us to meet the federally-mandated deadlines imposed to reduce the overcrowding of our jails."

CCA Chairman Thomas W. Beasley said the company is looking forward to managing a facility in Nashville, where CCA's corporate headquarters are located. "We are providing the very best jail and prison management to governments throughout the sunbelt," Beasley said, "and saving the taxpayers money everywhere we operate. We're particularly excited to do that here at home."

The new $18 million detention facility will be located on the present DeBerry Correctional Institute site. The site is being given to Metro by the state of Tennessee in return for Metro's agreement to house felons for the state. Metro will finance construction of the facility and will be reimbursed by the state over time.

A construction and three-year management contract between Metro and CCA was negotiated after a competitive bidding process in which CCA was the only vendor to submit a proposal. The project has been approved by the state Building Commission and the Metro City Council.

Construction of the facility should begin immediately, with opening scheduled for March 1992. The contract is expected to generate in excess of $6 million annually for CCA.

CCA manages prisons and other correctional institutions for governmental agencies. The company is the industry leader in private sector corrections with 6,744 beds in 21 facilities under management contract or construction. CCA provides a full range of services that include finance, design, construction, renovation and management of new or exisitng facilities.

ORLANDO, FL (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - RoTech Medical Corporaton (NASDAQ-NMS:

ROTC), a marketer and distributor of home care products and services announced earnings of $.30 per share for the year ended July 31, 1990 as compared to earnings of $.19 per share for the year ended July 31, 1989.

Net income for fiscal 1990 of $1,370,959 compares to net income of $823,495 for fiscal 1989. Net revenues increased 32 percent to $16,881,486 for the year ended July 31, 1990 vs. $12,816,341 for the year ended July 31, 1989.

ROTECH MEDICAL CORPORATION FISCAL YEAR

	1990	1989	Percentage Increase
Net Revenues	$16,881,486	$12,816,341	31.7
Net Income	$ 1,370,959	$ 823,495	66.5
Earnings per share	$ .30	$ .19	57.9

NET REVENUES BY SEGMENT	1990	1989	Percentage Increase (Decrease)
Home Medical	$10,586,139	$ 8,363,960	26.6
Equipment Home Infusion	$ 4,932,843	$ 2,092,367	135.8
Therapy Services Repackaged Pharmaceuticals	$ 1,306,965	$ 1,751,595	(25.4)
Other	$ 55,539	$ 608,419	(90.9)
	$16,881,486	$12,816,341	31.7

Management attributes the $4,065,145 or 32 percent growth in net revenues to the following: Home Infusion Therapy net revenues more than doubled as the company continued to expand these products and services to all of its locations. Despite the reductions in Medicare reimbursement experienced during 1990, Home Medical Equipment net revenues increased 27 percent. This was due primarily to the first year net revenues from 1989 and 1990 acquisitions. These increases were offset somewhat by decreases in net revenues for Repackaged Pharmaceuticals and other segments. The net revenue decrease in these segments result from management's refocus on home care which began in fiscal 1989.

Net income increased to $1,370,959 for the year ended July 31, 1990 as compared to $823,495 for the year ended July 31, 1989. This increase of 66 percent is due to the increased revenues without large cost increases.

Rotech Medical Corporation's commitment to home care is shown by its 136 percent increase in home infusion therapy, a 27 percent net revenue increase in home medical equipment during a time of reimbursement cutbacks, its de-emphasis of non-home care segments and the pending acquisition of VitalCare of America.

The VitalCare acquisition, which is expected to increase the net revenues of the home infusion segment to over $10 million annually, will expand RoTech to new markets in Texas, Pennsylvania and Nevada. The expansion approach, as in the past, is designed on maintaining profitability while continuing to increase market share.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Medtronic, Inc. (NYSE: MDT) announced today the first implant of a cardiac pacemaker designed to respond to circulatory needs caused by a patient's emotional state as well as those caused by his or her level of physical activity.

The world's first dual-sensor pacemaker was developed and manufactured by Vitatron Medical B.V., Medtronic's Dutch subsidiary. M.A.J. Landman, M.D., and P.J. Senden, M.D., both cardiologists, performed the implant on Sept. 21, 1990 at De Lichtenberg Hospital in Amersfoort, the Netherlands.

The new device incorporates the latest technologies developed by Vitatron in its quest for pacemakers that respond to the body's physiological signals and metabolic demands like the healthy natural heart does. While Medtronic's modern rate responsive pacemakers adjust to needs of the body by sensing physical activity, the Vitatron device is designed to react both on physical activity and on such intense human feelings as anger, anxiety, or passion.

As the heart muscle prepares to contract, or beat, its flow of electrical ions is visualized in an electrocardiographic parameter: the "Q-T interval." This interval varies with the heart's level of circulating catecholamines, which is sensitive to the patient's metabolic demand both during and after physical activity and emotional stress.

Designed to sense ion flow and measure the Q-T interval, the new pacemaker combines this information with signals from a piezoelectric crystal that senses physical activity. The device thus combines the fast response of the piezoelectric crystal and the physiologic properties of the Q-T interval to stimulate the heart appropriately both during and after exercise. Cross-checking information from the two sensing systems continually, the circuitry is designed to respond only to information related to metabolic demand.

Medtronic, Inc., headquartered in Minneapolis, is a leading developer and manufacturer of biomedical devices for improving cardiovascular and neurological health.

HOUSTON (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Sanifill, Inc. (AMEX: FIL) today issued the following statement in response to a recent article in Barron's:

We have read with disappointment, Briloff's latest salvo against U.S. business -- this time our company, Sanifill, Inc. Consistent with his articles of the past, it is shallow and totally inaccurate. A major indication -- the first page of our financials contains our auditor's report which was included in our IPO and several filings thereafter. Briloff suggests our auditors are Arthur Andersen & Co. Had he looked at the first page of our financials, let alone those that follow, he would note our auditors are Ernst & Young, Enough said -- I am sending along to Briloff a towel to wipe the egg off his face.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Metropolitan Financial Corporation (NYSE: MFC), Minneapolis, announced late Friday, Oct. 5, that it had acquired the deposits of the Burnsville, Minn., branch office of Midwest Savings Association, Minneapolis, from the Resolution Trust Corporation. Metropolitan Financial Corporation, which acquired the deposits through Metropolitan Federal Bank, fsb, its Fargo, N.D.,- based savings bank subsidiary, paid $151,800 for the $30.3 million of deposits.

Company officials noted that the deposit premium paid in the transaction was similar to the premium paid on the $427 million of deposits that Metropolitan Financial recently purchased from the RTC in 11 North Dakota communities.

Stan K. Dardis, president of Metropolitan Federal Bank, stated, "We are excited by this opportunity to increase our Burnsville deposit base. We recently opened a new office in Burnsville in a location we share with Edina Realty, Metropolitan Financial's real estate sales and brokerage subsidiary. The addition of these deposits will make the Burnsville office our second largest in the Twin Cities metropolitan area."

Dardis noted that Metropolitan Federal Bank now has nearly $300 million in deposits and 16 offices in the Twin Cities and surrounding communities.

Metropolitan Financial Corporation is a regional financial services holding company. Metropolitan Federal Bank, its retail savings bank subsidiary, operates 110 offices in 91 communities in Minnesota, North Dakota, Iowa, South Dakota, Wisconsin, and Arizona. Its Mortgage banking subsidiary, Metropolitan Financial Mortgage Corporation, is the Twin Cities largest originator of residential mortgage loans and Edina Realty is Minnesota's largest homeseller. HOUSTON (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Battle Mountain Gold Company (NYSE: BMG), in conjunction with its Bolivian affiliate, Inti Raymi, today announced that it has delineated approximately 4.1 million ounces of proven and probable gold reserves and 26.8 million ounces of silver at its Kori Kollo gold project in Bolivia. The company holds a 51 percent interest in the project. The new reserves bring the company's total contained proven and probable attributable reserves to approximately 6 million ounces, an increase of about 40 percent compared with year end 1989.

BMG Chairman Karl E. Elers said approximately 55.1 million short tons of mineable sulfide ore and 5.7 million short tons of mineable oxide ore has been identified at Kori Kollo, grading 0.067 ounces per ton gold and 0.44 ounces per ton silver. This represents a significant increase over the company's earlier estimates of commercial mineralization at the property. About three million tons of oxide ore will be processed in the current leach facility prior to start up of a milling operation. The ore body remains open to adding reserves in two lateral directions. Six drill rigs are currently working to define possible extensions of the deposit.

Presently projected recovery values are expected to average 63 percent for gold and 25 percent for silver. These recoveries reflect the refractory nature of a portion of the sulfide mineralization in which the gold is encapsulated in pyrite. The stripping ratio is expected to be about 1.2:1.

Cash operating costs for the sulfide project are estimated to be less than $180 per ounce. These costs do not include depreciation of capital, interest on financing, royalties or taxes.

Elers said the company is finalizing a feasibility study which it expects to complete soon. A development decision is expected by year end, subject to obtaining acceptable financing.

Assuming a positive development decision and acceptable financing, construction could begin in the first quarter of 1991, with gold production commencing in late 1992 at an annual rate of approximately 240,000 ounces. BMG's annual share of that production would be approximately 122,000 ounces. The company's share of silver production would be about 315,000 ounces.

Elers said that the company anticipates the construction of a carbon-in-leach (CIL) facility of approximately 15,400 tons per day. The project is expected to cost between $90 million and $100 million. He noted that the project will help provide a significant base of production for BMG through the 1990s.

The company has been pleased with the success of the current operation on the smaller oxide deposit at Kori Kollo, which is being mined at a rate of about 45,000 ounces per year. It is also encouraged by the favorable investment climate in Bolivia and the government's support of international mining involvement, Elers said.

Empresa Minera Inti Raymi, S. A., a Bolivian gold mining company in which BMG holds a 51 percent interest, owns and will operate the project. Other owners in addition to BMG, are Zeland Mines S. A. and Westworld Resources, Inc., each of which hold a 24.5 percent interest in the project.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Donaldson Company, Inc. (NYSE: DCI) announced today that its Board of Directors has authorized the repurchase of up to 1,000,000 shares (approximately 10 percent) of its common stock. As of Oct. 1, 1990, Donaldson had approximately 9,620,000 common shares outstanding. The repurchase of the shares will be accomplished from time to time, depending upon market conditions, through open market or privately negotiated transactions. This repurchase program replaces a similar program begun in July 1987, under which all but 215,000 shares were repurchased. The shares repurchased will become treasury shares and will be used for general corporate purposes.

William A. Hodder, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Donaldson, stated that "in view of the Company's strong financial position, we believe that the repurchase of shares from time to time represents an attractive investment opportunity which will benefit the Company and our stockholders."

Donaldson Company, Inc. is a worldwide manufacturer of air cleaners, liquid filters and exhaust products and accessories for heavy duty mobile equipment; in plant air cleaning systems; air intake systems and exhaust products for industrial gas turbines; and specialized filters for computer disk drives,

BALTIMORE (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Nova Pharmaceutical Corporation (NASDAQ: NOVX) today announced that it has signed an agreement with Mediventures, Inc. under which the companies will jointly develop psychiatric products using Mediventures' QUICKSOLV(TM) technology. According to the agreement, Nova will have an exclusive North American license to market products developed under the agreement.

Under the agreement, Nova and Mediventures will develop new products incorporating approved psychiatric medications into QUICKSOLV formulations which will be manufactured by Mediventures. QUICKSOLV tablets dissolve quickly and offer patients the convenience of a tablet with the ease of swallowing a liquid. The planned product line includes antipsychotics, antidepressants, anxiolytics and sedative/hypnotics.

The agreement is consistent with Nova's objective to develop innovative formulations for psychoactive pharmaceuticals which can be marketed through its psychiatric sales force. Nova's sales force currently markets in the United States a psychiatric product line consisting of Thorazine(R), Stelazine(R), Eskalith(R) and Parnate(R).

Nova Pharmaceutical Corporation, based in Baltimore, is engaged in the research and development of new drugs and drug delivery systems, with a primary focus on central nervous system disorders and pain and inflammation.

Mediventures Incorporated is based in Grosse Pointe, Mich., and has a research center in Ann Arbor, Mich. Mediventures is engaged in the development, manufacture, and marketing of drug delivery systems and medical devices with two lead technologies: QUICKSOLV formulations (quick dissolving dosage forms) and FLOWGEL(TM) technology (unique substances that are liquid at room temperature and that gel at body temperature).

HOUSTON (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Continental Airlines today announced that it has ordered 50 Boeing 757 aircraft, including 25 options, to further modernize its fleet through the mid-'90s.

The firm aircraft order, including engines and spare parts, is valued at approximately $1.2 billion. Financing arrangements will include significant participation by the aircraft and engine manufacturers.

"This order is a significant component of a well-reasoned fleet plan we have developed for the '90s and beyond," said Hollis L. Harris, chairman and CEO. "Delivery of the 757s will allow us to replace older, less fuel-efficient aircraft, and will be part of our growth plans.

"The 757 is especially well-suited for service on our high-density, medium-to-long distance domestic routes, as well as some international routes

" Harris added. "And while Continental's fleet already ranks among the most modern in the industry, we feel this order will make a substantial contribution to our other plans for improving the quality of our service product."

Harris was joined in making the announcement by Dean Thornton, president of the Boeing Commercial Aircraft Group.

The 757-200 is a highly fuel-efficient, twin-engine aircraft which seats 180-190 customers. As a Stage III aircraft, it is a "good neighbor" at noise-sensitive airports. Continental said it has yet to select the aircraft powerplants, which are available from either Rolls Royce or Pratt & Whitney.

Aircraft delivery is scheduled to begin in May of 1993 and will continue for several years.

Continental also has an order with Boeing for 100 firm and option 737s, as well as with Airbus Industrie for 40 firm and option long-range A330s and/or A340s. With today's announcement, Continental has a total 190 aircraft on order, including 95 options. Currently the airline operates a fleet of 338 aircraft.

ST. LOUIS (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Anheuser-Busch is airing a new network television commercial with a strong message geared to a new audience for the world's largest brewer. The message: "Let's Stop Underage Drinking Before It Starts." The audience: the parents of young children.

The 30-second commercial titled "Dressing Up" features two young children playing "dress up" to illustrate the point that parents are the most effective role models for children and urges parents to call 1-800-359-TALK to receive "Family Talk About Drinking" materials.

"Family Talk About Drinking" consists of a set of guides written with authorities and provides advice and insights to the parents of preteen children to help them curb underage drinking. The program is driven by the grassroots network of more than 900 Anheuser-Busch beer wholesalers under the company's "Know When To Say When" efforts, and has been supported print advertising since March. The "Family Talk About Drinking" materials are now in the hands of more than 325,000 families.

"Our goal with 'Family Talk' is to help in the effort to stop underage drinking before it starts...and we are working toward that goal by providing this program to as many parents as possible," said Stephen J. Burrows,

Anheuser-Busch vice president of consumer awareness & education. "This television campaign is a major commitment designed to make that goal a reality."

The "Family Talk" spot portrays two young children playing "dress up" in their parent's bedroom: the boy tries to tie a necktie; the girl puts on lipstick and a necklace. The announcer reminds the viewers that the most influential person for children is their parents and that positive examples contribute to a child's development. The spot concludes with the tag line "Stop Underage Drinking Before It Starts" and provides the "Family Talk" 800 number.

The free set of parent guides were written under the guidance of authorities on alcohol abuse, family counseling and child development. The guides include strategies to help parents communicate effectively with their children in an effort to prevent underage drinking.

"Underage drinking is on the decline, and we believe that awareness and education are the best ways to prevent abuse. There is no more important place to start than with our children in the family setting," Burrows said.

The 30-second commercial, "Dressing Up" was produced by D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, St. Louis.

NEW YORK, (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Allied Plywood Corporation, a subsidiary of PLY GEM Industries, Inc. (AMEX: PGI), today announced that Valeri M. Suslov has joined the company to initiate and negotiate production, trade and export agreements with Soviet timber, pulp and lumber manufacturers.

Suslov is the exclusive representative authorized by the Ministry for Timber Industry of the U.S.S.R. to negotiate these agreements with companies in the United States and Canada.

According to Suslov, the Soviet Union has the largest timber base of any country in the world, accounting for roughly one-quarter of all the world's timber. In particular, the Soviet Union accounts for about half the world's clear coniferous fiber wood, or virgin timber, which is the most widely sought-after wood within the furniture and home improvement industry.

"Mr. Suslov's knowledge and relationships within the Soviet timber industry are unparalleled. Combined with his understanding and skill in the international marketplace, he will bring unprecedented opportunities to our customers," said Robert Prezzano, president of Allied Plywood.

In addition to negotiating the purchase of wood products from the U.S.S.R., Suslov will develop trade agreements in which Allied Plywood will arrange for Soviet purchases and barter involving wood product machinery, including logging equipment, road building equipment and lumber, panel board and paper converting equipment from United States and Canadian producers.

V/O Exportles was, until recently, the sole all-union trading organization for all Soviet wood products. Now, Suslov estimated, as a single economic complex V/O Exportles accounts for 95 percent of the trading of all Soviet wood products.

Allied Plywood Corporation is a national distributor of specialty woods and building materials. Allied International, its import division, brings in exotic woods from the U.S.S.R., South America, Scandinavia, Canada, Europe, Asia and Africa. PLY GEM Industries, Inc., with its 11 independent operating companies, is a national manufacturer and distributor of specialty products for the home improvement industry.

ST. LOUIS (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Research scientists from the Brain Bank at the Netherlands Brain Research Institute in Holland have reported the discovery of a biomarker indicating that the presence of Alzheimer's disease can be determined in live patients.

Up until now, confirmation of an Alzheimer's diagnosis could only be determined after death by brain autopsy.

This discovery of the biomarker was reported by Dr. Rivka Ravid of the Netherlands Brain Research Institute at the International Congress of Neuropathology, held in Kyoto, Japan in September.

Dr. Gerlof Homan, president of Senetek PLC (NASDAQ: SNTKY), explained that the discovery involves a small protein, ubiquitin, which has been found in abnormally high levels in the cerebrospinal fluid of people that have died with Alzheimer's disease.

Ubiquitin is present in all cells and is important for normal cellular function. However, in people suffering from Alzheimer's Disease, ubiquitin becomes associated with the abnormal material that accumulates within the brain cells, eventually leading to their death. As these cells die, the ubiquitin escapes into the cerebrospinal fluid, where it can be detected using a monoclonal antibody-based test system.

Senetek PLC has the worldwide rights to this proprietary monoclonal antibody test system.

Dr. Homan said testing is now under way at the Netherlands Brain Research Institute, at the Frenchay Hospital in Bristol, England, and other leading Alzheimer's research centers in Europe to establish the usefulness of the test in detecting Alzheimer's Disease in patients at earlier stages. Testing is also under way in Japan.

Alzheimer's disease is estimated to affect more than 10 percent of the population over 65 years of age and is considered the major cause of death in the United States after cancer and cardiovascular disease.

Details of the discovery of the biomarker are expected to be published later in a scientific journal, Dr. Homan said.

WEIRTON, WV (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Acting to stimulate the recycling of steel beverage cans, Weirton Steel Corp. (NYSE: WS) announced a sharp increase in the price it will pay for bi-metallic beverage cans for remelting in its steelmaking furnaces.

"Effective Oct. 2, we began paying $150 per gross ton, FOB Weirton, for bi-metalic beverage cans. This represents an increase of about 70 percent from the previous price range," the company said.

In its announcement, Weirton Steel added that it will accept delivery of used beverage cans (UBCs) directly at its plant and through selected scrap processors, depending on volume.

Any questions or requests for additional information are to be directed to John Turner of Weirton's purchasing department, 304-797-2257.

Weirton Steel said its latest move should give an important boost to the effort to raise the recycling rate of steel beverage cans.

DALLAS (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Herbert D. Kelleher, chairman of the board and CEO of Southwest Airlines Co. (NYSE: LUV), announced today that the company flew 768.4 million revenue passenger miles (RPMs) in September 1990, a 10.3 percent increase over the 696.4 million RPMs flown in September of last year.

Available seat miles (ASMs) increased 9.7 percent to 1,374.7 million from the September 1989 level of 1,253.7 million ASMs. The load factor for the month was 55.9 percent compared to 55.5 percent for the same period in 1989.

For the third quarter of 1990, Southwest flew 2,680.5 million RPMs compared with 2,447.9 million RPMs recorded for the same period in 1989, an increase of 9.5 percent. Available seat miles increased 10.4 percent to 4,259.7 million from the 1989 third-quarter level of 3,859.4 million. The 1990 third-quarter load factor was 62.9 percent compared to 63.4 percent for the same period last year.

Kelleher stated, "Our September results came in about as expected, just slightly ahead of last year's very average September load factor performance. This was achieved despite our capacity increase of almost 10 percent, which was primarily in our intra-California markets.

"We are adding five aircraft to our schedule in fourth-quarter 1990 and have announced new service to Reno, Nev., effective Nov. 15, from Las Vegas and Oakland. Although bookings currently look good for fourth-quarter travel, our traffic outlook remains guarded given current international political and economic concerns."

For the first nine months of 1990, Southwest flew 7,564.3 million RPMs compared with the 7,063.7 million RPMs recorded for the same period in 1989. Available seat miles increased 10.9 percent to 12,221.3 million from the year-to-date 1989 level of 11,016.7 million. The year- to-date load factor was 61.9 percent compared to 64.1 percent for the same period last year.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Texaco Inc. (NYSE: TX) will receive a special award for its exceptional support for the arts, including its 50-year support for the Metropolitan Opera, from the Business Committee for the Arts (BCA) on Wednesday, Oct. 10.

Texaco's President and Chief Executive Officer James W. Kinnear will accept the Special Recognition Award at an event attended by national business, arts and government leaders in the diplomatic reception rooms at the U.S. Department of State.

International opera star Rise Stevens will present the award to Kinnear in recognition of Texaco's long-term commitment to the Metropolitan Opera and its general fostering of the arts.

"We are honored to receive this award, and pleased that Texaco's commitment to the arts and our long relationship with the Metropolitan Opera have contributed significantly to the vitality of the arts in this country and abroad," said Kinnear.

Stevens praised Texaco's sponsorship of the Saturday afternoon radio broadcasts of the Metropolitan Opera, which began on Dec. 7, 1940 with the Saturday matinee performance of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro." More than 1 million Americans tuned in to this broadcast, which began the longest corporate sponsorship of an arts institution in this country.

Since that time Texaco has expanded its involvement by working with the Met to create the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Radio Network which broadcasts via satellite to more than 300 stations in the United States and over the CBC in Canada, reaching 95 percent of the population in North America. In 1977 Texaco added a new dimension to its support of the Met by sponsoring television broadcasts of the Metropolitan Opera on PBS. In addition, Texaco sponsored the 1983 broadcast of the Met's Centennial Gala celebration and the landmark telecast of Richard Wagner's "Ring" cycle.

During the past five decades, Texaco has sponsored nearly 1,000 performances of 123 different opera companies across the United States. In addition, Texaco has underwritten professional scholarships for talented young singers. The company also took a leadership role in establishing the Met's $100 million Centennial Endowment Fund -- the first endowment fund in the Met's history.

In addition to its involvement with the Met, Texaco co-sponsors "Great Performances" on PBS and provides substantial support to other cultural institutions such as Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, the Los Angeles Philharmonic and the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The company also underwrites international cultural endeavors such as the "Festival of Indonesia" which is currently touring the United States.

Texaco has received the Business in the Arts Award sponsored by the Business Committee for the Arts and FORBES Magazine four times: 1967, 1978, 1981 and 1983. The company was also honored with a Special Achievement Award in 1987 at the BCA's 20th anniversary and business in the arts awards dinner.

The Business in the Arts Awards, presented annually by the Business Committee for the Arts and FORBES Magazine, are the first and only national awards to salute the collaboration between businesses of all sizes throughout the United States with the arts. The BCA, founded in 1967 by David Rockefeller, is a national non-profit organization of business leaders committed to encouraging and developing business partnerships with the arts.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Tandy Corporation (NYSE: TAN) is actively participating in the development of Digital Compact Cassette (DCC) technology, it was announced today by John V. Roach, chairman and CEO.

Digital Compact Cassette technology is based on revolutionary digital audio encoding and recording techniques that produce Compact Disc sound quality in an affordable consumer system.

"Tandy is working with Philips Consumer Electronics in the continuing development and commercialization of this exciting new digital recording technology for the consumer audio market," Roach said. This new technology, for the first time, will enable the consumer to record high quality digital audio on DCC tapes, play pre-recorded DCC tapes, or play standard analog cassette tapes, with the same system.

Roach said that Tandy is developing its Digital Compact Cassette player/recorder and DCC tape at two of it United States development centers. Tandy will distribute its U.S.-manufactured DCC systems and DCC tape through its extensive marketing channels, and anticipates sales to other consumer electronics firms on an OEM basis, for domestic and export sales.

Introduction plans have not been set pending completion of product development by Philips and Tandy, and favorable action by the U.S. Congress on copyright legislation related to digital recording technology.

Tandy Corporation is a leading producer for consumer electronics and is the largest consumer electronics retailer in the United States. Tandy is also a leading manufacturer of audio and video tape marketed by Tandy's Memorex and Radio Shack divisions and through other channels of distribution.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, MI (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - American Speedy Printing Centers, an international franchise chain of 700 printing centers, has instituted a public service program to boost the morale of U.S. armed forces in Saudi Arabia by providing pre-addressed, pre- printed envelopes free to anyone who wishes to write soldiers.

In addition to providing the free envelopes, American Speedy Printing Center owners are working with local schools and community groups to institute student letter writing campaigns.

Instituted by American Speedy Printing Center owner Lance Pawloski, in Royal Oak, Mich., the public service program has provided nearly 500,000 envelopes over the last five weeks. American Speedy Printing Centers Chief Operating Officer Jerry Bergler estimates that up to 2 million additional envelopes will be distributed in the next month, as more and more printing centers adopt the effort.

"Our hats are off to Lance Pawloski and the other American Speedy Printing Centers owners who have taken it upon themselves to get involved with the letter-writing campaign," said Bergler. "It makes all of us here at American Speedy Printing feel very proud that our organization is helping support the military effort in the Middle East this way."

Persons wishing to receive free, pre-addressed envelopes may call Kristin Brender at American Speedy Printing Centers' World Headquarters at 313-335-6200 for the name of a nearby participating center.

American Speedy's program has the endorsement of the U.S.O. and is most active in Springfield and Peoria, Ill.; Chicago; Indianapolis; Louisville, Ky.; Tulsa Okla.; and Detroit.

MURRAY HILL, NJ (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - As microelectronics companies pack ever more information-handling equipment into semiconductor devices, circuitry patterns grow increasingly intricate - and even minuscule particle contamination in process gases can have a major impact on product yields. The BOC Group, a leading global supplier of industrial gases and services, and parent company of Airco Gases, has developed state-of-the-art procedures for evaluating the new breed of ultrasensitive particle counting equipment. James K. Tseng, lead engineer at The BOC Group Technical Center (Murray Hill, N.J.), outlined key steps of BOC's equipment-testing regimen last month in a presentation, "Evaluation of an advanced laser particle counter," at the International Committee of Contamination Control Societies' 10th International Symposium on Contamination Control in Zurich, Switzerland.

The focus of BOC's study is the PMS (Micro)LPC-HS, a laser counter recently introduced to the market by Particle Measuring Systems, Inc. BOC's test procedures confirmed that the PMS (Micro)LPC-HS is the first commercial laser particle counter that can examine gases for particle sizes below O.1 micrometer, down to 0.05 micrometer.

BOC, which produces a full range of ultrapure gases for use in the electronics industry, also designs, installs and maintains gas distribution systems. BOC wanted to assess the capabilities of the new laser particle counter, using criteria that would reflect field challenges encountered in assuring specified gas purity throughout delivery systems. The company decided to concentrate on three different performance characteristics. Those characteristics were background noise (electronic interference that could give false readings), accuracy in sizing particles, and efficiency in counting particles.

To test for background noise interference, BOC used highly filtered zero-particle gas as a control. Any positive readings by the particle counter would likely be the result of electronic noise. Tests showed that the noise level was acceptably low.

In evaluating the laser counter's sizing capabilities, BOC used aerosols containing polystyrene latex microspheres of known sizes. The laser counter was able to satisfactorily identify anticipated size ranges.

To assess efficiency in counting particles, BOC compared the new counter's capabilities with a standard particle counter, and with a condensation nuclei counter, a device that is highly sensitive in detecting, but not sizing, particles. The new laser satisfactorily met the tests.

Airco Gases is the U.S. gases business of BOC, and is a leading manufacturer and supplier of industrial gases and gas handling technology in the United States. The company's primary gas products include liquid and gaseous nitrogen, oxygen, argon and carbon dioxide, helium, hydrogen and a variety of medical, rare and special gases.

HOUSTON (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Tescorp, Inc. (NASDAQ: TESC) reported today that an additional 104,200 shares of its Series 1990 convertible preferred stock will be distributed to former holders of American Century Corporation subordinated debentures. Pursuant to American Century's confirmed plan of reorganization, record holders of debentures on July 11, 1990 previously received a distribution of 69.8 shares of Tescorp convertible preferred stock for each $1,000 debenture, in addition to Tescorp common stock and warrants. Record holders of American Century debentures on July 11, 1990 will now receive an additional 12.85 shares of Tescorp convertible preferred stock for each $1,000 debenture.

The American Century plan of reorganization provided that 134,800 shares of Tescorp convertible preferred stock would be held in escrow and utilized to satisfy the claim of the indenture trustee for the debentures for reimbursement of its reasonable fees and expenses as determined by the bankruptcy court. Following this determination, 30,600 of the escrowed shares were sold in the open market at the price of 3-15/16, the proceeds of which, plus dividends on the escrowed shares, will be used to satisfy the indenture trustee claim. The remaining 104,200 escrowed shares are accordingly being distributed to former American Century debenture holders.

Tescorp manufactures and sells cable and cable connectors to the geophysical industry through its Tescorp Seismic Products division. The company also manufactures and distributes oil and gas production equipment through its Clif Mock division. For the three months ended June 30, 1990, Tescorp's revenues were $6,165,000 and net income was $382,000, or $0.07 per share.

HOUSTON (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Panhandle Eastern Corporation (NYSE: PEL), a Houston-based natural gas pipeline company, is supporting the development of cleaner-burning vehicle fuels through a limited duration test with the Metropolitan Transit Authority of Harris County (Metro). Panhandle Eastern will provide liquefied natural gas (LNG) to Metro as an alternative fuel source for five city buses during the test period.

Metro will conduct a field test to determine the technical and economic feasibility of operating city buses on LNG instead of diesel fuel. Metro, like several other transit authorities throughout the country, is testing natural gas as a fuel source because of its potential to reduce environmentally harmful emissions. The relatively low price of natural gas compared to current diesel fuel prices also appeals to cost-conscious bus operators.

Panhandle Eastern, through its subsidiaries Trunkline LNG Company and Pan National Gas Sales, Inc., will provide the LNG to Metro. LNG is natural gas reduced to a liquid state by cooling to minus 260 degrees Fahrenheit.

Texas transit systems are the first in the nation required to use cleaner-burning fuels. The Texas Clean Air Act, which took effect Aug. 28, 1989, requires 30 percent of the publicly owned fleet vehicles to convert to an alternative fuel by 1994. Metro is testing two different types of natural gas fuels: LNG and compressed natural gas.

"Panhandle Eastern Corporation supports the state's efforts to encourage the use of clean and efficient alternate transportation fuels," said L.B. Gatewood president of Trunkline LNG. "Our participation in Metro's test program for buses fueled by LNG could be an important step in developing economic and environmentally sound vehicle fuels."

The five 30-foot buses using the LNG will be on regular Metro routes throughout the city. The buses have been converted to LNG use and supplied by Houston-based Stewart & Stevenson.

Panhandle Eastern Corporation operates one of the nation's largest interstate natural gas pipeline systems, providing natural gas to the Midwest and Northeast markets.

DALLAS-FORT WORTH AIRPORT, TEXAS (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - American Airlines flew 6.2 billion revenue passenger miles in September, up 8.6 percent from a year ago and a record for that month.

The airline flew 10.3 billion seat miles, reflecting an 8.7 percent increase in its capacity since September 1989.

International traffic, which has been strong all year, grew at record levels, with Europe showing a 13.4 percent increase month over month. The European load factor was up substantially from September a year ago and the highest of all international markets since March. European capacity increased 2.7 percent.

"Once again our international routes helped carry the airline," said Michael W. Gunn, senior vice president-marketing. "The September load factor for Central and South America exceeded our expectations.

"And while there was a seasonal decline in the Pacific load factor from August it was still strong at 70.7 percent," Gunn said.

On the domestic front, traffic increased 2.6 percent from 4.8 billion RPMs to 4.9 billion although the load factor decreased from 59.6 percent to 58.8 percent.

Year over year, September was the best month since February, Gunn said. RPMs for the nine-month period were up 4.5 percent from 55.4 billion to 57.9 billion. ASMs jumped 7.1 percent for the same period, from 85.7 billion to 91.8 billion. The load factor fell from 64.6 percent to 63.1 percent.

As for cargo, American flew 66.9 million freight ton miles, up 21.2 percent from 66.9 percent. Year over year, freight ton miles were up 19.9 percent, from 470.3 million to 563.8 million. Mail ton miles rose 8.8 percent, from 19.9 million to 21.6. Year to date, freight ton miles were up 16.4 over 1989 from 170.5 million to 198.5 million.

"Our continuing double-digit growth in a generally flat cargo market reflects the high quality of American's cargo service," said William R. Boesch, American's vice president-cargo.

DENVER (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Western Gas Resources Inc. ("Resources") (NYSE: WGR) today announced that it will propose a restructuring after which it will own all outstanding interests in its 52 percent owned partnership subsidiary, Western Gas Processors Ltd. ("Processors") (NYSE: WGP).

In the restructuring, all outstanding Preference Units of Processors will first be converted into Common Units of Processors through prepayment of all remaining preference distributions on the Preference Units, which will be approximately $2.20 per Unit if the transaction is approved in early 1991 as scheduled. All holders of outstanding Common Units of Processors will then receive Common Stock of Resources in exchange for their Common Units, expected to be on a one for one basis, and Processors will cease to be a publicly traded entity. The transaction is expected to be tax free to holders of all Units. After completion of the restructuring, Resources intends to pay dividends on its Common Stock of 5 cents per share per quarter (or 20 cents on an annual basis) in 1991. In the restructuring, Resources will issue approximately 9.95 million additional shares of its Common Stock for the equivalent number of Units outstanding. There will be no dilution to Resources' or Processors' equity owners after the restructuring because the founders and the public security holders will hold the same percentage interests in the consolidated entity as before the transaction was consummated.

Completion of the restructuring, prepayment of the preference distributions on the Preferred Units and payment of dividends on the Common Stock all will be conditioned, among other things, on approval of the restructuring by stockholders of Resources and unitholders of Processors, and by the founders. A closing of the restructuring is planned for early 1991 to coincide with an early annual meeting of the stockholders of Resources.

Bill Sanderson, president of Western Gas Resources, stated that "After the restructuring, all cash not used for operations and dividends will be employed in the company's ongoing growth strategy. By moving from a structure that is part corporate and part partnership to one that is completely corporate, an increased amount of cash should be avaliable for the company's ongoing business. This should prove to be beneficial to all the current security holders of Resources and Processors and less confusing to the investing public."

TULSA, OKLA. (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Occidental Petroleum (NYSE: OXY) announced today that its wholly owned subsidiary, Occidental Petroleum Malaysia LTD., had tested oil and gas in Block SK-6, offshore Sarawak in East Malaysia.

Bentara-1, located approximately 100 miles offshore in 200 feet of water, encountered several oil and gas bearing zones between 6,726 and 8,695 feet below sea level. Two of the zones were tested at rates of 1,200 barrels per day of 32 degree API gravity oil through a 7/16 inch choke and 9.8 million cubic feet of gas through a 1/2 inch choke. Further appraisal drilling is required to determine the extent of the discovery.

Offshore Sarawak, Occidental is the operator with a 100 percent exploration interest, for two contiguous blocks, SK-6 and SK-8, containing a total of 5.3 million acres. Occidental also has a 50 percent exploration interest in the 1.9 million acre block SB-2 offshore Sabah.

CAMBRIDGE, MA (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Biogen, Inc. (NASDAQ: BGEN) today reported record revenues and net income for the third quarter of 1990.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, the company reported revenues of $14,812,000 resulting in net income of $1,791,000 or 1 cent per share following dividend payments on its preferred stock. For the third quarter last year, the company reported net income of $1,692,000 or 1 cent per share based on revenue of $11,548,000.

For the first nine months of calandar 1990, revenues increased 51.4 percent to $43,287,000 and earnings per share amounted to 3 cents vs. breakeven in 1989.

Worldwide sales of Intron-A(R) alpha interferon by our licensee Schering-Plough continued to expand sharply during the quarter. In addition, sales of hepatitis B vaccines and diagnostics by our licensees around the world also continued to grow. All of this contributed to substantial increases in royalty income for Biogen.

During the third quarter, Biogen was awarded an important European patent for the production of recombinant beta interferon. This patent is an important component of our commercialization strategy for beta interferon in both Europe and the United States.

Hirulog, our anti-coagulent peptide, successfully completed Phase I clinical trials. Phase II trials will begin shortly.

Finally, we made two key personnel announcements this quarter. In August, Kenneth M. Bate was appointed vice president, finance and chief financial officer. In September, Alan Belzer, president & chief operating officer of Allied-Signal, Inc., was elected to the Biogen board of directors.

Jim Vincent, chairman and chief executive officer of Biogen, commented, "The acceleration of our product revenue growth in this quarter, especially from Intron-A alpha interferon, was particularly gratifying. With our financial profile and rapid revenue growth, we are optimistic that our clinical, research and people development programs will have the necessary capital to fund their growth as we move toward our goal of becoming an operating pharmaceutical company."

Biogen is a leading biotechnology company principally engaged in developing genetically engineered pharmaceuticals. As a result of its early research, Biogen now derives revenues from five products being sold by its licensees in various countries. Biogen currently directs its research and development into areas where the company has particular strength -- AIDS, inflammation, cardiovascular and selected cancers.

MIAMI (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - BellSouth (NYSE: BLS) today announced a new approach to systems integration that focuses on the effective integration of its customers' private information systems with emerging public network capabilities.

Collectively marketed under the tradename Integration Plus (SM) Management Services, this family of "hybrid" network services will be coordinated through BellSouth's Advanced Network Group, which provides various architectural, design and management assistance to BellSouth's customers.

Coupling its aggressive deployment of digital switching, SS(No.)7 and enhanced services with recent developments in hybrid network management and professional services, BellSouth has positioned its operating companies to materially expand their role in their customers' more sophisticated network activity. Specifically, the Advanced Network Group's services should be of particular interest to customers with inter-enterprise applications, demanding network management and/or security requirements, or simply an acute need to better optimize network capitalization and related operating costs.

BellSouth is, further, announcing a new service in its Integration Plus (SM) family of Network Management Services that promises to markedly differentiate its approach from the wide assortment of customer network management tools already in the market. This sophisticated system, intended to amalgamate various other network management tools, is referred to simply as "HYBRID NETWORK MANAGEMENT SERVICE" (HNMS) and represents the first manifestation of BellSouth's vision of the future of integrated network management: i.e., one which will offer customers a seamless view of both the private and public segments of their network. HNMS not only combines most private network management systems into a single common platform but it provides unprecedented surveillance and control of public elements as well. HNMS, once combined with other "intelligent network" capabilities, will facilitate capital optimization through accelerating the migration of heretofore private/dedicated network resources into public/private-virtual hybrids. Heading a list of major network customers, Duke Power Co. will be BellSouth's first production customer for the HNMS system; Duke's plans call for installation at their corporate headquarters in Charlotte, N.C., in early 1991. Other customer announcements are forthcoming pending further negotiations.

On hand at the 1990 Southeastern Telecommunication Association (SETA) annual conference to demonstrate a prototype of HNMS, Rick Moran, BellSouth Advanced Network Group's Operations Manager for all network management products, pointed out that: "HNMS will be merely the vanguard of BellSouth's Integration Plus Management Services in that it will tie the others together. But, through its premises-based architecture and functional interfaces, HNMS will provide large customers with a powerful platform through which to integrate parochial, or otherwise private, systems such as IBM's NetView."

BellSouth's Advanced Network Group effort is headquartered in Atlanta. BellSouth is an international telecommunications holding company. The Atlanta-based corporation is composed of two operating telephone companies, Southern Bell and South Central Bell, which serve 70 percent of the population in nine southeastern states; BellSouth Services, which performs staff and planning functions for the two operating companies; and BellSouth Enterprises, which manages the corporation's additional lines of business worldwide, including mobile systems, advertising and publishing, and the sale and maintenance of computers and telecommunication equipment.

ST. LOUIS (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Like Joe Friday on the old TV series "Dragnet," to get informed, you just want the facts.

But Southwestern Bell Telephone (SWBT) employees have a whole slew of computer systems other than just FACS to help them get the facts.

There's LMOS, CMAP, SORD and BOSS. There's also CRIS, COSMOS, TIRKS, TAXI, MIZAR, TAN, ARIS, and POLO. Add in ATLAS, CMOS, TRAM and CARS. Oh, and then there are about 500 additional systems after that.

These systems have brought many benefits to SWBT and its customers. Faster repair. Easier cable location. Efficient billing. Quicker completion of service orders.

To keep the benefits rolling, SWBT has formed a strategic plan for computer integration. The goal is to move to the next echelon of data integration, with all current and future computer systems and software working smoothly together by the year 2000.

But first, a blast to the past. As more and more systems were added in the 1980's, information burgeoned. Some had redundant information. Most could not transfer information. Many were limited to a single task.

All these improvements were good because these systems could solve specific problems, improve productivity and save money. But they were not integrated. And lastly, few systems were easy to use or easy to learn. Employees often had to use several systems, sometimes through different terminals, to do their jobs.

So for a highly mechanized company in a very mechanized industry, systems integration is a big job. Indeed, SWBT's systems integration effort is one of the most ambitious in the country -- not only among telecommunications companies, but other industries as well. It will touch all 57,000 SWBT employees and directly impact the company's $1.5 billion hardware and software investment.

But it will be SWBT's nine million customers who ultimately will benefit.

"To meet customers' requests for new services, instant service activation and customer-controlled network management, for example, we have to integrate our computing systems," explained Charles Foster, formerly SWBT's executive vice president, now group president for Southwestern Bell Corporation (NYSE: SBC). "Our systems must not only offer a corporate view of functions and data to assist customers. They must be easy to use and simple to deploy so we can react faster to service needs."

Southwestern Bell Telephone is a wholly owned subsidiary of Southwestern Bell Corporation and provides network exchange service to nearly nine million customers in Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas and Missouri.

MANCHESTER, NH (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - BankEast Corporation (NASDAQ: BENH) said today that the two holders of its $13 million in subordinated debt have filed suit in U.S. Federal District Court in Concord, seeking to secure certain assets of the bank holding company.

On Sept. 19, the two noteholders -- John Alden Life Insurance Company from Miami, Florida, and Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company from Hartford, Conn. -- sought to accelerate payment of this debt. This action was taken while the holding company was in technical default, although the company noted it had made all interest payments when due and principal payments were not scheduled to begin until November, 1992.

"It's important to underscore once again that this action should have no effect on the conduct of business by the bank or the holding company's other subsidiaries," said W.N. DeWitt, chairman and chief executive officer of the company. Other subsidiaries include BankEast Mortgage Corp. and BankEast Trust Company. "The subsidiaries are separate legal entities and are not responsible for the holding company's obligations to the noteholders.

"As far as BankEast depositors and other customers are concerned, it will be business as usual.

"Our negotiation committee, who are members of the holding company's board of directors, continues to seek a resolution with these two out-of-state noteholders as the holding company explores all options," said DeWitt.

BankEast Corporation is a New Hampshire-based holding company with $1 billion in assets.

LANSING, MI (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Despite the fact Americans are paying the highest-ever price for a barrel of oil, Consumers Power Company natural gas customers can anticipate stable home-heating prices and ample supplies this winter.

Consumers Power has uniquely positioned itself in the gas distribution industry with 100 percent of its fuel requirements secured by firm, long-term supply contracts with interstate pipeline suppliers, as well as U.S. and Canadian producers.

"Our customers will receive the full benefit of new long-term contract purchase agreements we have put in place over the last two years," said Michael G. Morris, the utility's executive vice president for natural gas and marketing. "These agreements protect our customers against historically uncertain energy prices which have rapidly increased for other home heating fuels," Morris said.

Consumers Power's gas customers can expect costs similar to last winter -- which is a 22-percent decrease from five years ago. For a normal month this winter, a typical Consumers Power residential gas user will pay $112.81, based on consumption of 25,000 cubic feet.

"Despite energy supply and price uncertainties elsewhere, the 3.4 million Michigan residents we serve with natural gas can look toward the coming winter secure in the knowledge that their heating costs are stable," said Morris.

While Consumers Power gas customers will experience stable prices, home heating oil and propane consumers are experiencing sharp cost increases. The number of new customers requesting natural gas service from Consumers Power is presently averaging 80 to 90 per day -- double the rate of requests at the same time last year.

"We welcome these new customers and would encourage everyone who is contemplating a conversion to call as soon as possible so that cost- effective gas service can begin before the major portion of the heating season is upon us," Morris said.

"Our strategy of looking down the road two years ago and locking in favorable gas prices and supplies then has paid off," said Morris. "Consumers Power's residential gas rates are among the lowest in the nation and our long-term natural gas purchases are a key factor behind the low rates," he added.

Consumers Power's natural gas storage capacity -- among the largest in the nation -- allows the utility the advantage of purchasing and storing gas during off-season periods, when the cost of gas decreases. The utility and its Michigan Gas Storage subsidiary operate 13 storage fields, across the Lower Peninsula, with a total storage capacity of approximately 125 billion cubic feet.

Consumers Power operates 19,573 miles of gas distribution pipelines, and 1,118 miles of transmission and storage pipelines.

LANSING, MICH. (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Consumers Power Company customers can take advantage of a new, free, home energy conservation audit offered by the utility as it prepares for the coming winter heating season.

People interested in scheduling a date for a home audit, called "Great Shape," can call toll free, 1-800-842-6971. The home energy audit is conducted by A&C Enercom, a firm nationally recognized for its expertise in offering energy conservation advice. Residential customers who implement energy-saving steps recommended during their audit may qualify for up to $1,000 in bonuses.

In general, do-it-yourselfers interested in conserving energy can reduce their consumption by the following actions:

-- Adequately insulate ceilings and attic with at least six inches of insulation. Sidewall insulation and insulating floors over unheated crawl spaces also save energy.

-- Add weather stripping and caulking to doors, windows, piping outlets and exhaust vents to block cold air leaks.

-- Install storm windows.
-- Ensure that fireplace dampers and kitchen and bathroom exhausts close tightly when not in use.

-- Make use of solar heat by opening drapes and curtains.
-- Replace furnace filters periodically, typically once a month.
-- Lower the thermostat on the hot water heater during periods of reduced use.

-- Lower the thermostat on the heating system to 55 degrees at night.
-- Close off furnace registers to rooms not being used.

Consumers Power Company, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS), is Michigan's largest utility serving almost 6 million of the state's 9 million residents in 67 of the 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - American Health Properties Inc. (NYSE: AHE) announced today that it has completed the purchase of two psychiatric hospitals from American Medical Holdings Inc. (AMI). These facilities are in addition to AHE's purchase of two Florida psychiatric hospitals from AMI on Aug. 16, 1990.

The 95-bed Westwood Lodge Hospital and the 115-bed Pembroke Hospital are both located in the Boston area. Both facilities were simultaneously leased to Westwood/Pembroke Corporation, the principal shareholder of which is Dr. Gary Jacobson. Jacobson, a former President of the Massachusetts Psychiatric Society, has been associated with the hospitals for 15 years, and was the founder and one of the former owners of both hospitals, having sold them to AMI in 1986.

The hospitals were purchased for an initial price of $11 million. Based upon the occurrence of certain events and financial performance of the hospitals, the total purchase price could be increased to as much as $31 million to be paid over a three year period. The lease term for both properties commenced on October 5, 1990. Income to AHE will include base rental plus percentage rental based upon the revenue growth of each facility.

"Westwood Lodge and Pembroke Hospital are preeminent hospitals in their marketplace with well earned reputations for excellence in patient care," said Robert L.B. Diener, president and chief operating officer of AHE.

American Health Properties Inc. is a real estate investment trust (REIT) specializing in the financing of quality health care facilities. The company's investments include 21 acute care, rehabilitation and psychiatric properties located in 13 states.

PITTSBURGH (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Chambers Development Company Inc. (AMEX: CDVB) reported today that its Southern Alleghenies Landfill in Somerset County Pa., is fully operational on a new double synthetic-lined, 4-1/2-acre cell.

Following last Friday's certification by the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources (DER) officials, Chambers began accepting refuse in the new area today. The landfill is permitted to receive an average of 2,220 tons per day of solid waste.

This first cell is comprised of two synthetic layers 60 mil in thickness, with double-geonet detection zone for groundwater, and an 18-inch protective cover on top of primary snythetic liner.

Earlier this year, Chambers received a permit from the DER for 34 acres of landfilling space at its Southern Alleghenies landfill.

"We are very pleased that the new area was certified and we will continue to work closely with the DER on all issues regarding our landfills. We support and are committed to the strict enforcement of environmental laws and regulations in the commonwealth," said Alexander Rangos, Chambers executive vice president.

In addition, work is proceeding smoothly on preparation and construction at Chambers' landfills in Cambria, Dauphin and Washington counties.

Chambers Development Company, headquartered in Pittsburgh, is a leading environmental firm offering services in collection, hauling, disposal, recycling and landfill development.

NEW YORK (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Mark R. Mulvoy has been named publisher of Sports Illustrated, it was announced today by Robert L. Miller, executive vice president and group publisher of The Time Inc. Magazine Company.

Mulvoy has been managing editor of Sports Illustrated for the past six years.

In making the announcement, Miller said, "Mark is uniquely qualified to fill the publisher's chair. His entire background, coupled with his instinctive business sense and passion for sports, should help Sports Illustrated and Time Warner develop even bigger opportunities in the '90s."

Jason McManus, editor-in-chief of Time Warner Inc., said, "Mark's editorial tenure at Sport Illustrated was distinguished by the magazine's first total redesign in two decades, the recruiting of the best sports writing talent in the country, and, above all, his readiness to make Sports Illustrated the conscience of sport, with uncompromising investigative journalism on everything from drug abuse to academic scandals to the environment to gambling."

Sport Illustrated has won back-to-back National Magazine Awards for General Excellence in 1989 and 1990.

Going from the edit to the publishing side is not without precedent at Sports Illustrated. In fact, Sidney L. James, the founding managing editor of Sports Illustrated in 1954 became the magazine's publisher in 1960. Also, Andrew Heiskell, who was chairman and chief executive officer of Time Inc., and James D. Shepley, who served as the company's president, both started their Time Inc. careers as journalists -- Heiskell as a science and medicine editor at Life, and Shepley as a reporter with Time's Washington bureau.

Mulvoy, 49, began his career as a reporter for Sports Illustrated in 1965. He wrote on baseball, pro football, golf and hockey until 1976, when he became a senior editor of the magazine. In 1981, he was promoted to assistant managing editor and was named Sports Illustrated's fifth managing editor in November 1984.

He is the author of twelve books on a variety of sports subjects, including golf, hockey, basketball, curling and pro football.

Mulvoy was born in Boston. He received a B.A. degree from Boston College in 1964.

Mulvoy lives in Rye, N.Y., with his wife Patricia and their four children.

THOROFARE, NJ (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Checkpoint Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ: CHEK), today reported net revenues of $15,528,000 in its third quarter ended Sept. 30 1990, up 24 percent compared to net revenues of $12,536,000 in its 1989 third quarter. Net earnings for the quarter were $2,600,000 or 27 cents per share, up 77 percent over last year's third quarter of $1,466,000 or 16 cents per share.

For the first 39 weeks of 1990, net revenues of $41,108,000 increased 23 percent over the comparable 1989 net revenues of $33,448,000. Net earnings for the same period were $4,476,000 or 47 cents per share, and represents a 123 percent improvement over the 1989 comparable period net earnings of $2,006,000 of 22 cents per share.

Gerald W. Klein, president and chief operating officer, reported that "the record third quarter revenues were a result of increased sales to major retailers around the world. As evidenced by our steady sales growth, our customers are realizing the ease and benefit of integrating our Electronic Article Merchandising(SM) (EAM) products into their normal retail operating procedures. The integration of our products allows for aggressive open merchandising schemes and enhances the benefits of self-service merchandising."

Klein further stated, "The 2.6 percent decrease in the third quarter gross profit margin was primarily the result of product and market mix. Domestically we sold a higher mix of lower gross profit items. Our international shipments earn lower gross margins than our domestic shipments and, therefore, represented a higher percentage of sales. Reducing our selling, general and administrative expenses below 40 percent of net revenues vs. 42 percent in last year's third quarter helped offset the reduction in gross profit."

He also stated, "that during the third quarter, the company favorably resolved a long outstanding tax matter, (that had been provided for), related to certain tax elections from its operations in Puerto Rico. As a result, the company has changed its effective tax rate for the year to 2.3 percent vs. the prior 19 percent.

Our new $11 million Electronic Signatures(R) manufacturing facility is near completion and will be fully occupied by the end of the year. We are working with major retailers and manufacturers on our Impulse(TM) concept. They have embraced this strategy of inserting Checkpoint targets into products or packaging at the point of manufacture or distribution. Our year continues to progress as planned and we are very excited about the prospects for the remainder of 1990."

Checkpoint Systems. Inc. is the leading developer and manufacturer of advanced microprocessor and radio frequency-based EAM systems. Using detectable, paper-thin, disposable circuits, Checkpoint's Electronic Signatures systems provide a fully integrated approach to identify items or people in retail, institutional, industrial and commercial applications.

NEW YORK (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - John L. Papanek has been named managing editor of Sports Illustrated, it was announced today by Jason McManus, editor-in-chief of Time Warner Inc.

Papanek was most recently managing editor of Sports Illustrated for Kids. He becomes Sports Illustrated's sixth managing editor.

Calling Papanek "a natural choice for his new assignment," McManus said, "John's promotion from the editorship of Sports Illustrated for Kids is perhaps a paradigm for our aim of graduating that magazine's readers to the parent Sports Illustrated as they mature. Except that Papanek grew up at Sports Illustrated as few have; indeed he never worked anywhere else until be became the founding editor of Sports Illustrated for Kids in January 1989."

Born and raised in Patchogue, Long Island, Papanek started to work as a Sports

Illustrated reported right out of the University of Michigan in 1973. In 1977 he became a staff writer, distinguishing himself by his dogged profiles of some of professional basketball's most reticent superstars.

Promoted to senior editor in 1983, Papanek over the next five years variously directed Sports Illustrated's coverage of pro and college basketball as well as baseball.

HARTFORD, CT (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - The Travelers Corp. (NYSE: TIC) posted a record $1 billion in new, large case managed care sales for the period Jan. 1 through Sept. 30, 1990 adding to its client list major U.S. corporations as American Telephone & Telegraph (AT&T), Alcoa, Beatrice Hunt Wesson, Keebler and Wells Fargo.

"We're more than 180 percent above projections in our large case market, and we're likely to break the 200 mark as we finalize several pending proposals," said Joseph T. Brophy, president, Travelers' Managed Care and Employee Benefits Operations (MCEBO).

The company attributes its success to a cohesive managed care strategy based on a continuum of care model with intensive medical management, flexible products, superior technology and decentralized account management. "It's all in place now. We've completed a systems upgrade and nationwide provider recontracting program to support our new multiple option product," Brophy said.

The Travelers' multiple option product, CareOptions, gives employers flexibility by allowing them to offer their employees a choice of medical benefit options from one carrier. Options include traditional and managed indemnity, HMO and a wide range of point-of-service plans.

With the multiple option product, Travelers can support an employer using one provider network and one integrated system regardless of which option an employee selects.

"Technology always has been a focus at The Travelers, and the investment of time and dollars has paid off," said Brophy. "I know of no other carrier with integrated medical management and claims support across product lines -- across the nation. And customers have immediate access to benefit plan information through The Travelers' LINK customer workstation. We've planned well and employers, brokers and consultants are taking notice."

Through the continuum of care approach, The Travelers' managed care system helps employers manage health care costs through employee educational and wellness programs; various mental health and substance abuse programs; pharmacy management; utilitzation-review systems; aggressive medical management services and outcomes measurement.

Travelers manages, tracks and interprets health care utlitization prospectively, concurrently and retrospectively then provides its customers with reports detailing how and where benefit dollars are being used and managed care savings achieved. Travelers recently announced its capability in integrating disability and workers compensation coverages with group medical to complete its continuum of care model.

"We offer innovative programs to help employers control their costs while guaranteeing that their employees have access to quality health care. Quality care is appropriate, cost-effective care," said Brophy.

The Travelers' managed care networks are available in 130 metropolitan areas across the U.S. with regional full-service home offices in Atlanta, Dallas, Chicago, Hartford, Conn. and Walnut Creek, Calif. Based in Hartford, Travelers provides group medical and managed care services to more than 13 million Americans. The Travelers is one of the world's largest multi-line insurance, financial services, managed care and investment corporations.

ST. PETERSBURG, FL (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Talquin Corporation, the development subsidiary of Florida Progress Corporation (NYSE: FPC), announced today that it plans to sell the companies comprising its building products division.

This divestiture decision is part of the strategic planning effort by Florida Progress to review the long-term direction of the company. As a part of this planning, Talquin announced in July that it had retained Chemical Bank's investment banking unit to assist in evaluating options for the building products operations.

"While most of our major building products companies have operated profitably, we have concluded that this line of business does not fit with the long-term direction of Florida Progress," said Development Group Vice President Joseph H. Richardson. "We plan to market and sell our building products companies in an orderly fashion to achieve a fair price for each company."

Talquin expects some gains and losses from the sale of its individual companies. For the total divestiture, the company is establishing a reserve primarily for the disposition costs and potential losses associated with its window manufacturing unit. Talquin will reduce its third quarter earnings by

Through its building products companies, Talquin manufactures and distributes aluminum windows; manufactures, leases and restores bulk-hauling trailers; distributes air conditioning equipment; wholesales plumbing, irrigation and swimming pool supplies; and wholesales aluminum products, screen enclosures, siding, patio and industrial products.

In addition to its building products companies, Talquin is involved in real estate development and marine operations.

MCLEAN, VA (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) today announced it has been awarded the Department of Defense Intelligence Information System (DODIIS) Automated Message Handling System (AMHS) integration contract by the U.S. Air Force, Air Force Systems Command, Electronic Systems Division.

The contract, worth approximately $40 million over five years, will be completed by McDonnell Douglas Electronic Systems Co. here.

DODIIS AMHS is a computer system used to help manage the information contained in the large volume of textual messages required in the day-to-day operations of the Department of Defense intelligence community. AMHS automatically sorts and extracts information about a defined subject and provides only the relevant information to the user, a process called profiling. AMHS also enables an analyst to quickly search through months or years of archived messages for information on any given subject. The third function of the AMHS is to provide the capability to create and send new messages. DODIIS AMHS will standardize message handling within the DOD intelligence community.

As the DODIIS AMHS integration contractor, McDonnell Douglas will produce, integrate, implement, test, evaluate, operate and maintain the AMHS system hardware and software.

The contract provides for fielding the AMHS capabilities to DODIIS operational sites worldwide.

PITTSBURGH (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - A 54-percent increase in September sales of the Lincoln Continental, along with healthy performances by the Ford Explorer, Ford Escort, Lincoln Mark VII and Ford Mustang, helped Ford and Lincoln-Mercury dealers in the Pittsburgh area end the 1990 model year with a strong showing despite a somewhat weakened economy.

Sales of all three Lincoln luxury models were up over year-ago levels. In addition to the strong showing by Continental, the Mark VII was up 14 percent and the Lincoln Town Car was up seven percent in the entire Cincinnati Lincoln-Mercury Sales District, which includes Pittsburgh.

Lincoln's higher sales in the Pittsburgh area reflected national results for the 1990 model year, whereby Lincoln-Mercury dealers set all-time sales records for Lincoln Continental, Lincoln Town Car and total Lincoln sales, despite increasing competition in the luxury segment.

In the Cincinnati Lincoln-Mercury Sales District, total retail sales were down 14 percent for September and 19 percent for the model year, both compared to year-ago levels.

In Ford Division's Pittsburgh Sales District, sales in the compact sport utility segment were up 30 percent for September compared to September 1989. The all-new Explorer replaced the Bronco II as Ford's entry in that segment earlier this year. Ford's compact sport utility vehicle sales for the entire year rose 26 percent, compared to the prior model year.

On the passenger car side, Mustang achieved a 12-percent increase in September compared to a year ago. Escort enjoyed its best sales month since October 1989, due to increased availabiity of the all-new Escort, which debuted April 26. The Ford Tempo ended the 1990 model year with a strong performance, scoring its highest monthly sales since September 1989.

Nationally, Ford dealers achieved sales leadership in trucks for the fifth consecutive model year, and in total vehicles for the fourth consecutive model year. And, for the ninth year in a row, the Ford F-Series pickup was America's best-selling vehicle -- car or truck.

Total Ford Division sales in the Pittsburgh District were down 13.6 percent for September and 9.9 percent for the model year.

Bill Glick, sales manager for Ford Division's Pittsburgh District, said, "Sales in the last two months of the 1990 model year were stronger than might have been expected under the circumstances. Escort is gaining sales momentum despite continuing softness in the compact car segment. We're confident that Ford's market share will improve over the balance of the year."

EASTON, CONN. (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - The Connecticut Department of Public Utility Control (DPUC) has approved Bridgeport Hydraulic Company's application to activate a water bill surcharge associated with filtration facilities being installed to improve water quality.

The filtration surcharge is an across-the-board increase that will affect all classes of BHC's more than 100,000 customers in Fairfield, Litchfield and New Haven counties.

The surcharge, known as "CWIP" -- which stands for "Construction Work In Progress" -- will be applied to bills for water service provided on or after Sept. 18. An addition to existing water rates, it initially will supplement BHC's revenues on an annual basis by approximately $440,000 and result in a quarterly surcharge to bills of 0.94 percent.

The surcharge will be increased quarterly to reflect BHC's increasing investment in new water treatment facilities mandated under federal Safe Drinking Water Act (SDWA) regulations adopted by the Connecticut Department of Health Services (DOHS). The first of these facilities is a 20-million-gallon-per-day water filtration plant project that has been under construction since June at a site overlooking the dam than impounds BHC's 5.85-billion-gallon Easton Lake Reservoir in Easton.

The DOHS in April 1990 certified that the Easton Lake Project is necessary to comply with SDWA regulations, notably the Surface Water Treatment Rule, which requires the installation of filtration facilities at virtually all unfiltered surface water supplies nationwide.

CWIP is the means by which the DPUC permits Connecticut water utilities to recover the carrying cost on 90 percent of a utility's investment in mandated SDWA improvements. Over the next decade BHC must finance approximately $190 million of water system improvements, roughly half of which are required by new SDWA rules.

Total cost of the Easton Lake Project, in which BHC already has invested some $2.5 million, will approximate $34 million, making it the largest such undertaking in BHC's 133-year history.

CLEVELAND (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - American Greetings Corporation (NASDAQ: AGREA) has signed an exclusive licensing agreement with the National Wildlife Federation to use the National Wildlife Federation's name and characters on greeting card products for retail. The agreement is just one part of an overall corporate commitment by American Greetings Corporation to become more environmentally responsive.

As a result, American Greetings will introduce National Wildlife cards. Beginning with Father's Day 1991, American Greetings will offer a selection of National Wildlife cards printed on recycled paper. Each card will include educational "Critter Copy" describing the wildlife or habitat illustrated on the card. Sale of these and other National Wildlife cards will support the National Wildlife Federation's wildlife and conservation education efforts.

"Wildlife and nature scenes always have been favorites for greeting cards," says Mary Ann Corrigan-Davis, vice president of product management for American Greetings. "In the past several years, as we investigated ways to become more environmentally responsive, the tie-in with the National Wildlife Federation was a 'natural.'

"Both the National Wildlife Federation and American Greetings are leaders in our fields, and we share the same goals. With this agreement, we can help support the federation's educational efforts while providing products that reflect the Federation's desires to be environmentally friendly."

For summer of 1991, American Greetings will introduce a special assortment of everyday cards printed on recycled paper. These National Wildlife cards, totaling 90 designs, depict the beauty and majesty of the world of nature.

One card, which opens to show a beautiful desert panorama, begins with a quote from Emerson, "A friend may well be reckoned the masterpiece of Nature." Inside the card continues, "Having a friend like you is one of life's nicest gifts."

The card features the saquaro cactus and "Critter Copy" on the back describes the growth of this cactus, which reaches 50 feet tall when mature.

"Our Father's Day and summer card programs are just the beginning for American Greetings involvement with environmental conservation," says Corrigan-Davis. "We plan to place National Wildlife products in our birthday and everyday card lines, as well as in our major seasonal card programs, including Christmas 1991 and Valentine's Day 1992.

"This, in addition to corporate efforts to reduce scrap and recycle within American Greetings on a day-to-day basis, represents our continued corporate commitment to helping conserve our environment for future generations."

"The National Wildlife Federation is pleased to have entered into an agreement with American Greetings for the manufacture and retail marketing of National Wildlife greeting cards," says Alan Lamson, vice president, promotional activities for the National Wildlife Federation. "The incorporation of recycled paper and wildlife educational themes and messages will combine to help make the U.S. public more aware of our environmental needs and help create more responsible action to improve our natural resources and environment. We look forward to American Greetings assistance in bringing these messages to mainstream America through their outstanding retail distribution network."

Headquartered in Cleveland, Ohio, American Greetings Corporation is the world's largest publicly owned manufacturer and distributor of greeting cards and related social expression products, with annual revenues in excess of $1.3 billion. American Greetings products can be found in leading retail outlets worldwide.

NEW YORK (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Duke Power Co.'s $75 million auction market preferred stock is rated 'AA' by Fitch. It is part of a 1 million share preferred stock $100 par value shelf registration. Credit quality is expected to decline modestly for the next few years, but longer term prospects support the current ratings.

Some deterioration in the utility's financial position has occurred. For the twelve months ended June 30, 1990, pretax interest coverage was 4.18 times, down from 4.42 times at year-end 1989. Earnings pressure will continue until Bad Creek is completed and its cost reflected in rate relief. Current ratings recognize that financial parameters will improve once the unit is operational and rate relief is granted. In the meantime, management is committed to controlling operating costs and maintaining the company's financial indicators. Duke's capitalization is superior to the average U.S. investor-owned utility, at 43 percent total debt, 8.8 percent preferred stock, and 48.2 percent common stock as of second-quarter 1990. Internal cash flow was a healthy 80 percent of construction expenditures at that time, and is expected to drop only slightly.

This year marks the first time since 1987 that Duke publicly raised new capital. For 1990, $350 million in long-term debt was sold. In addition to this $75 million preferred, another $100 million or more in new debt is expected in 1990 or early 1991. No major common stock issue is planned over the next several years.

To enhance the system's flexibility in generating capacity, the company is adding pumped storage units at Bad Creek, estimated at $1.06 billion. The company also has options on 16 General Electric combustion turbines. No further new baseload capacity is expected until the next century, but capital expenditures should remain significant. Bad Creek Units 1 and 2 are expected to be in service 1992 or earlier, and Units 3 and 4 in 1993.

CHICAGO (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - FNW Bancorp (NASDAQ: FNWB) today reported that record asset growth and stable interest rates during the third quarter resulted in a 12.9 percent gain in net interest income for the quarter compared with the same period a year ago.

"Given our year-to-date results, we estimate that earnings in 1990 will be 12 percent higher than the record results we recorded in 1989," commented Harold R. Pehlke, president and chief executive officer of the eight-bank holding company.

Third quarter figures

Net income of $3.791 million on net interest income of $12.483 million for the quarter represented a 9 percent increase over the $3.479 million in net income recorded in the third quarter, 1989. Net interest income during the same period, 1989, amounted to $11.058 million. For the quarter just ended, net income amounted to 28 cents per share compared against 25 cents per share in 1989. Book value climbed 14 percent to $6.73 per share during the third quarter, up from $5.87 in the same period 1989.

For the comparable quarters in each of the two years: Total assets increased 9.4 percent to $1.35 billion in 1990 from $1.23 billion in 1989. Total deposits rose 9.0 percent to $1.195 billion from $1.097 billion, 1990 over 1989. total loans grew 11.3 percent to $812.7 million in 1990, up from $730.2 million in 1989.

Nine-month figures

For the nine-month period just ended, net interest income measured $36.684 million; net income amounted to $11.435 million, or 83 cents per share. These figures represent increases of 11.2 percent and 13.6 percent respectively over the comparable period in 1989.

Year-to-date, the company has produced an annualized return on average assets of 1.18 percent and a return on shareholders' quality of 17.46 percent. These annualized figures compare to an ROA of 1.16 percent and ROE of 17.69 percent during fiscal 1989.

Portfolio quality

Non-performing assets rose slightly during the quarter. The increase in non-performing assets, however, is not expected to have any material effect on anticipated earnings for the year. Management remains comfortable with earnings projections of $1.12-$1.13 per share. These earnings projections are adjusted to reflect the two-for-one stock split declared July 18 and paid Sept. 15.

Looking forward to fourth quarter and 1991

"As we enter the year's fourth quarter and look ahead into 1991, we see a weakening economy," Pehlke commented. "From an analytical viewpoint, we are already seeing a flattened yield curve which has put some pressure on our net interest margin. In fact, as we assess the factors we feel will have the greatest impact on future revenues, we see more cause for concern in narrower margins and increases in non-controllable costs -- i.e., the anticipated increases in FDIC insurance and increases in postage -- than any potential problems in asset quality.

"To offset rising costs and narrower margins, we have been challenged to find new, higher margin niche markets without adding to portfolio risk. Our strategy to accomplish this is four-fold: The first is to expand our equipment leasing activities. The second is to place greater emphasis on new and existing consumer services. The third is to expand our retail branch network. The fourth -- which we continually strive to improve -- is operating efficiency.

"Our recently reorganized equipment leasing subsidiary has attracted substantial new business and we have received approval for two branch facilities in high-growth consumer markets," Pehlke continued. "The new offices will be located in East Elgin and in Lake Zurich; we expect them to be fully operational in 1991. Operationally, we have also witnessed year-to-year improvement in efficiency. As a percent of average assets, total operating expenses in 1990 have been reduced to 2.73 percent compared to 2.81 percent for the first 9 months of 1989.

Capital strength

During this period of strong profits, the company again strengthened its primary capital ratio. FNW's primary capital stood at 7.99 percent of total assets, a 29 basis point increase over the 7.70 percent figure of a year ago.

FNW Bancorp is a $1.3 billion multi-bank holding and equipment leasing company operating in selected markets in northeastern Illinois with 15 locations in the high growth areas of Cook, Kane, Lake and DuPage counties.

ATLANTA (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Fitzgerald & Co. today announced that the agency signed an agreement to become agency of record for Charter Medical Corp.'s $15 million to $20 million advertising and marketing account.

The move consolidates Charter's marketing and advertising business, which the corporation's facilities previously handled on an individual basis, using a multitude of advertising agencies. It also brings Charter's psychiatric and medical/surgical hospitals under the same marketing umbrella.

"Given the evolving nature of the healthcare market, we see Charter as a terrific marketing challenge," said Dave Fitzgerald, president of Fitzgerald & Co. "They needed an agency who will work as their marketing partners to help Charter build a clear and positive image nationwide.

"Charter is an outstanding company, with management who understand the need for strong strategic marketing planning and a cohesive, consistent message. We're obviously very excited about the opportunity to help them reach their goals."

"The healthcare marketplace is changing dramatically," said Mark A. Kaiser, vice president, Sales & Marketing for Charter Medical Corp. "The rules about who's making healthcare decisions are moving from the patient to the payor. These larger forces are playing an important role in how Charter markets our services.

"We chose Fitzgerald & Company because -- given the changes taking place in our marketplace and at Charter -- we need an agency with a strong marketing foundation that's well integrated with outstanding creative.

"Fitzgerald & Company has the added plus of healthcare experience in the medical/surgical hospital and medical products arenas and they showed a sensitivity to issues that are important to us as we centralize our marketing and advertising efforts and address the changing marketplace," he continued.

Fitzgerald & Co. is located at 11 Piedmont Center, Suite 910, Atlanta, GA 30305.

INDIANAPOLIS (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - A 67-percent increase in sales of the all-new Ford Explorer, along with large gains for the all-new Ford Escort and Lincoln car lines in September, helped Ford Motor Company (NYSE: F) dealers finish the 1990 model year in Indianapolis with a solid performance despite a somewhat weakened economy.

Escort, up 17 percent in September, was Ford Division's best-selling car in the district with nearly 4,100 sales in the model year, said Don Laye, Ford Division's Indianapolis District sales manager.

Strong sales of the Explorer, introduced in March, mirrored a national trend whereby Ford Division's dealers captured sales leadership in trucks for the fifth consecutive model year, and in total vehicles for the fourth consecutive model year.

At Lincoln-Mercury Division, Lincoln car line sales posted a 30-percent increase in September, compared to year-ago levels, paced by a 54-percent increase in Lincoln Continental sales.

"Nationally, Lincoln-Mercury dealers established all-time sales records for total Lincolns (223,596), Lincoln Continental (60,971) and Lincoln Town Car (141,157) despite growing competition in the luxury segment," according to Donald Kaegi, Cincinnati District sales manager. The district encompasses Indianapolis.

"Sales in the last two months of the 1990 model year were stronger than might have been expected under the circumstances," Laye and Kaegi pointed out. "With increased availability of the all-new Escort and Mercury Tracer, which were not widely available earlier in the year, we anticipate an improvement in Ford's market share during the remainder of the calendar year."

SEATTLE (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - The organization that provides health care to one of every 11 Washington residents, has chosen a new president and chief executive officer.

Group Health Cooperative of Puget Sound today named Phil Nudelman, Ph.D. to its highest administrative position. He will succeed Aubrey Davis, who will remain with Group Health as president emeritus. Nudelman will assume office in early 1991.

Non-profit Group Health is the nation's largest consumer-governed health care organization, serving more than 457,000 people across Washington state and northern Idaho. Group Health is the state's ninth-largest employer, with nearly 9,000 full- and part-time staff.

Nudelman, 54, is currently executive vice president and chief operating officer for Group Health, responsible for all delivery of care. He is a 17-year veteran of Group Health, having served as director of professional services and regional administrator.

Group Health conducted a 10-month national search for its new chief executive officer. "We're convinced that the best person for the job is already here," said Dorothy Mann, chair of the Cooperative. "Phil understands the special qualities that make Group Health, as a consumer-governed cooperative, different from all the other health plans with which we compete."

Nudelman, a Bellevue resident, is a former chair of the Washington State Board of Pharmacy, the Seattle Area Hospital Council and the Foundation for Health Care Quality. A faculty member of the University of Washington School of Pharmacy and at Washington State University, he is a member of the House of Delegates for the American Hospital Association.

Nudelman founded the Heads Up Center and Youth Eastside Services Inc. in Bellevue. He chaired the Seattle-King County Drug Commission and is a past vice president of the Temple de Hirsch Sinai. He is currently chair of the Center for Wildlife Conservation, vice president of the Woodland Park Zoo Board of Directors and was a member of the Governor's Task Force on Aids.

Founded in 1947, Group Health Cooperative has 29 primary care medical centers, two hospitals, an inpatient center, five specialty centers and affiliations with 31 other medical institutions throughout the Northwest.

VAN NUYS, CALIF. (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Pinkerton's Inc. (NASDAQ: PKTN) achieved higher net income in its third quarter and continued its strong operating trend for the year.

Net income advanced 61 percent to $2,787,000 for the 12 weeks ended Sept. 7, from $1,727,000 for the same period a year ago. Earnings per share rose to 44 cents from 35 cents last year, however, weighted average outstanding common equivalent shares are 6,119,113 as compared to only 4,730,051 last year. The difference being the initial public offering of common stock in April 1990. Revenues for the quarter were $135,476,000 compared to $140,607,000 in the corresponding quarter a year ago.

Income before extraordinary item increased 55 percent to $5,788,000, or 98 cents per share for the three quarters of 1990 from $3,734,000, or 73 cents per share for the three quarters of 1989. The extraordinary item was an after-tax charge of $2,796,000, or 50 cents per share, for the write-off of previously deferred financing costs. This charged reduced net income for the three quarters of 1990 to $2,992,000, or 48 cents per share. Revenues for the three quarters of 1990 were $403,103,000 compared to $419,629,000 for the same period last year.

Thomas W. Wathen, chairman and president, commented, "Pinkerton continued to make excellent progress toward its strategic goals during the third quarter. We have seen substantial gains in operating income for both the third quarter and three quarters, in spite of the modest declines in revenues due to dropping some marginal clients. In the last quarter, the company has focused on adding revenue to renew its growth process."

He added, "As planned, we have just introduced a marketing component to our growth strategy to build on our company's outstanding reputation and solid finance base.

"During the third quarter, we established our international division as planned and also opened our first office in Mexico. We see an excellent potential for growth in selected international markets in the coming years. We are also developing our service lines within the security and investigation business."

Wathen concluded, "We remain highly optimistic about our company's many opportunities for growth, particularly in a period that may be faced with recession, because of our experienced field management people who have been through these times before. We have achieved increased profits since going public and we believe that our strategy will continue to succeed in the fourth quarter and beyond."

Pinkerton's Inc. is one of the largest security and investigative companies in the United States with 208 offices in 40 states and three foreign countries and more than 40,000 employees.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, CALIF. (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Before heading to outer space McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) engineers and a former Apollo astronaut will first go underwater to assemble a Mars aerobrake.

McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Co. and the Mars Mission Research Center will work together on the full-scale test of an aerobrake mockup scheduled for Oct. 17.

Conducted in McDonnell Douglas' Underwater Test Facility, the test will allow engineers to approximate zero gravity conditions similar to those astronauts will encounter in space. Former Apollo astronaut Pete Conrad will participate as a diver in the upcoming test. Outfitted in a space suit to further simulate actual space conditions, he will work underwater to assemble the aerobrake -- providing valuable feedback to test conductors at the surface.

Aerobrakes, large structures covered with materials able to withstand high temperatures, operate by creating atmospheric drag forces that slow down an approaching spacecraft, allowing it to enter the orbit of the destination planet. NASA has identified aerobraking as a critical technology for the Space Exploration Initiative that President Bush established in July 1989.

The tests will use a partial, full-scale mockup of a candidate Mars aerobrake that the Mars Mission Research Center developed at its facilities in North Carolina. The academic organization is a NASA- sponsored University Space Engineering Research Center that is co-located at North Carolina State and North Carolina A&T universities. Students at the center have had an important role in developing the mockup and will be supporting the upcoming tests.

A key tool in the test will be a large telerobotic arm used to line up pieces of the aerobrake. Test conductors will measure the length of time required to construct the aerobrake and the effectiveness of the astronaut/robotic interaction.

The benefit of aerobraking comes from potential savings in propellant requirements compared to standard approaches that employ rockets for all of the braking maneuvers. However because of their large sizes (some designs call for dimensions of more than 120 feet), it will probably be impractical to launch a fully integrated, rigid aerobrake on a single rocket booster.

Consequently the options of assembling aerobrakes in orbit, possibly on Space Station Freedom, is receiving considerable interest. Another alternative is to make the aerobrakes out of advanced, flexible materials that can be packed into a standard launch vehicle fairing and then deployed upon reaching orbit.

McDonnell Douglas plans to generate data on the erectable aerobrake approach this year, particularly in the areas of facilities, operations and interactions between space-walking astronauts and telerobotic arms. Such data will be used to refine future designs of aerobrakes, as well as growth versions of Space Station Freedom.

INSTON-SALEM, N.C. (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - R.J. Reynolds Tobacco International Inc. today announced that it has purchased one of Germany's leading cigarette brands.

The company signed an agreement this week with the former East German State Trust, Treuhandanstalt, to acquire Club, the third-biggest local brand in eastern Germany.

Club currently holds a 15 percent share of the local brand segment in the former East German market. Club has been sold and marketed by RJR Tobacco International's German subsidiary, R.J. Reynolds Tobacco GmbH, under a contractual agreement since March 1990.

RJR Tobacco International began selling its Camel, Winston and Reyno brands in East Germany earlier this year. Company officials said the purchase of Club would give RJR Tobacco International an additional foothold in the eastern German market.

Production of the brand will be moved next year to an RJR Tobacco International facility in Germany; it is currently produced in eastern Berlin.

R.J. Reynolds Tobacco International is a subsidiary of RJR Nabisco Inc.

WEST MONROE, LA. (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Manville Forest Products Corp. (MFP) announced today that it has established corporate offices in Atlanta, Ga. in order to better serve its expanding international operations. MFP has acquired three international companies -- in the U.K., Sweden and Australia -- in the past seven months. MFP also operates a subsidiary in Brazil, one of Brazil's largest paper producers which includes two paper mills and three container plants.

"We expect one-half of our sales to be generated by our foreign operations in the near future," said Tom Johnson, MFP president. The Atlanta MFP corporate headquarters will provide offices for the corporation's president, chief financial officer, the international division and support staffs.

MFP's domestic operations, which includes the paperboard, packaging and wood products divisions, will continue to be headquartered in West Monroe, La. No major organizational changes for these operations are expected as a result of opening the Atlanta office.

In West Monroe, the company operates a pulp and paper mill which supplies paper and paperboard to the company's other plants nationwide. The mill produces clay coated and uncoated, unbleached paperboard and kraft paper and corrugating medium. The company also owns or operated 600,000 acres of timberland in Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas with a sawmill and plywood plant at Joyce, La. as well as a sawmill at Huttig, Ark. Converting plants are located in West Monroe; Bakersfield, Calif.; Charlotte, N.C.; Cincinnati, Ohio; Clinton, Miss.; Jacksonville, Ill.; Kankakee, Ill.; Madison, Wisc.; and Memphis, Tenn.

In anticipation of growing international paper markets and a predicted downturn in U.S. paper markets, MFP undertook an aggressive international expansion program earlier this year. "We intend to keep our West Monroe paper mill production at peak levels," said Johnson. "By expanding our customer base internationally, we protect local jobs and spur growth."

In addition to international growth, MFP anticipates committing up to $40 million in new capital expenditures at the West Monroe complex in 1991 and $13 million more in capital projects at other plant locations across the U.S.

Manville Forest Products Corp. is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Manville Corp. The company has major business segments in paperboard, packaging and wood products. Current employment is approximately 8,200 worldwide with 2,200 employed in northern Louisiana. MFP's consolidated sales for 1989 were $777 million. Operating earnings in 1989 of $180 million represented approximately 49 percent of Manville Corporation's consolidated earnings.

ARLINGTON, TX (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Altai Inc. (NASDAQ: ALTI) today announced revenue and earnings for its 1990 fiscal year which ended July 31, 1990. Revenue increased 40 percent to $6,621,000 compared to $4,741,000 for the prior year. Net income from continuing operations for the year was a loss of $454,000 or 24 cents per share compared to a loss of $176,000, or 9 cents per share for the prior fiscal year. Fourth quarter revenue was $1,663,000 with a net loss of $206,000 (11 cents per share) compared to revenue of $1,300,000 and net income of $5,000 (1 cent per share) for the same quarter a year ago.

James P. Williams, Altai president and CEO commented, "The company's losses are directly attributable to the $1,300,000 in legal and professional fees required to defend a lawsuit filed against Altai in August of 1988. The cost to defend this action accelerated with the case being brought to trial during the second half of this fiscal year." Williams continued, "Without these litigation expenses, Altai would have had a year of both strong growth and respectable profitability."

Williams stated, "Altai's 40 percent revenue growth for the year was on target with the year's forecast. Altai's new products have helped contribute to this growth, and we expect more exciting products to be announced in the coming year." Williams concluded, "The company's revenue growth should continue as more and more data centers take advantage of the enormous benefits derived from automated operations and the integrated product line solutions offered by Altai Software."

SCHAUMBURG, ILL. (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - Motorola, Inc. (NYSE: MOT) said today that it has reached a satisfactory settlement with Hitachi, Ltd. (NYSE: HIT) on intellectual property and technology disputes between the companies regarding Hitachi's H/8 and H/16 microcontrollers and Motorola's 68030 and 88000 microprocessors.

Settlement terms were not disclosed. Motorola said it will file joint motions with Hitachi before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit and the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Texas (Austin Division), requesting that all pending cases involving Hitachi's microcontrollers and Motorola's microprocessors be dismissed.

In a statement, Motorola Semiconductor Products Sector President and General Manager James A. Norling said: "We are very pleased with this settlement. Our unwavering goals in this legal action were to protect Motorola's intellectual property, and to assure our customers an uninterrupted supply of Motorola's leadership microprocessors. This settlement achieves both those goals."

ST. LOUIS (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - INTERCO INC. (NYSE: ISS) reported operating results for the second quarter and six months ended Aug. 31, 1990. Results from continuing operations for the current year reflect INTERCO's core companies -- Broyhill Furniture Industries Inc.; The Lane Co. Inc.; Converse Inc.; and The Florsheim Shoe Co.

Sales levels of the four core companies were approximately even with last year. Operating earnings, while below last year, were generally in line with the company's expectations, given the continuing soft domestic economic environment. Richard B. Loynd, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer, noted that in the second quarter the company made good progress in the area of working capital management which resulted in improved cash generation.

Second Quarter Results

For the second quarter, sales from continuing operations were $369.1 million, compared with $430.2 million a year ago. The year-earlier figures, however, included Ethan Allen Inc., sold in the second quarter of fiscal 1990, and Senack Shoes Inc., the majority of which was also sold in the second quarter. In last year's second quarter, core business sales were $371.3 million.

Earnings from continuing operations after corporate expense, but before interest expense, restructuring expenses, asset dispositions and income taxes, were $22.8 million, compared with $34.7 million last year. The year-ago results included a profit contribution of $1.2 million from Ethan Allen and Senack. Core companies' earnings before corporate expense were $27.7 million, compared with $35 million a year ago.

The net loss from continuing operations was $30.5 million, or $1.40 a share (including preferred dividend requirements of 61 cents a share), compared with net earnings of $41.4 million, or 52 cents a share last year (including preferred dividend requirements of 51 cents a share). Including discontinued operations, INTERCO reported a net loss of $35.3 million, or $1.53 a share, versus net earnings of $118.7 million, or $2.43 a share a year ago. Last year's net earnings included an after-tax gain of $139.9 million realized from sales of assets, of which $69.7 million related to continuing operations.

NEW YORK (OCT. 8) PR NEWSWIRE - James P. Lennane, chairman of the ASK Shareholders Committee, announced today that the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc. has determined that the proposed sale of 42 percent of ASK Computer Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ: ASKI) common stock to Hewlett-Packard Company (NYSE: HWP) and Electronic Data Systems Corporation, in connection with ASK's proposed acquisition of Ingres Corporation, requires the approval of ASK's shareholders as a condition to the continued listing of ASK common stock on the NASDAQ National Market System (NMS).

Lennane commented, "I am pleased that the NASD supports my firm belief that shareholders should have the opportunity to approve significant corporate transactions. The ASK board should heed the NASD's ruling and immediately initiate a shareholder vote to approve the issuance of the new ASK shares. I intend to push forward with my effort to replace a majority of the ASK board at the Oct. 26 annual meeting."

As previously announced, Lennane filed suit in Delaware Chancery Court on Sept. 26 seeking to enjoin the proposed sale until it is approved by a vote of ASK shareholders. A hearing has been scheduled in Delaware for Oct. 9.

BOSTON (OCT. 8) UPI - Bob Welch delivered the post-season start of his career and late-summer acquisition Harold Baines drove in three runs Sunday night, sending the Athletics halfway to an American League playoff sweep with a 4-1 victory over the Red Sox.

Welch, who had never survived the sixth inning in six post-season starts, went 7 1-3 innings, giving the A's a 2-0 lead in the best-of- seven series. They can clinch their third straight pennant by winning two of the next three games all scheduled for Oakland Coliseum.

Welch, a 27-game winner and a candidate for the AL Cy Young Award, set a playoff record simply by throwing a pitch. He has appeared in seven playoffs, the first in 1978 while a member of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Before a crowd of 35,070, Welch went 7 1-3 innings. Ignoring attempts to break his rhythm, he allowed just six hits and positioned Oakland for its second sweep of the Red Sox in three seasons.

Rick Honeycutt relieved Welch with one out and two on in the eighth. He got Mike Greenwell to ground into a force that knocked shortstop Walt Weiss from the game with a sprained left knee.

Dennis Eckersley relieved and ended the threat by fanning Dwight Evans. He finished for his eighth save, extending his playoff record.

Boston starter Dana Kiecker, whose regular-season ERA at Fenway Park was 6.50, allowed just one run in 5 2-3 innings but relievers duplicated their failure of Game 1. At one point, four of six batters reached against loser Greg Harris and Larry Andersen, and the result was a deficit never overcome in AL playoff history.

Three previous clubs have taken the first two AL Championship Series games on the road, and all have advanced to the World Series. Only twice in 14 tries has a club rebounded to take an ALCS after opening with two losses.

Just as in Game 1, Oakland spotted Boston a run, then tied the score and went ahead before adding insurance runs in the ninth. Only a diving stop by Boston first baseman Carlos Quintana limited the damage in the Oakland seventh, but the A's emerged with their 19th playoff victory, tying the major-league record.

Boston suffered its sixth straight playoff loss, equalling a big- league record.

With the score tied 1-1 in the seventh, Mike Gallego and Rickey Henderson singled, knocking out Harris. Andersen got Willie McGee to force Henderson, and Jose Canseco walked. At that point, four of six Oakland batters had reached against the bullpen.

Quintana then dove to prevent Baines' grounder from going down the line, but the tie-breaking run came across. Baines was acquired from Texas on August 29th for two players to be named later.

Oakland added two runs in the ninth on an RBI double by Baines and and RBI single by Mark McGwire.

For the second straight game, Boston took a 1-0 lead. Luis Rivera opened the third with a double off the Green Monster and advanced on Jody Reed's grounder to second. Quintana lined the first pitch to left, allowing Rivera to score standing up.

Oakland answered in its next turn. Willie McGee led off with a double. One out later, Baines singled him home.

Kiecker left in the sixth despire receiving defensive help. Jose Canseco singled but was erased when Reed snagged Baines' smash and turned it into a double play. But Mark McGwire and Carney Lansford singled, bringing in Harris. Ron Hassey singled, loading the bases, but Walt Weiss grounded out.

By raising its playoff record to 19-15, the A's set an AL mark for most wins and tied the Dodgers for most in the majors.

MOSCOW (OCT. 8) UPI - About 500 people demanded a volunteer army and alternative military service at a Constitution Day protest outside the Soviet Defense Ministry.

The Radical Party, one of dozens of political organizations that have sprouted under President Mikhail Gorbachev's glasnost reforms, sponsored the rally Sunday at Moscow's famed Arbat Square on a cold and damp autumn day.

''Only the professionalization and depoliticization of the army and the implementation of alternative service can rescue the army from the depths of complete demoralization,'' said Kiril Klucherovsky, a representative of the Russian Popular Front.

A row of women stood in front of the crowd, holding up posters and photographs of their dead sons, husbands and brothers who were among the 20,000 conscripts they said have died since 1986 in non-combat military service.

Demonstrators hoisted colorful flags against a grey sky, including the blue-yellow-and-white Russian imperial banner, the white-blue-and- red nationalist Russian flag, the blue-and-yellow Ukrainian flag and a banners from a dozen different political parties and clubs.

The protesters gathered about 150 feet from the massive white-granite Defense Ministry, festooned in honor of Constitution Day with 30 red Soviet flags fluttering in groups of three and cordoned off by a ring of police.

Roars of approval and chants of ''shame, shame'' went up from the crowd when Stanislav Filimonov, a member of the Moscow City Council, called for Defense Minister Dmmitri Yazov's resignation and his replacement by a civilian military leader.

''Yazov - your army is not our army,'' read one of dozens of signs held aloft by the demonstrators. Other placards said, ''We don't want to be occupiers'' and ''Better active today than radioactive tomorrow.''

Fyodor Abramov, 16, held a sign saying, ''We don't want to serve - we want to live.''

Abramov said he hopes that a law allowing alternative service will be in place by the time he reaches draft age in 1992.

''My conscience would never allow me to shoot at another person with a gun,'' he said. ''If I had to go, for instance, to Armenia (to control ethnic unrest) I would simply desert.''

The Soviet armed forces are by far the world's largest with more than 5 million men in uniform. A number of young military officers have joined the call for a streamlined volunteer army with provisions for alternative service, but their demands have been resisted by Yazov and other high commanders.

The current army is plagued by frequent incidents of hazing and other acts of violence, which speakers at the rally Sunday said have caused 20,000 largely uninvestigated deaths in the past four years.

Ina Blinova, 50, held up a photograph of her son, Alexander, who she said was hanged June 4 by other soldiers. Ludmila Bezrukova, 28, said her brother, Igor Trifonov, died July 10 in mysterious circumstances that she said are being probed only halfheartedly.

The demonstration was scheduled to coincide with Constitution Day, which celebrates the Oct. 7, 1977, adoption of the present Soviet Constitution under the late Leonid Brezhnev. The country has had several constitutions since the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution.

The Soviet Parliament is currently drafting a new constitution, and rally speakers Sunday called on deputies to act more speedily and adopt a document scrapping the constitutional article that guarantees the Communist Party monopoly rule.

Krasnaya Zvezda, the army's official newspaper, said in a commentary: ''If whole generations of people constantly see that words are at variance with deeds, it is futile to expect that they will become law- abiding citizens.''

(OCT. 8) UPI - The House Sunday night opened debate on a Democratic-crafted budget plan that finds new ways to reduce the nation's budget deficit by 500-BILLION dollars during five years. Democratic House and Senate negotiators on a conference committee cleared the way for the action when they approved the measure hours earlier.

Arab leaders Sunday searched for a peaceful solution to the Persian Gulf crisis, even though Iraq has been sending conflicting messages about its intentions. P-L-O chief Yasser Arafat met with Jordan's King Hussein in Amman. A high- level Egyptian delegation traveled to Syria for talks on the crisis.

The United Auto Workers Union has nailed down agreements with the nation's top two automakers. And U-A-W President Owen Bieber says he believes the union can reach a similar pact with Chrysler, even though the number-three automaker says it can't afford it. A three-year pact tentatively agreed to Sunday with Ford is similar to a deal cut last month with General Motors.

Activity aboard the shuttle Discovery on Monday will be similar to Sunday's work when the astronauts kept busy with a number of tasks... including experiments and the gathering of data for a 1992 satellite rescue mission. The four-day flight to launch a European-built solar probe is scheduled to end Wednesday morning.

Liberian rebel leader Charles Taylor Sunday repeated his call for ''UNconditional negotiations'' with third parties to the rebellion in the West African nation. Taylor's calls came as his troops retreated from two battlefronts as they were hit with heavy artillery by a West African peace-keeping force.

MONROVIA, LIBERIA (OCT. 8) UPI - Ten-year-old Benedick was resting, exhausted and unstable from a lack of food. A walk from the city center, which ordinarily would have taken the youngster 20 minutes, lasted the whole night.

He sat on an uprooted telegraph pole, completely naked, the sharp angles of his shoulder blades almost breaking through the tight skin of his back. The bars of his ribs furrowed his chest.

His family had died of starvation and he simply left the house, without clothes or purpose, and reached the port early in the morning.

Benedick was carried to the redemption hospital in New Kru Town, on the outskirts of Monrovia. He needed glucose and antibiotics to stop his chronic diarrhea and dehydration, but the hospital had neither.

He died a few hours later.

''Well,'' said Dr. Gbatokai Dakinah, ''we cannot save them all.'' He smiled, even laughed. It was just one more death, another starving child trapped in the 10-month old war. The war could not be solved by pity.

Dakinah would like to charge $10 a day for patients who want to be admitted but they have no money to pay. And he has no money to buy food or medication.

''It's complete charity work,'' he said. ''The food situation is so desperate that we can't do more than give our patients one small meal a day. There's no meat and no fish. We're having to treat cholera, meningitis and gunshot wounds and we don't have any new medical supplies.''

The Belgian aid agency Medecines sans Frontieres has provided substantial supplies to the 50-bed island clinic a few miles away. What was once the smartest private clinic in Monrovia is now treating 105 patients, most of them suffering from non-specific diarrhea, gunshot wounds and a mixture of malnutrition and cholera, known locally as kwashikoro.

''Everything is about to come to a standstill. We are running out of everything, and people outside Liberia don't understand what is going on,'' said Dr. Augustin Amechi, medical director of the clinic.

A team of gravediggers at the clinic is paid a cup of rice each for every body they have to bury.

An ambulance service brings in new patients from the city every day. The ambulances are wheelbarrows, and the drivers charge $25 for a one- way trip.

''This situation is worse than Biafra,'' said Dr. Amechi, a Nigerian. ''There, it was the soldiers who suffered, but here, around nine civilians are dying for every soldier.''

As many as 70,000 people have left the center of the war-torn Liberian capital and crossed to Bushrod Island where the two clinics are located. There, they gather around the entrance to the freeport, where they hope either to be evacuated by ships of the West African peacekeeping force, or to find rice brought in on the ships for the force's 4,000-strong army.

Outside the port, hundreds of people line up for days, hoping that something will happen. While talking to people in the lines Saturday, a Nigerian soldier from the force tried to hawk a sack of rice for 100 American dollars.

Some members of the peacekeeping force - sent to Liberia by the Economic Community of West African States on Aug. 24. - have been found selling goods from warehouses in the port to the starving, impoverished population.

Businessmen whose warehouses were not looted by Liberian government soldiers or rebels intent on profiteering from the war, are now trying to make up for their losses by inflating prices in the captive market. Despite assurances from the ECOWAS field commander, Major Gen. Joshua Doganyaro, Friday, that the port is now safe for supplies to be brought in by sea, insurance premiums have increased 900 percent, so the local business community is thriving.

Along United Nations Drive, which runs the length of Bushrod Island, Liberians sell the goods that the businessmen - most of them Indian or Lebanese - allow to trickle out of their warehouses.

A mouthful of milk powder is sold for $4, while a tin of the powder is sold for up to $120. The insides of palm leaves, being sold as a rice substitute although it has almost no nutritional value, are on sale for $3.50 a slice.

People try to sell handkerchiefs and cloth and shoes wrapped in plastic bags, but nobody wants to buy.

Among the street vendors, starving children, their faces withered by hunger, try to get $5 for plastic carrier bags that used to sell for 20 cents.

Squatting on the ground beside an overgrown railroad track, children use stones to crack palm kernels on the hard, hot ground. The small nuts inside are worth about three cents each, but they were the only food those children would eat that day.

By a vote of 250-164, the House this morning passed a budget plan written by Democrats that would cut Medicare by 42-BILLION dollars instead of the 60-BILLION called for in the plan defeated last week. The Senate is expected to consider the new plan later today. The House has now turned to a spending bill to end the two-day shutdown of federal agencies.

The shuttle Discovery astronauts deliberately started a fire yesterday, as part of an experiment to see how the absence of gravity affects flames. The small fire in a special chamber sputtered out after about 70 seconds. It appeared to flash irregularly, instead of burning steadily.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 8) UPI - The budget battle moved to the Senate following House passage early Monday of a Democratic-crafted budget plan that gives a House committee power to ease Medicare cuts by $18 billion and alter a previously defeated plan's tax package.

The 250-164 mostly party-line vote came at about 2:30 a.m. after two hours of sometimes bitter partisan debate. The Senate was expected to consider the new budget plan later Monday, along with a temporary spending bill that would end the two-day shutdown of most federal agencies and services.

The House passed the stop-gap funding bill at about 3:45 a.m. EDT Monday after approving the budget plan. But the money measure was identical to the one Bush vetoed on Saturday, and Republicans warned Bush would veto the bill again because it lacked a provision he demanded.

Rep. Dean Gallo, R-N.J., who supported a bipartisan plan defeated by the House early Friday, said on the floor early Monday that President Bush may oppose the new Democratic-crafted budget plan.

''We just got word that the president is not in favor of the way this has been handled,'' Gallo said. The White House could not be reached for comment.

Debate on the budget plan opened with House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif., telling colleagues, ''We are tonight a government in crisis and it is extremely important that we move forward with this budget resolution. ... We can no longer engage in just partisanship or games.''

The new budget plan would still cut the huge deficit by about $40 billion in fiscal year 1991, which began Oct. 1, and by $500 billion over five years. But it would significantly reduce the Medicare cut and give the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, which is controlled by Democrats, broad latitude to devise the tax component.

The new plan, according to several Democratic congressmen, would cut Medicare spending by $42 billion over five years instead of by the $60 billion Medicare would have been cut in a bipartisan budget plan negotiated by President Bush and congressional leaders but rejected by the House early Friday.

That rejection sent budget negotiators scurrying to craft a new plan which, unlike the previous proposal, apparently will not need to win a majority of both parties in both Houses in order to ensure passage. A majority of both parties rejected the first budget plan Friday.

Sources indicated that of the $42 billion Medicare cut proposed in the new plan, $30 billion would be paid by doctors and hospitals while beneficiaries would pick up other $12 billion through higher premiums and other costs that are not yet determined.

The $60 billion Medicare cut in the defeated bipartisan budget plan, which angered seniors and lawmakers of both parties, had providers paying $32 billion and beneficiaries paying $28 billion. The new plan, if adopted, would save beneficiaries $16 billion over five years compared to the initial plan.

The new plan also would cut defense spending by a little more than the earlier proposal and shift $300 million in agriculture cuts from fiscal 1991 to a later year.

While a smaller Medicare cut might have broad bipartisan support, the rest of the new proposal being discussed Sunday had Republicans nervous.

The plan would let Ways and Means, led by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D- Ill., decide how to cut $20 billion fromthe deficit. In other words, the panel could decide which taxes to raise and which to cut and by how much.

''Nobody is interested in giving Dan Rostenkowski a $20 billion piece of revenue Silly Putty,'' said Rep. Jack Buechner, R-Mo.

The defeated budget plan laid out a series of specific new taxes, including higher levies on gasoline, alcohol, tobacco and airline tickets.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., meanwhile, criticized Bush for a ''gratuitous'' veto of a stop-gap spending bill. The House narrowly sustained that veto Saturday.

Foley said Bush's veto, which shut down the government except for essential services such as air traffic control, forced the House to waste time Saturday on a ''divisive debate'' on overriding the veto, even though Bush wanted lawmakers to focus on getting a new budget plan.

''I don't want the president setting fires up here on (Capitol) Hill that incite partisanship and division,'' the speaker said. ''It was a bad mistake, and I hope the president doesn't continue it.''

Bush has said he would sign a stop-gap spending bill as long as it did not delay automatic Gramm-Rudman spending cuts that would require unpaid furloughs for thousands of government workers and disrupt federal services.

But Foley said that was unacceptable. ''I do not want to see this government shut down for any purpose at any time,'' he said.

Foley also acknowledged some softening of earlier GOP opposition to raising income tax rates on the wealthiest taxpayers in exchange for the GOP goal of cutting capital gains taxes.

On the CBS program ''Face the Nation,'' budget director Richard Darman did not rule it out but said he did not expect to see that deal struck in the budget plan, which has no force of law and only tells committees what they must do to cut the deficit.

''I would be very surprised to see that as far as any agreement between now and Tuesday morning,'' Darman said.

''Darman is right,'' Foley said. ''We are not going to be doing that on the budget resolution.''

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (OCT. 8) UPI - President Roh Tae-woo fired his defense minister and another ranking official Monday for allegedly letting military security agents conduct illegal surveillance on more than 1,300 people, including politicians and dissidents.

South Korea's main opposition leader, Kim Dae Jung, meanwhile, started hunger strike to push a series of political demands, including one seeking a firm government assurance for political neutrality by the military.

Roh named Lee Jong-koo, 55, a retired general and former Army chief of staff, as defense minister succeeding Lee Sang-hoon, 57. Roh also appointed Army Lt. Gen. Koo Chang-hwe to head the powerful Defense Security Command, replacing Lt. Gen. Cho Nam-pung.

The shakeup followed a heated controversy over the alleged illegal surveillance conducted by the Defense Security Command, which is in charge of both criminal investigations and intelligence for the armed forces.

A presidential spokesman said it is the policy of the president to take prompt action against those who are responsible for wrongs related to state affairs.

''If there are problematic aspects in the operations of the Defense Security Command measures will be taken to improve its structure to meet the circumstances of the new era,'' the spokesman said.

The alleged military spying on civilians was disclosed by an Army deserter on Thursday. Private Yoon Suk-yang, 24, who was assigned to a branch office of the command, said the surveillance targets included politicians, lawyers, church and civic leaders, college professors, journalists, labor activists and dissidents.

To back up his claim, Yoon produced files prepared by agents of the Defense Security Command. Officials later said Yoon stole the documents at the time of his defection.

The disclosure drew furious protests from political parties, civic organizations and dissident groups. Even the ruling Democratic Liberal Party was critical of the alleged surveillance.

Under previous governments, the command was accused by the opposition of spying on politicians and meddling in politics. The latest develpment was embarrasing to Roh, who promised to reorganize the command structure to bar such illegal activity.

Kim Dae Jung, one of the surveillance targets, said at a news conference that he was starting an indefinite hunger strike to press his political demands.

He demanded that Roh promise not to seek a revision to the constitution, to adopt a parliamentary Cabinet system and carry out an agreement with the opposition to implement local autonomy without delay.

He also demanded that the Defense Security Command be disbanded and military interference in politics be stopped. He threatened to stage nationwide rallies and signature-collection drives to demand political neutrality of the military.

''President Roh must personally apologize to the people for the military surveillance of civilians and announce firm measures against recurrence of such activity,'' he said.

TOKYO (OCT. 8) UPI - Typhoon Hattie cut a swath across Japan's main islands Monday, drenching the nation and leaving three dead in a landslide before it was downgraded to a tropical storm shortly before hitting Tokyo.

Hattie, the 21st typhoon of the year and the fifth to hit Japan, struck overnight in the southermost main island of Kyushu with winds of 65 mph before moving up the Japanese coastline across Shikoku Island to the main island of Honshu.

Three people died and 14 were injured in northern Shikoku when Hattie's heavy rains triggered a landslide that struck the bus they were riding in, Kyodo News Service reported.

In Kyoto, 230 miles southwest of Tokyo, six train passengers were injured by flying glass when the typhoon's powerful winds toppled trees onto their coach, Kyodo said.

Hattie was downgraded to a tropical storm as it approached Tokyo Monday evening. It was expected to pass over Tokyo and move offshore into the Pacific Monday night.

MOSCOW (OCT. 8) UPI - A plenum of the Communist Party leadership opened Monday with the powerful first secretaries of regions and republics in attendance.

Although the Party abandoned its monopoly on power in February, it is still the most powerful organized force in the country while new parties organize themselves.

But the party's membership is diminishing. The newspaper Argumenti i Fakti said last week that 353,000 members quit the party in the first half of the year.

Although the party's strength is still formidable with some 18 million members many members have stopped paying dues. The party organs are facing a cash shortage and may have to dip into reserves, the financial director of the party said last month.

It is the first plenum, or full session, of the new Communist Party leadership since the new Central Committee was elected in July at the 28th Party Congress.

The party is headed by Mikhail Gorbachev, the general secretary, but the power base of the country has moved to the new powerful presidency he created for himself and now occupies.

Once the focus of all politics in the Soviet Union, the plenum Monday opened largely to yawns among Muscovites in the capital.

In the past, plenums have generally lasted two days, but the official Tass news agency did not say how long the current session would go.

The Central Commitee has been streamlined to some 210 members down from the more than 300 before Gorbachev's political reforms.

Missing from the new Central Committee is conservative Yegor Ligachev, 69, Gorbachev's former main political rival who was pensioned off in July.

But Tass said that people's deputies from the Communist Party who are not members of the Central Committee have been invited to the plenum.

Since Ligachev is a people's deputy, he might make an appearance in the forum that used to be a showcase for his political prowess.

COLUMBUS, GA (OCT. 8) UPI - Four hunger strikers protesting the U.S. training of Salvadoran soldiers at Fort Benning have ended their 35-day fast after losing a total of 150 pounds.

The Rev. Roy Bourgeois, a Catholic priest from Lutcher, La., said the strikers ended their fast Sunday on the advice of doctors, who warned of permanent health damage.

''Our cause continues,'' Bourgeois said. ''The bread we received today is nourishment for us to recommit ourselves.''

Bourgeois was among nine protesters who began the fast Sept. 3, praying, carrying signs and marching outside the Army base in Columbus. The group demanded that the United States cut all military aid to El Salvador and stop training Salvadoran soldiers at the base's Army School of the Americas.

The United States is spending $315 million in aid to El Salvador this year, much of it economic and food aid for an economy wracked by a decade-old civil war with leftist guerrillas.

TOKYO (OCT. 8) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange soared Monday in light= trading boosted by strength in the Japanese yen and bond markets.

The Nikkei Average of 225 selected shares, which gained 571.20 points Friday, surged 802.35 points, or 3.5 percent, to 23,630.00.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index, which gained 31.15 points Friday, shot up 46.52 points to 1,727.19.

Volume was light as an estimated 400 million shares changed hands, compared with 478 million shares Friday.

Advances topped declines by nearly 7 to 1.

Analysts said the U.S. dollar's plunge against the yen on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange relieved some inflationary fears and propelled the stock market forward.

The dollar traded in the low 130-yen range Monday, down more than 3 yen from Friday's close of 133.72 yen in foreign exchange trading.

Stocks also benefited from a narrowing yield gap with bonds, as the yield on the bellwether Japanese government bond closed at 8.06 percent, down from a high of 8.72 percent 10 days earlier.

''With the yen trading into the stratosphere, there was no direction for the market but up,'' said analyst Brian Tobin of S.G. Warburg Securities.

As the Nikkei approached the 24,000 level again, the pressure was off individual investors with margin accounts, who had been among the biggest sellers in recent weeks, Tobin said.

''People are content to wait and see,'' Tobin added.

But some analysts worried that the light volume could indicate continuing instability in the market, which has been marked by wide swings in recent weeks.

One analyst characterized the market as rising in a vacuum, warning that it could fall just as fast.

On the trading floor, gains were broad-based, with utilities and financial issues making notable gains based on the stronger yen.

Tokyo Electric Power Co. surged on prospects of cheaper fuel, while Fuji Bank advanced on easing interest rate fears.

Elsewhere in Asia, stocks surged on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange following the big gain earlier in Tokyo.

The benchmark Hang Seng Index, which fell 12.10 points Friday, rose 75.03 points to 2,924.48.

Among the narrower indexes, properties gained 3.68 points, utilities rose 2.90 financials added 1.33 and industrials gained 2.25 points.

Volume totaled 575 million shares, down from the 810 million shares Friday.

''It was a bit surprising,'' said Howard Gorges of South China Securities. ''It's just a gut feeling, but it may be the market has seen too much gloom and doom recently. Maybe the bearishness has been overdone.

''The Tokyo rally was a big factor on Hong Kong's upswing,'' Gorges said.

''It looks like interest rates around the world may have peaked and that would be good news for the stock markets. Now the big question still is whether there will be war in the Gulf,'' the analyst said.

In Singapore, stocks closed lower in light trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange.

The Straits Times Industrial Index, which slipped 3.67 points Friday, eased 3.90 points to 1,110.03. The broader-based All Singapore Index dipped 1.02 points to 311.34.

An estimated 22.2 million shares changed hands, compared with 32.7 million shares Friday.

Analysts said market was very weak due to lack of buying interest with most investors on the sidelines.

Despite firmer stocks in Tokyo, the Singapore market remained featureless and lackluster, one local market watcher said.

Analysts said the market would remain weak unless there was some favorable news to stimulate it.

On the trading floor, Genting Berhad paced the advancing issues followed by IJM Corp. Berhad and Overseas Chinese Banking Corp. foreign shares.

Hotel Negara led the declining issues followed by Kinta Kellas and Singapore Airlines.

In Bangkok, stocks closed higher in moderate trading on the Thailand Stock Exchange with local investors taking a wait-and-see attitude towards domestic political developments.

The Securities Exchange of Thailand Index added 7.11 points to 680.09.

Volume was around 1.7 billion shares, compared with 1.2 billion shares Friday.

Advances led declines 104 to 36. The best-performing sectors were banking, finance, and commerce.

Analysts said trading activity eased because there was no good news about the local government, as well as no further developments in the Gulf.

In Australia, stocks edged slightly higher in light trading on the Sydney Sharemarket with investors doing their best to chart a course between budget uncertainty in the United States and local hopes of interest rate cuts.

The All Ordinaries Index, which lost 11.7 points Friday, added 12.6 points to 1,369.4. The All Industrials index rose 22.0 points to 2,039.3 and the All Resources Index added 5.6 points to 874.4.

Turnover was about 49.3 million shares, compared with 80.7 million shares Friday.

Analysts said the rejection Friday of the U.S. budget continued to sour sentiment.

On the trading floor, banks did best. ANZ Bank rose 10 cents to $4.00 and NAB Bank added 8 cents to $5.98.

Elsewhere, News Corp. rose 30 cents to $6.70, Elders IXL gained 3 cents to $1.23, Adsteam fell 7 cents to $2.35 and TNT lost 5 cents to $1.69.

LYON, FRANCE (OCT. 8) UPI - Calm returned to the Lyon suburb of Vaulx-en-Velin Monday following a weekend of rioting by hundreds of young people upset at the death of a 21-year old motorcyclist in a collision with a police car.

Some 500 demonstrators burned automobiles and storefronts in the largely immigrant suburb of 50,000 persons, authorities said. The incident brought to the surface the underlying tensions in many poor French suburbs with large minority populations.

Seven firefighters, four journalists and an unknown number of other persons were injured during the disturbances, police said.

The rioting began Saturday afternoon after the motorcycle on which Tomas Claudio, 21, was a passenger hit a police car, throwing Claudio to the pavement and killing him, according to the police version of events.

The driver of the motorcycle, Laurent Assebille, 20, was not seriously hurt.

Police said Claudio was not wearing a helmet, an assertion challenged by friends of the victim, who say the police car deliberately cut in front of the motorcycle, causing the accident.

Prime Minister Michel Rocard on Monday promised a complete investigation of the incident.

Throughout Saturday and Sunday, young demonstrators burned cars and storefronts and threw rocks at tough anti-riot police, who responded with tear gas cannisters. Seven firefighters were injured while attempting to put out flames in stores set ablaze in a commercial center, authorities said.

Palestinian sources and hospital officials say as many as 17 Palestinians were killed, apparently in fighting between Arabs throwing stones and Israeli police. Hospitals say more than 100 were wounded. The trouble started after Moslem leaders urged followers to protect an Islamic holy site from a Jewish fringe group.

Hundreds of angry young people rioted during the weekend in a suburb of the French city of Lyon. Police say the rioters were upset at the death of a 21-year-old motorcyclist they say was killed by police. Friends of the victim say he was killed when a police car deliberately cut in front of the motorcycle. Several people were injured during the riot. Some 500 young demonstrators burned automobiles and stores.

A spy scandal in South Korea has led to the firing of two top officials. President Roh Tae-woo fired his defense official and the general heading the Defense Security Command. Last week, a private who deserted from the army charged that the two illegally spied on 13-hundred civilians. He said the spying targets included politicians, lawyers, professors, labor, church and civic leaders and journalists.

Chrysler is next for the United Auto Workers. The workers tentatively settled yesterday with Ford. The union says the three-year contract is similar to one at G-M. Ford is believed to have agreed to a three percent pay raise the first year and three percent lump sum payments the last two years. Chrysler executives have said they canNOT afford a contract like the one at G-M.

TOKYO (OCT. 8) UPI - Ichiro Isoda, chairman of Japan's most aggressive bank, Sumitomo Bank, resigned because one of his branch managers went a little too far.

Isoda, 77, announced his resignation in a surprise news conference Sunday following the arrest Friday of Akinori Yamashita, former manager of a Sumitomo branch in Yokohama, on charges that he arranged illegal loans to a stock speculator.

Sumitomo, Japan's most profitable bank and the world's third-largest, was led on a path of aggressive expansion by Isoda for more than a decade. Isoda had served as the bank's president from 1977 to 1983, when he became chairman.

The arrest of Yamashita drew the bank into the nation's biggest insider trading scandal, revolving around Mitsuhiro Kotani, a stock speculator who was arrested July 19 on charges of stock manipulation in connection with his takeover of Kokusai Kogyo Co.

Yamashita allegedly arranged private loans from wealthy customers to Kotani to fund his stock purchases. Yamashita's role violated Japanese law governing bank managers' activities, police charged.

A Sumitomo spokesman said Yamashita acted on his own, but explained that Isoda felt ''general responsibility'' for the branch manager's actions.

Yamashita left Sumitomo at the end of September for ''personal reasons,'' the spokesman said on condition of anonymity.

Sumitomo was conducting an internal investigation to prevent a recurrence, he added.

VIENNA (OCT. 8) UPI - Socialist Chancellor Franz Vranitzky began negotiations on forming a new government Monday following his party's decisive victory in weekend parliamentary elections.

Party leaders were optimistic for a renewal of the ''great coalition'' between the Socialists and the conservative People's Party, which has governed Austria since 1986, despite speculation that the smaller party would go into opposition after suffering heavy losses in Sunday's polls.

The Socialists won 81 seats, a net gain of one, to remain the largest party in the 183-member National Assembly. The People's Party lost 17 of its 77 seats in the party's worst performance since its founding in 1945.

Perhaps the most significant development in the election was the strong showing of the right-wing Freedom Party, which nearly doubled its representation in parliament by winning 33 seats. The environmentalist Greens increased their holdings by one mandate, for a total of nine.

Vranitzky, prior to meetings Monday with People's Party leaders, again ruled out a coalition with the Freedomites. Socialist leaders have said the right-wing party is unacceptable because some of its members have shown pan-German nationalistic tendencies.

People's Party leader Josef Riegler, the current vice chancellor, said the party would study the Socialists' offer but would not commit itself to renewing the coalition. In remarks late Sunday, he said his party had been unfairly associated with the scandals and mistakes of the Socialist party, the senior coalition partner.

If the Socialists are unable to form a government, it may fall to the People's Party to try to form a coalition with the Freedom Party, a move that would represent a dramatic shift to the right for Austria.

The Socialists' surprisingly strong showing on Sunday was largely attributed to the popularity of Vranitzky, who has managed to remain untainted by a series of financial scandals involving other party leaders.

BAALBECK, LEBANON (OCT. 8) UPI - Doctors inspected three British hostages in secret hideouts as part of final preparations for the captives' release, ranking Moslem sources said Monday.

The key Shiite sources said that Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite, John McCarthy and a third British hostage whom they failed to mention by name were seen Sunday by doctors in secret places where they have been held.

''Mr. Waite, McCarthy and another kidnapped Briton were inspected by doctors yesterday and some of them were allowed to shave,'' said a senior source, who requested anonymity.

The sources did not say where the captives were being held, nor did they specify the date of the release.

Earlier reports had suggested that some of the 12 Western hostages were being held by the pro-Iranian Hezbollah group in secret places either in southern Beirut or in the vicinity of the ancient town of Baalbeck, 52 miles east of the Lebanese capital.

The pro-Syrian As-Safir newspaper reported that technical arrangements to free British hostages had been completed and the release was a matter of time.

Quoting unidentified diplomatic sources, As-Safir said, ''The file of Western hostages would be opened this month. ... A number of captives would be freed in case present contacts regarding this file were completed.''

As-Safir, well-connected to Syrian key headquarters, did not specify the parties involved in the behind-the-scene efforts to free the hostages.

Waite, McCarthy and Briton Jack Mann are held among 12 foreign captives by fundamentalists believed affiliated with Iran.

"Final measures concerning a deal to release British hostages were completed,' As-Safir said, adding, ''The release would take place at the right time.''

Among the kidnapped foreigners there are six U.S. hostages held in secret hideouts in Lebanon: Terry Anderson, Thomas Sutherland, Joseph Cicippio, Edward Tracy, Alann Steen and Jesse Turner.

Political sources reported that Syria had pledged to exert fresh efforts with Iran to try to release the Americans during recent talks in Damascus with U.S. Secretary of State James Baker.

Both Syria and Iran are powerbrokers in Lebanon. Damascus has some 35,000 troops deployed on two-thirds of the country's territory, while Tehran enjoys wide influence on thousands of Shiite Moslem fundamentalists.

As-Safir claimed that the hostages' plight is linked to efforts to end a two-year mutiny by Christian defiant Gen. Michel Aoun and a government strategy to spread its authority.

''The hostage issue seems linked to the government plan to establish greater Beirut,'' As-Safir said.

The ''greater Beirut'' plan was a much-trumpeted government strategy to end militia presence in and around Beirut.

Hezbollah, an Iranian-funded group, was believed holding some or all foreign hostages in the southern suburbs of the capital.

Some former hostages had reported that they were held in apartment buildings in the teeming Shiite suburban region where Hezbollah maintains its barracks.

As-Safir said it received information that four German hostages were being held, contradicting media reports that only two Germans remained held captive. West Germans Thomas Kemptner and Henrich Struebig are known to be held in clandestine places in Lebanon.

As-Safir did not give names of the two missing Germans, but analysts speculated that the newspaper hinted at German relief workers Petra Schnitzler and Marcus Quint who were kidnapped in the southern port city of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut, last year but were rerported to have been released.

Palestinian sources in Sidon, who requested anonymity, said Monday that Quint was believed to be back home, while Schnitzler has married a Lebanese and lives in Sidon.

Meanwhile, Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, the mentor of Hezbollah, was quoted by the London Independent newspaper as calling on the abductors of the foreigners to separate between the captives' plight and the issue of detained Arabs in Israel and southern Lebanon.

Analysts noted that Fadlallah's declaration constituted a positive gesture that would put more weight on efforts to free foreign hostages.

Some of the kidnappers' main demands were the release of more than 300 Arabs held in Israel and in the Israeli-proclaimed ''security zone'' in southern Lebanon.

(OCT. 8) UPI - Hospitals in east Jersusalem say as many as 17 people have died in the worst violence in the Old City in nearly three years. Police fired rubber bullets and then apparently live ammunition at Arabs demonstrating at Temple Mount, the third holiest religious site in Islam. They were protesting plans of a fringe Jewish group trying to lay the cornerstone for a Third Jewish Temple.

The Navy is searching in the North Arabian Sea for eight crewmen aboard two Marine helicopters that disappeared during night operations. Navy Lieutenant Commander Joe March says radar and voice contact was lost with the UN-IN choppers at about five-13 in the morning. Each helicopter carries a crew of four. The helicopters were attached to the amphibious assault ship U-S-S Okinawa.

The Senate must now decide what to do with the latest edition of Washington's favorite political hot potato- the budget. The House passed a stop-gap spending bill 305-105 early this morning. It provides just enough money to keep the government operating through Saturday, hopefully enough time to allow for passage of a budget compromise that will work. House Republicans warn that President Bush may veto the temporary spending measure because it does NOT contain items he wants. .

Government offices are closed for the Columbus Day holiday. The question now is when will they reopen. The new budget agreement passed by House Democrats early this morning apparently doesN'T need approval by a majority of both parties to win passage. It cuts 500-BILLION dollars from budgets over the next five years but gives the Democrat- controlled House Ways and Means Committee more power on changing taxes.

ULM, GERMANY (OCT. 8) UPI - German auto producer Karl Kaessbohrer Fahrzeugwerke GmbH increased group sales in the first nine months this year by 7.8 percent to $755 million, a company spokesman said Monday.

Parent company revenue jumped 7.9 percent to $630 million in the January-September period compared with the first nine months last year, the spokesman said.

The truck and bus producer expects annual group sales to rise to $1.1 billion from $1.05 billion in 1989, he said.

Annual sales for the parent firm is expected to climb to $903 million after from $840 million last year.

In the autobus manufacturing sector, Kaessbohrer snatched a 27.4- percent market share in the first eight months, second after Daimler's Mercedes-Benz company with a 35-percent share, the company spokesman said.

He said the family business plans to invest $93.5 million in the next two years to expand its production capacities.

(OCT. 8) UPI - Two Americans are winners of the 1990 Nobel Prize in medicine. Sweden's Karolinska Institute today announced it is jointly awarding the 700-thousand dollar prize to Joseph Murray of Boston and E-Donnall Thomas of Seattle for their discoveries concerning organ and cell transplants in the treatment of human disease. The work of Murrary and Thomas, both in their 70's opened the way for wide use of life-saving transplants. They are the 65th and 66th Americans to receive the Nobel Prize in medicine.

The Golden Arches are now competing for attention with the Great Wall of China. McDonald's opened its first fast-food restaurant inside China today in the city of Shenzhen, across the border from Hong Kong. The franchise opened its doors amid the popping of firecrackers and gyrations of lion dancers as about 20 employees held back a big crowd. HOUSTON (OCT. 8) UPI - Both domestic and offshore drilling increased last week, two energy surveys showed Monday.

The U.S. rotary rig count rose from 1,047 rigs to 1,064 last week compared with 960 rigs working during the same period one year ago.

Offshore Data Services said marine drilling increased slightly with one more rig working last week in the Gulf of Mexico. A total of 141 rigs worked out of a fleet of 212 for a utilization rate of 66.5 percent.

Another rig also went to work in European waters, pushing the utilization rate there to 94.2 percent with 130 rigs under contract out of 138 available. Those increases were partially offset by a slight decline in offshore activity in other parts of the world.

Other relevant rig counts included Texas, 360 last week, 356 the week before and 279 the same week a year ago; Louisiana, 142, 138 and 142; New Mexico, 61, 58 and 34; Oklahoma, 130, 124 and 133; Canada, 113, 102 and 122.

(OCT. 8) UPI - Israeli security forces used live ammunition against stone-throwing Palestinian demonstrators in Jerusalem's Old City today. Hospital officials say as many as 20 Arabs were killed. The crowds were protesting moves by a fringe Jewish group to build a temple on the site of the third holiest shrine in Islam.

The Navy is searching the North Arabian Sea for two Marine helicopters missing with eight crewmen aboard. The Huey helicopters are from the amphibious assault ship U-S-S Okinawa. The choppers- each with a crew of four- disappeared while on routine night operations. .

In other developments in the Persian Gulf, British, U-S and Australian ships fired warning shots at an Iraqi cargo ship today when it failed to stop for inspection. The British Defense Ministry in London says British Royal Marines and U-S Coast Guard officers boarded the Iraqi ship, found it to be empty and allowed the vessel to proceed.

Chances are good there may be a presidential veto of the budget package that sailed through the House early this morning. The new deficit cutting packagechanges some of the inner workings but NOT the overall scope of a 500-BILLION-dollar package rejected by the House on Friday. It now goes to the Senate for possible action this afternoon.

Anglican Church Envoy Terry Waite is said to be one of three British hostages who may be freed after years of captivity in Lebanon. High- ranking Moslem sources report doctors have had a chance to examine at the three captives in secret hideouts ahead of their possible release.

LORAIN, OHIO (OCT. 8) UPI - The Ford Motor Co. said Monday it would idle its plants in Lorain and Avon Lake next week because of a shortage of new orders, giving about 5,600 workers an unplanned vacation.

The Lorain assembly plant makes the Ford Thunderbird and Mercury Cougar cars, and is the final assembly point for full-size vans after their bodies are built and painted at the Ohio Truck Plant in Avon Lake about 10 miles away.

A Ford spokesman said there are about 2,700 hourly employees involved in the car production and about 2,900 hourly employees working on the vans.

The last time the two plants were idled was the week of Sept. 24, when car production was stopped completely and one shift of van production was eliminated for a week.

(OCT. 8) UPI - Egyptian police arrested five more suspected members of the notorious Abu Nidal Palestinian guerrilla organization after pro-Iraqi groups threatened to unleash terrorist attacks against pro-Kuwaiti states, a Cairo newspaper said Monday.

The semi-official Egyptian daily Al Ahram said the five suspects had not been formally charged yet, but they were believed to have obtained arms and explosives from Islamic fundamentalists in upper Egypt.

Egyptian police said Friday they arrested at least 33 ''Iraqi and Palestinian terrorists'' who infiltrated the country with false papers. Also detained were an undisclosed number of Palestinians with maps and lists of terrorist targets in Egypt. Tourist resorts along the Red Sea were among the targets.

In military developments Monday, the Navy said it was looking for two Marine helicopters and eight crewmen missing in the North Arabian Sea. The helicopters were from the amphibious assault ship USS Okinawa.

British, U.S. and Australian ships fired warning shots at an Iraqi cargo ship that would not stop for inspection Monday, a Defense Ministry spokesman in London said. The vessel heeded the warning shots. The ship, found to be empty, was allowed to proceed.

In Libya, Moammar Gadhafi called on his ally Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw from Kuwait then declare war on any Western forces still in the Persian Gulf region.

''There is only one solution out of the crisis we find ourselves in: Iraq must leave Kuwait in accordance with the Libyan initiative,'' Gadhafi said in a speech on Libyan television.

''If after Iraq leaves Kuwait, the foreign forces continued to stay, then we have no alternative but to resist them. For then we would have the right to do so,'' Gadhafi said. ''This would mean an act of imperialism.''

But Gadhafi proposed only a partial Iraqi withdrawal, giving Saddam a ''disputed territory'' that would include strategic oil fields along the Iraq-Kuwait border.

Egypt strongly opposes Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and sent 15, 000 troops to Saudi Arabia to join the multinational military force against Iraq. But radical Palestinian groups in Iraq threatened to retaliate with terrorism against the United States and other pro-Kuwaiti nations should U.S.-led forces attack Iraq.

''Security police arrested another five Palestinians belonging to the Abu Nidal organization,'' Al Ahram said. ''Arms and explosives provided by (Egyptian Islamic) extremist organizations were also seized.''

Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat left Amman, Jordan, Monday after meeting Sunday with King Hussein to discuss the gulf crisis. Both leaders have taken a sympathetic stand toward Iraq.

Arafat told reporters in Amman that despite initial reservations, an international consensus now exists that the crisis is related to Middle Eastern problems as a whole, including the Arab-Israeli conflict.

''What was said to be impossible is emerging as a reality today,'' Arafat said.

The Egyptian opposition newspaper al-Wafd said authorities had denied Arafat permission to visit Cairo. The PLO leader reportedly was told he would have to change his views publicly on opposing the Iraqi invasion and apologize to the Arab world before he can come to Cairo.

In other developments, Kuwait's exiled housing minister, Yahya al Sumaid, was reported to have said in London Monday that the large Iraqi troop presence had throttled active resistance and Kuwaitis are only involved in passive resistance such as not cooperating with the occupation forces.

The Islamic Republic News Agency reported Monday that Iran's minister of defense, Akbar Torkan, was leading a delegation on an official visit to Beijing.

Also a Soviet airliner with some 100 Soviet oil technicians arrived in Moscow Monday from the Iraqi capital of Baghdad, Cairo Radio said. More Soviet planes were expected to continue the airlift, but it was unclear how many of the 5,000 Soviets in Iraq would eventually leave.

CHICAGO (OCT. 8) UPI - Grain and soybean futures were higher at midmorning Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The grain market was supported by export sales and harvest delays, although the early trading was rather choppy.

Weekend rain the probability of more rain through Tuesday over much of the Midwest limited the gains in corn and soybeans.

The sale of 355,000 tons of soybean meal to the Soviet Union late last week supported the soybean complex. Professional and commission house buying was countered by light commercial selling.

Corn rallied on the extended weather outlook calling for above-normal rainfall in the major production areas. Traders also expected the Soviets to be in the market for corn in the near future.

The lack of farmer selling contributed to the strength in both corn and soybeans.

Wheat was higher on spillover from the rest of the floor although the early volume was light.

Interior and Gulf basis levels were firm.

The midmorning prices:

Corn Dec 2.30 3/4 up 2; ;Mar 2.39 1/2 up 1 3/4; May 2.45 1/4 up 1.

Soybeans Nov 6.23 3/4 up 6 3/4; Jan 6.37 3/4 up 6 1/4; Mar 6.49 3/4 up 5 3/4; May 6.59 1/2 up 6.

NEW ORLEANS (OCT. 8) UPI - School teachers returned to work Monday, ending a three-week strike with a new contract calling for a 7 percent pay raise over three years.

Many teachers opposed the agreement, however, because of a clause requiring their union to drop its drive to recall Orleans Parish School Board members. In return, the board promised not to take reprisals against union members for taking part in the strike.

Union officials had claimed they collected 10,000 signatures Saturday on petitions to recall two board members.

Some teachers also were upset because the raises won in the strike also will be extended to top administrators and principals with salaries ranging from $35,000 to $102,000.

The agreement was approved by voice vote Sunday night at a meeting of the United Teachers of New Orleans, which represents 4,500 teachers in the state's largest public school district.

About a third of the teachers voted against the contract because of the reprisal-recall clause.

''They blackmailed the union,'' said Betty Sapp, a teacher who had urged the recall effort. ''Nat LaCour (president of the teachers' union) has sold us out. We're political hostages for the next three years.''

The contract gives all employees a 3 percent pay raise in the first year, and a 4 percent raise in the third year of the agreement. The cost of the package is estimated at $15.7 million over the three years.

''We obviously didn't get all that we wanted, but it's enough to recommend a settlement,'' LaCour said.

The strike affecting 67,000 students in Orleans Parish began Sept. 17, after contract talks between union and school board negotiators collapsed.

UTNO initially had proposed a one-year contract that included increased contributions to a teachers' health benefits fund and a 4 percent to 5 percent pay raise for teacher aides and clerical workers. The teachers did not seek a raise for themselves in that proposal.

When the strike began, UTNO increased its demands and asked for a three-year contract with 10 percent annual pay raises for all of its 6, 100 members.

LONDON (OCT. 8) UPI - Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi called on his ally Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to pull his forces out of occupied Kuwait then declare war on any Western forces that remain in the Persian Gulf region.

''There is only one solution out of the crisis we find ourselves in: Iraq must leave Kuwait in accordance with the Libyan initiative,'' Gadhafi said in a speech on Libyan television Sunday monitored by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

''If after Iraq leaves Kuwait the foreign forces continued to stay, then we have no alternative but to resist them. For then we would have the right to do so,'' he said.

''This would mean an act of imperialism. The Egyptian and Syrian presidents have said to me as soon as Iraq leaves Kuwait, we will be prepared to stand on your side against the foreign forces, and we would never permit them to stay '' he said.

Gadhafi proposed, however, only a partial Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait, giving Saddam a ''disputed territory'' that includes strategic oil fields along the Iraq-Kuwait border.

''Iraq would take the things that are under dispute to compensate it for the losses it suffered as a result of the increase in the Kuwaiti oil production '' said Gadhafi.

Before invading Kuwait Aug. 2, Saddam charged that Kuwait was producing oil in excess of quotas set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and causing Iraq, impoverished by a seven-year war with Iran, to take losses on its own oil production on world markets.

LONDON (OCT. 8) UPI - Stock prices surged in the heaviest trading session on record Monday on the London International Stock Exchange as the United Kingdom officially entered the exchange rate mechanism of the European Monetary System.

But concern over the situation in the Persian Gulf led to some late profit taking.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which surged 73.5 points Friday climbed another 57.7 points to 2,201.6. The narrower top 30 industrial average jumped 50.1 points to 1,705.7.

Volume swelled to a record 1.085 billion shares with more than 500 million shares changing hands in the first two hours. Friday only 448 million shares were traded.

The previous volume record was set July 9, 1987, when trades totaled 997.3 million shares.

Britain's long-awaited entry into the ERM, a grid locking the relative values of European currencies in a narrow range, spurred a hectic trading session, one reminiscent of the October 1987 crash in its frenzy, analysts said.

Analysts noted the FT-SE 100, which measures the value of Britain's largest 100 companies in terms of market capitalization, had been up more than 150 points shortly after the market opened, but slipped on profit taking.

The British pound also soared dramatically as Britain formally pegged its currency to other European Community nations.

On the London Foreign Exchange, the pound closed at $1.9705, well above the $1.9500 late Friday.

The euphoria after Friday's announcement that Britain would join the Exchange Rate Mechanism and cut base interest rates a full percentage point to 14 percent returned in early trading, sending stocks and the pound broadly higher analysts said.

The ERM was started 11 years ago by EC members to take some of the volatility out of rapidly fluctuating currencies.

ERM entry will take much of the gamble out of foreign exchange dealings with the pound, which has had more volatility than other currencies inside the mechanism, analysts said.

The prospect of lower interest rates brought about by the ERM pushed building, home improvement and some consumer stocks higher.

Several British lenders announced mortgage rate reductions and some economists are predicting Britain's base rate, now at 14 percent, could drop 2 or 3 points by the next spring.

Bellway, a construction company, gained 34 cents to $3.11 while Higgs and Hill gained 86 cents to $5.93.

International issues reliant on sales in U.S. dollars were hurt by the British pound's renewed vigor and the dollar's continued weakness.

British Aerospace dropped 34 cents to $10.62, Cable & Wireless lost 19 cents to $8.50 and Rio Tinto Zinc slipped 29 cents to $8.12.

Among some of the day's other highlights, Barclay's Bank gained 36 cents to $7.40 as worries over its exposure to bad debts receded.

Eurotunnel gained 61 cents to $9.03 with the announcement it had secured extra financing.

Elsewhere in Europe, stocks closed braodly higher in thin trading on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which lost 30.59 points Friday, surged 73.77 points or 5.3 percent to 1,465.53.

Traders attributed the market's rise to a flurry of local buy orders and the rally in Tokyo.

Stocks on the Tokyo Stock Exchange soared in light trading boosted by strength in the Japanese yen and bond markets.

The Nikkei Average of 225 selected shares, which gained 571.20 points Friday, surged 802.35 points, or 3.5 percent, to 23,630.00.

MOSCOW (OCT. 8) UPI - The Ukraine's upstart city of Ternopol, the first Soviet town to dismantle a statue of Vladimir Lenin, decided Monday to take over all Communist Party property in another anti-Communist first.

Ternopol's City Council, again on the cutting edge of political developments, ordered a complete inventory of the local party's holdings by Dec. 1.

The council empowered the city attorney to prosecute anyone hindering the inventory of party property, which is to be taken over by the town of 189,000 people.

The local Communist leadership charged that the action was ''anti-constitutional and illegal,'' arguing that all parties have a right to own property, the official Tass news agency said.

Ternopol's defiant decision in July to pull down its statue of Lenin prompted a wave of similar symbolic acts against the once-revered Soviet state founder across the country, including a number of larger cities.

Lenin was pulled off his pedestal in the Georgian capital of Tbilisi last month, and the Ukraine's nationalist Rukh movement is demanding that his monument be removed from Kiev, the Ukrainian capital.

The Soviet press has begun to feature articles on the vast holdings of the national Communist Party, which abandoned its monopoly on power in February but still controls economic production and owns valuable buildings and vast tracts of real estate.

Lenin, the most revered figure in Soviet history, was taken down a peg in February when a Communist Party plenum decreed that he was one in a long line of renowned Socialist thinkers.

Hundreds of museums dedicated to Lenin throughout the country may soon feel the pinch of demythologization. The Lenin Museum in Kiev announced last week that it was broadening its program to include more Ukrainian cultural exhibits.

Soviets now openly talk of removing Lenin from the red-granite mausoleum visited over the years by millions of Soviet citizens and foreign tourists at Red Square.

Krasnaya Zvezda, the official newspaper of the Soviet armed forces, said Sunday that the lines of people waiting to enter the mausoleum ''have become somewhat shorter.''

Movie and theater director Mark Zakharov, who shocked the nation by saying on television that Lenin should be ''buried decently,'' recently suggested that the empty mausoleum be set up as a musem of ''returned party membership cards.''

WASHINGTON (OCT. 8) UPI - An RF-4C U.S. Air National Guard reconnaissance plane from Alabama crashed in Saudi Arabia Monday, killing both crewmen aboard and two Marine helicopters with eight men aboard were missing in the Arabian Sea, the Pentagon said.

The RF-4C crashed in southern Saudi Arabia at about 1:10 p.m. local time, the Pentagon said. The identities of the two crewmen were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The cause of the accident was not immediately known.

The plane and crew were from the 117th Tactical Reconnaissance Wing, based at Birmingham, Ala. They were part of more than 27,000 National Guard and reservists called to active duty to support Operation Desert Shield.

The two dead crewmen aboard the plane brought to 21 the number of U.S. military personnel killed in connection with Operation Desert Shield, including the 13 Air Force reservists who were killed in an Aug. 28 crash of a C-5 cargo plane in West Germany and one self-inflicted gunshot wound.

At the same time, a search continued for two Marine UH-1N helicopters with eight crewmen aboard who were reported missing Monday in the North Arabian Sea.

''Two UH-1N Huey helicopters conducting routine night helicopter operations from the amphibious assault ship USS Okinawa in the North Arabian Sea are reported missing, following loss of communications and radar contact,'' Navy Lt. Cmdr. Joe March said.

March said voice contact with the two helicopters, each with a crew of four, was lost at 5:13 a.m. local time and that search and rescue efforts were under way.

The helicopters are from a Marine squadron based at Camp Pendleton, Calif., defense officials said.

NAIROBI, KENYA (OCT. 8) UPI - With a nighttime curfew still in effect in its capital of Kigali, Rwanda said Monday it is clearly winning its 9-day- old war against rebels who stormed into the East Central African country.

But diplomats in Kigali said there has been little sign of let-up in fighting to the north, where the British Broadcasting Corporation reported that rebels had shot down a spotting plane of the Rwandan army.

The rebels, calling themselves the Rwandese Patriotic Front, or Inkotanyi, wrote in protest to France, Belgium and Zaire, attacking them for sending troops to support ''a brutal dictatorship.'' The rebels said their cause was nationalistic and not tribal as the government charges.

''The good news is that the majority of these invaders have been caught and the law will take its course shortly,'' said state-run Radio Rwanda, monitored in Nairobi.

The broadcast said normal working could resume in Kigali. Shops were to re-open, but a 7 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew remained in force.

Workers in the capital began a cautious return to offices and shops at about 2 p.m. local time, the diplomats said, although taxi traffic remained banned and the government restricted movement across provincial borderlines to those with ministry of defense passes.

Kigali residents, restricted to their homes for almost a week, were relieved by the government's decision because many had begun to run short of food, one diplomat said.

Rwandan forces were caught totally unaware Sept. 30 when about 1,500 heavily armed rebels, who were refugees in Uganda, crossed the border under the command of Maj. Gen. Fred Rwigyema, an experienced guerrilla fighter and one-time commander of Uganda's National Revolutionary Army.

The rebels came mainly from the Tutsi tribe, who make up about 15 percent of the Rwandan population. About 80,000 Tutsi have been refugees in Rwanda since they fled tribal massacres in the 1960s.

But the rebels have been at pains to state that theirs is not a tribal cause. Up to a third of would-be rebels arrested in Uganda are members of the majority Hutu tribe and the force fighting in northern Rwanda includes former internal affairs minister Alex Kanyarenge, an exiled Hutu.

In its message to France, Zaire and Belgium the RPF wrote: ''Contrary to your disinformation propaganda, our movement, and this conflict is based on a nationalistic and not tribal foundation.''

''The present conflict (is) designed to change a system whose incompetence, acts of economic piracy and iron-handed political persecution are an open secret. You have closed your ears to the wails of millions of Rwandese wriggling helplessly in the grip of a brutal dictatorship,'' it added.

The statement said that ''the presence of your men and instruments of war on Rwandese soil is unacceptable ... you are warned that should your military personnel be put to purposes other than that which you claim they were sent for (and which we view with the greatest suspicion), full responsibility for what happens to them shall fall on your shoulders.''

France and Belgium have both said their troops - 300 French legionnaires and about 500 Belgians - have been deployed solely to protect about 2,300 nationals living in Rwanda.

Western diplomats in Nairobi, who spoke anonymously, said they believed Belgium planned to send more troops in the next few days.

In another press release, the RPF described Belgian intervention as ''a repeat of its abominable act of 31 years ago,'' a reference to a 1959 Hutu uprising under Belgian colonial rule that the rebels accused Belgium of fomenting and assisting.

An eyewitness BBC report, meanwhile, said that rebels had shot down a six-seater observation plane just outside the border town of Kagitumba, 100 miles north of Kigali, killing the two-man Rwandan crew.

Rwanda flew continuous helicopter bombing missions with the help of the plane againsh the rebels over the weekend. It has only two military Gazelle helicopters, however.

Rebels interviewed by the BBC said they had no connection with sporadic attacks on Kigali last week, despite government claims to be mopping up pockets of civilian-clad fighters around the capital. They said they suspected the Rwandan army was fighting itself.

BOSTON (OCT. 8) UPI - Playboy began a first-ever search Monday for women's college students willing to pose for a spring pictorial, saying it would investigate a myth that the schools cater to short-haired ''dyed-in-the- wool feminists.''

The Chicago-based adult magazine sent a crew to Boston for a week of interviewing and photographing students and alumni from all-women colleges in the area.

''The idea was something we have heard from our readers, saying that we go off to coed universities and find young women there, but how about the myth about women's schools,'' said Jeff Cohen, Playboy's managing photo editor.

''Is it true they all wear short hair? Are they all dyed-in-the-wool feminists? We decided, 'Well, let's see what happens,''' he said.

The magazine targeted Boston because of the many women's colleges in the area. It also said it would interview candidates from colleges that only recently began accepting male students.

Interested women from Elms, Emmanuel, Mount Holyoke, Pine Manor, Regis, Simmons, Smith, Wellesley, Wheaton and Wheelock colleges were asked to interview with Playboy and pose for photographs. The pictures will be reviewed later to determine which models will be used in the April 1991 issue.

''The initial Polaroids are normally fully clothed.... We prefer a bathing suit so we can get a better idea of how they look,'' Cohen said.

Applicants from the nation's other women's colleges were asked to mail in their pictures, he said.

The spring issue will depict women fully clothed, partially clothed and nude with models allowed to choose their preference, Cohen said.

Heidi Ellis, a 1986 graduate of Mills College in Oakland, Calif., has already been selected to appear in the issue.

''I see nothing wrong with being part of a pictorial that features my physical side because I feel confident about who I am intellectually,'' said Ellis, who added feminists ''glare at my long hair, as though it is a sign that I am buying into an idea of femininity that men have set forth.''

Playboy, which has published several issues on women at universities in big athletic conferences, is no stranger to protests from feminists. This endeavor was no different.

Ilona Metell, a sophomore at Wheelock College in Boston, was among several students organizing a rally outside Boston's Westin Hotel, where Playboy was based for the week.

Metell said a Boston Herald piece published Sept. 29 degraded Boston's college women with a tongue-in-cheek gossip column on Playboy's plans.

The column, by Norma Nathan, said a Playboy publicist claimed college women were panting to be in Playboy and referred to women who opted to be photographed fully clothed as '''fraidy-cats.''

''Not only are they saying things inaccurate, but the way they portray women in their magazine - the women have these pleasurable faces on and that gives men the impression that women like to be nude, helpless and weak,'' Metell said.

Playboy spokeswoman Elizabeth Norris said some women have ''a childhood dream'' of posing for Playboy as ''an affirmation of their beauty.''

By late morning Monday, the college search appeared to be successful, Cohen said.

''Normally, on a search like this, we're well into the second day before we even get a call. It takes that long for the word to get out,'' Cohen said. ''It's only 11 o'clock and we've had a dozen calls. It's a very positive sign.''

WASHINGTON (OCT. 8) UPI - A new 2-cent tax on home heating oil, one of the tiniest segments of the summit budget agreement, was a symbolic ''red flag'' that helped kill the pact between President Bush and congressional leaders.

And this tax could become a contentious issue under the proposed new budget agreement if conflict erupts between gas-guzzling Western states and states in the frigid Northeast.

The home heating oil tax did not kill the summit agreement.

It was only one of many features - among them a $30 billion increase in medicare payments, the ''sin'' and gasoline tax increases, the cut in farm programs, the new tax breaks for investors - that put together made the package intolerable to a majority of the House.

Of all the features in the agreement, the inclusion of the home heating oil tax was the most bizarre - and provoked a backlash out of proportion to its importance in the five-year, $500 billion cut in the budget deficit.

Predictably, the outburst came from Northeastern members of Congress in whose states heating oil is a big-ticket item for homeowners.

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell said ''I hope it will be deleted'' by Congress and Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., lashed out at the ''millionaire from Texas'' who forced its inclusion into the agreement.

The millionaire is Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, the patrician chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and the 1988 Democratic vice presidential candidate, who insisted in the final hours that the tax had to be included as the price for his support of the pact.

Bentsen, considered a possible candidate for the presidential nomination in 1992, was far from apologetic as the standard bearer of the Western states that would be hit hardest by a proposed 10 cent-a- gallon tax on gasoline.

''The Western states would pay more in gasoline taxes than New England would pay in gasoline and home heating oil taxes combined,'' Bentsen said.

Bentsen added, ''In addition, we have a low income heating assistance program that was established to take care of the problem in the Northeast.

''We must have equity for all regions in this budget agreement and equity means that no region can be exempted from its share of the burden,'' Bentsen said.

Under the agreement that was defeated, many specifics, such as the gasoline and the home heating oil tax, were specified and congressional leaders failed badly in their efforts to convince the rank and file that the mix of taxes - as well as other provisions - could be changed as long as they stayed in what Mitchell called ''the spirit of the agreement.''

The proposed new budget, however, contains no specifics and the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee will draft the specifics - subject to ratification by the Senate and House and eventual approval by President Bush.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, is unlikely to support an increase in home heating oil taxes. And Bentsen, although apparently adamant on the question of the equity, may be willing to trade a reduction in the gasoline tax for an elimination of the home heating oil tax.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (OCT. 8) UPI - The shuttle Discovery's crew sang ''Happy Birthday'' to astronaut Thomas Akers' wife Monday, dubbing themselves ''Richard Richards and the Richards'' to the delight of mission control.

''We don't have a birthday cake on board ... so we had to come up with something special here for you, Kaye,'' shuttle skipper Richard ''Dick'' Richards said from Discovery's crew cabin as Akers displayed what looked like a small pastry with a glowing green ''light stick'' taking the place of a candle.

The ''Discovery chorus'' then sang ''Happy Birthday,'' prompting astronaut Kathryn Thornton in mission control to quip: ''I don't think 'The New Kids in Space' are going to replace The New Kids on the Block as the teen heartthrobs, but we appreciate it anyway.''

''You guys could be the new teen idols,'' she said. ''Your last downlink just played on CNN.''

''Oh great. Thanks,'' astronaut Bruce Melnick said. A few minutes later, he added: ''When we get back and go public, we're going to go as Richard Richards and the Richards.''

LONDON (OCT. 8) UPI - British, U.S. and Australian naval vessels enforcing the economic santions against Iraq fired warning shots at an Iraqi cargo ship when it failed to stop for inspection Monday, a Defense Ministry spokesman said.

The Iraqi vessel, al Wasitti, heeded the warning shots fired across the bow and allowed British Royal Marines and U.S. Coast Guard officers to board. An inspection showed the cargo ship empty, and it was allowed to proceed.

The incident, the first time Britain has fired a warning shot in the Persian Gulf crisis, took place about 60 miles northeast of Muscat in the Gulf of Oman which is connected to the Persian Gulf by the Strait of Hormuz.

The Defense Ministry spokesman said the Iraqi ship ignored several requests to stop before warning shots were fired from the frigate HMS Battleaxe, the Australian vessel Adelaide, and the USS Reasoner, also a frigate.

Later Monday, the three countries stopped another ship, the Iraqi tanker Tadmur, and ''stores were discovered on board,'' a defense spokeswoman said.

She refused to release further details.

The British Broadcasting Corporation said the tanker was in violation of the U.N. sanctions and was being diverted to a nearby port for further inspection.

The defense spokeswoman said, however, the matters were still under consideration.

The tanker was intercepted off the Omani coast, near Ra's al Hadd, and searched by Royal Marines flown aboard by helicopter, and U.S. and Australian officials who boarded from boats. They were still abroad nearly seven hours after the search began.

WARSAW, POLAND (OCT. 8) UPI - Authorities Monday announced the arrests of seven former Interior Ministry officials on charges of taking bribes, including a police general linked to the 1984 assassination of a pro-Solidarity priest.

The evening newspaper Express Wieczorny said the arrest of Gen. Miroslaw Milewski, the former interior minister and Politburo member, and the others was part of a comprehensive investigation of former ministry workers.

''At the moment I can only tell you that (Milewski) and also six other persons have been arrested under the charge of taking large bribes,'' said Andrzej Cubala, spokesman for the prosecutor-general's office. ''Other arrests are expected to be made.''

Milewski, who started work for the state security service at the age of 16, was interior minister for a short time in 1980. He was replaced by Gen. Czeslaw Kiszczak in 1981 when Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski became prime minister, becoming the Politburo member in charge of the ministry.

News of Milewski's arrest coincided with the publication of a book by the Solidarity author Tadeusz Fredro-Boniecki, who visited Capt. Grzegorz Piotrowski, the convicted killer of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko.

Piotrowski allegedly said Milewski knew about the plot to kidnap the priest as part of an overall plan worked out in 1982 by Interior Ministry authorities to harass the church.

''The plan of operation (to kidnap the priest) must have been worked out earlier and approved at the top, especially since it dealt with a well-known person,'' Piotrowski said, referring to Milewski.

The newspaper Express Wieczorny, for its part, said although Milewski's name ''was not mentioned (during the trial), his name was often connected with the murder'' of the priest.

Piotrowski was an official of the Fourth Department - a special unit to tail priests, install listening devices to eavesdrop on them and inspire the communist-controlled press to smear the church.

He said the priest Popieluszko was considered a major problem for authorities because of his constant attacks on the communists in his sermons. Piotrowski also said Milewski told him he personally briefed Jaruzelski about plans to harass the church.

Asked to comment on the book, Jaruzelski's spokesman denied the general knew anything about the harassment plan.

''There was no such plan in writing,'' spokesman Wlodzimierz Lozinski said. ''However, the church problem was discussed (by the Interior Ministry team), but the general didn't take part in these talks.''

Jaruzelski, author of the martial law plan in December 1981 that crushed Solidarity, is now Polish president but is to resign soon amid growing public pressure.

Popieluszko, whose fiery sermons urged the population to demand the revival of Solidarity, was kidnapped by Piotrowski and two other secret policemen and killed on Oct. 19, 1984.

The public revulsion in this overwhelmingly Catholic nation over the murder forced the communist regime to put the perpetrators on trial in the northern city of Torun. Piotrowski and his superior, Col. Adam Pietruszka, were sentenced to 25 years in jail each and his two accomplices got up to 15 years.

The author of the book speculated the Interior Ministry was such a stronghold that only an intricately designed plan could bring about an internal purge.

He said Kiszczak, as the new interior minister under Jaruzelski, may have known of the kidnapping plot and decided to let it go ahead in order to oust hard-liners from the ministry.

''A surveillance of us was ordered by the minister (Kiszczak) one week before the tragic event,'' Piotrowski said, added he had served a ''system of lies.''

''If the minister issues orders to tail his people, it means he has some plan for the future,'' Piotrowski said. ''I knew I would land in jail anyway.''

Following the trial, the ministry was purged. Milewski was fired, along with one general and two colonels.

In 1989, round-table talks were opened with Solidarity which resulted in legalization of the union and formation of a Solidarity-led government.

Piotrowski said his victim, Father Popieluszko, won in the end.

MANILA, Philippines (OCT. 8) UPI - President Corazon Aquino Monday dismissed new threats from rebel soldiers, saying the swift crushing of the rebellion last week in Mindanao ''speaks better than any other rhetoric'' the dissidents have issued.

The composite price index on the Manila Stock Exchange surged Monday to 567.37 percent, up 52.57 points or 10.2 percent from last week's close, reflecting renewed investor confidence in the Aquino government after weeks in the doldrums, analysts said.

Cashiered army Col. Gregorio Honasan said in a statement Sunday the two-day revolt mounted by Col. Alexander Noble in Mindanao was only the first phase of an attempt to unseat Aquino, and a new effort would be launched to ''steadily wear down'' her government.

Noble surrendered Saturday after taking control of garrisons in Butuan and Cagayan de Oro and proclaiming Mindanao, 500 miles south of Manila, an independent federal republic.

''Well, we saw how (the Noble rebellion) ended,'' Aquino said at her regular news conference when asked about the Honasan statement. ''I think it speaks better than any other rhetoric that has been dished out now by the military rebels.''

Aquino said for as long as the rebels were at large, they would continue to try and oust her, but she said the only road to power was through elections.

The 57-year-old Aquino, who had crushed six coup attempts before last week's secession attempt, said a ''great majority'' in the 159,000 armed forces and the people were against a power grab.

Defense Secretary Fidel Ramos said Monday Honasan's statement and the two bombings outside the defense and finance departments the past two days that left one person injured were ''just a way to save face ... a propaganda ploy to maintain the morale of their diminishing number.''

Ramos announced the formation of a three-member panel to conduct a fact-finding inquiry into the Mindanao rebellion and present recommendations. He also said a reorganization of the military command in the south would be announced soon.

Ramos said an updated report on mopping up operations showed 178 soldiers and militiamen who joined Noble, Aquino's former deputy security chief, had either surrendered or had been captured.

At the resumption of the session Monday of Congress after a monthlong break, the debate began on Aquino's call for the immediate enactment of a bill including a coup attempt in the penal code and raising penalties for rebellion.

Rebellion under existing laws is a bailable offense penalyzed by a maximum 12 years imprisonment. The new bill raises the penalty to life imprisonment, making it a non-bailable offense. The anti-coup bill carries a penalty of life in jail.

But Senator Ernesto Maceda, chairman of the defense committee, said the government should look into ''deep-seated grievances and resentments'' in the armed forces. ''Until you get rid of them, you're not going to see the end of this situation.''

Manila's newspapers in editorials Monday slammed the rebels who said they would continue to ''save'' the republic from a ''corrupt, vindictive and incompetent leadership.''

''There is no way common sense can accept fool-hardy expeditions that have been invariably characterized by consistently gross incompetence in the pursuit of misdirected objectives, and which have only managed to destroy rather than save,'' said the financial daily Business Star. ''That is incompetence compounded.''

''If only on that score alone, the defeat and capture of all rebels should be everybody's business,'' said the Business Star in a front-page editorial.

BEIJING (OCT. 8) UPI - China's Communist leadership congratulated itself Monday on a successful 11th Asian Games, calling the event a triumph for socialism that would inspire enthusiastic citizens to double China's gross national product by the year 2000.

In a burst of post-Games euphoria, major state-run newspapers bore red headlines and front-page commentaries celebrating China's triumph in hosting and dominating the 16-day competition.

China's first international sports meet began Sept. 22 and concluded Sunday, with the host nation claiming more than half of the 308 gold medals offered to competitors from 37 nations and territories.

''The 11th Asian Games ... shows the world that Asia, whose backwardness resulted from aggression and enslavement by colonialists and imperialists, is rising with great momentum in the east of the world,'' trumpeted the Communist Party People's Daily in a nationalistic commentary.

Newspapers also featured a joint congratulatory letter from the party's ruling Central Committee and the State Council, China's Cabinet, to Games organizers.

The letter said the quadrennial event had ''aroused the patriotic, revolutionary spirit of the people and raised the self-esteem of Chinese boys and girls at home and abroad.''

Leaders exhorted Chinese citizens to use the Games spirit of ''selfless sacrifice, hard struggle, cooperation and striving to be the best'' to boost China's sagging economy.

Calling the games a ''product of socialist cooperation,'' the letter urged China's 1.1 billion citizens to use the Games' competitive spirit as inspiration to ''attend to every detail and double China's gross national product by the year 2000.''

The Games were even credited with improving the attitutes of students who participated in last year's democracy protests.

Presidents from four leading Beijing universities said large numbers of students assigned to work at Games sites benefited from the experience, the semi-official China News Service reported.

''Most students' thinking has progressed over the past year. Now they're concerned with national stability and economic progress,'' said Beijing University President Wu Shuqing. He added that many students active in the protests had worked for the Games.

ABBOTT PARK, Ill. (OCT. 8) UPI - Abbott Laboratories reported record third-quarter earnings Monday of $220.8 million, or 51 cents a share, up 12.5 percent from $196.3 million, or 44 cents a share, in the year-ago quarter.

Revenues increased to a record $1.51 billion from $1.31 billion in last year's third quarter.

Abbott earnings for the first nine months also reached record heights - $686 million, or $1.57 a share, up 13 percent from $606.8 million, or $1.36 a share a year ago.

Revenues for the period were $4.45 billion, another company record, compared with $3.92 billion a year ago.

Abbott Chairman Duane Burnham said he expects 1990 to mark the 19th straight year of record profits and sales for the health-care products giant.

NEW YORK (OCT. 8) UPI - The Conference Board warned Tuesday that growing illiteracy among the ranks of potential workers represents ''a softly ticking time bomb'' for employers in the 1990s.

The private business research group, in a study called ''Literacy in the Work Force,'' said industry will be faced with an increasing number of applicants who are at best only marginally literate, with reading skills somewhere between the eighth-grade and 12th-grade levels - and that some in the work force won't even have that level of proficiency.

The study warned nearly one-quarter of the youngsters now entering high school will not earn diplomas, and those who do will be less literate than graduates were only a decade ago, based on reading scores and other tests.

As the educational system turns out more people unable to read properly or follow directions, ''new jobs are becoming increasing sophisticated,'' Conference Board education specialist Leonard Lund said.

''Trendlines identified in the study could not be happening at a worse time, with economic growth slowing and companies facing intense worldwide competition,'' he said.

The study said nearly one-fifth of the 163 large businesses surveyed are having trouble finding people who can read well enough to qualify even for entry-level jobs. Some 14 percent of respondents reported a variety of problems traceable to illiterate or barely literate workers, ranging from clerks sending out instructions containing factual errors to plant workers letting machinery break down.

The board said 70 percent of the companies have no formal procedures to test entry-level job candidates' reading and writing skills, and most have no idea how many of their current workers may be illiterate.

(OCT. 8) UPI - Iran's president was quoted Monday as saying he is honoring U.N. sanctions against Iraq despite improved ties between the two old foes, and a new Arab peace initiative to resolve the Persian Gulf crisis was discussed in Damascus.

In spite of signs of warming ties between his country and Iraq, Iranian President Hojatoleslam Ali-Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani said Tehran is observing the embargo and blamed Baghdad for the presence of foreign troops in the region.

''If, like us, all countries fully applied the embargo ordered by the United Nations, Iraq would be obliged to yield and withdraw from Kuwait, '' Rafsanjani told the French daily Le Monde.

Ties between Iran and Iraq improved considerably two months ago when Iraqi President Saddam Hussein capitulated to Iranian peace demands and surrendered rights to a strategic waterway in the northern gulf. Both countries decided to renew diplomatic ties, cut during the 1980-88 Iran-Iraq war.

But Rafsanjani ruled out sending Iranian troops to ''the same trenches with the Americans in (Saudi) Arabia,'' saying Tehran had enough problems guarding the 750-mile Iran-Iraq frontier.

On the diplomatic front, talks were held in Damascus Monday between Syrian leader Hafez Assad and Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel Meguid on a new Arab initiative to resolve the crisis.

A spokesman for Assad, who has sent troops to Saudi Arabia, said that Egypt and Syria were working on a ''new Arab initiative, within the framework of the Arab League,'' aimed at ''securing an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait.''

State-run Cairo Radio said the new initiative would be discussed at an Arab League meeting in Tunis later this month.

In Cairo, an Egyptian newspaper said Monday that police arrested more suspected members of the notorious pro-Iraqi Palestinian Abu Nidal guerrilla group.

The semi-official Egyptian daily Al Ahram said the five had not been formally charged yet, but were believed to have obtained arms and explosives from Egyptian Islamic fundamentalists who oppose the presence of foreign troops.

Last week, Egyptian police said they arrested at least 33 ''Iraqi and Palestinian terrorists'' who infiltrated the country with false papers. Also detained were an undisclosed number of Palestinians with maps and lists of terrorist targets in Egypt. Tourist resorts along the Red Sea were among the targets.

Egypt strongly opposes Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and sent 15,000 troops to Saudi Arabia to help defend the oil-rich state. But radical Palestinian groups in Iraq threatened to retaliate with terrorist acts against the United States and other pro-Kuwaiti nations should U.S.-led forces attack Iraq.

''Security police arrested another five Palestinians belonging to the Abu Nidal organization,'' Al Ahram said. ''Arms and explosives provided by (Egyptian Islamic) extremist organizations were also seized.''

Although Libya has not backed Iraq's call for terrorism, Moammar Gadhafi called on Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait and then declare war on any Western forces remaining in the region.

Gadhafi, himself the target of a U.S. bombing raid four years ago after allegedly supporting anti-U.S. terrorism, said in a speech Iraq should be given disputed Kuwaiti oil fields and border territory to compensate for Baghdad's loss of revenue because of increased Kuwaiti oil production before the invasion.

Gadhafi said he had assurances from Egypt and Syria that they would oppose to the presence of foreign forces after Iraq withdraws from Kuwait.

Palestine Liberation Organization officials in Cairo, meanwhile, have warned Palestinians in Egypt not to become involved in pro-Iraqi terrorism.

The call came as PLO leader Yasser Arafat, accused by gulf Arab states of siding with Iraq in the dispute, discussed efforts to resolve the crisis through peaceful means during talks with Jordanian leaders in Amman.

Arafat left Amman for Tunis Monday after talks with King Hussein. The PLO leader told reporters that despite initial reservations, an international consensus has emerged linking the crisis with a settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

NEW YORK (OCT. 8) UPI - The government will air a host of charges this week against Michael Milken - crimes the admitted felon has not confessed to - in a presentencing hearing that may leave the junk bond pioneer at a marked disadvantage, legal experts say.

At issue is whether Milken's six confessed crimes were part of a larger pattern of criminal activity, as the government claims in a presentencing memo or whether they were isolated incidents in which Milken went too far in helping his clients, as the defense maintains.

Among the possible witnesses at the hearing that begins Tuesday is convicted insider trader Ivan Boesky, Wall Street arbitrageur turned government informant, whose tips led to Milken's indictment.

Once head of high-risk, high-yield bonds at Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., Milken, who came to symbolize the greed and excess that characterized the 1980s, pioneered the use of the so-called junk bonds to fuel leveraged buyouts in the 1980s.

He pleaded guilty to six felonies, including conspiracy and securities fraud, in April and paid $600 million in fines and penalties. The plea bargain allowed him to avoid the toughest charges in the 98- count indictment.

In order to assess Milken's character before the sentencing, U.S. District Court Judge Kimba Wood will hear arguments about a web of crimes the government claims he committed, but he has not admitted.

The so-called Fatico presentencing hearing puts Milken on the defensive and is more likely to work against his efforts to avoid a tough sentence, legal experts say.

Milken, who earned $550 million one year at Drexel, faces a maximum possible sentence of 28 years in prison.

''It's not a a winning situation for a defendant,'' said Jim Rather, formerly with the U.S. Attorney's office in Manhattan and now in private practice. ''Almost always the defendant comes out second best in a Fatico hearing.''

Evidence and testimony are not constrained by the usual legal rules of evidence in a Fatico hearing. Hearsay, for example, which is inadmissible in a trial, is permissible, and government claims need not be proven beyond a reasonable doubt.

''It seems to me due process, in spirit if not in law, is trampled by such government conduct,'' said Richard Emery, a Manhattan attorney. ''The best you can say for this process is at least the judge is holding a hearing.

''It's not tantamount to a separate trial, but at least it provides some forum for testing the government's allegations,'' he said. ''In most cases, judges evaluate on papers submitted, and that's highly unfair and prejudicial. At least there's a hearing.''

A Fatico hearing can be called when the defense disputes government allegations presented to the judge at sentencing. The Supreme Court has upheld the hearings so judges can weigh the additional evidence of defendats' unadmitted conduct to devise appropriate sentences.

In some cases, however, such as that of convicted inside trader Robert Freeman the judge would not consider any crimes other than the lone charge Freeman admitted. The government had charged Freeman committed some 20 other offenses.

The fact that Wood is holding a Fatico hearing may be attributed to the vast publicity surrounding Milken's case, Rather noted.

''This is unusual because of who he is, the immense amounts involved and the impact on the whole economy,'' he said. ''It's very high stakes.''

Milken's attorney objected to the hearing.

In a case as high profile as Milken's, legal experts note, the hearing itself can mark a victory for prosecutors, who want to send a message to the public.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 8) UPI - The NFL players' union Monday suggested all members of the news media, male and female, be barred from locker rooms and separate interview areas be set up to assure privacy for the players.

''NFL players should be afforded absolute privacy in their locker rooms,'' Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said in a statement from his union's headquarters. ''They should not be expected or required to participate in media interviews unless fully clothed.''

His statement follows two recent incidents involving female sports writers covering NFL teams. Boston Herald reporter Lisa Olson alleged that on Sept. 17 tight end Zeke Mowatt and several other Patriots approached her while they were naked in an attempt to embarrass with lewd suggestions.

Also, Cincinnati Bengals Coach Sam Wyche barred USA Today's Denise Tom from entering his team's locker room Oct. 1. Wyche was fined one- seventeenth of his salary by the league.

Upshaw acknowledged female reporters must have the same access to players as male reporters. As a possible solution, he suggested a ''separate area, removed from the locker room, where all players would be available on an equal basis to all accredited media, male or female.''

While Upshaw's statement did not directly say all news media should be barred from locker rooms, an NFLPA official said that would be the result of creating a separate area for postgame interviews.

The official, who asked not to be identified, emphasized Upshaw was not being hostile toward the press, and said an interview area would place an equal burden on the players because they would have to go from the locker room to another part of the stadium.

Upshaw was on the road this week visiting players in Philadelphia, Chicago and other cities and was unavailable for comment.

The official said some players have expressed concern to the NFLPA following the Patroits and Bengals incidents.

Comments have ranged from ''those who are very concerned about the lack of dignity and privacy all the way to the players who really don't care one way or another.''

After the Bengals' victory Sunday at Los Angeles against the Rams, about 10 female reporters entered the Cincinnati locker room. To protect the players' privacy, the Bengals put up a curtain to prevent anyone from seeing into their showers and bathroom. The players put on their pants on the other side of the curtain.

LOUISVILLE, KY (OCT. 8) UPI - AFC-CIO President Lane Kirkland said Monday the current U.S. health care system is not getting the job done and his organization is working to get Congress to do something about it.

''As yet, the trade union movement has not come forward with a specific proposal for solving this crisis,'' Kirkland said at a public hearing in Louisville. ''We are here to listen and to find common ground with other segments of our society, including many employers, who now believe that a comprehensive approach is in their bottom-line interest.''

Kirkland made the comments during the fourth in a series of eight coast-to-coast regional hearings scheduled between Sept. 20 and Oct. 25.

''More than 11 percent of our gross national product is devoted to paying for health care,'' he said. ''Yet we're the only industrialized country besides South Africa that doesn't guarantee basic health services to its citizens.''

The labor federation is calling for a health care system that provides quality access and affordability, and is seeking a consensus for a legislative proposal to be pushed in Congress next year.

The panel heard from workers, employers, health care providers and community and political leaders. Joining Kirkland on the panel were Electrical Workers President William Bywater, United Mine Workers President Richard Trumka and Joyce Miller, vice president of the Clothing and Textile Workers.

Kirkland said his group's health care reform campaign includes national television advertising, mass mailings ''and every other avenue we can use to help focus public attention on the health care crisis and to get action from Congress and the administration.''

HOUSTON (OCT. 8) UPI - On the eve of an unrelated meeting to discuss possible joint ventures in the Soviet Union, Conoco Inc. Monday announced its own initiatives in the Soviet Union for the development of energy reserves.

''I am confident that the partnership of western and Soviet technology, equipment, investment and management expertise will result in profitable joint ventures,'' said Constantine Nicandros, Conoco president and chief executive officer.

Du Pont Co., Conoco's parent, has conducted business in the Soviet Union for more than 10 years and has offices in Moscow, Nicandros said. Conoco is not the only domestic energy company interested in untapped Soviet resources.

A Houston geophysical firm planned Tuesday to offer seismic data during a meeting between Soviet officials and interested oilmen.

''The Soviets are extremely anxious to demonstrate how serious they are as joint venture partners,'' said Tom Russell, president of Professional Geophysics Inc., which has six seismic crews exploring the Soviet Union.

Professional Geophysics and the Soviet Ministry of Geology established a joint venture called Systemco, which planned Tuesday to unveil seismic data covering more than 18,600 miles of 13 exploration regions in the Soviet Union, including offshore in the Black Sea.

At another meeting at the end of the month, MDSeis - a joint venture between Professional Geophysics and the Ministry of Oil and Gas Industry - plans to present a package containing more than 24,800 miles of regional data and additional areas authorized for joint ventures.

MDSeis arranged a meeting last March in Houston to help Soviet Union energy officials offer oilmen joint ventures of oil and gas fields in five Soviet areas. At the time, Professional Geophysics said it was the first time the Soviets had offered definite areas for development by western companies.

M.G. Pitcher, Conoco's executive vice president for worldwide exploration, said his company is optimistic about the future of oil and natural gas investment opportunities in the Soviet Union.

Conoco executives last month signed a protocol concerning a feasibility study and joint venture activities in an area of the Timan- Pechora basin in the north European region of the Soviet Union, the firm announced Monday.

The signing involved Conoco, the Soviet Ministry of Geology, PGO Arkhangelskgeologis and Arkhangelskgeologia authorities.

Conoco also has signed an exclusive feasibility study agreement with several large regional Soviet organizations located in the Tyumen, Purpe and Noyabrsk regions.

''Combined the two (Conoco) study areas in the West Siberia and Timan-Pechora basins have potential recoverable reserves of 3 to 4 billion barrels,'' Pitcher said. ''Exploration potential is also being evaluated in the existing fields and the surrounding areas.''

He said Conoco's technical specialists have made several field trips to the regions and met numerous times with Soviet specialists both in Alaska and at Conoco's headquarters in Houston.

Another feasibility study agreement previously reported involves Du Pont Services B.V., a Conoco affilitate located in The Netherlands; Norsk Hydro a.s. of Norway and the Finnish companies Neste Oy, Imatran Voima Oy and Oy Wartsila Ab.

That study involves an exclusive agreement with the USSR Ministry of Oil to evaluate the giant Schtockmanskoye gas field in the Barents Sea. The field is believed to have reserves of more than 100 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

BY JOSEPH MIANOWANY - UPI

WASHINGTON (OCT. 8) UPI - The budget shenanigans on Capitol Hill could increase re-election risks for some normally secure lawmakers, but even though the public may be upset with official Washington, few incumbents appear to face a tough road in next month's voting.

The on-again, off-again, on-again budget agreement that has tied Congress and the White House in knots is one of those Washington events that sparks anger in the hearts of taxpayers and prompts calls to ''throw the rascals out.''

But, many analysts agree, while the problem may cause incumbents some discomfort, it is not one likely to ignite a mass voter uprising next month.

National strategists for both Democratic and Republican efforts in House races said Monday that while they detected voter dissatisfaction with the gridlock in the capital, they saw no evidence that the budget fight would spill over into the election on a large scale.

Both sides also pointed to results of Louisiana's open primary Saturday in which Rep. Jim McCrery, a Republican, won with 55 percent of the vote, despite what Democrats had believed was a strong shot at the seat.

McCrery was one of those Republicans who last week voted against the first bipartisan budget compromise - a maneuver some people believe helped him insulate himself from voters who were upset with that package.

Added Gary Koops of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee: ''Take a look at the votes. Every Democrat perceived to be in a tough race voted against it.''

Howard Schloss, a spokesman for the committee in charge of the Democrats' House effort, said while his party's polling had detected ''an anti-politician anti-Washington mood,'' there was no sense among Democratic strategists that it would become the dominant issue in next month's voting.

Helping build that incumbent confidence is a consistent record from recent years in which virtually all House incumbents won their races.

If campaign finances are any guide, that trend looks likely to continue.

A study last week from Common Cause, the self-styled public interest group, showed that nearly 95 percent of the House incumbents seeking a new term this year - 382 of 405 members - are facing opponents with less than half their financial resources.

But Paul Goldman, Democratic Party chairman in Virginia, added that in 1992, when President Bush faces re-election, the budget fight could be the determining factor in what the political parties stand for.

Goldman, who has been relentlessly pushing his governor, Douglas Wilder, as an advocate of the middle class, insists that defending the middle by cutting their taxes is the best way for his party to recapture the White House.

''I don't think tinkering around the edges is going to convince the middle class and people who are suffering that we're doing that much,'' said Goldman.

''I'm concerned we'll have another one of these plans that aren't real, based on assumptions that never come true,'' he said. ''Merely taxing the rich more isn't going to help the guy making $30,000 a year.

''There are two major issues the Democratic Party has to face: defining what Republicans stand for and defining what we stand for,'' he said. ''To really score big, you've got to have it both ways and it's my feeling we'll miss this opportunity this time.''

NEW YORK (OCT. 8) UPI - Forbes magazine Monday issued its annual list of America's 400 richest people - a list marked by the conspicuous absence of developer Donald Trump.

Communications mogul John Werner Kluge topped the roster of billionaires and millionaires, who as a group have been hit hard by the economy's downturn, the magazine reported.

Trump, facing falling real estate values and massive debt, was joined on the sidelines by Ralph Ingersoll, whose newspaper empire was heavily funded by junk bonds, and Malcolm Forbes, the magazine's owner who died earlier this year at age 70.

Also excluded from this year's list was Merv Griffin, the entertainer whose Resorts International casino holdings were mired in federal bankruptcy proceedings. His net worth, estimated last year at $300 million, is now thought to be $250 million, the magazine said.

The net worth of 172 people still on the list dropped from 1989, and 53 people on the list lost between $100 million and $880 million, the magazine said.

Sumner Murray Redstone, owner of Viacom, suffered the largest decline as his net worth fell from $2.88 billion to $2 billion.

Also losing a chunk of change were publishing magnate Rupert Murdoch, whose net worth fell an estimated $600 million; cable television's Ted Turner, down

But fallen junk-bond king Michael Milken managed to stay on the list with an estimated worth of $700 million - even after paying $600 million in government fines and penalties and losing $250 million in the bankruptcy of his old firm, Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. Milken is awaiting sentencing on securities fraud and other charges.

The minimum amount to merit a place on the richest list dropped to $260 million, down from $275 million last year, the magazine said.

Both Kluge and second-place Warren Edward Buffett held the same places they did last year, Forbes said.

Kluge, whose holdings include Metromedia and Orion Pictures, was estimated to be worth at least $5.6 billion.

Omaha-based investor Buffett's worth was placed at $3.3 billion, followed by Revlon's Ronald Perelman with $2.87 billion and industrialist Henry Hillman with $2.65 billion.

Other perennials on the Forbes list included sisters Barbara Cox Anthony and Anne Cox Chambers, who inherited a publishing empire and whose combined worth is about $5.2 billion; publishing brothers Samuel Newhouse Jr. and his brother Donald; manufacturing brothers Jay and Robert Pritzker; Wal-Mart Stores founder Sam Walton and his children; Seagram Co.'s Edgar Bronfman; publisher-turned-ambassador Walter Annenberg; developer Harry Helmsley; and oil and real estate magnate Marvin Davis.

AN AIRBASE IN SAUDI ARABIA (OCT. 8) UPI - Army Chief of Staff Carl Vuono paid a morale-boosting visit to Army units across Saudi Arabia, but offered no indication of when they might get rotated home.

Vuono, arriving at a position of the 11th Air Defense Artillery Brigade from Fort Bliss, Texas, for brief remarks before returning to Washington, told the troops, ''You did what we asked you to do and what we asked you to do was deter Iraqis and defend Saudi Arabia.''

Later, in answer to questions from reporters he said the soldiers ''will be the first to know'' when they can rotate home. But he offered no suggestions about a timetable for unit rotations.

Vuono visited every division in the country, including the combat forces closest to the Kuwait border and said he was impressed with the training and readiness of the units.

He also defended the record of the AH-64 Apache helicopter, saying it was ''the finest attack helicopter in the world. It's exceeded our expectations in terms of its readiness. We knew this was a harsh environment ... We're ready for it and that helicopter is doing a superb job.''

The chief of staff also said he was pleased at how well the system of flying soldiers in just as their gear was due to arrive by ship had worked. But, he said, ''Things never go exactly according to plan.''

A number of soldiers far closer to the front have complained to reporters they have had to eat vacuum packed meals called MREs - meal, ready to eat - for as long as 30 days, and have seen little freshly cooked food. Hot meals typically consist of tinned entrees and vegetables that have a three-year shelf life.

Vuono was quizzed about the food complaints and insisted, ''We don't know about anybody having to eat MREs for 30 days.''

''Everywhere I've been today, and I've been as far forward as you can get ... they are getting a mix of MREs and T-Rations (large cans that are heated on steam tables), and they are getting a supplement of fresh fruit and bread and milk and juice, that kind of thing.

''Where we can serve an A-ration (freshly cooked local food products), a hot meal, we are serving hot meals,'' said Vuono.

And questioned about the apparent lack of trained cooks in the Army following a decision several years ago to use catering services at bases, Vuono said, ''We took that into account some time ago and provided additional cooks to all of our units. These units over here have sufficient cooks to cook A-rations and whatever meals are necessary. The availability of cooks is not a problem.''

Vuono spoke briefly and seperately to three soldiers, two of whom were bachelors. Vuono joked with their sergeant about the preponderance of bachelors in the unit and the sergeant responded, ''These guys will have something in mind when they get back.''

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN (OCT. 8) UPI - Two Americans, Joseph E. Murray of Boston and E. Donnall Thomas of Seattle, were awarded the 1990 Nobel Prize in medicine Monday for work that cleared the way for widespread use of life-saving transplants.

Sweden's Karolinska Institute jointly awarded the prize to Murray, 71, a former Harvard University professor based at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, and Thomas, 70, who works at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in Seattle.

The prize includes a cash payment of $700,000.

''Murray's and Thomas' discoveries are crucial for those tens of thousands of severely ill patients who either can be cured or be given a decent life when other treatment methods are without success,'' the insitute said in the award citation.

Murray discovered that rejection following organ transplantation in humans could be mastered, and Thomas managed to diminish the severe immune reaction that a graft can cause in the recipient, the so-called graft versus host disease, the institute said.

''They tackled the problems from opposite directions,'' said Gosta Gahrton, a member of the Nobel committee. ''Murray made it possible to bring transplants into the body and not be rejected, while Thomas's method avoided the graft versus host reaction, or the transplant attacking the body.''

The two men were the 65th and 66th Americans to receive the Nobel medicine prize since it was was first awarded in 1901.

Thomas said he never dreamed he would win a Nobel because his work involved patients, rather than basic, laboratory research.

''I thought it was such a long shot that I wasn't even in the race,'' he told a news conference in Seattle. ''The most exciting thing is the general acceptance of bone marrow transplantation as a useful therapeutic procedure.''

Asked how he would spend the $700,000 in prize money, Thomas joked, ''About the only thing that will change is a new dress for my wife.''

Thomas said he always wanted to be a doctor, following in the footsteps of his father, a general practitioner in Texas.

''I would drive him on his house calls. Doctors made house calls in those days. I would drive while he would sleep on the back seat, trying to catch up on his sleep.''

Thomas also recalled working as a hematologist at Boston's Brigham Hospital in 1954 when Murray performed his landmark kidney transplant there using identical twins.

''I was one of the ... (doctors) on the ward taking care of that patient,'' Thomas said.

In work involving leukemia patients in the mid-1960s, Thomas showed infusing a sick person with bone marrow cells from a healthy person could reconstitute the patient's bone marrow and spur production of healthy, new blood cells.

Such transplants can cure leukemia, disorders of the immune system, severe anemia and inherited blood disorders. They are also being used as part of some experimental treatments on people with cancerous tumors and AIDS.

Thomas' first work in bone marrow transplants also involved identical twins. Later, brothers and sisters with matching tissue types were found to be suitible donors for each other. Only in the last few years has human tissue typing advanced to the point where complete strangers can act as donors.

But there is a great need to expand the number of volunteers who have had their tissue types entered on a national computer register of potential bone marrow donors.

''We certainly need more donors,'' he said, noting that for even common tissue types, there is only a 1 in 2,000 chance of a match.

Murray could not be reached for immediate comment Monday, but planned to hold a news conference in San Francisco.

Murray is noted for his work showing kidney tranplants could cure people suffering from kidney failure. His research enabled the number of kidney transplants to soar, from fewer than 500 per year in the late 1960s to more than 10,000 in the 1980s, the institute said.

Furthermore, his landmark findings cleared the way for the transplantation of other organs, like the liver, pancreas and heart.

BUCHAREST (OCT. 8) UPI - British diplomats voiced concern Monday over the use of an experimental AIDS drug on Romanian babies, saying the infants were serving as guinea pigs for a treatment they regarded as ''useless.''

Doctors began injecting a number of AIDS-infected babies at a Bucharest hospital with the drug FLV 23-A on Friday. The substance was developed by the International Medical Research Foundation headed by David Hughes, who claims to have had success with the drug in the eastern African country Malawi.

''David Hughes is injecting dying babies daily with a substance we believe to be useless,'' said a British Foreign Office statement read to the Romanian government by British Ambassador Michael Atkinson.

The message said there was no independent, scientific collaboration of Hughes' claims that four of 42 AIDS patients treated with the drug in Malawi fully recovered from the deadly disease.

''We're concerned that the final aim may be to promote a substance, purported to be an AIDS cure in the West Coast of the United States, using unverifiable results from developing countries,'' it said.

The drug has not been approved for use in humans by the Food and Drug Administration.

Nicolae Beldescu, who heads the AIDS program at the Romanian Health Ministry, confirmed the tests were being carried out. Hughes' firm had promised to donate medical equipment to the hospital and to allow the drug to be registered first in Romania, if proved to be successful, he said.

''Even if one in a thousand shows a good result, it will be worth the test - not just for Romania but for the good of the whole world,'' Beldescu said.

But he added Romanian officials ''have to rely on the fact these people are of good faith.''

A team of eight British volunteers has threatened to pull out of the Colentina Hospital, where the drugs are being administered, over the issue.

''The whole thing stinks,'' said Joyce Mullin, supervisor of Health Aid UK, which has been working with AIDS babies at the hospital since May.

Hughes refused to meet journalists Monday.

About 800 Romanian infants, many of them orphans, are believed to be infected with the virus that causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

In most cases the babies were infected by contaminated hospital syringes or transfusions of tainted blood. Under former dictator Nicolae Ceausescu, undernourished infants were routinely given transfusions as treatment, a practice long discredited in the West.

KAIMU, HI (OCT. 8) UPI - Lava from Kilauea volcano destroyed two homes and threatened another in a march along the shoreline of the southeastern part of the island of Hawaii, civil defense authorities said Monday.

One home in the evacuated Kalapana Shores housing area was destroyed at 12 noon EDT Sunday by molten rock that pushed into the yard and ignited the structure, officials said.

Another seaside home was incinerated at 7 p.m. EDT, after lava pooled 10 feet away from the structure and another home for several days, before finally moving forward to claim the residence, said civil defense spokesman Craig Hindle.

''There was a rock wall in front of it, and it just kept filling in until it spilled over the wall,'' said Hindle, who said lava was still 10 feet from a neighboring home.

The relentless lava flow that turned the historic Kalapana settlement into a ghost town buried under tons of new rock is now assaulting Kaimu, the next community to the northeast, along the coast.

The lava demolished the world-famous black sand beach at Kaimu and then completely filled in Kaimu Bay, rolled across the main access road to the area and cut electricity and phone lines.

Residents of the dozen homes in Kalapana Shores were ordered evacuated as the lava neared, and those living in the Kaimu-Makena Homsteads, Kaimu Makena Houselots, and Kalapana Haven developments were placed on alert.

Some 33 homes are in the potential path of the flow that has crept steadily east most of the year. Molten material is still pouring from the vent five miles upslope at a rate roughly estimated at 650,000 cubic yards per day.

Residents of nine Kaimu homes were earlier advised to evacuate and other residents have been on alert because of the danger of ''laze'' or lava haze formed when the molten rock hits sea water.

The laze, which can contain toxic materials such as hydrochloric acid, has been blown out to sea by strong trade winds. Visitors have been allowed to view the activity from a point farther up the coastline.

But all coastal recreational activity for areas west of Kalapana Shores has been banned until further notice.

The eruption that began in January 1983 is the longest in recorded history and has destroyed 177 homes and other structures, as well as destroying many houselots and paving over miles of roadways.

#90281u1683 10/08/1990 ~United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI-FNNPRO) - Carroon & Black Corp. shareholders Monday voted in favor of a merger with Britain's Willis Faber PLC, paving the way to create the world's fourth-largest insurance brokerage company, with projected revenues of $1 billion a year.

''A majority of shareholders voted in favor of the merger and the new company - Willis Corroon PLC - will start trading Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange and the Pacific Stock Exchange,'' said Robert Cuthbert, Corroon Chief Financial Officer.

Cuthbert said the new company, based in London and incorporated in Britain, will trade American Depositary Receipts on the two U.S. exchanges and also trade on the London International Stock Exchange.

Willis Faber shareholders previously approved the merger offer made by the British insurer in June. The merger also has received regulatory approval in both the United States and Britain.

Willis Faber's offer involved issuing 7.8 ordinary shares of its stock against each share of Corroon in a deal estimated at about $1.16 billion.

The new company will also issue a cash dividend of $2.50 a share to each Corroon shareholder of record.

Willis Faber and Corroon rank as the fifth and sixth largest insurance brokerage companies in the world, with 1989 revenues of $456 million and $400 million, respectively. The British insurer employs 6, 000 people and Corroon 5,000. The companies previously said the merger did not call for layoffs.

Corroon shareholders voted 61 percent in favor of the merger. The vote came after a decision by Corroon's board of directors to reject a $40-a-share offer by a U.S. insurer, Chicago-based Aon Corp.

Willis Faber made its bid for Corroon in June after the British insurer reported a 15 percent increase in proficts in 1989. Earnings for Corroon, based in New York, declined in 1989 to $36 million from $115.8 million in 1988.

Corroon had warned that 1990 was going to be ''a difficult year for the company,'' and pointed to the weakness of its international operations.

The merger will give the new company what Corroon and Willis previously lacked a stronghold in each other's territory on either side of the Atlantic. But analysts warned the merger could bring an array of problems.

''I am not surprised shareholders voted in favor of the merger because it looks good on paper and it could benefit the new company,'' said analyst Charles Carabell with Blunt Ellis & Loewi.

''We now have a company with split headquarters, in London and New York,'' Carabell added. ''This situation has created problems elsewhere in the past, but this might not be the case here. This opens a whole level of new services for Willis to do business in the United Staets and this will benefit the international operations of Corroon clients.''

Announcement of the merger approval gave a boost to Corroon shares on the New York Stock Exchange where they were quoted up $1.725 to $32.725 in afternoon trading.

JERUSALEM (OCT. 8) UPI - Israeli police opened fire on thousands of Palestinians demonstrating at Islam's third holiest site Monday, killing 19 Moslems and wounding more than 150 in the worst violence of the nearly 3-year-old Palestinian uprising.

Palestinians described the killings as a massacre and called for a week of mourning, while Israeli officials said the violence was a premeditated effort to divert world attention from the Persian Gulf crisis to the Palestinian cause.

''Someone tried to exploit the atmosphere, the hysteria, the fundamentalist jealousy that has been broadcast from Baghdad,'' Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said. ''The mission did not succeed, thank God. Our security forces managed to cope with the trouble and they will continue to secure peace and quiet in Jerusalem, the holy city.''

There were conflicting reports on how the mid-morning violence began at the Temple Mount in Jerusalem's walled Old City. Police said they had to use force after a police post on the Temple Mount was burned and Palestinians threw rocks at thousands of Jews celebrating the Succot holiday at the nearby Western Wall, Judaism's holiest site.

Several Jewish worshippers were lightly wounded and six policemen were injured.

Thousands of Moslems had gathered at the Temple Mount, site of the Dome of the Rock and Al Aqsa Mosque, after their religious leaders called on them to ''protect'' the Islamic holy site from a religious Jewish fringe group. The Jewish group had called for a mass pilgrimage Monday to the Temple Mount, the site of the ancient destroyed Jewish Temple.

Many Palestinians charged that Israeli police and civilians provoked the riot by opening fire without cause on demonstrators.

Prominent Palestinians and organizations issued a statement charging Israeli authorities committed ''another crime against our people'' and called for U.N. forces to be deployed as peace-keepers in the occupied territories.

''We condemn this massacre,'' the Palestinian statement said.

Al Haq, or Law in the Service of Man, a human rights group based in the West Bank, deplored the measures taken by the Israeli authorities to quell the violence.

''Rather than take measures to avoid confrontation and casualties, it appears that the police and (paramilitary) Border Guards acted with excessive force without regard for human life in what can only be called a massacre,'' Al Haq said in a statement.

While Israeli leaders denounced the stone-throwing at Jewish worshippers at the Western Wall plaza about 60 feet below the Temple Mount, they also expressed sorrow over the number of Arabs killed and wounded.

Clashes erupted in Arab East Jerusalem and the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip as news of the killings spread. At least two Arabs were killed and 57 wounded in the Gaza Strip, Palestinian sources said.

The Gaza Strip was declared a closed military zone and at least 20 West Bank towns and refugee camps were put under curfew or declared closed to prevent more violence. Residents of the occupied territories also were forbidden to enter Jerusalem. Police Minister Roni Milo said the violence was planned by Palestinian activists beforehad and was intended to ''turn world opinion from the crisis in the Persian Gulf.''

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (OCT. 8) UPI - The Big East Conference invited the Miami Hurricanes to become its 10th member Monday, and university President Edward T. Foote said a decision on whether to accept would be made Wednesday.

Foote said the matter would be presented to the 55-member board of trustees and a simple majority would be needed for approval. He said he will make a recommendation, but said he would not disclose it until after the meeting.

''What we do know is that the Big East is an extraordinarily successful athletic conference,'' Foote said. ''It represents some fine, fine colleges and universities - old, distinguished, very, very reputable with the kind of values with which we would want to be associated.''

Big East Commissioner Mike Tranghese announced the bid after a five- hour meeting on the Miami campus with officials of University of Miami and various Big East schools. The matter has been under discussion since July.

''As a result of what happened in the last three months and more specifically today, we have extended an invitation to the Univeristy of Miami to become the 10th member of the Big East Conference,'' Tranghese said.

It has become customary for a conference to extend a bid only if it is sure it will be accepted, but Foote and Athletic Director Sam Jankovich insisted no decision has been made by the university.

''There has been no acceptance and nothting can transpire until the meeting takes place on Wednesday,'' Jankovich said.

Tranghese said the conference was only doing the obvious.

''It's probably not the thing to do politically or if you're trying to posture with one another,'' Tranghese said of the bid. ''I've dealt with the university through Sam for a three-month period. It's been pretty obvious as to what our desire has been. There's no reason to come in here and say anything else.''

The Big East is a basketball power and only Syracuse, Pittsburgh and Boston College play football. Jankovich said provisions involving football would be worked out later if Miami accepts the bid.

''We are looking at our commitments and what role football would play,'' Jankovich said.

Among the possibilities would be forming a television and scheduling alliance with the Atlantic Coast Conference or the Southwest conference. A mini-football conference could be established by adding two or three other schools, or two or three other football schools could be added to the Big East.

Miami also has expressed interest in joining the Atlantic Coast Conference, but Commissioner Gene Corrigan said the ACC would not be discussing any further expansion until after Jan. 1. The ACC added Florida State as its ninth member last month.

Tranghese would not comment on the football issue or whether the Big East would be willing to wait until next year for a decision from Miami.

Among other conference possibilities for the University of Miami were the Southeastern Conference, the Metro Conference and the Southwest Conference.

The SEC added Arkansas in August and South Carolina in September after Miami's interest appeared to cool. The idea of expanding the Metro Conference into football drew only brief interest last summer.

If Miami accepts the invitation, it could begin playing a Big East schedule in basketball and non-revenue sports as soon as next year.

Attending the meeting were representatives of Boston College, Syracuse Pittsburgh and Georgetown. The other members of the conference are Connecticut

Providence, St. John's, Seton Hall and Villanova.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 8) UPI - A suddenly cost-conscience President Bush elected to return to Washington from his Camp David retreat Monday in a four- wheel drive truck rather than aboard his gas-guzzling helicopter.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Bush chose to travel by road rather than air because he wanted to save money while the government was shut down due to the budget crisis.

Fitzwater did not release any figures showing a savings. It was doubtful there were any, however, since the presidential motorcade included a dozen vehicles, including an ambulance, plus three police officers on motorcycles.

The trip to Camp David, in the Maryland mountains north of Washington, may have meant some savings. Bush initially had planned to travel in his new 747 Air Force One for a weekend at his summer home in Maine, where he likely would have taken his fuel-hungry speedboat out for a spin.

At the end of the 90-minute, 50-mile trip back to the White House Monday, Bush leaned into the back of his brown Chevrolet Suburban and pulled out his own luggage.

Due to the government shutdown, there just aren't that many people around the White House to help out the president - for example, there is only one cook working per shift in the White House kitchen.

All but 65 of the White House staff of 383 have been furloughed as non-essential personnel while the government is out of spending authority.

One obvious effect was the absence of a White House reception for David Souter the new Supreme Court justice. The chefs who make the tea and cookies, as well as the staff who pass around the cups and platters, weren't working.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 8) UPI - The Senate moved toward debate Monday on a House-passed budget plan amid Democratic hopes it will pass with Republican support, but with some GOP grumbling over the power it gives Democratic- controlled committees to juggle tax rates.

Senate debate during the unusual Columbus Day holiday was scheduled just hours after the House, meeting into the wee hours Monday morning, passed the Democratic-crafted proposal at about 2:30 a.m. EDT.

The Senate vote could be delayed until early Tuesday if senators use all 10 hours of debate that were permitted.

The outcome of the budget plan vote could determine whether President Bush signs or vetoes a separate temporary federal funding bill, passed by the House and now before the Senate. If approved by the Senate and signed by Bush, the stopgap funding bill would end a three-day government shutdown that was required after the government ran out of money on Saturday.

His signature would allow federal workers to temporarily escape unpaid furloughs and return to work Tuesday after the long holiday weekend. And it would ensure that federal services and programs continue uninterupted, at least until Oct. 20 when the temporary funding bill would expire.

But the House-passed funding bill, expected to be considered by the Senate after the budget plan vote, was virtually identical to the money measure President Bush vetoed on Saturday. That veto, which the House narrowly sustained later in the day, led to the government shutdown.

At the White House, Bush spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Monday afternoon that the president's staff ''has not reached a conclusion'' on whether Bush should sign the temporary spending bill.

The new, less specific budget plan was hastily drafted by Democrats, in consultation with some Republican leaders, after a bipartisan budget blueprint agreed to by Bush and congressional leaders was soundly defeated by the House early Friday.

It has the support of most Senate Democrats and of Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas and other key Senate Republicans. Most House Republicans, including party leaders, opposed the plan after a long day of squabbling Sunday on what budget strategy to use.

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell told reporters it was imperative that the Senate pass both the the budget plan and the temporary spending bill.

''I am optimistic,'' said Sen. Wyche Fowler, D-Ga. ''I believe we're going to pass it with a substantial Republican vote.''

''It's going to be a hard sell to get a majority of Republicans to support the budget resolution," said Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., after Senate Republicans met in Dole's office before floor debate began to discuss the package.

He said he would oppose the plan.

''I will vote to support it,'' said Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H.

He said he and other Republicans, including Dole, wanted to help move the budget process along to the next stage - legislative implementation of specific spending cuts and tax increases to slash the deficit by $40 billion in the current fiscal year and by $500 billion over five years.

But Rudman echoed concerns expressed by other Republicans that he was afraid that the new budget plan would give congressional tax-writing committees, controlled by Democrats, a chance to alter significantly the tax package contained in the defeated bipartisan budget plan, and to propose raising individual income tax rates on the rich in exchange for a capital gains tax cut sought by Republicans.

Bush and many Republicans have long opposed any tax rate increases, but Republicans have acknowledged in recent days that opposition to the deal may be softening, both on Capitol Hill and at the White House.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said he would oppose the new budget plan because ''this is not the solution.''

''It is another vague promise that something is going to be done,'' Gramm said. ''At some point you have to stop promising and start acting.''

The new budget plan maintains the framework of the defeated bipartisan proposal, but eliminates many specific tax increases and spending cuts, leaving congressional committees to make those determinations over the next week or so.

Once the House Ways and Means Committee begins its work, it is expected to reduce the size of the Medicare cut from the $60 billion over five years that was in the rejected bipartisan budget plan to about $42 billion.

LOUDONVILLE, NY (OCT. 8) UPI - The single most memorable television broadcast was the assassination of John F. Kennedy, according to a survey released Monday on the best of 50 years of television.

The survey by statistics professor Douglas Lonnstrom and history professor Thomas Kelly, both of the Siena College Research Institute, showed the moon walk took a distant second and the mini-series ''Roots'' placed third.

The surveyors conceded the majority of television critics, television station managers, communications professors and other experts who replied might not even have been born the year the show that Life magazine called the first - the New York World's Fair - was broadcast in 1939.

The survey, Kelly said, was slightly skewed toward more recent programs because ''television critics as a group tend not to be in their 60s, but in their 30s.''

He said the survey also indicated there probably was no Golden Age ''real or mythical'' in the 1950s because the bulk of the ''best'' in the survey aired during the 1970s and 1980s.

Only one figure from the 1940s, Milton Berle, appeared on the list, and that was in third place under the category of comedy.

Among the best of currently produced shows were ''L.A. Law'' (6th place, drama series), ''Cheers'' (7th place, comedy series), ''Murphy Brown'' (10th place, comedy series) and ''60 Minutes'' (1st place, news/documentary).

Lonnstrom said 1,085 open-ended questionnaires went out asking experts in the field to nominate three programs or people in each of 20 categories. The survey was based on 127 responses.

Lonnstrom added 11 percent was ''an acceptable response rate.''

Other programs and stars who ran away from the pack were ''Hill Street Blues'' for drama series, the ''Tonight'' show for late night, NBC ''Today'' for early morning and Sesame Street for children's programs (''Howdy Doody'' crawled in at fourth place).

Other routs included Lucille Ball for comedy, James Arness for westerns and Ed Sullivan for variety/music.

There was a tight race for most memorable on-camera figure in television's first half-century, with Rod Serling beating out Larry Hagman by a meager 6 points.

And in the news/documentary category Walter Cronkite won the crown over Edward R. Murrow by 12 points, although Murrow got 14 more first- place votes than Cronkite.

Respondents had color as the most significant innovation in television's first half-century, followed by satellites, but couch potatoes were clearly a presence in the survey.

They elected the remote control as the seventh most significant innovation.

PHILADELPHIA (OCT. 8) UPI - Securities and Exchange Commission Chairman Richard Breeden said Monday the Bush administration does not support

''force-fed'' U.S. investments in emerging free markets of Eastern Europe.

Former communist bloc countries require foreign capital that can help fuel new democratic market economies, but it is is unrealistic to expect the United States and private investors will pour resources into the largest and least efficient state-owned companies, Breeden said.

''We have no intention of saying that investment should occur on a force-fed basis,'' Breeden told a gathering of international economic policy makers at a symposium sponsored by the Philadelphia Stock Exchange.

He said both the government and U.S. industry are mindful not to ''move so quickly that it would result in unfavorable experiences and a backlash'' against future investments in such countries as Poland, Hungary, Romania and Czechoslovakia.

The SEC chief took part in an exploratory committee meeting for capital markets formation in which some Eastern European representatives complained of little help from the United States and called for assistance reminiscent of the Marshall Plan, the costly program that aided in the economic reconstruction of nations ravaged by World War II.

But Breeden said ''suggestions that U.S. firms and the United States are not doing much in Eastern Europe are simply not true.''

''The U.S. government has an enormous number of initiatives and the U.S. private sector is responding with a substantial volume of investments,'' said Breeden, although he was unable to detail dollar amounts.

Still emerging political and economic policies in the former communist countries are confounding U.S. investment, Breeden said.

''Our firms are not likely to become very, very active in running businesses in Eastern Europe until some of these basic policies are known,'' he said.

There also are concerns on the part of U.S. businesses that despite the sweeping political reforms that have given Eastern Europeans their first taste of freedom in decades, worsening economic conditions will cause a popular flight back to socialism, symposium participants said.

Among the recommendations of the exploratory committee was a two- tiered banking system - in which the functions of commercial banks are separate from central banks.

Breeden said a banking system is a fundamental part of economic development in any country - particularly for fueling small businesses that look to commercial banks for intermediate loans.

But, overall, securities markets provide a ''much lower cost form of credit than bank loans,'' Breeden said.

''Developing countries should look for the lowest cost of capital they can obtain and in the United States it has come out of the securities system,'' he said.

The exploratory committee said securities markets are probably the best way to get Eastern Europeans to invest money they have hidden away, creating a problem of large sums of money squirreled away in mattresses and coffee cans.

Stock exchanges are a more anonymous method of dealing with capital than banks and could help calm many Eastern Europeans who still are reluctant to admit they have money or tell where they got it, the committee noted.

(OCT. 8) UPI - Oil prices rose nearly $1 a barrel in light holiday trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange Monday, with the effect of buying amplified by many traders taking Columbus Day off.

The benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for November delivery ended the day up 96 cents over Friday at $38.95 a barrel on the Merc. Trading volume was a moderate 82,832 contracts.

Some buy orders were apparently triggered when the price of WTI sailed through technical resistance levels at $38.25 and $38.65 a barrel.

''It's a technical move. There was no news today from the Persian Gulf and there was absolutely no news over the weekend,'' said Ed Kevelson of Dean Witter Reynolds' International Energy Futures Group in New York.

''Once prices broke through the $38.25 level, the market moved higher,'' Kevelson said.

Richard Redoglia of Merrill Lynch Futures Inc. in New York said additional momentum was provided when WTI prices went through the $38.60 high of a week ago.

''We went through the highs of last week. That's what helped the market,'' Redoglia said.

''I just don't think there's enough players in the market. A lot of people took the long weekend off. There's not much volume in the market right now,'' Kevelson said.

The trading key for the day was the opening price of $37.70 a barrel, down only 29 cents from Friday's close, said Don Morton of PaineWebber Inc., Andover, Mass.

Since the Persian Gulf crisis began with Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, traders have been buying heavily on Friday because of fears shooting might break out over the weekend and drive prices through the roof.

As a consequence, Monday openings have been roughly $1 a barrel lower after quiet weekends with little news emerging from the Persian Gulf.

''When it opened relatively flat, that gave every reason to own the market,'' Morton said. With a lack of headlines, ''there was no reason to sell the market,'' he said.

WTI traded at a 10-year high of $40.10 a barrel Sept. 27 and the market traditionally moves back toward - retests - a high at least once, barring any news that would moveprices downward.

''I'd be surprised if we don't retest it. If we don't, it'll be because of news,'' Kevelson said.

The retesting, Morton said, ''will come soon, tomorrow or the next day.''

On the Merc, home heating oil for November delivery ended the day up 0.26 cent to $1.0296 a gallon, while November unleaded gasoline climbed 1.11 cents to 93.75 cents a gallon.

On spot markets, where oil is bought and sold for cash, crude prices also advanced.

On the European market, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent crude gained 75 cents to $39.75 a barrel.

The United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - finished the day at $33.80 a barrel, up 80 cents, after being down 60 cents in earlier trading.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast spot market, prompt-delivery WTI rose 95 cents to $38.90 a barrel.

Sun Co., based in Radnor, Pa., and Marathon Oil Co., USX Corp.'s Findlay, Ohio subsidiary, raised the posted price they will pay for crude at the wellhead, Marathon by $1 to $37.75 a barrel for WTI and Sun by 75 cents to$37.50 a barrel.

BOSTON (OCT. 8) UPI - The owner of Boston's landmark Bull & Finch Pub announced Monday the bar would not change its name to ''Cheers,'' the television comedy it inspired, because of objections from loyal patrons.

Pub owner Thomas Kershaw said the Bull & Finch had been negotiating with California-based Paramount Pictures, producer of ''Cheers,'' to make the name change, ''but our regulars made a compelling case to keep the Bull & Finch tradition alive.''

Created in 1969 as a neighborhood bar, the pub became an international tourist draw 1982 when ''Cheers'' producers made it the basis of the NBC television series. The Bull & Finch is now one of Boston's top attractions, claiming more than 500,000 visitors a year.

The television show is broadcast in 50 countries and ''Cheers'' lead actor Ted Danson recently won an Emmy for best actor for his portrayal of bartender Sam Malone.

''We debated merging our identity completely with the show,'' Kershaw said. ''But I think the pub - and Boston - would have lost something in the bargain. The Bull & Finch Pub is still basically a neighborhood bar. Our neighborhood has just gotten a lot bigger.''

MONROVIA, Liberia (OCT. 8) UPI - A Liberian general who has occupied the executive mansion since President Samuel Doe was killed rejected demands from an international peacekeeping force Monday that his remaining troops surrender.

In his first interview, Brig. Gen. David Nimely said he was committed to a cease-fire but his estimated 1,000 troops will not yield the parts of capital they now control.

Two rival rebel leaders and a five-nation peacekeeping force also have staked out territories after more than nine months of civil war.

''No one can tell me that he wants to evacuate the Armed Forces of Liberia. We will not permit that. We have nowhere else to go. This republic of Liberia is ours,'' Nimely said, speaking in the cavernous, marble-floored audience hall of the nearly deserted presidential mansion.

Doe's death, at the orders of rebel leader Prince Johnson, does not mean the armed forces no longer have a constitutional role, he argued in refusing to surrender to the forces of the Economic Community of West African States.

''When Abraham Lincoln and John F. Kennedy were assassinated, they never asked the army out of the United States. The constitutional army is still existing. We are not Doe's army. When I joined the army, Doe was 7 years old,'' he said.

Nimely, a 57-year-old one-star general, considers himself a caretaker until the arrival of the interim government now in Sierra Leone. He has been head of the interim National Defense Council since Doe's death Sept. 9.

A member of the Gribo ethnic group from Maryland county, Nimely said most of the soldiers now left are Krahn, from the late president's minority tribe.

The armed forces of Liberia have carried out ethnic massacres during the course of the 10-month war.

Johnson has accused Nimely of ordering the killings of 200 children in Nimba county last May.

Nimely, who denied the charge Monday, said the two rebel factions should stop fighting now that Doe is dead.

''O.K., they murdered Doe. But the rest of the Liberian people are not Doe. But still, they are carrying on killing, secretly and openly.''

He accused the forces of the other rebel leader, Charles Taylor, of carrying out the mass killing of unarmed Krahn civilians in Doe's home county of Grand Gedeh.

Nimely appealed to the international community to relieve the suffering of his army, which has been under siege in the city for a hundred days.

''I want you to pass that message to the outside world - We need help, we need food to help the suffering people of this nation.''

Monrovia has been without water and electricity since July 2. Johnson's forces captured the Liberian capital's water and electricity supply plant from Taylor's troops Monday.

While the water plant at White Plains appeared to be in reasonable condition, the hydroelectric dam at Mount Coffee, 10 miles (16 km) north of Monrovia, had collapsed.

People living nearby said the dam wall had burst under pressure from a buildup of water during the rainy season.

Johnson said he hoped to get the water plant working again before the wet season comes to an end in two weeks.

Driven out by harsh conditions, another 3,000 refugees arrived in the Sierra Leone capital of Freetown aboard a Ghanian merchant vessel Sunday.

Many of the evacuees were malnourished or had cholera or diarrhea and required medical treatment. Ten people died aboard the Tano River, the Red Cross said.

KANSAS CITY, MO (OCT. 8) UPI - Colorado's fifth-down victory over Missouri was allowed Monday to stand by the Big Eight Conference, but the league suspended the officiating crew that worked the game.

Big Eight Commissioner Carl James, in a news release, said the crew headed by long-time referee J.C. Louderback was ''given an immediate suspension for an indefinite period'' after the crew admitted it had made a mistake.

''We (the officials) are human,'' Louderback said. ''We err. And we feel terrible in regards to the circumstances at the end of the game.''

Colorado Coach Bill McCartney earlier said he was not going to change the final score of the game, as other coaches have done when faced with similar situations.

''I have given them (Colorado administrators) my opinion that in no way, shape or form would we forfeit this game if I have anything to do about it,'' he said.

Louderback's crew apparently lost track of the number of downs used by Colorado after the Buffaloes had reached first-and-goal from the Missouri 3-yard line.

Colorado quarterback Charles Johnson grounded the ball on first down and Eric Bieniemy ran for 2 yards on the second play. After a time out, Bieniemy ran inside for no gain. The Buffaloes, told by the officials it still was third down, again grounded the ball to stop the clock with 2 seconds left.

On the next play, Johnson kept the ball on a sneak and was ruled to have scored the touchdown that gave Colorado, which dropped from ninth to 11th in the UPI ratings, a 33-31 victory.

John A. McClintock, Big Eight Conference Supervisor of Football Officials, said in the release it was a most unfortunate error and that conference personnel ''were distraught over the impact of the error on players, coaches and fans who rely on football game officials for the highest level of integrity and game management.''

McCartney said he did not knowingly run the fifth down, but was going by the officials, the on-field down marker and the scoreboard.

''After having talked to everybody on our staff who was on the sideline, none of us picked up the fact that we were getting a fifth down,'' he said. ''The way we operated was in good faith.

''We thought that it was second down with 18 seconds to go. We thought that was the way it was supposed to be, even though we were wrong, and we proceeded accordingly.''

Missouri Coach Bob Stull said he was working under the same assumptions as McCartney since the officials, down marker and scoreboard all were in agreement, even if the coaching staff felt otherwise.

''We had a hard time believing that we could be right,'' he said.

''It's a lot easier for a fan or a coach to emotionally get involved and make a mistake in a game than an official because all seven of them keep track of the down - all seven of them. Everybody there said it was fifth down, but my comment was, 'How can that possibly be? There's no way that could happen.'''

The suspended crew has a total of 177 years of officiating experience, including 57 accumulated years with the Big Eight and 19 NCAA Division I bowl assignments. The crew was scheduled to work a Big Eight game on Saturday.

''Through the entire episode the coaches and players were very professional,'' Louderback said. ''In officiating, you work the game for the players and your feeling is the game should be determined by the players, not the coaches or officials on the field. It's always a tough feeling when a rule or an error in a rule becomes a factor in the game.''

Stull said: ''There's not a lot to explain. Obviously there was an error in the officiating. The fact is that we didn't win the game based on what occurred, so what can you say?''

DUMFRIES, Scotland (OCT. 8) UPI - The man who was chief of police the night a terrorist bomb destroyed a jumbo jet 31,000 feet above the Scottish border described the horror of the disaster at an inquiry Monday.

John Boyd told of the grim search for bodies in the town of Lockerbie, at a local golf course and in surrounding farmland, forests and moors after Pan Am Flight 103 was bombed Dec. 21, 1988.

''It was horrific for all concerned,'' the former chief constable of Dumfries and Galloway said on the fourth day of a Scottish disaster inquiry.

Many of the 270 people who were killed were extremely mutilated and disfigured he said, and 17 were vaporized where the aircraft's fuel- laden wings fell, creating a huge, blazing crater.

''It was decided that relatives should be persuaded to desist from viewing bodies unless accompanied by a medical adviser,'' he said. ''Only two people made visual identification and they were both doctors.''

Identification was based on photographs, distinguishing marks, physical abnormalities, clothing, personal property, official documents, medical and dental records, X-rays and fingerprints, Boyd said.

Two bodies and 658 bags of human remains remained unidentified. They were cremated and a symbolic committal service was held at Dryfesdale Cemetery in Lockerbie.

Boyd emphasized the importance he had placed on keeping relatives of the dead informed and he said he had arranged for his deputy to brief them daily.

''The relatives' grief manifested itself in various ways from shock and horror to frustation and anger and mounting pressure for the early release of bodies '' he said.

Boyd, who was named an inspector of constabulary in Scotland five months after the disaster, said he was at home in Dumfries when he first heard of the crash on a TV news flash. Almost simultaneously he received a phone call from his force headquarters.

From the start, Boyd said he decided to treat the investigation as a criminal inquiry because of the problems facing him - the fact that his force was the smallest in Britain with just 344 officers, the fact that it was the longest night in the year, the fact that debris was spread over a huge area and the fact that the victims were from 21 nations.

''I knew the inquiry would be colossal,'' he said.

Boyd said he laid down five principles - accuracy, coordination between the various agencies, meticulous gathering of evidence with no short cuts, proper timing of information released to the media, and the establishment of well-controlled diplomatic channels for inquiries overseas.

Boyd said he received help from seven police forces. On the night of the disaster 486 officers took part in the operation, and the following day 957. The number rose to 1,043 Dec. 23 and was maintained until Dec. 31.

Repeating previously released information, Boyd said Scottish police decided an anonymous warning telephoned to the U.S. Embassy in Helsinki 16 days before the Pan Am bombing was unrelated to the bombing of Flight 103 but was part of a personal vendetta.

A caller said that within two weeks a Finnish woman would carry a bomb on to a Pan Am aircraft flying from Frankfurt, West Germany, to New York - the same course the ill-fated Boeing 747 was following, with a stop in London.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 8) UPI - A federal judge has temporarily blocked Advanced Micro Devices Inc. from use of the name AM386 on a new microprocessor in a trademark infringement dispute with rival Intel Corp.

U.S. District Judge William Ingram issued a temporary restraining order Friday that prevents Sunnyvale-based AMD from use of the name until at least Oct. 15 when Ingram set a full hearing on the trademark dispute.

Intel was ordered to post a $1 million bond to repay Advanced Micro against the possibility the suit lacks merit.

John Greenagel, spokesman for AMD said Monday his firm is not barred from sale of the chip, only from use of the ''386'' numerals in connection with it.

He said AMD had no intention of selling the new microprocessor prior to Oct. 15.

AMD has retaliated with a countersuit against Intel accusing the company of misappropriation of trade secrets, conversion and unfair competition.

The AMD suit seeks an injunction, $10 million in punitive damages and an unspecified amount of compensatory damages.

Intel maintains it has a proprietary interest in the number ''386,'' which refers to the highly valuable 80386 microprocessor developed by Santa Clara-based Intel.

AMD says the 386 designation has gained widespread generic visibility and is used by other computer companies, such as Compaq, to identify products that contain no Intel parts.

Pam Pollace, Intel spokeswoman said Ingram's order ''prevents AMD from announcing any product using that trademark designation.''

Greenagel would not comment on the possibility of the company introducing the new chip under a different name either before or after October 15.

''We are hoping the judge will lift the order after a full blown hearing,'' Greenagel said.

Douglas Derwin, attorney for AMD, said, ''The marketplace does not recognize 386 as an Intel trademark.''

Lois Abraham, Intel's attorney countered the marketplace would be confused if AMD is allowed to announce AM386.

''The numbers have not become generic,'' she argued.

Derwin charged that Intel improperly obtained the information about AMD's plans to introduce AM386.

He said documents mailed to an AMD employee were mistakenly delivered to an Intel employee of the same name. Intel filed suit after sending copies of the information to journalists and stock analysts.

Derwin accused Intel of misappropriation by telling everyone exactly the same information that its court suit is now seeking to prevent AMD from doing.

Ingram remarked, ''That might be a good point.''

HOLLYWOOD (OCT. 8) UPI - ''Marked for Death,'' Steven Seagal's latest action-revenge flick, killed the competition at the nation's box office in its debut, taking in $10.5 million over the weekend at 1,968 screens.

The explosive success of ''Marked for Death'' shows the strong appeal of Seagal, whose previous films - ''Above the Law'' and ''Hard to Kill'' - also scored impressively at the box office. Twentieth Century Fox has heavily marketed the film with an almost exclusive emphasis on Seagal, who plays a former drug agent fighting drug dealers.

Ticket sales for ''Marked for Death'' were more than double the No. 2 film, Disney's 50th anniversary release of the classic ''Fantasia,'' which made a strong comeback in its opening weekend with an estimated $5.2 million at 481 screens. That gave ''Fantasia'' an impressive $10, 633 per-screen average.

The animated feature, which cost $2.5 million to make in 1940, was regarded as a box-office flop during its initial release.

Last weekend's No. 1, ''Pacific Heights,'' dropped to third place with $5.1 million at 1,283 screens. The thriller, which stars Melanie Griffith and Matthew Modine as landlords with Michael Keaton as a problem tenant, has grossed $14 million for Fox in 10 days.

The two Fox films and ''Fantasia'' will probably stay near the top next week. Major openings include Warner's World War II flying drama ''Memphis Belle'' and Disney's ''Mr. Destiny'' with Michael Caine and James Belushi.

''Ghost,'' which should become the year's biggest hit in a few more weeks, materialized in the No. 4 spot with $4.7 million at 1,766 screens over the weekend. It was the first time in 13 weeks that ''Ghost'' has not finished amongthe top three weekend films.

''Ghost'' has scared up $161.5 million for Paramount and trails only Disney's ''Pretty Woman'' among this year's top-grossing movies. ''Pretty Woman'' has garnered $174.8 million after 30 weeks in release and is still showing at 868 screens.

The mobster drama ''GoodFellas,'' which debuted two weeks ago in the No. 1 spot, was in fifth place with a still-lively $4.5 million weekend at 1,328 screens. The Warner release, starring Robert De Niro and Ray Liotta, has put the strong arm on moviegoers for $21.6 million in 17 days.

''Postcards From the Edge,'' which opened at No. 1 three weeks ago, delivered an acceptable $2.9 million at 1,321 screens for the No. 6 spot. The show-biz comedy, starring Meryl Streep and Shirley MacLaine, has taken in $27.5 million in less than four weeks for Columbia.

The life-after-death drama ''Flatliners,'' starring Julia Roberts and Kiefer Sutherland, improved from eighth to seventh with $1.25 million at 1,306 screens. Its nine-week total has hit a lively $55.5 million for Columbia.

Columbia's train thriller ''Narrow Margin,'' starring Gene Hackman and Anne Archer, nearly disappeared with $1.23 million at 1,238 screens and wound up in eighth place. It has grossed $8.5 million in 17 days.

''Desperate Hours,'' a drama about a family terrorized by escaped convicts, received a chilly welcome in its debut weekend, with $1.2 million at 1,033 screens for MGM/UA, and finished ninth. The film does not seem likely to resurrect the career of director Michael Cimino, whose stock has fallen since his 1978 hit, ''The Deer Hunter.''

Paramount's Gene Wilder comedy ''Funny About Love,'' posted a weak $1.1 million in its third weekend at 1,039 screens, giving it a 17-day gross of $6.8 million.

Barry Levinson's latest Baltimore-based drama, ''Avalon,'' opened strongly for Columbia at seven screens with a $184,968 gross over the weekend.

The top 10, weekend gross, total gross and weeks in release:

1. ''Marked for Death,'' $10.5 million, 1 week.
2. ''Fantasia,'' $5.2 million, 1 week.
3. ''Pacific Heights,'' $5.1 million, $14 million, 2 weeks.
4. ''Ghost,'' $4.7 million, $161.5 million, 13 weeks.
5. ''GoodFellas,'' $4.5 million, $21.6 million, 3 weeks.
6. ''Postcards From the Edge,'' $2.9 million, $27.5 million, 4 weeks.
7. ''Flatliners,'' $1.25 million, $55.5 million, 9 weeks.
8. ''Narrow Margin,'' $1.23 million, $8.5 million, 3 weeks.
9. ''Desperate Hours,'' $1.20 million, 1 week.
10. ''Funny About Love,'' $1.1 million, $6.8 million, 3 weeks.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 8) UPI - Judge David Souter, a quiet New Englander with a murky judicial record, was ceremonially sworn in at the White House Monday as the 105th justice of the Supreme Court.

Chief Justice William Rehnquist administered the oath to Souter, 51, in the East Room before a large audience that included President Bush, other Supreme Court justices, members of Congress and the Cabinet.

In remarks before the ceremony, Bush said Souter had ''demonstrated his lifelong devotion to principle, a straightforward, enduring principle, that the role he is assigned to is to interpret the laws and not to make them.''

Bush quoted Souter's remarks during his confirmation hearings that judges must always be aware when they act that ''some human life is going to be affected by what we do.''

After taking the oath, Souter said, ''I will try to pass on the constitutional authority that I received this afternoon. I will try to use it the best I can according to the light that God gives me.''

Among those witnessing the ceremony was Justice William H. Brennan, the leading liberal on the court, whose retirement opened the door for Souter's nomination. The 84-year-old justice stood and was applauded by the audience when Bush singled him out in his remarks.

Souter, a former New Hampshire attorney general and member of that state's supreme court, had moved up to the federal bench in April of this year, becoming a member of the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals based in Boston.

Bush selected Souter as his first nominee for the Supreme Court just three days after Brennan's retirement in late July. Souter is the court's youngest member and his lifetime appointment could easily run beyond 2015.

White House chief of staff John Sununu, former governor of New Hampshire, was among those who recommended Souter, whose keen intellect has been highly praised, but whose scanty judicial record and reticence has left the nation largely in the dark on where he stands on major issues confronting the court.

During his confirmation hearings, Souter deflected questions about his views on abortion and - despite strong opposition from some women's rights groups - the Senate confirmed him by a 90-9 vote on Oct. 2.

White House officials said Souter, a bachelor, actually was sworn in as a justice on Oct. 3 by an administrative officer at the court and Monday's event was ceremonial.

On Tuesday, he was scheduled to join his eight ''brethren'' on the court in a judicial ceremony. On Wednesday, he will participate in hearing in one of the year's major cases - a dispute over the legality of company policies that exclude women from jobs that might endanger a developing fetus.

A Rhodes Scholar, Souter holds degrees from Harvard University and Harvard Law School and studied legal philosophy at Oxford University. His home is in Weare N.H.

While he addressed very few major issues during his state court tenure and brief time of the federal bench, Souter was generally viewed as a moderate based on his confirmation testimony. But court observers see Souter as playing a potentially decisive role on the court, providing a pivotal fifth vote to create a more solid conservative majority on the nine-member court.

Bush, who is strongly against abortion, inisted that in selecting Souter he did not apply a ''litmus test'' on abortion, civil rights or other controversial issues. Opponents to Souter failed to generate the firestorm of criticism that torpedoed President Reagan's nomination of controversial appellate court Judge Robert Bork.

Souter is the eighth consecutive member of the court named by a Republican president, counting Reagan's elevation of Rehnquist, a sitting justice, to the position of chief justice.

MIAMI (OCT. 8) UPI - Tropical Storm Klaus rejuvenated in the Atlantic and threatened the Bahamas with 40 mph winds Monday, while Tropical Storm Lili sprang to life in the central Atlantic with 65 mph winds.

Tropical storm warnings were raised for the central Bahamas and a tropical storm watch was in effect for the northern Bahamas.

Heavy rains and gusty winds were reported over the central and southeastern islands Monday. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami predicted those conditions would continue, increasing for the central Bahamas Monday night and Tuesday as Klaus strengthens and moves toward the northwest.

''There are quite a few heavy thunderstorms in the northern side but it will be highly variable. They'll get anywhere from almost nothing to 10 to 15 inches, depending on where the rainbands fall,'' said Roger Edwards, a meteorologist at the hurricane center.

Klaus developed from a tropical depression and rapidly grew to hurricane strength last week.

On Thursday, Klaus dumped up to 10 inches of rain on the Lesser Antilles, triggering floods that killed six people and left two others missing.

Atmospheric winds tugged the storm apart and Klaus was downgraded Sunday to a tropical depression.

But satellite pictures and reports from ships and Air Force reconnaissance planes indicated Klaus had reorganized and once again crossed the 39 mph tropical storm threshold Monday afternoon.

At 6 p.m. EDT, Klaus was centered near latitude 22.2 north, longitude 70.8 west, or about 470 miles southeast of the Bahamian capital of Nassau. Klaus was moving northwest near 15 mph and was expected to continue that motion for the next day or two.

Maximum sustained winds were near 40 mph and forecasters said some increase in strength was likely during the next 24 hours. Tropical storm-force winds extended up to 115 miles north of the center.

''It's really too early to tell exactly where Klaus is going to go, mainly because it is still a fairly poorly organized storm, but it is intensifying,'' Rogers said.

''It's going to maintain its current course for the next day or so, then our models take it anywhere from the Florida Straits to the Florida-Georgia border.

''We are projecting it to strengthen to become a fairly healthy tropical storm I won't gamble beyond that. It is going to be moving over very warm water in the Bahamas. The islands themselves should not mess with the intensification process because they're low, flat and small.''

Tropical Storm Lili, the 12th named storm of the Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, formed Monday in the open Atlantic.

At 6 p.m. EDT, Lili was centered near latitude 32.7 north, longitude 47.5 west or about 1,000 miles west-southwest of the Azores. It was moving southwest near 7 mph and was expected to continue that motion through Tuesday.

Lili's maximum sustained winds were near 65 mph and forecasters said some increase in strength was likely during the next 24 hours. If its circulating winds reach 74 mph, it would become a hurricane.

''Lili was an unusual situation. It originated from a low-pressure system out in the Atlantic and moved south and became a warm-core system. It didn't originate from a tropical wave. It's not normal but it's not rare either,'' Edwards said.

''Lili is drifting around over open water and is not a threat to anything but shipping,'' he said.

PITTSBURGH (OCT. 8) UPI - Mariano Duncan, expected to ride the bench during the playoffs, ignited Cincinnati's hitting attack Monday with a three- run homer and four RBI, powering the Reds to a 6-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates and a 2-1 lead in the National League Championship Series.

Duncan, hitless in his first eight playoff at-bats, went 3-for-5 and snapped a 2-2 tie with his fifth-inning shot off loser Zane Smith. Duncan was backed in the Reds' 13-hit performance by Billy Hatcher as the two accounted for all the team's runs.

Hatcher went 3-for-4 and took Smith deep in the second inning to stake Cincinnati to a 2-0 lead.

The best-of-seven series continues Tuesday night in Pittsburgh with Game 1 starters Jose Rijo and Bob Walk on the mound.

Cincinnati's Danny Jackson went 5 1-3 innings, yielding seven hits and two runs, with four strikeouts and three walks. Reliever Rob Dibble, who has struck out eight of the 13 batters he has faced in the playoffs, struck out three in 1 2-3 innings. Randy Myers worked the ninth, striking out the side, for his second save of the series.

Smith lasted five innings, surrendering eight hits and five runs. The left-hander struck out five and walked none.

Deadlocked 2-2 after four innings, Hatcher led off the fifth with a double to left-center and moved to third on Jackson's sacrifice. Third baseman Jeff King saved a run by knocking down Barry Larkin's smash down the line and holding Hatcher at third, but Larkin legged out a hit. Duncan, starting only because of a September injury to Bill Doran, made King's great defensive play irrelevant, smashing his three-run shot to left-center.

The Pirates closed to 5-3 in the eighth on Duncan's error at second. Barry Bonds singled off Norm Charlton and Don Slaught walked. Slaught was out at second on a fielder's choice, but Bonds scored on Duncan's high throw to first in a shot at a double play.

The Reds added a run in the ninth off Stan Belinda when Joe Oliver and pinch-hitter Hal Morris singled and Duncan followed with a single, his fourth RBI of the game.

Pittsburgh, held to just one hit in the first three innings, tied the score 2-2 with a pair of runs in the fourth.

Jay Bell opened with a double down the left-field line, Andy Van Slyke worked Jackson for a walk and Bobby Bonilla ripped a single up the middle to score Bell. After Bonds popped up, Carmelo Martinez smacked a double that hugged the left-field line to bring in Bonilla. But then the Pirates' uprising suddenly ended.

The Reds intentionally walked Slaught to load the bases with one out and the strategy worked, with Lind striking out and Smith bouncing back to the mound to end the inning.

Cincinnati grabbed a 2-0 lead in the second thanks to Hatcher's two- run homer. With two outs, Oliver singled to left and Hatcher followed with a home run to left-center. It was Hatcher's first hit of the playoffs and first homer since Aug. 31.

Smith ducked more trouble in the fourth. With one out, Glenn Braggs and Todd Benzinger singled, but Smith got Oliver to ground into an inning-ending double play.

Jackson wiggled out of a jam in the fifth. After King and Bell opened with singles, Jackson got Van Slyke to fly out and Bonilla to pop up. Bonds walked to load the bases, but Jackson escaped the inning scoreless when Martinez popped out.

Jackson finally was chased in the sixth when Jose Lind doubled with one out, but Dibble came on to fan the next two batters.

(OCT. 8) UPI - Senate Republicans are expressing their dismay that a House-passed budget plan will give committees dominated by the Democrats more power. The Senate began debate on the budget this afternoon... just hours after the House approved it. The outcome of the Senate vote could determine whether President Bush signs or vetoes a separate temporary federal funding bill designed to end a government shutdown.

There are conflicting reports on what caused the worst incident in the three years of the Palestinian uprising. Israeli troops fired on Palestinian protesters in Jerusalem's Old City today, killing 19 and wounding more than 150. Palestinians call the incident a massacre. Israel says the violence was a premeditated effort to shift world attention from the Persian Gulf crisis to the Palestinian cause.

The Persian Gulf crisis cost the lives of at least two more Americans today. An Air National Guard plane from Alabama crashed in Saudi Arabia. Both crewmen were killed. Also... a search is on in the Arabian Sea for two missing Marine helicopters and their eight crewmen. 21 American military personnel have been killed during the military build-up that followed Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 8) UPI - Hotel Investors Trust, which was to be the target of two potential bidders at its shareholders meeting this week, said Monday that both prospective deals have been withdrawn.

The bids were being made by First West Capital Corp. of Newport Beach, Calif., which had offered $63.5 million, of $5.25 a share; and Japan-based EIE International, which had made a bid of $63.5 million.

The company, which owns 37 hotels across the United States, said it had allowed the First West proposal to lapse because of ''concerns'' over the abilility of First West to complete the deal. Hotel Investors said First West may submit a revised offer.

Hotel Investors said that EIE had said that it did not want to get into a bidding contest and was withdrawing its bid. But it also said that discussions with EIE were continuing.

The company did not elaborate as to why the proposals were withdrawn. It also said that the annual meeting, scheduled for Friday, could be postponed. Shareholders were expecting to vote on the bids at that meeting before the proposals were withdrawn.

The company has been hit by increasingly competitive conditions in the hotel industry. Its stock has dropped from $25 a share in the mid- 1980s to its current range of about $4 a share.

Hotel Investors Trust shares are traded on a paired basis with its management company, Hotel Investors Corp. The stock fell 37.5 cents Monday to $3.50 a share on the New York Stock Excahnge.

The hotels are operated in 18 states under such names as Ramada, Hilton, Holiday Inn, Days Inn, Sheraton, Vagabound Inn and Embassy Suites.

Hotel Investors also said a previously announced $152 million sale of 27 of the hotels to EIE has been delayed until Dec. 28.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (OCT. 8) UPI - Among the items that have turned up in the Exxon oil spill goods being auctioned this week were handcuffs and pictures of a protest demonstration stashed in one of hundreds of Exxon desks up for bid.

Handcuffs, handcuff cases, shackles, holsters, ammunition boxes, pistol cleaners, gun cases, surveillance cameras, binoculars and security badge-makingmachines were among the law enforcement items purchased by Exxon to handle security during the oil spill cleanup.

The police equipment represented a tiny fraction of the goods for sale to the highest bidder on Tuesday, Day 1 of a four-day auction of Exxon oil spill cleanup materials.

''With the security that existed on this project, those security people had to have supplies to do their job,'' explained Rob Mackay of Ritchie Bros. Auctioneers International, which purchased everything from Exxon to sell to the highest bidder.

Dozens of boxes of mace also were being sold, but the chief reason for the mace was to ward off bears that posed a threat at remote beach sites. At least one bear was shot and killed by a cleanup crew guard.

The ''Counter Assault'' mace, showing a grizzly bear on the can, is ''to drive away aggressive attacks,'' according to the label.

A guard shack also was on the auction block.

Additional evidence of Exxon's security operations could be found inside desk drawers where there were pictures of protestors at one of the anti-spill demonstrations triggered by the nation's biggest oil spill. The apparent surveillance shots show close-ups of participants at a protest rally.

Exxon obviously never even bothered to clean out some of the desks turned over for the giant auction.

Next to one desk, inside a portable trailer for sale with its contents, was a cooler containing unopened cans of soda - floating in long-since-melted ice - along with unopened bags of potato chips.

Some desks still contained Exxon notebooks with notes, including lists of needed supplies, plus an assortment of items making it appear almost as if the desks were still in use. There were overtime forms, port rules, safety tips and even Exxon's policy on alcohol use.

But the auction inventory of 4,844 lots to be sold - some lots containing one item, some containing scores of items - said right up front: ''every item sold as is, where is.''

Even some of the outhouses up for bid still had obscene pictures and graffiti on the walls.

Other items were cleaned up for the sale. An Exxon float plane, with the Exxon tiger insignia on the tail of the plane, had the word ''Exxon'' imperfectly painted over in white, but the oil company name was visible.

Boats, refrigerators, trailers, fleets of all kinds of vehicles, chains, anchors, restaurant supplies, furniture, telephones, typewriteres, copiers and other office equipment were used. But there were numerous new items, including thousands of coveralls, rainsuits and shoes.

''It looks like Exxon cornered the market on flip-flops,'' one prospective bidder said as he emerged from a van filled with thousands of pairs of new sandals, still in their plastic wraps.

Toiletries included condoms, auctioneer Dave Ritchie said. Also up for bid were boxes of shaving cream, deodorant, toothpaste and toothbrushes, mouth wash, tampons and over-the-counter medicine for every ailment from constipation to hemorrhoids to coughs and colds.

Exxon even had motor oil for sale from Chevron and Quaker State.

There were waste baskets for sale and even ''EXIT'' signs.

''Well, do you think the oil spill's over?'' quipped one would-be bidder strolling onto an auction site stacked with materials.

Exxon spent $2 billion responding to the 11-million-gallon spill that occurred when the tanker Exxon Valdez rammed a reef March 24, 1989.

(OCT. 8) UPI - Senators are arguing the pros and cons of a new budget plan passed early this morning by the House. The measure is NOT as specific as the one defeated by the House last week. TORRANCE, Calif. (OCT. 8) UPI - Allied-Signal Aerospace has been forced to stop some shipments of control systems for commercial and military aircraft because of discrpancies in test reports submitted by a parts supplier, a company spokesman said Monday.

An Allied-Signal unit, AiResearch Los Angeles division, discovered the testing discrepancies during a routine audit of vendors, spokesman Ralph Wortman said.

The auditors found that documents submitted by one vendor - Supreme Steel Treating of El Monte, Calif. - were photocopied versions of earlier tests with altered dates, Wortman said.

Officials at Supreme Steel Treating were not available for comment. The Los Angeles Times reported Monday that federal agents were conducting a probe into the allegations of false certification.

AiResearch, which employs about 4,500 workers, is the world's leading supplier of equipment used for aircraft pressurization, heating and cooling.

The company is attempting to determine which categories of parts may have been treated at Supreme Steel, Wortman said. AiResearch has more than 40,000 types of parts.

The company has narrowed the list of suspect parts to about 300 and hopes to pare that to 20 by this week, Wortman said.

The suspect parts have not yet caused safety problems and their failure would not cause a serious incident, Wortman said.

PITTSBURGH (OCT. 8) UPI - With tips of the cap to Tony Perez and - of all people - Jim Leyland, unlikely sluggers Mariano Duncan and Billy Hatcher powered the Cincinnati Reds into command of the National League playoffs Monday.

Duncan belted a three-run homer and drove in four runs and Hatcher added a two-run shot to send Cincinnati to a 6-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The romp gave the Reds a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven series. Tuesday's night's Game 4 matches opening game starters Jose Rijo and Bob Walk.

Duncan credited former Cincinnati slugger and current Reds' batting coach Perez for his new-found power. Hatcher simply thanked Pirates' Manager Leyland for trading him to the Reds.

''I give all the credit to Perez,'' said Duncan, who went 3-for-5 with four runs batted in Monday. ''He believes in me 100 percent, whether I'm going good or going bad.

''I always dreamed of hitting .300,'' noted Duncan, a .235 career hitter before this year. ''With Tony helping me in the spring and early season, I wound up hitting .306 this year. Tony is one of the great coaches in the major leagues right now.''

Duncan is also a lot stronger than he used to be.

''I lifted a lot of weights over the winter, but not just so I could hit home runs,'' he said. ''It's a long season with 162 games and you have to be strong to keep making contact at the plate, to keep stealing bases and scoring runs.''

Hatcher, who went 3-for-4 with a double and single in addition to his homer, said he considers Leyland one of the finest gentlemen in the majors for fulfilling his request to be traded at the start of this season.

''I love playing every day, but with (Andy) Van Slyke, (Barry) Bonds and (Bobby) Bonilla in the Pirates' outfield. I wasn't going to get too many at-bats,'' said Hatcher. ''I asked Leyland to trade me and he did. I'm thankful for it. I was lucky to go to Cincinnati because they were looking for another outfielder.''

Even though Hatcher hurt Leyland Monday, Leyland insisted, ''I'm happy for Billy. He deserves to be playing every day. I had no playing time for Billy unless somebody got hurt. I have somebody sitting, making $700,000, and no playing time for him. He wasn't going to be happy here.

''We wanted to do something for him and we did,'' added Leyland. ''We just didn't think we'd see him in October.''

If Leyland's club is to come back and win the playoffs, they'll have to do it back in Cincinnati, where a sixth and seventh game will be played if needed. But that doesn't bother Leyland.

''It's a funny thing, Cincinnati has played really well over here this season and we've played well over there,'' noted Leyland. ''I really don't feel there is a home field advantage. It's a seven game series and we're only down 2-1.''

Since the seven-game format began in 1985, only the '85 Cardinals and '88 Dodgers have rallied from 2-1 deficits to win.

Cincinnati starter and winner Danny Jackson went 5 1-3 innings, yielding seven hits and two runs. Reliever Rob Dibble, who has struck out eight of the 13 batters he has faced in the playoffs, struck out three in pitching 1 2-3 innings. Randy Myers struck out the side in the ninth for his second save of the playoffs.

Pittsburgh starter Zane Smith lasted five innings, surrendering eight hits and five runs. The left-hander struck out five and walked none, but got behind in the count in crucial situations like Hatcher's at-bat in the fifth.

Deadlocked 2-2 after four innings, Hatcher led off the fifth with a double to left-center and moved to third on Jackson's sacrifice. Third baseman Jeff King saved a run by knocking down Barry Larkin's smash down the line and holding Hatcher at third, but Larkin legged out a hit. Duncan made King's great defensive play irrelevant when he belted a three-run homer to left-center.

''Hatcher's hit after we had tied it was a really big turning point in the game,'' conceded Leyland.

''Zane has been very tough on me all year long, but he wasn't as sharp today as he normally is,'' said Hatcher. ''He fell behind in the count. Since I know he hates to walk people, I figured I'd get some good pitches to hit. And I did.''

Pittsburgh, which depends on slugging to win most of the time, has scored only eight runs in the first three games. That's the lowest three-game playoff output since weak-hitting Houston tallied only seven in 1986.

The Pirates' ''Big Three'' - Barry Bonds, Bobby Bonilla and Andy Van Slyke - have combined for just seven hits in 34 at-bats (.206 average) with no home runs and only two RBI.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 8) UPI - The campaign for California's next governor Monday reached new heights - or, depending on your television viewing tastes, new lows - with that political pundit himself, Bart Simpson, entering the fray.

But don't have a cow, man.

The California Republican Party, the party of Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt, invoked the name of the smart-alecky cartoon character to tongue-in-cheekly try to discredit Democrat Dianne Feinstein's use of crib notes during Sunday's television debate against GOP candidate Pete Wilson.

''If you're going to use crib sheets, man, use 'em right,'' said Bart in a statement written by the state GOP.

Bart, the precocious pre-teen on the highly popular Fox TV sitcom ''The Simpsons,'' also offered pointers on what he considers better cheating methods suggesting notes written on a shirt sleeve or taped to the inside of a shoe.

The issue at hand was the issue of hands, and Feinstein's use of one of hers to scribble notes during the debate.

According to a set of criteria worked out before the television showdown, the candidates agreed to walk into the debate studio and take their places behind their rostrums without any notes or other debating aids.

Shortly after the debate started, Feinstein was seen on television with pen markings on her left palm.

The former San Francisco mayor, while not denying she had notations on her hand, said the scribbling was the result of her nervousness as she was waiting for the live one-hour debate to begin.

She said she wrote three words'' ''growth,'' ''education'' and ''e wrote t

''I was sitting there getting impatient,'' she told a news conference. ''I can tell you it wasn't the formula for the atomic bomb.''

Wilson also tried to make political hay out of Feinstein's scribbling, using every hand-related cliche in the book.

''She didn't lay a hand on Wilson,'' a campaign statement said. ''While her answers were clearly hand-crafted, she had her hand full answering questions.''

Brad Turrell, a spokesman for Fox Television, which produces ''The Simpsons,'' said the Republicans did not seek permission to use Bart's name or words, but he added it was highly unlikely the network would get involved in a lawsuit because of it.

But Turrell insisted Bart was neutral in the gubernatorial election.

''He's has not taken a political stance.''

EINDHOVEN, the Netherlands (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Philips is to take measures to support the ultimate objective of making its information systems division profitable.

The plans form part of the restructuring process announced by the president of Philips, J.D. Timmer, on July 2, 1990.

Implementation of these plans, and of those already in progress, will result in the reduction of about 4900 of a total of 15,000 jobs, mainly in Europe.

In future, the division will concentrate on those activities and market sectors where it has a strong and sustainable position:

On an international basis, the emphasis will be on the provision of products and services to major segments of the service industry: banking, government, insurance and travel. On a national basis, additional segments may be added, which meet the required business parameters.

Responding to the growing trend towards the use of 'open systems', the division intends to offer complete solutions in these markets on the basis of bought-in, internally or externally, standard hardware and software in combination with application-specific products which it will develop itself. In the service sector, there is a clear trend towards decentralizing the way in which services are offered to the consumer. The division's choice of these specific market segments ties in directly with other Philips activities in this field. Image-based office automation systems.

The market for image-based office automation systems, using optical data storage, is undergoing rapid growth. Philips is the European market leader in this field with its megadoc family.

Service and maintenance of hardware and software. The division's customer services group is at present concentrating on supporting users of Philips systems. The intention, in future, is to offer an integrated range of services for hardware and software supplied both by Philips and by other companies.

Responding to the industry-wide trend towards indirect sales, Philips will reduce its direct sales force in a number of countries in the smaller market segments, strongly depending on the market position per country. Together with the strategic choice of serving a limited number of larger market segments, this accounts for about half of the total job reduction.

CHESTNUT HILL, MA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - General Cinema Corp. (NYSE:GCN) announced Tuesday that it has sold its entire investment in Cadbury Schweppes p.1.c., except for 13.2 million ordinary shares which are held in escrow in connection with General Cinema's outstanding 5 percent exchangeable debentures due 2002.

General Cinema indicated that the sale would result in an after-tax gain of more than $80 million, or about $1.10 per share, in the current quarter of its fiscal year.

The Cadbury Schweppes shares were purchased by Cazenove & Co. and Barclays de Zoete Wedd Securities Ltd., two British securities firms.

General Cinema Corp. operates one of the largest theatre circuits in the United States. The company also is a leading specialty retailer through The Neiman Marcus Group, whose operations include Neiman Marcus, Bergdorf Goodman and Contempo Casuals. Following this transaction, the company will hold in excess of $1.5 billion in cash and short-term investments.

KANSAS CITY, MO (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - W. Thomas Grant II, president and chief executive officer of BMA Corp. said that during the third quarter ending Sept. 30, 1990, BMA Corp. entered the market to purchase 393,331 shares of BMAC common stock.

The purchase was part of a previously announced $70 million authorization from the board of directors to enter the market from time to time for the purpose of acquiring shares of BMAC and/or Home Office Reference Laboratory (HORL).

These shares were added to treasury and are being held for general corporate purposes. Grant said that no shares of HORL had been repurchased by BMA Corp. under the authorization.

BMAC currently holds a 69 percent interest in HORL, the nation's leading provider of laboratory services to the insurance industry.

Grant further said, ''We are concerned about the weakening economy in general and its growing negative effect on real estate values. In light of BMAC's previously announced strategy of substantially reducing investments in real estate over the next several years, we are closely monitoring and evaluating our portfolio relative to changing market conditions.''

FREMONT, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - GRiD Systems Corp. Tuesday announced a major expansion of its European sales and support organization, increasing its number of offices from two to 10 and expanding its ability to sell laptop, desktop and pen-based computers in all European countries.

GRiD president Alan Lefkof said: ''This expansion significantly strengthens our position prior to the unification of the European market after 1992.

GRiD has combined its sales and support organizations with its sister companies, Victor Microcomputer and Micronic.

Tandy Corp., GRiD's parent company, last year acquired Victor and Micronic, both based in Stockholm, Sweden. Victor is a leading supplier of desktop personal computers in Europe while Micronic has a large share of the handheld computer market. Both are part of the Victor Technologies Group.

A new Systems Sales Division of Victor Technologies Group has been established to manage the expanded GRiD operations.

Paige Hiatt, currently director of GRiD's European operations, has been named vice president of the Systems Sales Division.

Juergen Krueper, currently director of GRiD customer support in Europe, has been named vice president of support for the systems division. Krueper, who will head GRiD's new pan-European service and support programs, is establishing a network of service centers in Europe.

The division will include the direct sales forces of GRiD, Victor and Micronic and will operate in the United Kingdom, Germany, France, Spain, Switzerland, Belgium, Sweden and Denmark. GRiD previously had sales offices in the United Kingdom and Germany.

There is considerable synergy between GRiD and Micronic because both companies have the same strategy -- providing field automation solutions directly to large commercial and governmental accounts.

GRiD is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Tandy Corp., Fort Worth, Texas. Tandy is a leading manufacturer and distributor of consumer electronics and computers. A New York Stock Exchange company, Tandy has sales in excess of $4 billion annually.

FOSTER CITY, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Peter Barton Hutt, a former chief counsel of the Food and Drug Administration and a senior partner at the law firm of Covington & Burling in Washington, has been elected to the board of directors of Cell Genesys Inc.

Cell Genesys is a privately-held biomedical company developing human therapeutic products based on homologous recombination technology, an advanced form of genetic engineering.

Hutt began practicing law in 1960 and became a partner at Covington & Burling in 1968. From 1971-75, he was chief counsel for the FDA, after which he returned to private law practice with Covington & Burling.

During his service at the FDA, Hutt was instrumental in establishing the review processes for over-the-counter drugs and biological drugs as well as shaping various FDA regulations regarding public health and safety issues. Before leaving government service, he prepared comprehensive regulations governing all aspects of FDA administrative practices and procedures.

During the past two decades, Hutt has served on numerous national committees focused on health care and health science policy matters.

From 1976-80, Hutt was a member of the National Academy of Sciences Committee on Research Training in the Biomedical and Behavioral Sciences; during 1976-78 he served on the National Institutes of Health Advisory Committee to Review the Guidelines for Recombinant DNA Research; from 1978-81, he was a member of the Advisory Committee to the Director of the NIH; and in 1981-82, he was a member of the NIH Task Force on Cooperative Research Relationships with Industry.

Hutt also has served on the advisory panels of five Office of Technology Assessment studies and as a consultant on three other OTA studies. In addition, he has been elected to several prestigious organizations influencing health care and health science policies.

His current activities include membership in the Institute of Medicine, National Academy of Sciences; the advisory board of the Institute for Health Policy Analysis of Georgetown University; the board of directors of the Foundation of Biomedical Research; the board of directors of the American Pharmaceutical Institute; and the National Committee to Review Current Procedures for Approval of New Drugs for Cancer and AIDS established by President Bush's Cancer Panel of the National Cancer Institute.

Cell Genesys, which is headquartered in Foster City, is developing medical products and production processes based on homologous recombination technology. This sophisticated method of gene targeting enables scientists to replace, activate or inactivate selected genes within mammalian cells, thereby producing tightly regulated, permanent changes in cellular functions. Company applications are focused on three areas: 1) the use of ''engineered'' cells to manufacture valuable therepeutic proteins that are difficult to make with conventional recombinant DNA technology; 2) the production of completely human monoclonal antibodies that may prove safer and more effective than conventional mouse antibodies for treating disease; and 3) the development of ''universal donor cell'' transplant products for use as therapies against medical disorders caused by the loss of critical cells or cellular functions.

Hutt received his bachelor of arts degree from Yale University; his bachelor of laws from Harvard University; and his master of laws from New York University under a fellowship from the Food and Drug Law Institute. He is currently a member of the New York, District of Columbia and Supreme Court Bars.

NORTH STONINGTON, CT (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Robert A. Hillyer has been promoted to vice president of Analysis & Technology Inc., A.T. Mollegen Jr., president and chief executive officer has announced.

In 1978, Hillyer joined A&T following a 22-year career in the U.S. Navy. His technical specialty in the Navy concerned submarine periscopes and associated optical systems. That expertise led to A&T's first periscope contract with the Navy. In July 1984, Hillyer was named manager of the A&T division specializing in engineering services and publications.

More recently, Hillyer has also effectively participated in developing marketing strategies and efforts among potential private sector customers in the Boston area for joint business efforts by A&T and its subsidiary, Applied Science Associates (ASA). ASA develops and implements professional specialized training services that assist major private companies as well as military and other governmental organizations in achieving improved productivity and product or service quality.

''Bob Hillyer is a leader in effectively implementing our 'Continuous Improvement' philosophy and practices in our electro-optics work for the Navy, as well as helping develop new business in the private secotr,'' Mollegen commented.

Hillyer and his wife, the former Jeannette Annis of Niantic, Conn., reide in East Lyme, Conn. with a daughter. Another daughter, son, and five grandchildren live in Niantic, Conn.

A&T specializes in engineering services for U.S. Navy submarine and antisubmarine warfare, and commercial and military training. The company's shares are traded in the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol ''AATI''.

EL PASO, TX (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Paso Electric Co.'s Chairman and Chief Executive Officer David H. Wiggs Jr. announced Tuesday the election of Richard G. Hickson and Travis H. Petty to the company's board of directors.

Hickson, 46, is chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Texas Commerce Bank of El Paso. As chief executive officer of El Paso's largest bank, Hickson is serving in major leadership roles in civic organizations focusing on economic and community development.

He is a board member and chairman elect of the Greater El Paso Chamber Commerce, president of the United Way, treasurer of the Industrial Development Corp., presidential trustee of the El Paso Community Foundation, and a member of the UTEP Development Board.

Petty, 62, is vice chairman of the board of directors of Burlington Resources Inc., where he is responsible for natural gas transmission activities and corporate affairs. Burlington Resources is the parent company of El Paso Natural Gas Co. Petty previously served as chairman of the board and chief executive officer of El Paso Natural Gas Co.

Hickson replaces Robert H. Cutler, 71, who retired in May after 20 years of service. Petty replaces Leonard A. Goodman Jr., 65, who has announced his retirement effective Oct. 31, 1990. Goodman served on EPE's board of directors for over 20 years, and due to the company's mandatory retirement policy, was scheduled to retire prior to May 1991.

In making the announcement, Wiggs stressed the wealth of knowledge and experience that Hickson and Petty have in the financial and regulatory areas.

The election of Hickson and Petty increases the number of new directors elected to the board over the past year to seven. Currently, the board is comprised of 11 directors, including Wiggs. The company does not expect to add any additional directors in the near future.

Wiggs also expressed the company's gratitude to Goodman and Cutler for their leadership and contribution through the years. ''Bob and Leonard have devoted many years of service not only to El Paso Electric, but also to our communities,'' he said. El Paso Electric is an electric utility serving approximately 240,000 customers in El Paso, Texas and the Rio Grande Valley in Texas and New Mexico. The company has a 15.8 percent interest in each of the 1,270 megawatt nuclear generating units at the Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station located near Phoenix, Ariz.

OMAHA, NE (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Data Transmission Network Corp. (NASDAQ:DTLN) Tuesday announced it has entered into an agreement with the Phillips 66 Co. to provide satellite-delivered communication and price notification services to its marketing network over DTNergy.

The agreement with Phillips is expected to increase the company's revenues by 3 percent to 4 percent.

Phillips 66 will utilize DTN's newly developed DTNergy service to provide terminal prices, terminal alerts, electronic funds transfer notifications, electronic invoices and sales and marketing announcements to more than 1,400 petroleum marketers beginning in January 1991.

In addition, as part of the DTNergy service DTN will provide each marketer with energy futures and options quotations and financial news. Seventeen other refiners are currently conducting their own tests of DTNergy.

DTNergy brings to the petroleum industry capabilities which provide both the refiner and the petroleum marketer significant advantages and improvements over the printer-only services in use today.

DTN President Roger Brodersen said, ''The petroleum industry is another niche market opportunity that we hope to capture utilizing our dominant position as a low-cost electronic information provider.

''We expect DTNergy to be an excellent complement to our existing agricultural and financial market information services. Our agreement with Phillips is the first of many we hope to sign with refiners.''

DTN is one of the industry leaders in low-cost, data broadcast techniques and was the first to implement the large scale use of Ku-band satellite technology for mass market applications. DTN has over 52,000 subscribers to its agricultural and financial quotes and news information services.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Home Savings of America, the principal subsidiary of H.F. Ahmanson & Company (NYSE:AHM), Tuesday announced the private placement of a $50 million subordinated debt issue in Japan. The floating rate subordinated notes are due in 1997. This is the first such privately placed issue of this size in Japan of subordinated debt by a U.S. based savings and loan.

The issue is not rated. Both Moody's and Standard and Poors recently confirmed their ratings of H.F. Ahmanson & Company and Home Savings of America. Home Savings' existing sub-debt is rated Baa1 by Moody's and BBB+ by Standard and Poors.

Placement agents for Home Savings were The First Boston Corporation and J.P. Morgan Securities, Inc.

All of the proceeds from the sale qualify as Tier 2 capital under the risk-based capital requirements of the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act (FIRREA) enacted by Congress in 1989.

Based on June 30, 1990, balance sheet data, the proceeds from this note issue, along with other actions recently taken by Home Savings, will bring Home Savings of America's total risk-based capital ratio to 8.43 percent, well above the 7.2 percent level required on December 31, 1990. This offering will help Home Savings to achieve its goal of meeting as soon as possible FIRREA's fully phased-in capital requirements that take effect in 1994.

Home Savings of America, with assets of more than $47 billion and deposits of over $35 billion, is the nation's largest savings and loan institution.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - The U.S. Navy has awarded Litton's Data Systems division, Van Nuys, Calif., an additional $202 million to continue production of tactical air operations systems for the U.S. Marine Corps and U.S. Air Force.

The order includes money for spares, related equipment and training.

This brings the value of Navy and Air Force contracts on the Litton program to approximately $900 million. Eighty-nine systems are now on order, with first deliveries scheduled for 1991. The new award includes seven systems for the Marine Corps and 26 systems for the Air Force.

The transportable modules provide facilities to control the employment of friendly aircraft in the full range of tactical air missions, including interception of hostile aircraft, enroute traffic control, refueling, search and rescue, close air support and interdiction.

Work on the program will continue at Data Systems' Colorado Springs, Colo., production facility and at the division's headquarters location in Van Nuys.

Litton is a technology-based company providing advanced electronic and defense systems, resource exploration services and industrial automation systems to U.S. and world markets.

SAN FRANCISCO (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - To help small business owners more effectively manage their companies' financial needs, Wells Fargo Bank Tuesday announced it's offering a free financial guide on computer diskette.

Wells Fargo is the first major California bank to offer small businesses an interactive computer program as a financial tool.

''Wells Fargo's Financial Guide for Small Business'' is available on a 3.5-inch or 5.25-inch diskette and is designed to run on an IBM PC or compatible machine with 512K memory and color graphics card.

Users can customize the program by answering a series of questions about their business as well as tap into a tool kit of financial calculators to assist them in determining breakeven analysis, personal net worth, loan payments and retirement planning.

The program also provides a description of Wells Fargo services for small businesses, a glossary of financial terms and tips on business topics such as collections, insurance, employee benefits, financial status and ratio analysis.

''We've found there are many small business owners who find their computer one of their most valued employees,'' said Doug Freeman, executive vice president of Wells Fargo's business banking group.

''By offering this financial guide on computer, owners can now have in-depth financial resource information at their finger tips, and map out their company's financial strategy at their own convenience.''

To order a free copy of the diskette, call 1/800-642-BANK.

LA JOLLA, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - The California based supercomputer development company CHOPP COMPUTER CORP. was Tuesday awarded a total of $48,091,542 by the jury in the Superior Court of the State of California at San Francisco.

The award is the result of CHOPP's lengthy civil proceedings against Alexander Laurins, Lawrence Merryman and numerous associated trusts and corporations controlled by them and their families. The seven page verdict returned Friday October 5, 1990, clearly vindicates CHOPP COMPUTER CORP. in the matter and finds Laurins, Merryman and related companies guilty of defamation, violation of the RICO act, abuse of process, and interference in economic prospects.

The damages awarded for defamation totalled $12,056,000. Damages for abuse of process totalled $1,244,750. The damages awarded for violation of the Federal RICO (Racketeering Influenced and Corrupt Organizations) act totalled $10,112,000, which when tripled amounts to $30,336,000, plus attorney fees of $544,792. Additional damages of $3,914,000 were awarded for interference with prospective economic advantages.

Alex Laurins, in jail in Lompoc, Calif., since 1987 on unrelated charges, was responsible for making numerous illegal short sales in CHOPP COMPUTER CORP. while printing and distributing an unregistered investment newsletter which recommended the short sale of CHOPP COMPUTER CORP. shares. Laurins failed to inform readers that he was the actual author of the newsletter and held a substantial short position in CHOPP COMPUTER CORP.

CHOPP COMPUTER CORP. is publicly traded Over the Counter in the United States.

FREMONT, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Everex Systems Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:EVRX) Tuesday announced a licensing agreement with GeoWorks, developer of PC GEOS, a graphics-based operating environment for IBM compatible computers.

The license allows Everex to bundle both the PC GEOS graphical environment and GeoWorks Ensemble, an innovative applications suite, with Everex personal computers. Under the terms of the agreement, Everex may also use a run-time version of the operating environment to add graphics capabilities to current character mode utilities.

''GeoWork's technology will allow Everex to enter into rapidly expanding markets,'' said Raymond Yu, Everex vice president of Business Development.

''GeoWorks complements the Microsoft Windows operating environment. While Windows is targeted at the corporate market, GEOS is designed for entry-level systems typically found in the home and small business.''

GEOS is a highly efficient graphics environment that performs well on XT and low-end AT systems. This multi-tasking environment runs on top of Microsoft DOS. The GeoWorks Ensmeble includes a word processor with desktop publishing capabilities, a draw program, an iconic file manager and a Personal Information Manager.

GeoWorks, located in Berkeley, is a developer and publisher of graphical operating systems and application software for popular computer systems.

The company's products provide sophisticated yet highly efficient and functional solutions for home and small business computer uses. Its products are sold worldwide through retail dealers and bundled with computer systems.

Everex Systems Inc., with headquarters in Fremont, designs, manufactures and distributes a complete family of industry-standard personal computers and peripherals. Everex products are distributed through a worldwide dealer and VAR network.

MARLBORO, MA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Data Translation announces a comprehensive new handbook that describes its data acquisition, and image processing products for IBM PC-compatible, IBM PS/2, Macintosh II, and other popular micro-computers.

Featured are products introduced in 1990, such as an advanced DSP processor with full software support, a line scan camera controller for high speed industrial inspection, and the first PC laptop-compatible I/O board. In addition, the company's line of data acquisition modules is described.

This publication is an important resource for scientists, engineers, and researchers who use, specify, or need information on data acquisition and image processing products. Today's customers want complete application solutions -- hardware, software, and accessories -- to accomplish specific tasks. The New Product Handbook was designed from the ground up to clearly detail these total product solutions, making it the most comprehensive and easiest to use catalog in the industry.

The New Product Handbook (275 pages) details the more than 300 product offerings from Data Translation with complete data sheets, product summary tables, tutorial discussions, prices, and ordering information.

Compatible Products Presented In The Source Handbook

The Source Handbook for 1991 is a directory of hardware, software, and services available from developers worldwide that are compatible with Data Translation data acquisition and image processing products. The Source Handbook ships with The New Product Handbook as a companion volume. Customers now have two handbooks at their fingertips which together offer all the system configuration details they need. Availability

The New Product Handbook and The Source Handbook begin shipping on Jan. 2, 1991. The handbooks are automatically distributed to all Data Translation customers or can be obtained free of charge by calling Data Translation's Sales Department at (508) 481-3700.

SANTA CLARA, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Silicon Valley Bancshares (NASDAQ:SIVB), parent company of Silicon Valley Bank, announced net income of $2,590,000 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, compared with $1,855,000 for the third quarter of 1989, an increase of 40 percent.

Net income per share was 45 cents in the third quarter of 1990, compared to 33 cents in 1989.

Net income for the nine month period ended Sept. 30, was $7,363,000 compared with $5,011,000 in 1989, an increase of 47 percent. Earnings per share increased to $1.27 for the nine month period ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared with 89 cents in 1989.

The 1989 per share amounts reflect a two-for-one stock split in May 1990.

Total assets increased to $623 million at Sept. 30, compared with $366 million at Sept. 30, 1989, a 70 percent increase. Total loans were $412 million at Sept. 30, compared with $258 million at Sept. 30, 1989, a 60 percent increase.

Total deposits were $582 million at Sept. 30, compared with $337 million at Sept. 30, 1989, a 73 percent increase. Book value per share was $6.72 at Sept. 30, 1990 compared with $5.00 at Sept. 30, 1989, a 34 percent increase.

Roger V. Smith, president and chief executive officer, said: ''Our loan portfolio remains strong with non-performing loans representing only .4 percent of total loans. Additionally, our growth rate has also been enhanced by the opening of a regional branch office in Orange County.

Silicon Valley Bank is the only independent bank operating offices in the major financial centers of Santa Clara County: Santa Clara, Palo Alto, San Jose and downtown San Jose. An office is located in the heart of the venture capital community at 3000 Sand Hill Road, in Menlo Park.

This year the Bank opened a loan production office in the Boston area, in Wellesley, Mass., and a full service regional office in Orange County, Calif.

The Bank finances emerging and middle market technology companies, commercial businesses and residential construction projects.

EAST HANOVER, NJ (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - The Ultimate Corp. (NYSE:ULT), the leading supplier of total-solution information systems, software and services to the Pick and Pick/UNIX markets, announced Tuesday the availability of Release 210 of the Ultimate Operating Environment.

According to the announcement by Ultimate Systems Division Vice President Engineering Steve Sorensen, Release 210 applies to a large portion of the company's installed base of over 8,000 systems and provides dealers and end users with significantly increased file-system performance and integrity, improved performance monitoring and system tuning facilities, new text-editing functionality, competitive operating-system compatibility and enhanced data-communications facilities, as well as other important features and benefits.

An extension of Release 200 announced last year, Release 210 is available at no charge for Ultimate users of Honeywell-, Bull HN-, IBM 370- and Ultimate DEC/LSI-based systems, and includes four hardware platform-specific versions.

Release 210 has been shaped by customer requirements and is the latest in an 11-year series of ongoing enhancements to the Ultimate Operating Environment, a high-performance relational database system designed for multiuser, transaction-oriented, business-computing environments.

An enhanced version of Pick, the Ultimate Operating Environment includes an extensive set of features and options for compatibility with Pick R-83 and other implementations of Pick.

It is supported across a broad range of Ultimate-supplied hardware platforms, and each new release is designed to be upwardly compatible from earlier releases, protecting the company's and its dealers' and end users' investments in applications software and training.

Ultimate has implemented several new features in Release 210 while enhancing the capability and extending the application of existing features. The new release has been through an extensive testing and quality-assurance program on all targeted hardware platforms and is available upon request.

Sorensen said: ''The communications power of our product offering has been bolstered through enhancements to the UltiNet communications and networking system, and the already extensive R-83 compatibility feature set of the operating system has been expanded.

''In addition, to improve file-system reliability and integrity, we have implemented Phase Two of our three-phase Group Format Error (GFE) elimination program.

''Phase Two addresses transient GFEs by extending the 'READ/LOCK' function to 10 additional verbs, and Phase Three, to be implemented in the next release, will deal with the elimination of GFEs created by a system crash. As a result of these and the other new features included in Release 210, we are receiving high praise for the quality, capability and performance of each of the new versions.

''IBM 370 users are particularly enthusiastic about the improved performance and enhanced system-tuning facilities provided by the new 2K/4K variable page-size feature and the new performance monitor.

''Users of Bull-based 6000 and 7000 systems, as well as Ultimate LSI-based 3040 and 3050 systems, are seeing reductions of up to 50 percent in file-save and file-restore times, and we have increased the number of users on Bull-based 1400 systems from 64 to 96 users.

''In addition, the expansion of Disk Shadowing support (automatic creation of mirror-image disk files) to all Bull 6000 and larger systems is being hailed as essential for users requiring the added security of redundant copies of files for critical application,'' Sorensen added.

EL SEGUNDO, CA. (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Rockwell International Corp. Tuesday introduced a new corporate advertising campaign highlighting the company's commitment to education.

The television and print campaign focuses on the need for an educated workforce to ensure the competitiveness of American business.

''America's ability to compete in a more demanding global marketplace depends on well-educated, innovative people,'' said Donald R. Beall, Rockwell chairman and chief executive officer. ''Education increasingly is at the root of our ability to rapidly respond to changing technology and processes, as well as demands to improve the quality of everything we do.''

''Our advertising program is just one way to focus attention on an issue vitally important to both our nation and Rockwell,'' Beall said.

The campaign was introduced nationally with full-page advertisements in the Wall Street Journal, USA Today and the Washington Post. Rockwell's ads also are appearing in newspapers in cities with a major Rockwell presence and in magazines including Forbes, Fortune and Business Week, Time, Newsweek and U.S. News and World Report.

Television commercials will be aired primarily during Sunday morning news and commentary programs, beginning next week.

The ads feature students and Rockwell employees already involved in five of the company's more than 200 educational programs. In addition to significant employee participation, Rockwell and its people have donated more than $50 million to education-oriented programs and issues in the last decade.

''By spotlighting the company's commitment to education, Rockwell hopes to emphasize to our employees and others the need to volunteer their time to become more personally involved in education, particularly in stimulating the interest of students in science and math,'' said Richard R. Mau, senior vice president, communications.

''In addition to emphasizing kindergarten through 12th grade education, the ads demonstrate our support for lifelong learning. We encourage our employees to continue their education in order to better prepare themselves and others for job-related responsibilities and career advancement,'' Mau said.

''We want our customers to know that we are continually striving to help provide a workforce adept at creating innovative technology,'' Beall added.

The Los Angeles office of Bozell Inc. produced the advertising campaign.

Rockwell International is a $12 billion, multi-industry company applying advanced technology to a wide range of products in its electronics, aerospace, automotive and graphics businesses.

VENTURA, CALIF. (OCT. 10) BUSINESS WIRE - Levy Bancorp, the parent of Bank of A. Levy, reported that for the first time in its history its quarterly earnings surpassed $2 million as it achieved net income of $2.04 million in its third quarter, according to bank officials.

''It's largely the result of simple back-to-basics banking,'' said Marshall Milligan, president and chief executive officer of Levy Bancorp and its wholly owned subsidiary, Bank of A. Levy.

Net income increased 5.6 percent, or $109,000, over the second-quarter 1990 net income of $1.9 million, and 29.6 percent, or $466,000, over the third quarter of 1989. Earnings per share increased to 71 cents per share in the third quarter of 1990, compared with 68 cents per share in the second quarter and 55 cents per share in the third quarter of 1989.

In addition, net income for the first nine months of 1990 increased by 31.8 percent, of $1.4 million, over the same period in 1989. Earnings per share increased 30.1 percent to $2.03 per share for the first nine months of 1990, compared with $1.56 for the same period in 1989. Shareholders' equity grew to 7.64 percent of total assets at Sept. 30, 1990, from 6.9 percent at Sept. 30, 1989.

The allowance for loan losses remains at 1.35 percent of outstanding loans, while delinquent loans were relatively stable over the past two quarters, at 1.17 percent of loans at Sept. 30, 1990, as compared with 0.98 percent at June 30, 1990 and 2.07 percent at Sept. 30, 1989.

Non-performing loans fell to 0.44 percent of total loans at Sept. 30, 1990, as compared with 0.55 percent at June 30, 1990 and 1.3 percent at Sept. 30, 1989.

While earnings and net income increased, the bank has held the line on costs. The ratio of operating expenses net of operating income to total assets decreased from 3.66 percent at Sept. 30, 1989 to 3.23 percent at Sept. 30, 1990.

Bank of A. Levy's assets total $621 million at Sept. 30, 1990. Subsequent to the purchase of deposits from Midwest Savings Association which took place on Oct. 5, 1990, Bank of A. Levy's total assets in Ventura County exceed $650 million. ''The acquisition reinforces our position in and reaffirms our commitment to Ventura County,'' said Milligan.

IRVINE, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Advanced Logic Research Inc. (NASDAQ:AALR) announced Tuesday the Modular Processor System (MPS), providing 33-MHz 386DX, 25- and 33-MHz i486-based CPU upgradability on the advanced Micro Channel PC bus.

Its standard configuration in a small-footprint desktop chassis will enter the market at an aggressive retail price of $1,995.

The ALR MPS is designed to take advantage of today's cutting-edge applications in businesses. Additionally, Intel confirms ALR is the first PC manufacturer to use Intel's 386 Smart Cache, boosting the performance of the system by 65 percent.

The ALR MPS combines 32-bit Micro Channel bus master capabilities with Intel's 386DX CPU and latest 386 Smart Cache providing 16-KB cache (in 33-MHz 386 models) and i486 CPU with internal 8-KB cache. In all cases, the MPS implements a 25-percent faster performance rating than the classic AT-bus.

The MPS can expand memory up to 49-MB and provides hard-drive expansion up to 330-MB using an integrated IDE controller. It uses an optional ALR Micro Channel-compatible VGA which provides 1024-by-768 high resolution, available for $300. ALR also provides an optional TI 34010-compatible high-performance graphics upgrade solution supporting IBM's 8514-A standard.

The ALR MPS family will include a variety of models to choose from and will be available in November 1990 through ALR authorized resellers nationwide. The 33-MHz 386 ALR MPS 386/33 models are 101, 1, 40, 80 and 330.

All models provide a base configuration of 1-MB RAM and a 1.44-MB floppy drive; models 1, 40, 80 and 330 provide the base configuration and 16-KB Intel 386 Smart Cache. Models 40, 80 and 330 include a 40-MB, 80-MB and 330-MB hard drive, respectively.

The 25-MHz i486 ALR MPS i486/25 models are 101, 40, 80 and 330. All models provide a base configuration of 1-MB RAM, 8-KB internal cache and a 1.44-MB floppy drive; models 40, 80 and 330 include a 40-MB, 80-MB and 330-MB hard drive, respectively.

Advanced Logic Research is a leader in high-performance CPU technology. The company carries the most comprehensive line of ISA, Micro Channel and EISA-based PCs ranging from entry-level 12.5-MHz 286 computers to 33-MHz 386 and 33-MHz i486-based high-performance systems and multiprocessor systems based on UNIX and Novell.

HAMILTON, Bermuda (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - NOREX AMERICA, INC. (AMEX Symbol: NXA) Tuesday announced that the company and institutional investors in the United States and Scandinavia have together acquired approximately $58 million of senior secured debt of Zapata Corp. (NYSE Symbol: ZOS), whose businesses include offshore drilling, oil and gas, marine protein and offshore service vessels.

NOREX's beneficial interest of the debt is $5.8 million at a purchase price of $3.1 million.

NOREX AMERICA, INC. is Manager of the Limited Partnership which has been formed among the Scandinavian investors for the purpose of holding one half of this debt. NOREX owns 20 percent of the Limited Partnership.

Zapata Corp. announced, on Sept. 5, that it had signed a definite agreement to sell its offshore drilling rig fleet for $298 million. Zapata's banks will be paid $160 million of the proceeds of the sale. The Limited Partnership's share of this repayment will be $8.5 million effectively reducing its purchase price to $7.0 million. If Zapata's financial restructuring is completed as planned, the Limited Partnership will indirectly hold a secured note from Zapata of $5.5 million and five million Zapata shares.

NOREX AMERICA, INC. stated that the acquisition of debt of Zapata Corp. in is line with the company's strategy of investments in the oil sector.

NOREX AMERICA, INC. owns offshore drilling rig debt and tanker chartering operations. The company is pursuing additional development opportunities in shipping and offshore marine activities.

KING OF PRUSSIA, PA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Human Designed Systems Inc. Tuesday announced a multimillion dollar OEM contract to provide versions of its ViewStation Plus line of X Window terminals to Delta Data Systems of Columbia, Md.

Under the terms of the OEM arrangement, Delta Data will purchase color and monochrome versions of HDS's high-performance X Window terminals, and modify them to comply with government Tempest regulations designed to reduce emissions from the terminal for secure environments.

The Tempest versions of the X Window terminals will be sold under the Delta Data label, and are the first Tempest X Window terminals on the market.

Delta Data selected the HDS ViewStation Plus platform because of its modularity and price/performance. The modularity of the ViewStation Plus allowed Delta Data to incorporate keyboards, monitors and mice of their own design into the Tempest versions of the terminal.

This allowed Delta Data to reduce development time significantly and reduced overall cost of the product. The price/performance advantages of the ViewStation Plus Series will be carried over into the Delta Data terminals, allowing the terminals to offer up to 30,000 XSTONES of performance, as much as three times the performance of competitive products.

''Not only was the performance of the ViewStation Plus the best of the products we tested,'' noted Howard Koh, president of Delta Data Systems, ''but the fact that we could reduce time to market by using peripherals already in production allowed us to introduce the products months ahead of schedule.''

Delta Data Systems is located at 7175 Columbia Gateway Drive, Columbia, Md., 21046. Telephone 301/290-6400. Human Designed Systems is located at 421 Feheley Drive, King of Prussia, Pa. 19406. Telephone 215/277-8300.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Unisys Corp. Tuesday announced first customer shipments of the latest version of the Santa Cruz Operations Inc.'s SCO UNIX System V/386, Release 3.2 Version 2, for its PW(2)500 AND 800 Personal Workstation Series families.

With this product offering, Unisys further strengthens its alliance with SCO, which began in 1986 with distribution of SCO XENIX on Unisys personal workstations. Today, Unisys is SCO's largest OEM customer.

In 1989, Unisys had the largest percentage increase in market share of any other U.S. UNIX Systems manufacturer in the small-scale systems group. (Source: IDC, 1989.) Unisys currently offers a wide range of products and the multi-user experience to support UNIX in the business environment.

With its support for Intel architectures and the addition of the popular SCO UNIX System V operating system to its product line, Unisys has become a major contender in the fast-growing UNIX PC marketplace.

Unisys is committed to providing innovative products and support programs to the UNIX marketplace. Customers who purchase SCO UNIX System V or SCO XENIX for PW(2) Series workstations will be able to select a service package from Unisys that combines maintenance, software support and related services into a single offering appropriate for their installations.

The Santa Cruz Operation Inc. is a privately held company recognized internationally as the worldwide leader in open system software solutions. SCO offers a wide range of UNIX System V software solutions, training and support services for standard hardware platforms. To date, SCO has shipped over 300,000 UNIX Systems for industry-standard computers -- more than any other supplier.

Founded in 1979, SCO fields a staff of over one thousand among its Santa Cruz, Calif., Washington D.C., Toronto, Canada and London, United Kingdom offices, including one of the largest UNIX System technical teams in the world.

Unisys Corp. is a $10 billion manufacturer of commercial information systems, defense systems and related services. It has approximately 75,000 employees and 60,000 customers in more than 100 countries.

SANTA MONICA, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - INTERACTIVE Systems Corp. Tuesday announced that it has agreed to provide key networking technology and integration services to Motorola Inc.'s (NYSE:MOT) Computer Group for its UNIX System V products.

INTERACTIVE will license to Motorola its portable family of UNIX Internet protocols, including STREAMS TCP, Simple Network Management Protocol and the Portable STREAMS Environment.

The agreement, valued at $1.4 million, has two parts. In addition to the licensing, INTERACTIVE will provide Motorola with custom software integration services for three years. INTERACTIVE will prototype and integrate evolving OSI networking technologies as well as existing TCP/IP networking technologies into Motorola's UNIX System V products.

INTERACTIVE's System V STREAMS TCP is an implementation of the TCP/IP networking capabilities which are now a standard part of AT&T's UNIX System V, Release 4. TCP/IP has been licensed by over 40 major computer system manufacturers. INTERACTIVE's SNMP, which has gained acceptance in the TCP/IP community as an effective network-management protocol, allows computer systems to exchange network status and performance information.

The Portable STREAMS Environment is an implementation of the AT&T UNIX STREAMS architecture which is free of AT&T source code and licensing restrictions and can be easily ported to non-UNIX environments.

The INTERACTIVE products, for UNIX System V, Releases 3 and 4, will be used on the Motorola's Delta Series and MultiPersonal Computers, based on the MC68000 and M88000 microprocessors. Initial porting of the Portable STREAMS Environment and TCP/IP into Motorola's VMEexec real-time software environment has already begun.

The Motorola Computer Group is committed to providing open computing solutions conforming to non-proprietary hardware, software and networking standards, and to providing a full range of distributed computing products to the commercial and technical marketplaces.

INTERACTIVE Systems Corp., a Kodak Company, is the leading supplier of UNIX software products, licensed software technologies, and consulting and development services to the UNIX industry and open-systems marketplace. ALAMEDA, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Mission Resource Partners, L.P. (ASE:MRP) has signed a definitive agreement to sell its two principal property interests to Santa Fe Energy Resources Inc. (NYSE:SFR).

Under the agreement, which is subject to approval by Mission's unitholders and certain other conditions, Santa Fe will acquire Mission's Patrino Fee Property and Hill Property royalty interest for $56 million, plus a revenue sharing interest in production from the properties in the months of November and December 1990.

The two properties, which are located in Kern County, Calif., account for some 98 percent of Mission's oil and gas property interests. Mission is also negotiating with Santa Fe, as well as several other interested parties, for the sale of the remaining minor property interests, according to Douglas K. Brown, president of Mission Resources Inc., Mission's manager.

''Following this sale and the sale of Mission's remaining properties, we plan to dissolve the partnership,'' Brown said. ''We currently estimate the amount of proceeds that will ultimately be distributed to unitholders as a result of the sales and the winding up may be approximately nine dollars per unit, but subject to a number of variables.

In July 1989, Mission announced that it had retained the First Boston Corp. for the purpose of exploring opportunities for sale or merger of the partnership. Since that time, MRP has implemented a significant downsizing of the partnership, including staff reductions and the sale of a number of producing properties and property interests.

Mission currently has interests in approximately 475 oil and gas wells which are located principally in California. The partnership has some 4.2 million units outstanding and approximately 5,600 unitholders. The managing general partner and its directors and shareholders own approximately 27.5 percent of the units outstanding.

Santa Fe Energy Resources is a large independent oil and gas exploration and production company with headquarters in Houston, and district offices in Houston and Midland, Texas, as well as Los Angeles and Bakersfield, Calif.

TACOMA, WA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Puget Sound Bancorp (NASDAQ: PSNB) Tuesday reported record third quarter 1990 earnings of $11.9 million, or 74 cents per share, compared to a loss of $4.6 million, or 28 cents per share, for the same period last year.

Earnings for the first nine months were $34.9 million, or $2.13 per share, a 110.2 percent increase from $16.6 million, or $1.01 per share, for the first nine months of 1989.

''These solid earnings come despite a sizable provision for loan losses,'' explained W.W. Philip, chairman and chief executive officer. ''As we stated last quarter, we are aggressively continuing to build and replenish our reserves to assure ample coverage.''

The third quarter provision for loan losses was $6.6 million, bringing the year-to-date provision to $18.0 million. For the first nine months of 1989, $25.6 million was added to the allowance, including a provision of $20.5 million made in the third quarter to cover possible real estate losses.

At Sept. 30, 1990, the allowance for possible loan losses was $49.7 million, or 1.50 percent of loans outstanding, compared to $42.5 million, or 1.45 percent at year-end 1989.

Total assets at the end of the third quarter were $4.5 billion, up 3.9 percent from $4.3 billion at year-end 1989. Total deposits were $3.4 billion, up 8.6 percent from $3.2 billion over the same period. Total loans were up 1.3 percent to $3.35 billion, compared to $3.3 billion at year-end.

''Our management philosophy remains conservative, which is particularly important in today's economic environment,'' concluded Philip. ''We will continue to grow by focusing on fundamentals, including loan quality and adequate interests margins.''

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Novell Inc. (NASDAQ:NOVL), developer of NetWare systems software products, advanced its commitment to GOSIP (Government Open Systems Interconnect Profile) standards by announcing technology partnerships with Retix and Touch Communications that have produced the first NetWare MHS-to-X.400 electronic mail gateway products.

These gateway products are part of Novell's solution for compliance with federally mandated GOSIP specifications. They also offer the installed base of NetWare users connectivity to an important emerging international messaging standard.

Further, the gateways provide X.400 environments integration with MHS, which has become a messaging standard among Novell's worldwide installed base.

Novell is also demonstrating another GOSIP-compliant technology, an FTAM (File Transfer, Access and Management) responder (server) running over an OSI protocol stack, as part of Interop's OSI Showcase demonstration.

FTAM defines a file transfer facility for exchanging data in a multivendor OSI environment. Taken together, the X.400 gateways and FTAM technology will satisfy GOSIP v1.0 compliance requirements.

The X.400 gateways are software products that allow users to send and receive electronic mail messages between NetWare MHS and X.400 environments. NetWare MHS, a Novell technology, has become a standard messaging protocol among LAN E-mail users worldwide.

Both products have been developed using published NetWare MHS interfaces, allowing the gateways to be used by any NetWare MHS-compliant application, such as DaVinci eMail and Action Technologies' The Coordinator.

Novell has also announced plans to support the Application Programming Interface Association (APIA) messaging interface in future X.400 gateway products for the entire NetWare product line. The APIA, a standards organization concerned with messaging protocols, specified this interface in mid-September of this year.

The interface offers developers a consistent, open development platform for NetWare MHS applications and further demonstrates Novell's commitment to standards.

X.400 is a standard messaging protocol defined by the International Telegraph and Telephone Consultative Committee (CCITT) and adopted by the International Standards Organization (ISO) for use with networks based on its Open Systems Interconnection (OSI) model. GOSIP is an implementation of the OSI model specified by the federal government.

X.400 defines the services available for message sending across a network but does not deal directly with the user interface. As such, it provides a basis for building a user interface. Because of the protocol definition, networks implementing X.400 are able to communicate with other X.400 implementations regardless of the physical equipment, operating system or network protocols.

Novell Inc. develops NetWare systems software products that manage and control the sharing of data across a variety of network computing environments, including computer workgroups, departmental networks and business-wide information systems.

ROTTERDAM, HOLLAND (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - VOC, Van Ommeren Ceteco, has the intention to sell its tank container interests to Stolt-Nielsen.

The transaction includes the transfer of the entire container fleet from VOC subsidiary Liquid and Gas Transport (LGT) to Stolt-Nielsen Nederland B.V. (SNN). The fleet consists of 825 tank containers which are partly owned or leased. LGT specializes in the transportation of liquefied gases and chemicals for third parties.

VOC's involvement on the international tank container market through LGT certainly has long term prospects. However, to achieve the envisaged market position, it would be necessary to make substantial investments without meeting the required return on investment for a number of years. For this reason VOC intends to transfer the interests to Stolt-Nielsen who is already engaged in operating a large fleet of tank containers in the international market.

Stolt Tank Containers, a subsidiary of Stolt Tankers and Terminals (Holdings) S.A., (NASDAQ: STLTF), operates primarily in door-to-door transportation of bulk liquids worldwide and in container leasing. The acquisition of the LGT tank containers can easily be integrated into Stolt Tank Containers' services with minimum disruption, and will enable Stolt-Nielsen to continue its growth in the tank container business and ensure continued high quality service to its customers.

Stolt Tankers and Terminals (Holdings) S.A. is an international transportation company specializing in the distribution of bulk liquids both by land and sea. The company operates worldwide with 21 offices in 12 countries. Stolt-Nielsen provides distribution services among most maritime countries with its combination of transoceanic and coastal parcel tankers; door-to-door intermodal tank container service throughout the world, combined with tank container leasing; five regional storage and distribution centers in the United States, Northwest Europe and Brazil; as well as barges, railcars and tank trucks.

IRVINE, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - CMS Enhancements Inc. (NYSE:CME), a global producer of mass-data storage devices and accessories, Tuesday announcd more memory-module upgrades for most leading personal computers, in addition to their memory modules for the PS/1 announced last month.

The new memory modules support a wide variety of systems including IBM's PS/2, Compaq, Macintosh, AST and Toshiba. The CMS line includes modules with capacities up to 4 Mbytes of memory. The company also announced memory-upgrade boards for IBM PC/AT and compatibles as well as the HP LaserJet line of printers.

''From full-page, high-resolution graphics to CAD/CAM applications to multiuser environments, our memory upgrades for HP LaserJet printers can keep pace with the expansion of printing requirements,'' explained Doug Clemons, memory-enhancements product manager for CMS Enhancements.

''We are using our experience in the production of storage devices and are combining it with advances in memory technology. These memory-enhancements products are a natural complement to our existing line of disk and tape drives '' added Clemons.

Available after Oct. 1, many of the memory-enhancement products are backed by a two-year warranty.

CMS Enhancements is a $200 million public company producing mass-data storage devices and accessories for computers manufactured by Apple, IBM, Compaq, Digital Equipment Corp., Epson, NEC, Toshiba, Tandy, AT&T, Sun Microsystems, Commodore, AST and many others.

The firm, with headquarters in Southern California, ships more than 50,000 hard-disk and tape drives per month to 1,500 dealers and distributors in the United States and 60 other nations.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - ASK Computer Systems Inc. stated that, in response to ASK's request for an interpretation, it has been advised by the NASD that as a condition of the continued listing of ASK's common stock as National Market System security, the proposed sale of approximately 5.6 million shares of common stock to EDS Corp. and Hewlett-Packard Co. will require shareholder approval.

As previously announced, ASK believes that it has no obligation to keep its shares listed on the National Market System. ASK said that under the NASD rules its shares will instead trade in the NASDAQ over-the-counter market. ASK stated that this change in the stock's trading markets was unlikely to affect the marginability of its stock under Federal Reserve Board rules.

Sandra Kurtzig, ASK chairman, president and chief executive officer, said, ''We believe that completing the sale of shares to EDS and HP and the acquisition of Ingres is in the best interests of the company. As a Delaware corporation, we have no requirement for shareholder approval of the stock sale to EDS and HP or the Ingres purchase. We believed that a contingency such as shareholder approval of the sale of the shares as part of the financing for the acquisition would not have been acceptable to Ingres.''

ASK is the leading supplier of enterprise-wide information systems for manufacturing companies. It completed its fiscal year 1990 in June with revenue of $207 million.

NEW YORK (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Sony Corp. received three Emmy Awards for Outstanding Achievement in Engineering Development from the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences (NATAS) in a ceremony held in New York Oct. 9 at the Sheraton Center Hotel.

Winning three Emmys in a single year establishes a new record for achievement, according to the Academy.

The awards were presented for (1) Still Picture Transmission Technology for News; (2) Automated/Robotic Record Playback Video Technology for Large Libraries, and (3) Developments in Metal Particle Tape Technology.

Accepting the award on behalf of Sony Corp. for Still Picture Transmission Technology for News, Sony Corp. of America President and Chief Operating Officer Neil Vander Dussen thanked the Academy for its unprecedented recognition of Sony achievements, and its tribute to the development of a brand-new electronic news gathering tool.

Still picture transmission for news was born with development of the Mavica still video camera in 1981 and achieved international prominence in 1989 when three American broadcasting systems used it to document history in the making from Tiananmen Square, People's Republic of China.

The award for Automated/Robotic Record Playback Video Technology for Large Libraries was presented to Masayuki Takano, director and senior general manager, Communications Systems Group, in recognition of the company's development of microprocessor control technology for automated video record and playback applications.

In development for nearly ten years, Betacard and Library Management System

(LMS) automated playback systems were designed to satisfy broadcasters' increasingly more sophisticated operational requirements, including the recent integration of D-2 Composite Digital video equipment into automated/robotic systems.

Sony received Emmy Awards for the development of the Betacam format in 1986 and for D-2 Composite Digital video tape recording in 1989.

According to NATAS, the prestigious Outstanding Achievement in Engineering Development Award is given to an individual or company for engineering developments that are either extensive improvements or so innovative in nature that they materially affect the transmission, recording or reception of television.

PARIS (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Accor, the Paris-based international hotel and food service group, Tuesday reported record results for the first half of 1990.

On a 13.9 percent increase in revenues, Accor achieved net income before exceptional items of FF 331.0 million ($59.2 million(a)), up 50.0 percent over the comparable 1989 level. Cash flow rose by over 70 percent.

The Group's strong increase in cash flow reflects capital gains on the sale of a hotel property in Paris, partly offset by a non-recurring provision for risks at Accor's SCAPA unit.

The strong rise of the Group's operating margins reflects the healthy level of activities in the Group's European hotel operations -- particularly in Germany and Benelux -- robust rowth in service vouchers in Europe, and the recent disposal of the Group's less profitable restaurant activities.

In Brazil, the temporary recession in service voucher and hotel activities following the implementation of the Collor program was offset in part by the strong performance recorded in the first quarter of the year.

Since the beginning of 1990, growth continued in all of the Group's sectors.

In the hotel sector, the Group opened 49 hotels, representing 3,884 rooms, in the first half of the year. As of June 30, the Group operated 917 hotels totalling 106,700 rooms.

In the restaurant sector, the Group opened 17 new commercial restaurants and 70 institutional restaurants in the first half of the year; as a whole, the Group now operates over 2,900 restaurants in seven countries.

In service vouchers, a sector in which Accor is far and away the world leader, 275,000 new users per day were enrolled during the first half of 1990; a total of 4.5 million people in 12 countries use Accor's service vouchers daily.

RONKONKOMA. NY (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - PDK Labs Inc. (NASDAQ Symbols: PDKL U PDKL, PDKL W) announced Tuesday that it had completed the acquisition of certain of the assets of Reach Pharmaceuticals Inc., a private Tennessee corporation which distributes its own name brand pharmaceutical products in the mid-Atlantic states.

PDK Labs Inc. (the ''Company'') acquired Reach Pharmaceuticals (''Reach'') for cash and restricted shares of the company's securities.

In addition to acquiring Reach's tradenames, customer list and certain other assets, PDK has also entered into an exclusive five year employment agreement with Robert A. Hardin. Hardin, who was the president of Reach immediately prior to the acquisition, will serve as the company's Vice President of Marketing and Sales.

Perry D. Krape, president of PDK, noted that ''We are very pleased with the entire Reach acquisition in numerous respects. We anticipate that Mr. Hardin's experience and reputation will enable him to make a significant contribution to the company. In addition, Reach's brand name products will fit well with the company's current product line. Finally, the acquisition provides the company with entry into new geographic markets while simultaneously expanding of the company's overall customer base.''

The company manufactures and distributes over-the-counter products and vitamins, principally through direct mail catalogues. The company's line of products primarily consists of non-prescription caffeine products, pain relievers, decongestants, diet aids and a broad line of vitamins, nutritional supplements and cosmetics.

The company completed an initial public offering of 1,725,000 units earlier this year, each unit consisting of one share of common stock and one redeemable common stock purchase warrant. Hibbard Brown & Co. Inc., a New York based investment bank, was the managing underwriter of the company's

PORTLAND, ME (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - A Maine company announced the production of its two-piece ELF meter, ELF Sense, which makes measuring extremely low frequency (ELF) magnetic fields easy and convenient.

According to Robert Wagner, president of ExpanTest Inc. of Portland, as far as he knows ELF Sense is the only two-piece ELF meter with analog readout on the market. ''We designed ELF Sense for its utility. The two-component system allows you to find the correct maximum field direction while easily reading the results. This arrangement takes advantage of its basic 1 percent resolution.''

ELF fields are associated with the currents produced in the generation, transformation, transmission, and use of ordinary AC electric power. ELF fields are also produced by the vertical deflection systems used in television receivers and computer video display terminals (VDTs, also called ''monitors''). These fields have become the subject of increased concern and study in the past year or so.

ELF Sense consists of two hand-held units permanently connected by a cable: One unit contains the 1/2 inch diameter sensing element; the other unit contains the analog readout. Full scale ranges are 0-3, 10, 30, 100, and 1000 milligauss. Frequency response is 40 to beyond 600 Hz. Accuracy is conservatively specified as plus-minus 5 percent of reading plus-minus 5 percent of full scale. Noise is below 0.1 milligauss.

ELF Sense reads the true root-mean-square (RMS) of the signal, thereby giving the ''correct'' reading for complex waveforms, such as the sawtooth found in VDT vertical deflection systems. It is powered by a regular 9V battery with an anticipated life of over 250 hours.

Wagner says the ELF Sense is primarily intended for the professional and environmental test and power utility market. He feels that ELF Sense will interest those homeowners, and companies that rent environmental testing equipment to homeowners, who want a professional ELF meter which is easy to use.

ELF Sense is priced at $295.00 which includes UPS ground shipment in the 48 states. Wagner may be contacted at ExpanTest Inc., 232 St. John Street, Suite 316, Portland, ME 04102, 207/871-0224.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Interlink Computer Sciences Inc. Tuesday announced SNS/NFS, a new, low-cost, software solution which allows IBM S/370 mainframes running the Multiple Virtual Storage (MVS) operating system to operate as powerful network servers for attached Network File System (NFS) client systems.

SNS/NFS is available immediately and is priced at $9,950.

SNS/NFS is part of Interlink's SNS Network Integration family of connectivity products which combine IBM MVS mainframes and TCP/IP networks.

Working with Interlink's SNS/TCPaccess and SNS/API, SNS/NFS gives network clients supporting the NFS model, including Sun workstations, PCs, and minicomputers, high capacity and performance along with centralized maintenance and management capabilities.

As an important network application, it strengthens Interlink's position as a leading provider of application solutions for multivendor, multiprotocol environments.

By combining the best aspects of NFS and the MVS operating system, SNS/NFS offers other unique benefits. It extends mainframe security to the NFS environment with support for popular security packages including RACF, ACF2, and TOP SECRET. In addition, users can transparently access IBM data sets, increasing productivity and use of existing resources.

Interlink originally adapted NFS to the mainframe environment in the 1989 with the introduction of NFSconnect, which relied on a Sun workstation as the physical connection. When Interlink introduced the Network Integration family in March of this year, work to integrate the product into the new family was begun. SNS/NFS is the result of that work.

''We see important advantages to this solution for our customers,'' said Thomas Tansy, product manager for Interlink. ''Many Fortune 500 companies, especially in discrete manufacturing and telecommunications, have requirements for multigigabyte data storage with managed access, and are also looking to deploy enterprise-wide client/server architectures.

''SNS/NFS fits perfectly into this environment. Also our software approach uses existing mainframe systems and administrative staff. Finally, our product is market tested and developed here at Interlink, so customers will get a stable product with excellent support and resources to add new features and functionality.''

Interlink Computer Sciences creates customer solutions, based on industry standards, that integrate computer networks, applications, data and peripherals. With headquarters in Fremont, Interlink has branch offices and distributors located throughout the United States, Europe, Latin America, and Asia Pacific.

BELLEVUE, WA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Saros Corp. Tuesday announced a marketing and technology development program targeted to original equipment manufacturers (OEMs).

Companies involved in server-hardware, databases, vertical application development and networking can now take advantage of a broad range of services designed to provide assistance to the OEM in integrating Saros Mezzanine network file management facilities with their hardware and/or software products.

Concurrently, in a contract estimated to be worth up to $70 million, NCR has announced NCR Cooperation, a cooperative computing software platform that enables users to connect people, resources and information in an enterprise-wide information network. The file management facilities of Cooperation are based upon an embedded and extended version of Saros Mezzanine.

The Saros product is the basis for the information storage manager function of Cooperation. Today Cooperation supports OS/2. Future versions are planned for UNIX.

OEM Integration Possibilities

Mezzanine is an open client/server development platform for building distributed network applications that use unstructured data. The information processed by such applications is not in the traditional ''record-oriented'' format that relational database rely on; rather it is in such objects as scanned images, text files or engineering drawings. A rich set of integration tools means that programmers can integrate applications directly to Mezzanine whether the application runs in a DOS, Windows or OS/2 client environment.

Saros/OEM Relationship

Founded in 1986, Saros Corp. is a privately held company based in Bellevue, Wash. Saros develops, markets and supports software for information management in distributed network environments.

SEATTLE (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Burlington Resources Inc. (BR) reported third quarter 1990 net income from continuing operations of $38 million, or $0.27 per share, compared with $33 million, or $0.23 per share, for the same period last year.

In the first nine months, net income from continuing operations totaled $157 million, or $1.10 per share, compared with $117 million, or $0.78 per share, for the same period in 1989. Improved earnings were largely the result of higher natural gas and oil sales volumes and increased oil prices.

Third quarter operating income from Meridian Oil, BR's exploration and production company, increased to $54 million from $31 million a year ago. The improvement reflected higher natural gas and crude oil sales volumes and increased oil prices. The third quarter of 1989 included a natural gas contract take-or-pay recovery which increased that period's operating income by $6 million.

Natural gas sales averaged 616 million cubic feet per day (mmcf/d) during the third quarter and were 16 percent above the 531 mmcf/d sold in the same quarter last year. Natural gas prices declined by nine percent to $1.27 per thousand cubic feet (mcf) compared with an average price of $1.40 per mcf for last year's third quarter.

In the third quarter of 1990, oil sales increased by 22 percent to 35,400 barrels per day from 28,900 barrels a year ago. The higher volumes reflect continued success with horizontal drilling in the Bakken (North Dakota) and the Austin Chalk (Texas) formations. Oil prices also rose sharply, averaging $24.77 in the 1990 quarter compared with $18.10 per barrel in the same quarter last year.

Third quarter 1990 operating income from El Paso Natural Gas, the company's interstate pipeline, was $38 million against $34 million a year ago. Pipeline throughput for both periods was approximately 3.6 billion cubic feet per day.

Third quarter 1990 consolidated interest expense increased by $19 million from the 1989 quarter primarily as a result of new borrowings.

For the first nine months, capital expenditures increased to $883 million from $423 million a year ago, due to additional acquisition and development of gas and oil properties.

ANAHEIM, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Micro Technology Inc. (MTI) today announced two accords: a technology and marketing agreement with Optical Data Systems (ODS), a Richardson, Texas, manufacturer of fiber optic network equipment, and a marketing arrangement with Xyplex Inc., a Boxborough, Mass.-based, communication server company.

Micro Technology will incorporate technology from the two vendors' products into its LANCE network management system, so that network managers can monitor their multi-segment, multi-vendor networks from a single console. These two pacts are significant steps in a series of vendor-specific agreements whereby MTI incorporates private technology into LANCE for true interoperability.

Said Steve Hamerslag, president of MTI: ''With the cooperative efforts with ODS and Xyplex, LANCE can more closely monitor a larger number of vendors' products. The end user's desire for true interoperability is now that much closer to being met.''

Under the terms of the agreement, ODS has provided MTI with its private management information base (MIB), which MTI has incorporated into LANCE, so that ODS customers can manage ODS devices, and other network devices, from a single console and user interface. ODS will purchase a minimum of 100 units of LANCE for resale to its customers.

MTI also has a joint effort under way with Xyplex Inc., a premier supplier of user-to-host connectivity solutions based upon industry standards protocols such as LAT, TCP/IP, TN 3270 and SNMP. Xyplex products include: terminal servers, network print servers, budges, gateways and configuration tools.

LANCE is a multi-vendor, multi-segment network management system that helps companies prevent and track problems, increase network productivity, ensure security, and help managers plan for future network needs. From a single console, network managers can see and analyze their entire distributed network system.

Established in 1979, Micro Technology is a proven leader in the design, manufacture and marketing of quality enhancement products in networking, storage subsystems and system software for the VAX/VMS and Unix environments. A privately held company, for the fiscal year ended March 1990, MTI had revenues of $55 million, and anticipates 1991 revenues of $80 million. The company supports its customers through 45 sales and service locations in the United States, Canada, Australia and Europe.

MORRISTOWN, NJ (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T Computer Systems Tuesday announced that NCR Corp. has become the sixth company to license AT&T's LAN Manager/X Server.

NCR said it has incorporated AT&T's network operating system technology in its NCR LAN Manager/X offering for the NCR System 3000. Both single-processor and multi-processor versions of LAN Manager/X will be offered under UNIX(R) System V Release 4.0, with support for multiple LAN protocols within both Ethernet and Token Ring networks.

The AT&T LAN Manager/X Server is AT&T's UNIX system implementation of Microsoft's LAN Manager technology for original equipment manufacturers (OEMs). Developed by AT&T Bell Laboratories, it provides vendors with a feature-rich network operating system for computers connected by local area networks.

''AT&T's versatile network operating system is based on the UNIX system, which provides the most flexible and scalable networking environment. It also offers the most robust capability for interoperability -- regardless of what desktop operating system, LAN media type or protocol a customer may use,'' said Scott Perry, AT&T Computer Systems vice president of marketing and strategy.

''Among NCR's commercial customers, strong support for DOS and OS/2 clients is an important requirement,'' said Van Aggelakos, assistant vice president of NCR's General Purpose Products Group. ''AT&T's LAN Manager/X implementation provides the solid performance that we need, along with strong support for the LAN Manager API set endorsed by X/Open. In addition, AT&T's server offering is specifically tailored for operation within the UNIX System V Release 4 environment.''

In May, AT&T announced that Unisys, Olivetti, Data General Corp., ICL and Dansk Data Elektronik have licensed the software. The company is pursuing additional OEM agreements.

''Microsoft is pleased with NCR's strengthened commitment to LAN Manager,'' said Mike Murray, general manager of the Network Business Unit at Microsoft Corp. ''Today's announcement furthers LAN Manager's role as the networking standard for multi-vendor solutions integrating major operating systems including Microsoft MS-DOS, Windows and OS/2; Digital Equipment Corp. VMS; and the UNIX system from various vendors.''

SANTA CLARA, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - 3Com Corp. Tuesday announced a contract awarded by Revenue Canada which will result in one of the largest networks of personal computers ever installed in Canada.

3Com's 3+Open LAN Manager has been chosen as the primary network software for the Goods and Services Tax (GST) Office Systems project by Revenue Canada, Customs and Excise. The network will connect more than 3,000 workstations at 54 sites across Canada before the end of this year. By the time the system is fully installed on Jan. 1, 1991, thousands of GST forms will be processed daily on the network.

According to Hyne, 3+Open was also chosen because it has the most complete support for IBM's NetView network management mainframe application -- providing access all the way down to interface cards in the workstations. It is also highly reliable and easy to manage network software that meets the federal government's strict security standards.

The GST Office LAN project will provide Revenue Canada branch staff across Canada with access to the GST database on the department's IBM-compatible mainframe computer in Ottawa.

The staff will process registrations, key in requests for statements, generate audits and handle enquiries directly from the workstations.

The branch staff will perform standard office automation tasks, including spreadsheets and word processing on the network. The number of workstations connected to the network is expected to grow more than 8,000 units by next year.

At each location, the workstations will be connected to servers over a token ring network, using 3+Open LAN Manager for communications, file sharing and LAN management. More than 100 servers at the 54 sites, each running under OS/2, will provide printing and file services, and act as gateways to wide-area networks.

3Com Corp. is a leading independent global data networking company, providing multivendor connectivity that spans organizations and businesses worldwide. The company designs, manufactures, markets and supports a wide range of networking systems based on industry standards and open system architecture.

BROADVIEW, IL (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Dyna Group Int'l. Inc. settles lawsuit with Nolan.

Roger Tuttle, chief executive officer of Dyna Group Int'l. Inc. announced that the pending cause of action that Nolan brought against Dyna Group more than a year ago, as well as Dyna Group's counter claim against Nolan, were finally settled between Nolan, Dyna Tour, Dyna Group and Tuttle. Even though Dyna Group Int'l. Inc. was never proven to have done anything wrong and was indeed completely innocent of all allegations, Dyna agreed to settle this dispute in order to avoid the protracted cost, time and energy involved in litigation and mainly to prevent the uncertainty of any such litigation depressing the shareholder value of Dyna Group Int'l. Inc.'s stock by creating a contingent liability.

Also, Dyna Group International Inc. announced that the U.S. Court of Appeals ruled in favor of Great American Products (GAP is a subsidiary of Dyna Group Int'l. Inc.) upholding the summary judgment previously awarded to GAP by the U.S. District Court for Western Missouri. This case has been litigated for over three years and originally sought $5,850,000 in damages from GAP. However, for the third time in this case, the courts overturned the appeal and ruled in favor of Dyna Group Int'l. Inc. and completely dismissed all claims against GAP (Dyna Group Int'l. Inc.) and the judge has closed the case.

This favorable ruling removed $5,850,000 in potential liability for Dyna Group Int'l. Inc. and resulted in no material damage to Dyna Group Int'l. Inc.'s financial statement.

Dyna Group Int'l. Inc. is comprised of a core group of wholly owned subsidiaries engaged in the design, production, manufacturing, importing and marketing of consumer products, for sale to the retail leisure, sports, recreational and gift markets; design and production of corporate premium products; and the development and administration of corporate incentive and promotional programs.

The company's corporate customers include AT&T, Coca-Cola, Motorola, Pennzoil, Pepsi-Cola and Texaco. In the retail community, Dyna Group maintains distribution agreements with mass merchandisers such as K-Mart, Sears, J.C. Penney, Marshall Field and over 3,000 specialty stores, as well as by major mail order catalogs.

Two of the company's premier retail products are Continental Tires and Colnago Bicycles.

Dyna Group's newly acquired, wholly-owned subsidiary, Great American Marketing Services Corp., is engaged in creative sales promotion and marketing on a national level.

NOVATO, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - WordStar International Inc. (NASDAQ:WDST) Tuesday announced the appointment of Ronald S. Posner as chief executive officer, as an initial step leading to future changes in the management of the company.

Additional announcements regarding new management and products will be made over the next three months.

Stanley Cohen, a director and recent investor in the company was in charge of the executive search committee. ''Ron has an excellent track record in building and revitalizing software companies over the past seven years as a senior executive manager at Peter Norton Computing, Ansa and Ashton-Tate,'' said Cohen.

Seymore Rubinstein, founder and director of WordStar, said he is pleased that WordStar has attracted someone of Posner's caliber to join the company as chief executive officer.

The WordStar software program revolutionized the computer industry in 1979 by providing a compelling reason to purchase a personal computer -- users could write with it and edit documents before printing them. WordStar 6.0, released in March 1990, offers text and graphics integration, pull-down menus, style sheets, page preview and desktop publishing features such as kerning and scalable fonts, plus support for HP Laserjet III and PostScript printers.

The company also announced that the board of directors has approved a stock buyback plan of up to 1 million shares. Purchases will be made from time to time in the open market depending on market conditions.

Prior to joining WordStar, Posner served as president and chief executive officer of Peter Norton Computing Inc., in Santa Monica, Calif., from April 1989 to August 1990. Posner served as president and chief executive officer of Ansa Software from November 1986 to December 1987.

WordStar International, founded in 1978 as MicroPro International, is a leading supplier of business productivity software products for IBM PC users. These products are among the largest-selling microcomputer software programs in the world, having been translated into 14 languages and having built a 3.5 million installed user base.

DALLAS (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Harken Energy Corp. (''Harken'') (NYSE:HEC) of Dallas Tuesday announced the appointment of Neil H. McLaurin as president and chief executive officer of Harken's wholly-owned subsidiary, E-Z Serve Holding Co. Inc. (''E-Z'').

E-Z, which announced on Oct. 2 that it proposes to acquire Frontier Refining and Marketing Co. upon the successful completion of the acquisition.

McLaurin comes to E-Z after a 22-year career with Tenneco beginning in 1966 as a refinery process engineer. During his tenure with Tenneco, he gained experience in such diverse areas as refinery engineering and planning, business risk evaluation and management of wholesale and retail marketing.

Upon his departure in 1988 when Tenneco's oil division was sold, McLaurin was Tenneco's vice president of wholesale marketing from 1983 through 1987. In this capacity, he was responsible for managing 450 retail outlets which generated $700 million in sales and employed over 3500 people.

McLaurin's other Tenneco responsibilities included oversight of major synthetic fuel projects and creation and development of a planning department for refining, petrochemical, gas processing and supply/distribution. He also served as Tenneco's assistant chief of exploration ad production planning and was responsible for various Tenneco start-up ventures.

For the past two years, he has served in a consulting role with a Houston investment company where he has evaluated numerous refining and marketing acquisition candidates on behalf of other parties.

McLaurin's educational background includes a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering from the University of Texas in 1966, followed by his completion of the Petroleum Economics and Management Course at Northwestern University in 1974 and the Stanford Executive Program at Stanford University in 1982.

HEC explores for, develops and produces oil and gas reserves domestically through its subsidiary Harken Exploration Co. and internationally through its subsidiary Harken Bahrain Oil Co. WESTBORO, MA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Data General Corp. Tuesday announced a series of corporate moves that will enable the company to better serve its customers and further strengthen its product development efforts.

Senior Vice President Tom West will head a newly created Advanced Systems Development group. The company also said three new vice presidents with broad computer industry experience have joined the company and that new organizations have been formed to focus on the company's proprietary ECLIPSE and AViiON open systems product lines and the fast growing systems integration business.

In his new position, West will lead a group of developers who will determine and evaluate technologies for implementation in future generations of Data General products. He will continue to report to President and Chief Excutive Officer Ronald L. Skates.

West has been with Data General for 18 years. During that time he led the team that developed the company's first 32-bit ECLIPSE systems, established the MV as a leading systems architecture, and spearheaded the company's movement into the open systems world with its RISC-based AViiON family.

The new presidents are Allan Jennings, vice president, AViiON Development Group; Peter Gyenes, vice presdient and general manager, International; and William Zastrow, division vice president, Open Systems Marketing Group.

Jennings joins the company after serving most recently as vice president and general manager of the Unix Systems Division at Unisys. Gyenes has been senior vice president of Marketing and Sales for Encore Computer. Zastrow was previously director of UNIX Product Marketing at Dell Computer.

The Data Solutions Co., a newly formed division of Data General which will focus on the systems integration market, will be headed by Division Vice President David Jacob, who joined Data General in April after 18 years at Electronic Data Systems (EDS) Corp. Under Jacob's direction, the new division will provide comprehensive information processing solutions through the combination of professional services and systems integration of software, communication and hardware technologies. LOS ANGELES (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Sienna Holdings Inc., a private investment firm formed to acquire and operate growth-oriented, middle-market companies, has formally announced the closing of its initial fund with $40 million of available equity capital.

The two general partners of Sienna, Daniel Skaff and Thomas Turpin, will concentrate on the acquisition of companies with purchase prices of between $10 million and $100 million. The partners will take an active role in the operations of the companies they acquire.

Skaff was formerly with Bankers Trust Co. in Los Angeles where he spent several years in the acquisition finance area before being assigned to develop the firm's middle-market corporate finance effort in the Western United States. Prior to Bankers Trust, he was a vice president in corporate finance for Bank of America in New York.

Turpin has worked for Booz, Allen & Hamilton in San Francisco as a management consultant and Goldman, Sachs & Co. in New York as a corporate finance professional. Prior to forming Sienna with Skaff, he was a principal at Brentwood Associates, a Los Angeles risk capital firm.

Sienna was formed with the assistance of InterWest Partners of Menlo Park, Calif., an established venture capital firm with over $250 million under management. InterWest has helped several other firms raised funds and maintains close working relationships with these investment companies.

''We have a very deep resource in InterWest Partners and its extended network of affiliated investment firms around the country. This relationship provides us with additional access to talented operating executives, local market contacts in a variety of businesses, and additional capital should the need arise,'' stated general partner Skaff.

Sienna's office is located in Los Angeles.

NEW YORK (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Ehrlich Bober Financial Corp. announced Tuesday that, effective immediately, its investment banking and broker/dealer subsidiary, Ehrlich Bober & Co. Inc., would cease ongoing operations.

Citing continued losses due to, among other things, the enduring negative impact of tax reform on the municipal finance industry and the current slowdown affecting most of Wall Street, the company stated that it would not pursue new business transactions and would concentrate on closing out its open commitments.

The company further stated that its resources are more than adequate to fulfill its open securities commitments. All such transactions will close in the normal and ordinary course.

Arrangements are being made to transfer remarketing agency relationships to other broker/dealers, and pending completion of those arrangements, Ehrlich Bober & Co. Inc. will continue as remarketing agent for the relevant securities issues.

The board of directors will consider alternatives with regard to the future operations of the holding company, Ehrlich Bober Financial Corp.

WHITE PLAINS, NY (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - IBM Tuesday introduced its first medialess Personal System/2 (a), the PS/2(a) Model 55 LS (LAN Station), ideally suited for customers to use as a local area network workstation.

The medialess workstation provides customers an easy-to-install, cost-efficient system with greater data security and protection. The Model 55 LS, based on IBM's best-selling Model 55 SX, comes with either a Token-Ring or Ethernet adapter card and is configured without a hard disk or diskette drive. The LAN station can be upgraded with an optional diskette drive and a hard disk.

The PS/2 Model 55 LS is configured with a Remote Initial Program Load (RIPL) feature, allowing customers to easily install the system in either a Token-Ring or Ethernet local area network. Local area networks enable several personal computers, or clients, to be linked together to share a wide range of resources, such as files, software and printers.

Based on a 16 megahertz (MHz) 80386SX microprocessor and IBM's Micro Channel(a) architecture, the PS/2 Model 55 LS comes with 2 megabytes (MB) of memory, expandable to 16 MB of total system memory and two available 16-bit expansion slots. In addition, the system has a hard-disk storage bay and a diskette drive bay, should storage options be required in the future.

IBM today also introduced the IBM PS/2 Adapter/A for Ethernet Networks, a 10 megabit per second adapter card which allows all Micro Channel-based PS/2s to be connected to an Ethernet local area network. Both the new adapter and IBM's 16/4 Token-Ring Network Adapter/A are available as standard features on the Model 55 LS, and as options for all other Micro Channel PS/2s.

The Token Ring model of the 55 LS is supported by DOS 3.3 and DOS 4.0 on a network server running Operating System/2(a) Extended Edition Version 1.2 and OS/2(a) LAN Server Version 1.2, Novell NetWare(a) 286 or 386, Banyan Vines(a) or PC LAN Program 1.33.

The Ethernet model of the 55 LS is supported by DOS 3.3 and DOS 4.0 on a network server running Novell NetWare 286 or 386 or Banyan Vines.

IBM intends to enhance OS/2 LAN Server to support Remote Initial Program Load of OS/2 in a Token-Ring network and Remote Initial Program Load of DOS and OS/2 in an Ethernet network.

MARLBORO, MA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Stratus Computer Inc. Tuesday announced a $3.5 million contract with Sistemas Technicos de Lotterias del Estado S.A. (STL) of Madrid, Spain to provide five Stratus XA 2000 Continuous Processing Systems for a full automated nationwide lottery system.

The national Spanish lottery is one of the largest in the world, with annual revenues of over $6 billion.

The fault tolerant Stratus computers will act as communications processors for the newly-automated lottery system, which is expected to go fully online in 1992. The computer's fault tolerance ensures 24-hour-a-day, continuous operations. Initially, 5,600 lottery terminals, representing 80 percent of the nationwide lottery business, will be connected to the system. This will create the largest public data communications network in Spain, and one of the largest in Europe.

The system will process three kinds of betting: a weekly game in which players select six numbers out of 49; a similar number game played four times a week; and seasonal betting on soccer matches. STL calculates that with each terminal accepting a bet every 15 seconds, the Stratus systems will process a maximum of 400 transactions per second.

Stratus XA2000 Systems allow customers to expand the processing capability of their computers as their business grows. Stratus systems can easily be upgraded to more powerful models simply by adding additional processor boards, without interrupting their applications or performance.

STL was founded in 1988 as a partnership between ONLAE, the national organization for lotteries and betting, and Telefonica, Spain's largest telecommunications company. STL was formed to evaluate and manage a new computerized system to run the national lottery system in Spain.

Stratus Computer Inc., is a leading supplier of fault-tolerant systems for critical online applications, such as online transactions processing and online data communications and telecommunications applications.

The company offers the broadcast range of fault-tolerant systems and maintains the highest standard for computer reliability. One of the fastest-growing companies in the industry, Stratus reported revenues of $341.3 million for fiscal year 1989, up 29 percent from $265.3 million in 1988.

The company, whose headquarters are in Marlboro, Mass., U.S.A., has 11 international subsidiaries. Stratus Computer Inc. common stock is traded via the New York Stock Exchange under the trading symbol SRA.

FORT WORTH, TX (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Justin Industries Inc., announced today that its Board of Directors has unanimously reaffirmed its decision not to sell the company and has rejected the Sutherland/Rosenstein group's tender offer as not in the best interests of the company or its shareholders.

The board also unanimously recommended that shareholders reject the offer and not tender their shares.

Justin's board also authorized the filing last Friday of an amended complaint in Justin's lawsuit against the Sutherland/Rosenstein group in federal district court in Fort Worth. The amended complaint alleges that the Sutherland/Rosenstein tender offer is false and misleading because it does not adequately disclose the contingent nature of the offer's financing or the Group's plans for the company after the tender offer.

The suit further alleges that the Sutherland/Rosenstein group is making their tender offer largely to influence the company's shareholders in a proxy contest in violation of the federal proxy rules.

In addition, the Justin board has amended the company's Shareholder Rights Plan to postpone the date on which the Rights begin to trade separately from the company's common stock until such date as may be designated in the future by the Board.

KINGSTON, N.Y. (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - National Micronetics Inc. (NASDAQ:NMIC) announces that it has completed preliminary negotiations with Newmax Co. Ltd., a Korean corporation, looking toward an equity investment by that company in NMI with a series of three collateralized bridge loans of $500,000 each to precede that investment.

An affiliate of Newmax has advanced the company $500,000, the first of the scheduled bridge loans.

Documents executed upon the first cash advance by an affiliate of Newmax contemplates a sale to Newmax of 10,500,000 shares of NMI common stock at 40 cents per share, comprising 51 percent of the then outstanding shares.

Robert C. Ristagno, president and chief executive officer of NMI, notes that the outcome of the discussions is contingent upon further investigation by Newmax, finalization of the terms of the proposed investment, foreign government agency approvals of the transactions, the cooperation of the secured bank lenders of NMI, the results of operations of NMI pending the consummation of the transactions and the approval of the board of directors of Newmax.

The proposed transaction has received the approval of the board of directors of NMI.

As earlier disclosed, the primary bank lender of NMI has temporarily waived the failure by NMI to comply with certain covenants in the loan agreements between NMI and the bank, has agreed to defer until Oct. 17 payment of $275,000, which became due on Sept. 11, and has expressed a willingness to defer certain future payments of prinicpal and interest during the period of negotiation with Newmax.

CHARLOTTE, NC (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Results of consolidated operations of Lance Inc. (OTC: LNCE) for the first 36 weeks of 1990 show the following as compared with the like period of 1989 (in thousands except per share data):

Lance Inc.
Consolidated Operations
(Subject to year-end audit)

	12 Weeks		36 Weeks
	9/08/90	9/09/89	9/08/90	9/09/89
Net Sales and other operating revenue	$ 101,689	$ 100,490	$ 311,425	$ 300,569
Income before income taxes	16,439	17,513	51,197	47,980
Net income	$ 10,402	$ 11,159	$ 32,638	$ 30,628

Common shares outstanding at end of period	$31,280,758	$31,637,063	$31,280,758	$31,637,063

Sales were up 1.2 percent for the quarter ($1.2 million) and 3.6 percent year to date ($10.9 million) compared with 1989 due primarily to the price increase instituted at Lance in the summer of 1989 and sales price increase at Midwest Biscuit Co.

Certain raw material costs, especially potatoes and oils, have decreased since the comparable periods of 1989 and selling and delivery expenses have increased.

The board of directors Lance Inc. Tuesday declared a regular quarterly cash dividend of 21 cents per share on the outstanding shares of the $.83-1/3 par value common stock of the corporation. The dividends are payable on Nov. 15, 1990 to stockholders of record at the close of business on Nov. 1, 1990.

AMBLER, PA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Interspec, Inc. (NASDAQ:ISPC) reported Tuesday increased revenues for the third quarter and first nine months ended August 31, and its return to profitability during the period ended August 31, 1990.

For the quarter ended August 31, sales increased 38 percent to $17,379,000, compared to the $12,617,000 reported for the comparable prior year period. Net income for the three months ended August 31, 1990, was $204,000 or $.03 per share, compared to a loss before extraordinary item of $2,459,000 or $.40 per share for the comparable prior year quarter.

For the nine months ended August 31, 1990 sales increased 16 percent to $47,975,000, compared to the $41,480,000 reported for the comparable period in fiscal 1989. The net loss for the nine months ended August 31, 1990, was 1,497,000 or $.25 per share, compared to a loss before an extraordinary item of $2,807,000 or $.46 per share for the comparable nine month period of fiscal 1989.

The Company attributed the improved results, and return to profitability during the quarter, to increased sales of the higher- priced Apogee and CFM 750, the Company's two new medical diagnostic ultrasound systems which replaced the older XL and CFM 700 product lines.

''We are especially pleased with the continued increase in international sales for the Apogee and CFM 750, as well as with the further progress in reducing our inventory of older, lower margin products,'' said Edward Ray, Chairman and President.

Mr. Ray went on to state, ''All three of the Company's divisions, Interspec, Vingmed and Echo Ultrasound, performed according to plan, and contributed to the improved results.''

Interspec is a leading manufacturer of diagnostic ultrasound systems for medical applications.

CLEVELAND (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - East Ohio Gas Co. customers could see a 1.2 percent decrease in natural gas costs for the next three months, if the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) approves the company's quarterly gas cost reovery (GCR) filing made Tuesday in Columbus.

The company requests PUCO approval of a proposed decrease of 6 cents per thousand cubic feet (mcf) in the gas cost portion of the company's rates, effective Nov. 8. If approved, it would be the fifth consecutive quarterly GCR decrease.

A typical residential customer could expect to see an average decrease of $1.21 per month during November, December and January.

The GCR is the average price The East Ohio Gas Co. pays its suppliers. The company does not earn any profit on the GCR component, said Patrick A. Carney, vice president of public affairs.

The GCR decline is ''good news for our customers, particularly as we head into the winter heating season,'' Carney said.

Although the current Middle East situation has generated volatility and rising prices in the oil market, it has had a minimal effect on the company's natural gas prices thus far, Carney said.

Nearly 85 percent of the natural gas used in the U.S. is produced domestically the remaining is imported from Canada. As a result, the company expects to provide customers with adequate natural gas supplies for winter heating.

If the PUCO approves the GCR decrease, East Ohio Gas customers would continue to pay among the lowest rates in the nation. The company's rates rank fourth lowest on the list of the 25 largest U.S. cities. Rates continue to remain lower than the winter of 1989.

If approved, the new GCR costs would remain in effect through Feb. 11, 1991.

PURCHASE, NY (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - International Paper Tuesday reported preliminary 1990 third-quarter net earnings of $181 million, or $1.66 per common share, on sales of $3.3 billion.

These results reflect a 13 percent decline in earnings per share when compared with last year's $1.91 per common share. Third-quarter net profits in 1989 were $215 million on sales of $2.9 billion.

For the first nine months of 1990, earnings per share were $5.01, down 15 percent from the $5.91 reported for the same period last year. Third-quarter 1990 earnings per share are comparable with the $1.65 and $1.70 per share earned during the first and second quarters of this year.

''The relative strength of our earnings this year, amidst a difficult operating climate, is directly attributable to the success of our internal improvement and acquisition programs,'' said John A. Georges, chairman and chief executive officer.

Georges said much of the company's good third-quarter performance was due to contributions from its uncoated printing and writing papers business. ''During 1990, we have benefited from debottlenecking projects at our mills in Mobile, Ala., Georgetown, S.C., and Ticonderoga, N.Y. These incremental capacity additions and other investments in our uncoated papers mills positioned us to take full advantage of market demand that has outpaced industry supplies for much of the year.''

Georges said that earnings from consumer packaging sales remained level with second-quarter totals. ''This business's increasing production of value added products enabled it to maintain good, consistent performance.''

Third quarter 1990 earnings from wood products and timber business sales were substantially lower than earnings during 1989's third quarter. Continued weakness in the new home construction and repair and remodeling markets has reduced demand for these products.

Georges noted that the company's European businesses performed well during the third quarter considering seasonal factors that routinely cause a decline in business activity during the period.

''Aussedat Rey's enhanced performance is due to improvement of operating conditions in a majority of its mills, including higher productivity, an improved product mix and lower costs related to reduced pulp process,'' Georges said.

He added that Europe's economic growth, combined with favorable exchange rates has helped keep International Paper's U.S. exports of pulp, linerboard and bleached board at high levels.

International Paper, headquartered in Purchase, is a worldwide producer of a wide variety of paper and forest products.

The company is a major producer of printing and writing papers, paperboard and packaging products, and wood products. The company also operates specialty products businesses and distributes paper and wood products. International Paper has manufacturing operations in 22 countries and exports its products to more than 100 nations.

SYDNEY, Australia (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Westpac Banking Corp. (NYSE:WBK) Tuesday announced that the Bill Acceptance Corp. Ltd. is to be absorbed into the Bank, effective from Oct. 1.

Westpac's Managing Director Stuart Fowler said that in the current deregulated market, it is no longer appropriate to operate a separate merchant bank.

''The move will complete the integration with the Bank of all Westpac Group merchant banking operations in Australia and New Zealand.''

Bill Acceptance Corp. (BAC) has assets of A$1.2 billion and shareholders' funds of A$56 million.

''We attempted to sell BAC on several occasions but in this deregulated market there have been no buyers,'' Fowler said.

Fowler said that BAC has had a long and successful history in Australian merchant banking and continues to be profitable. Since 1977 BAC has been a wholly owned subsidiary of Australian Guarantee Corp. Ltd., which in turn is wholly owned by Westpac.

Westpac Banking Corp. is an international financial services group headquartered in Australia with operations extending offshore to 29 countries. In its home markets of Australia, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea, and the South West Pacific, Westpac offers a full range of banking and financial services. BOSTON (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T Tuesday said it will reduce by more than $18 million the prices its Massachusetts customers pay for a wide range of in-state long distance communications services.

The company asked that the changes, subject to approval by the state Department of Public Utilities, become effective on Friday, October 19. The move will reduce AT&T residential and business long-distance service rates an average of 26 percent for Massachusetts customers.

''This action is another in our continuing efforts to pass savings on to AT&T customers in Massachusetts and throughout the country,'' said Marc Rosen, AT&T government affairs vice president. ''Recent reductions in our costs of connecting to customers through the local telephone company -- as well as improvements and increased efficiencies in our network -- have made this price cut possible.''

Specifically, AT&T said it will significantly reduce all initial-minute charges and most additional-minute charges for all residential long-distance calls within Massachusetts.

For example, under the new rates a 10-minute call from Boston to Springfield placed at 11 a.m. would cost $2.20. The same call today would cost $3.37. A similar call between Boston and Springfield at 9 p.m. would cost $1.71 compared to $2.26 today.

AT&T also will reduce in-state, operator-assisted calling rates by 21 percent, and will cut the initial hourly rate for the AT&T REACH OUT Massachusetts optional calling plan from $11 to $9, and reduce the additional-minute rates for the plan.

For business customers, AT&T's proposed price cuts will:

-- reduce all initial-minute and most additional-minute charges for the AT&T PRO(sm) WATS Massachusetts, a small business optional calling plan;

-- reduce all initial- and additional-period rates for AT&T MEGAVOM(r) WATS Service and AT&T One Line WATS Service;

-- reduce initial- and additional-period rates for may Massachusetts users of AT&T Software Defined Network Service;

-- reduce the hourly rates for AT&T MEGACOM(r) 800 Service and AT&T 800 READYLINE(r) Service; and

-- reduce all monthly rates for AT&T 800 Service.

The residential and business service price reductions apply only to in-state Massachusetts calls, and do not apply to interstate long-distance calls.

This is the third time in 1990 that AT&T has reduced calling rates for its Bay State customers. In two rate reductions since January, AT&T has lowered its rates by $4 million. Today's action results in a total of $22 million in savings passed on to AT&T customers in Massachusetts this year.

Since 1984, AT&T has reduced its interstate long-distance prices nearly 42 percent.

FREEHOLD, NJ (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Calton Inc. (NYSE:CN), a New Jersey based housing developer, reported net income of $766,000 ($.02 per share) on revenues of $49,464,000 for the third quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990, compared to a net loss of $1,660,000 ($.05 per share) on $24,040,000 of revenues for the third quarter of 1989.

Earnings per share are based upon the weighted average shares outstanding of 33,726,000 and 33,730,000 for the third quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990 and Aug. 31, 1989, respectively.

For the nine months ended Aug. 31, 1990, the company reported net income of $1,394,000 ($.04 per share) on revenues of $148,552,000 compared to a net loss of $2,389,000 ($.07 per share) on $78,247,000 of revenues for the same nine month period in 1989.

Earnings (loss) per share are based upon the weighted average shares outstanding of 33,665,000 and 33,753,000 for the respective periods.

The company delivered 340 and 913 housing units in the three and nine month periods ended Aug. 31, 1990, respectively, compared to 193 and 624 units in the comparable periods of 1989.

Revenues for 1990 include $22.3 million for the sale of land for the nine month period ended Aug. 31, 1990. There were no land sales in the third quarter of 1990 or in the three or nine months ended Aug. 31, 1989.

Equity in operations of Talcon L.P. and joint ventures resulted in a loss of $425,000 and $955,000 for the three and nine month periods ended Aug. 31, 1990 respectively, compared to income of $565,000 and $3,393,000 for the comparable period of the prior year.

Sales backlog at Aug. 31, 1990 was approximately $68.2 million representing 437 units compared to $65 million representing 454 units at Aug. 31, 1989.

The backlog in both years includes contracts containing financing and other contingencies customary in the industry, including, in certain instances, contracts that are contingent on the purchasers selling their existing homes. Due to changes in product offerings and the uncertainty of future market conditions, the sales backlog, housing units delivered and average selling prices achieved in the current and prior periods may not be indicative of those to be realized in succeeding periods.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - RAD Network Devices Inc. (RND) Tuesday announced OpenRIM, an advanced Simple Network Management Protocol (SNMP)-based remote internetwork management station.

As demonstrated at INTEROP Tuesday, this new station provides complete network management of any SNMP network element from a single user workstation.

OpenRIM can be easily configured to monitor, diagnose and retrieve information about RND Ethernet and token ring bridge/routers and other SNMP compatible network devices.

Using the three basic SNMP commands, GET, SET, and EVENT to communicate, RND's OpenRIM can query agents (managed devices) regarding their status, assign them tasks and monitor their response. For example, GET RESPONSE allows OpenRIM to retrieve Management Information Base Information (MIB).

In addition, RND's new network management station supports proxy agents, allowing users to manage devices not conforming to SNMP specifications.

OpenRIM monitors both Ethernet and token ring network status and performance, and provides real time statistics and alarms. Network managers can pre-configure and change device variables and troubleshooting mechanisms to monitor specific network elements at any time.

With OpenRIM's OSF/Motif and X-Windows-based graphical user interface, the network manager can easily select configuration options and quickly access pertinent internetwork data.

Integrated with LANNET's Multinet hub management station, network managers can now monitor and control layers 1,2, and 3 from a single source.

OpenRIM operates on a SUN-4 workstation or an Intel 80386 microprocessor based PC with the UNIX operating system. Prices for OpenRIM software start at $2650. First customer shipments are planned in December 1990.

RND is the technological leader in internetworking products for the local and wide area networking markets. Founded in 1987, the company introduced the industry's first combination bridge/router to provide enterprise-wide networking solutions for the global market.

RND's family of bridge/router products allows users to interconnect local and remote LANs into a single, integrated network for a wide range of applications and vertical market sectors. RND is a member of the RAD Group of companies.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T Network Systems has introduced a programming interface for the terminal adapter the company sells to link personal computers to ISDN networks.

AT $499.95, the AT&T Personal Computer Terminal Adapter (PCTA) Model 1000 is the lowest cost ISDN terminal adapter in the industry. It turns most personal computers into fully functional ISDN terminals.

The new applications programming interface (API) is important because it allows people to write their own software for use with the PCTA Model 1000. This will make the development of new ISDN applications easier and spur the growth of ISDN networks. The API is produced by EXCELLTECH Inc. of Yankton, S.D.

AT&T will also sell EXCELLTECH's ExcellNET and NETBIOS software, which allow file transfers and printer sharing in ISDN networks. ExcellNET and NETBIOS will be available as an option with the PCTA Model 1000 for an additional $100

These new tools make it easy to create personal computer ISDN applications that use callers' telephone numbers, received as incoming call line identification display (ICLID) information. The software also automatically connects the PC to the ISDN network for file transfers and sending files to a printer.

The new software also supports:

- future applications by third parties;

- point-to-point and passive bus configurations on AT&T's 5ESS Switch;

- data calls over the ISDN ''D'' channel at asychronous rates of up to 19.2 kilobits per second.

AT&T'S PCTA Model 1000 is available now. The ExcellNET software will be distributed through telephone companies, major systems integrators, AT&T salespeople and directly by calling 1-800-432-6600. The software ships in December.

ROTTERDAM, The Netherlands (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Royal Nedlloyd Group announced Tuesday that the downward trend in its results continued in July and August, reflecting difficult market conditions, the continued fall in the exchange rate of the US dollar and rising fuel costs.

Taking into account very disappointing developments at a number of minority participations and extra costs incurred for reorganization, Nedlloyd now expects to report a negative net Group result for the current year.

In the Ocean Transport sector, the strategic repositioning by Nedlloyd Lines, announced earlier this year, will be implemented at a quicker pace. It entails a split up into container logistic services and the management of ship capacity. In this framework, the composition of the fleet will be adapted. In The Netherlands, it will lead to a decrease of 420 jobs, 150 of which will be in the shore organization and 270 on the fleet. The staff at Nedlloyd's organizations outside The Netherlands will also be reduced.

The reorganization will entail considerable non-recurring expenses which will be charged to the 1990 results.

In the Non-shipping Transport sector, especially in Germany, severe price-cutting contributes to disappointing results being produced. This situation necessitates the introduction of additional restructuring efforts with their additional high costs, coming on top of the ongoing process of integration.

It is expected that the positive effects of the aforementioned actions will become visible in the short-term.

KNOXVILLE, TN (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Robert Maxwell, chairman of Maxwell Communications Corp. plc (MCC) and Jan Timmer, president of N.V. Philips (Philips) have announced that MCC and Philips have signed a Letter of Intent to establish a Joint Venture multimedia publishing company to produce and sell self-teach language courses for the home, school and office using interactive compact discs (CD-I).

The new company is to be known as Maxwell Multi Media.

MCC's subsidiary, Berlitz Publications Inc., a member of Berlitz International and Philips' language company, Philips Language Learning Systems Group, will produce entirely new language training course materials for Maxwell Multi Media.

A series of self-teach language courses, based on the unique Berlitz Method and Philip's Professional Language Courses will be packaged together with a CD-I player. The series will be available for sale from the end of 1991. The release will coincide with the worldwide launch of consumer CD-I players.

Commenting on the announcment Maxwell said: ''The combination of Berlitz, the world's premier language instruction company with Philips, the inventor of compact disc technology, creates a formidable partnership of software publishing and consumer electronics experience to be based on this new multimedia format -- CD-I.''

Timmer, president of Philips added: ''We regard the joint venture as a key strategic development for Philips Consumer Electronics. Philips believes that CD-I will become the world's leading multimedia standard for the consumer market. It enables television to be used for education and teaching interactively, for the first time.''

WOODLAND HILLS, CA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - American Mobile Systems Inc. (NASDAQ:AMSE) announced Tuesday that it recorded a profit in its fiscal year ended June 30 of $1,928,000, after an extraordinary credit of $778,000 from the utilization of tax loss carryforwards.

This is the first time in its eight-year history that the company has reported positive net income. While the profit is attributable to a gain of $10,297,000 from the sale of assets, the company believes that these results demonstrate that the significant marketing expenditures, which accounted for operating losses in prior periods, have actually increased the value of its assets.

Before the gain from the sale of assets, the company incurred a net loss of $8,369,000.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, the company recorded net income of $1,928,000, or 29 cents per share primary and 25 cents per share fully-diluted compared to a net loss of $6,987,000, or $1.13 per share primary and fully-diluted, in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1989.

Net sales were $5,640,000 in fiscal year 1990 ($3,931,000 from airtime and $1,709,000 from equipment), vs. $6,112,000 in fiscal year 1989 ($4,074,000 from airtime and $2,038,000 from equipment).

The company also announced that its registration statement relating to the sale of 15,759,888 shares of its common stock, par value 1 cent per share, was declared effective by the Securities and Exchange Commission on Thursday, Oct. 4.

This registration relates to the sale of 8,882,911 shares by various holders, including several affiliates of the company, who acquired their shares in private transactions; 3,886,520 shares issuable by the company upon the exercise or conversion of outstanding options, warrants and convertible debt securities; and 1,925,000 shares available for future acquisitions.

The company will utilize any proceeds it receives from the exercise of outstanding options and warrants and from the sale of the treasury shares for repayment of indebtedness and general working capital.

The company also announced that its Vice Chairman, Richard G. Somers, has completed the purchase of 500,000 shares of the company's treasury stock for PURCHASE, NY (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - IP Forest Resources Co. (IPFR), managing general partner of IP Timberlands Ltd., (IPT) Tuesday reported third-quarter 1990 earnings of $28 million on total revenues of $50 million.

Earnings per Class A Depositary Unit were 81 cents. These results compare with 1989 third-quarter earnings of $42 million on total revenues of $77 million and earnings per Class A Depositary Unit of 94 cents.

For the first nine months of 1990, IPT's earnings were $82 million on total revenues of $147 million, with earnings per Class A Unit of $2.28. These compared with 1989 nine-month earnings of $91 million on total revenues of $166 million and earnings per Class A Unit of $2.32.

Earnings for both the third quarter and the first nine months of 1990 are down when compared with the same periods a year ago because 1989 earnings included approximately $15 million from a single land sale.

IPT declared a third quarter partnership distribution to Class A unitholders of 72 cents per unit payable Nov. 14, 1990 to unitholders of record on Sept. 28, 1990.

OCALA, FL (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Action Products International Inc. is a major manufacturer and importer of space, aviation, military dinosaur, animal and aquarium gift items specializing in the museum and corporate specialty market; also the manufacturer of All Natural Astronaut Ice Cream and other Astronaut foods.

The company has produced a pro-American T-shirt to honor the American troops stationed in Saudi Arabia. Bob Zumbahlen, the design creator, said that profits from the sale of those shirts was used to purchase the All Natural Astronaut Ice Cream which the company donated.

Mike McSwain, sales manager for Carolina Freight said that the national trucking company is taking the ice cream to the port of embarkation in the Northeast at no cost.

''All Natural Astronaut Ice Cream is the only way that American soldiers will be able to get fresh tasting ice cream in 120 degree heat. Our product is 100 percent American,'' Zumbahlen said.

''The more shirts we sell, the more ice cream we will ship. We received shirt orders from such firms as Pratt & Whittney, Boeing, Vought, 8th Air Force Museum, Grumman Aircraft, NASA, and many surplus stores.''

WHITE PLAINS, NY (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - IBM and Maximum Strategy Corp. of San Jose, California Tuesday announced a joint program aimed at developing High-Performance Parallel Interface (HiPPI) - attached disk arrays for use in engineering and scientific computing applications.

Disk arrays are collections of disk drives that work together with an intelligent controller as a high-performance storage device.

The HiPPI standard, recently developed by the American National Standards Institute (ANSI), allows bulk data to be transferred between a computer's central processors and their input/output devices, such as displays and storage devices, at rates much faster than previously possible.

The HiPPI disk array storage systems can significantly increase the productivity of computers running numerically intensive applications, such as those used by engineers and scientists. This type of I/O attachment, however, does not increase the performance of general-purpose transaction processing applications.

The objective of IBM and Maximum Strategy is to increase the performance of existing scientific and technical applications and to make new ones possible by developing disk array storage systems for the HiPPI environment.

The research will concentrate on combining the industry-leading high-performance disk technology of IBM, the HiPPI attachment, and the advanced data storage controller architecture of Maximum Strategy. The HiPPI attachment already is available on IBM ES/3090(a) and water-cooled ES/9000(a) processors.

This joint effort continues previous work in which IBM and Maximum Strategy wrote a document that describes the use of the Intelligent Peripheral Interface Device Generic Command Set (IPI-3) as a device control protocol for use on the HiPPI channel. IPI-3 is a command set commonly used with numerically intensive applications. The document describing this protocol has been accepted as an internal working document by the appropriate ANSI sub-committee. (a) ES/3090 and ES/9000 are trademarks of IBM Corporation.

TORONTO (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - Michael J. Perik, chairman, announced Tuesday Softkey Software Products Inc. (NASDAQ:SKEFY) financial results for the third-quarter, expressed in Canadian Dollars. The results consisted of revenues of $2,854,292 compared to 1989 third quarter sales of $2,702,013. Third-quarter earnings were $986,137, or 9 cents per share, up 98 percent compared to 1989 results of $498,238, or 5 cents per share.

Results for the nine-months ending August 31st were reported revenues of $9,922,282, and after-tax earnings of $2,897,369, or 29 cents per share. This compares to revenues of $7,100,135 and earnings of $860,766, or 9 cents per share for the same period in 1989.

Perik stated that 1990 earnings increased much more rapidly than sales because ''SoftKey changed the mix of its business during the past year. The growth of the Private Label Division has dramatically improved our margins. In addition we have stopped selling certain products like KeyStyle that included hardware sales which tend to inflate the revenue-line while doing little for the bottom-line.''

Kevin O'Leary, president of SoftKey's Private Label Division noted that his business unit has enjoyed substantial growth with sales up 100 percent. However, he reminded investors that third-quarter results include only nominal revenues from new distribution contracts with Global Computer Supplies, Fingerhut, Select and Editor's Choice. ''We are doing marketing tests this fall with these companies. We will see the results of these tests in our fourth-quarter sales with full-effect being felt in the first and second quarters of 1991.''

Gary Huggins, president of SoftKeys's Insight Division noted that he was very pleased with the division's 50 percent internal growth during the past year. ''Despite tighter economic conditions, our company has been able to continue to expand the consulting services we provide to our 'blue-chip' client list throughout Canada.''

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA (OCT. 9) BUSINESS WIRE - The chairman of Westpac Banking Corp. (NYSE:WBK) Sir Eric Neal AC Tuesday announced that David Graupner would be the new chief of Westpac's stockbroking subsidiary, the Ord Minnett Group.

Graupner will take over on March 31 next year on the retirement of Gilles Kryger, the executive chairman of Ord Minnett Group Ltd. and chairman and chief executive of Ord Minnett Securities Ltd.

Sir Eric said that Graupner, 44, now a director and head of institutional equities, had been involved in all key areas of Ord Minnett since joining the firm in 1967.

''David Graupner started on the stock exchange floor and progressed through all of Ord's domestic and overseas activities,'' Sir Eric said. ''He set up the New York operation and created a well-respected and profitable representative office there. Since returning to Australia he has been responsible for the coordination of strategic planning initiatives.

''His broad equities experience and management role mean that he is well-qualified to ensure the continued prominence and profitability of Ords despite the current market down-turn,'' Sir Eric said.

As part of the changes, the managing director and chief executive officer of Westpac Stuart Fowler will become chairman of the holding company, Westpac Ord Pty. Ltd. Christopher Hutchinson will become managing director of Ord Minnett Securities Ltd.

Kryger is a member of the Order of Australia and holds a number of directorships, including Prudential Corporation Australia Ltd. and TNT Ltd., and chairmanship of Mercantile and General Reinsurance Group.

Westpac Banking Corp. is an international financial services group headquartered in Australia, with operations extending offshore to 29 countries. In its home markets of Australia, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea and the South West Pacific, Westpac offers a full range of banking and financial services. By MICHAEL STRAUSS - Comtex Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (OCT. 9) COMTEX - Congress expressed "amazement" today that a military investigation of Northrop Corporation's management performance on major Air Force programs avoided any criminal probe of the Los Angeles-based defense contractor.

At a hearing before the House subcommittee on oversight and investigations, Rep. Ron Wyden (D-Ore.) said Northrop is currently the target of federal criminal grand jury investigations and asserted the Pentagon has at least eleven ongoing criminal investigations at five divisions of Northrop.

Last Feb. 27, Northrop pleaded guilty to 34 counts of falsely certifying tests on the Harrier jet and Air Force cruise missile, and paid a $17 million fine.

Brigadier General Robert Drewes told the panel the Air Force found problems in six areas: systems engineering, transition to production, software management, subcontractor management, organization/personnel and business systems. Drewes added Northrop had initiated corrective actions in recent months "in many areas of concern to the Air Force."

"I'm amazed you can come in and say you can understand the corporate culture when you didn't even look at the criminal side," Wyden said.

"We did not pursue any of the ongoing criminal investigations," Drewes responded. "My study was not to be all-comprehensive. We did not look at those areas."

"Northrop has pleaded guilty to 34 counts of falsifying material on cruise missiles and paid $17 million in fines," said Kansas Democrat Jim Slattery. "That should raise your antenna. This is amazing to me. Do you (Air Force) operate in a vacuum?"

"I think someone in the Air Force has set you up," added Rep. Christopher Shays (R-Conn.). "The person that gave you the orders not to look on the criminal side. It strikes me this committee has the right to get some answers."

Drewes concluded that part of Northrop's problems stemmed from its rapid growth in the 1980s, when it received over $35 billion in Pentagon contracts.

"What struck me in the course of the review, is the time in rapid growth all beginning at the same point," Drewes said. "In the turbulence of that rapid growth, discipline they might have had was diluted."

Although the Air Force found there were problems in all the programs it looked into at Northrop, Drewes characterized the work presently coming out of the military contractor as "generally acceptable."

"You can't name a single program that is not up to the standards of the Air Force or taxpayers," Wyden said. "Isn't that a disgrace? I believe it is a mockery of the procurement system to keep handing Northrop contracts in the face of these problems."

"We do expect problems when your pushing the frontiers of technology," Drewes answered.

Northrop is currently building the B-2 Stealth bomber and is competing with Lockheed Corp. for the most expensive Pentagon contract of the 1990s, the Air Force's Advanced Tactical Fighter.

GROUP LED BY J.B. COTSEN OWNS 2,570,750 SHARES (14.27%) OF UTILITECH INC (TICKER: UTLL) OF LOS ANGELES, CA.

ANNOUNCEMENT:

As a result of disputes between Ms. Cotsen and Mr. Hevrony, they are no longer member of a group for purpose of this filing and, in addition, on July 28, 1990, Ms. Cotsen resigned as a member of Utilitech Inc.'s board of directors. An option to purchase 750,000 shares of common stock of Utilitech Inc. at $2.25 per share was granted to Ms. Cotsen by option agreement dated May 30, 1990. The option is exercisable at any time up until and including May 30, 1993, was issued to Ms. Cotsen in consideration of past services rendered to Utilitech Inc., and had no relationship with her loan of $1,500,000 to Utilitech Inc. in March, 1990. The $1,500,000 loan made in March 1990 was due in 30 to 60 days and the maturity of the loan was extended twice. Upon receiving the entitled promissory note from Utilitech, it reflected a due day of July 1, 1990 and interest at a rate of 12 percent. Utilitech Inc. offered Ms. Cotsen warrants to acquire 225,000 shares of Utilitech Inc.'s common stock at an exercise price well below the then market value as compensation and inducement to cause Ms. Cotsen to make the loan. The 12 percent interest provided for in the promissory note and the warrants may have made the loan usurious under California law. Ms. Cotsen has refused to further extend the loan and has declared the loan in default; and she may have an action against Utilitech Inc. for the warrants, which could result in the issuance of additional shares of Utilitech Inc. common stock to her.

TOKYO (OCT. 9) - Former Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corp. (NTT) chairman Hisashi Shinto was Tuesday found guilty of taking bribes from Recruit Co., the center of a major stocks-for-favors scandal in Japan.

Tokyo District Court judge Ken Toyota sentenced Mr. Shinto, 80, to a two-year jail term, suspended for three years, and ordered him to pay 22.7 million yen (174,000 dollars) in fines, court officials said.

The former boss of the Japanese telecommunications giant was found guilty of accepting 10,000 unlisted stocks in a Recruit subsidiary and selling them after the shares went public at a profit of about 22 million yen.

Mr. Shinto, who was regarded as one of the finest examples of management while leading Japan's largest firm, submitted his resignation as NTT chairman on December 14, 1988 after being implicated in the scandal.

Mr. Shinto's lawyers were unavailable Tuesday for comment.

Tuesday's verdict was the second court ruling of five trials involving 12 politicians, bureaucrats, businessmen and others indicted on bribery charges in the Recruit scandal.

The scandal surfaced in June 1988 and forced the resignation of finance minister Kichi Miyazawa in December of that year and Noboru Takeshita as prime minister in April 1989.

A total of 43 politicians, bureaucrats and businessmen were forced to resign in the wake of the Recruit scandal.

In the first court ruling on March 26, the same court found Shigeru Kano, a former labor ministry official, guilty of receiving 1.5 million yen (11,000 dollars) in bribes from Recruit and sentenced him to a suspended one-year prison term on bribe-taking charges.

The defendants also included former chief cabinet secretary Takao Fujinami and former chairman Hiromasa Ezoe of Recruit Co.

Recruit is an information conglomerate which allegedly gave its pre-listed stocks and donations to some 160 people from 1986 to 1988 in exchange for favors as the company expanded.

BEIJING (OCT. 9) - Fifty-five Chinese who illegally entered Taiwan have been repatriated, in the first legal direct link between the nationalist-ruled island and communist mainland since 1949.

The official New China News Agency (NCNA) said the group landed Monday in Fuzhou, capital of east-coast Fujian province, in an operation handled by the Chinese and Taiwan Red Cross societies.

It did not say what happened to the 55 once they were back on Chinese soil. Individuals who leave mainland China without authorization risk stiff penalties if they are repatriated.

Following a plan laid down by the two Red Cross societies in September, the group sailed first to Matsu, a small Taiwan-held island one mile (1.5 kilometers) off the mainland coast, on a Taiwan Red Cross vessel.

There, after 20 minutes, they boarded a Chinese Red Cross ship for Fuzhou, NCNA said in a dispatch late Monday.

The operation marked the first direct crossing of the Taiwan Strait to be approved by Taiwan's nationalist government since 1949, when it lost control of mainland China to Mao Zedong's communists.

Despite a ban on direct air and sea links, small boats regularly dart across the Taiwan Strait undetected, often carrying mainlanders who hope to steal into prosperous Taiwan to start new lives.

Repatriation of illegal immigrants used to be handled by Taiwan's military.

But the task came under Red Cross auspices in September after 25 expelled illegal immigrants suffocated to death in the hold of a vessel found adrift in the Taiwan Strait in August.

Twenty-one others went missing and were feared dead after their boat collided with an escorting Taiwan naval ship later that month.

A total of 328 Chinese fishing boats carrying 10,952 illegal immigrants were sent back to China between June 1988 and August this year, according to Taiwan government statistics.

BUDAPEST (OCT. 9) - The Hungarian economy next year is expected to see a worsening of recession, along with rising inflation and unemployment, according to a study by the Hungarian Economic Research Institute.

The study, excerpts of which were published Monday, predicted Hungary's gross domestic product would fall 3 percent this year from 1989, overall consumption by 3 percent, consumption by the state sector by 7 percent and investment by 6 percent.

The report said that next year, deemed a critical point, Hungary's foreign trade deficit could hit one billion dollars.

Exports in 1991 will register a drop of between 15 to 20 percent from the current year, while inflation, now at about 30 percent, could reach 50 percent and the numbers of unemployed climb from 40,000 to 200,000, the study predicted.

Rising oil prices and the Comecon's transition from trade in rubles to trade in dollars were cited as factors pushing inflation upward.

Meanwhile, a senior international economic relations ministry official denied rumors that the Soviet Union would stop importing from Hungary, Czechoslovakia and what was formerly East Germany in order to reduce its trade deficit with the Comecon, or communist trade bloc, countries.

Hungary's trade surplus with the Soviet Union, 540 million rubles last year, has risen to 800 million rubles this year.

The ministry official, Laszlo Timar, said the Soviet Union is preparing to halt only its imports of non-agricultural products not covered by Comecon agreements.

KUALA LUMPUR, Oct 9 (AFP) - Occidental Petroleum Malaysia, a unit of the U.S. based oil exploration company, said Tuesday that it had struck oil and gas off the east Malaysian state of Sarawak.

The company said in a statement that its discovery well 180 kilometres (112 miles) off Bintulu town encountered several oil and gas bearing zones between 2,050 and 2,650 metres (6,765 and 8,745 feet) below sea level.

Two of the zones which were tested registered oil flow of 1,200 barrels per day and gas flow of 9.8 million cubic feet (277,536 cubic metres) per day.

Occidental is the operator and has a 70 per cent stake in the exploration area which it is sharing with Petronas Carigali, the exploration arm of Malaysia's national oil company Petronas.

The company is also exploring for oil in another offshore block off Sarawak and one off neighbouring Sabah state.

PRETORIA (OCT. 9) - South Africa and Madagascar on Monday agreed to restore merchant shipping links in a bid to hasten the development of economic ties between the two countries.

The shipping agreement was signed at the administrative Union Buildings here by Madagascar's Transport Minister Lucien Zasy and his South African counterpart George Bartlett.

The agreement has to be ratified by the two governments but it already makes provision for merchant ships of the two countries to visit each other's harbours.

Shipping links between South African and Madagascar were broken in 1972 as a direct result of South Africa's apartheid policies.

The reform policies of President Frederik de Klerk have resulted in the restoration of trade and air links with several African countries since February 2.

On August 14, South Africa and Madagascar signed an agreement providing for air links with Madagascar and also Monday, South African Airways (SAA) announced that weekly flights between Johannesburg and Nairobi, Kenya, are to start on December 1.

JOHANNESBURG (OCT. 9) - South Africa's foreign exchange earnings from maize would plunge drastically by some one billion rands (389 million dollars) compared to earnings from last year's crop, a report here said Tuesday.

Maize Board Managing Director Hennie Davel said the country would earn 350 million rands (136 million dollars) from maize exports this year compared to last year's earnings of 1.4 billion rands (544 million dollars), the influential financial daily Business Day reported Tuesday.

Mr. Davel attributed the plunge to a smaller exportable surplus, a lower world price and a strong dollar.

Only 7.4 million tons of maize had been delivered to the Maize Board this year compared to last year's 10.6 million tons, primarily due to a lower crop yield and less favourable weather, Mr. Davel added.

WELLINGTON (OCT. 9) - A study released here Tuesday forecast lower economic growth this year in New Zealand as a result of the Gulf crisis and rising international interest rates.

The private Institute of Economic Research said economic growth will slow from 1.3 percent in 1989-90 to 0.8 percent this year and growth over the next five years will average 1.8 percent annually.

International events have had a major impact on New Zealand's economy, the institute said.

Slower world growth through 1989 has been worsened by the Gulf crisis and increased inflationary pressures have led to a rise in world interest rates.

The New Zealand Manufacturers Federation, reacting to the report, said the economic consequences of such slow growth would be grave.

In a statement, the Manufacturers' Association Director General Wally Gardner said: "The stagnation across the board that would be the outcome from the institute's predictions cannot be allowed to happen."

JAKARTA (OCT. 9) - The Jakarta Stock Exchange (JSE) has toughened its trading rules in a move to weed out speculation and bring order into the market, brokers said Tuesday.

The government-owned Capital Market Executing Agency (Bapepam), which runs the JSE, has issued a circular to brokerage firms insisting that they must trade only in stocks for which they could deliver.

All transactions must be in cash and they must be settled within the following four trading days, it said.

The new rules effectively barred short sells -- selling borrowed stock at high prices and only buying it later when the price was lower. They would also ensure speedier settlements which currently could take two weeks.

Traders welcomed the rules, slated to come into effect on October 22, to put order into the market, but questioned the timing when the market was already bearish with prices falling by over 20 percent in the past month.

The circular stipulated that brokerage firms would be barred from trading for one month, and trader for three months, if the firms could not deliver sold stocks.

The brokerage firms would be barred from trading for a day for each unsettled transaction, and would have to pay one percent interest a day to clients for the outstanding amount.

If after one month, the transaction was still not settled, a firm's membership would be withdrawn.

Share bids and offers must reflect the actual market forces and members who failed to observe this could lose their trading licences, according to the circular.

The circular also said the JSE trading floor and gallery would be off limits to non-members and Bapepam had told brokerage firms to provide their own gallery at their offices for investors, brokers said.

KUALA LUMPUR (OCT. 9) - Malaysia Tuesday sent a cocoa trade mission to China to expand its market there, a statement from the Ministry of Primary Industries said.

The 18-day mission led by the chairman of the Malaysian Cocoa board will meet government officials as well as cocoa processors and food product manufacturers in Beijing, Tianjin, Shanghai, Guangzhou and Shenzen.

Malaysia, the world's fourth largest cocoa producer with production last year of about 250,000 tons, currently accounts for 36 percent of the cocoa beans imported by China.

China imported 5,588 tons of cocoa beans in 1988 and is reported to have a market of between 70,000 and 90,000 of tons of cocoa and cocoa products a year.

TOKYO (OCT. 9) - The Tokyo Regional Taxation Bureau has ordered the Bank of Tokyo to pay 900 million yen (6.9 million dollars) in penalty and back taxes for allegedly failing to report 1.9 billion yen (14.7 million dollars) in income for the year to March 1988, bureau sources said Tuesday.

The sources said the bureau's auditors found the bank to have concealed gains of some 800 million yen (6.2 million dollars) from share and bond dealings and more than 1.1 billion yen (8.5 million dollars) from foreign exchange and other transactions.

Bank of Tokyo officials said the incident resulted from a "difference of perspective" with tax authorities over the value of transactions in securities.

The bank made 58 billion yen (446 million dollars) in profits for the year to March 1988, so there was no reason to try and conceal anything, they said.

This was the second scandal involving a major commercial bank in Tokyo reported in less than a week.

Sumitomo Bank chairman Ichiro Isoda said on Sunday he would resign to take responsibility for a loan scandal involving a former Sumitomo branch manager.

TAIPEI (OCT. 9) - Taiwan's capital outflow rose to a record 11.66 billion U.S. dollars in the first eight months of the year despite a slowdown since July, the Central Bank of China said Tuesday.

A total of 8.2 billion dollars was sent abroad for the whole last year, the bank said.

It said 62 percent of the money sent overseas between January and August went into investment in manufacturing, real estate and securities by individuals and private enterprises.

Many investors had bought U.S. dollars and deposited them in overseas banks for fear of a fall in the local Taiwan dollar.

The bank said 14 percent of the capital outflow went to pay foreign debts.

The capital exodus started to level off in July as the local investment climate gradually improved, the bank said, noting that its intervention to stablize the local unit at around 27.30 dollars to the greenback had helped curb currency speculation.

Taiwan's investment commission officially approved a record 961 million dollars worth of overseas projects by local businessmen in the January-August period, up nearly 90 percent on the same period last year.

Many local businessmen have shifted their operations abroad over the past years to escape social unrest, an acute labor shortage, prohibitive land prices and growing environmental concern on the island.

The bank did not give a monthly breakdown of the capital outflow figures.

HANOI (OCT. 9) - Vietnam plans to open its first special economic zone near Ho Chi Minh City in a bid to attract more foreign investment, press reports said here Tuesday.

The zone, to specialize in processing and exports, will be set up on a 50 hectare (120 acres) site in a suburb of Ho Chi Minh Ville (formerly Saigon), the thriving capital of southern Vietnam, and be ready for business from next year, the Hanoi Moi newspaper said.

"Ho Chi Minh City is authorised to negotiate with foreign and local investors on the basis of (Vietnam's 1987) foreign investment law," the newspaper said, referring also to the rules covering similar zones in other countries.

However only investors putting up all the capital for any joint venture will be allowed to operate in the zone, which will offer land leases of between 30 and 50 years.

The proposed zone will be managed by a single authority in a bid to simplify administrative procedures, with light industry and electronic component assembly favoured because of the large numbers of workers they can employ.

Ho Chi Minh City and the provinces of what was South Vietnam generally have better infrastructure than the north, attracting about 80 per cent of the 1.3 billion dollars in foreign investment in Vietnam since the 1987 law was passed.

MANAMA (OCT. 9) - Saudi Arabia's crude oil production in September averaged 7.63 million barrels per day (BD), and is targetted to reach 7.8 million BD in October, it was reported Tuesday.

The authoritative Middle East Economic Survey (MEES) said 7.5 million BD of the September production came from the Saudi-owned Arabian American Oil Company (ARAMCO) and 130,000 BD from the Saudi share of the Abu Safah offshore neutral zone, which Saudi Arabia shares with Bahrain.

The Cyprus-based newsletter also reported that the Saudis have raised their refining capacity by more than 300,000 BD since the outbreak of the Gulf crisis on August 2 when Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait.

MEES said Saudi refineries processed 1.772 million BD of crude in September, compared to 1.444 million BD before the crisis erupted.

Both joint-venture export refineries of SamarecShell at Jubail on the Gulf, and SamarecMobil at Yanbu on the Red Sea, are now operating at 300,000 BD - 50,000 BD above their original design capacities. The newly commissioned Rabigh export plant, also on the Red Sea, is also running at 300,000 BD, MEES said.

The country's biggest refinery, at the Ras Tanura on the Gulf, has raised its crude throughput to 460,000 BD, compared to 350,000 before August 2, MEES said.

BANGKOK (OCT. 9) - The Khmer Rouge, the most powerful guerrilla force fighting the Phnom Penh government, has received tanks from China for the first time as fighting threatens to pick up in Cambodia, it was reported here Tuesday.

A reporter for a television news agency, who returned here last week from guerrilla-held areas in northern Cambodia, said he had been told in interviews during his trip that the Khmer Rouge, the country's former Marxist rulers, had received their first shipments of Chinese tanks in the past two months.

Visnews reporter David McKaige said Prince Norodom Ranariddh, a non-communist guerrilla leader in a Khmer Rouge-dominated coalition fighting Phnom Penh's Vietnam-installed government, had confirmed this in a later interview.

A senior Thai military official declined either to confirm or deny the reports.

According to analysts, fighting which had subsided in Cambodia during the past few months could soon intensify again as the rainy season draws to an end in the southeast Asian nation where troop movements, particularly mechanized units, have been bogged down by heavy monsoon downpours.

Prince Ranariddh, the son of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the titular head of the guerrilla coalition and the head of of one of its two non-communist factions, told Visnews the Khmer Rouge was making preparations for major strikes as peace talks between Phnom Penh and the guerrillas are deadlocked.

The Khmer Rouge is in a position to use tanks and heavy artillery, particularly in the northern Cambodian sector of Siem Reap where the ancient Angkor temple complex, one of the world's architectural marvels and the symbol of the nation, is located, Prince Ranariddh said.

According to sources familiar with developments in Cambodia, the Chinese shipments consisted of twenty-four T-59 tanks.

The tanks have been deployed in Anlong Veng, some 30 kilometers (18 miles) south of the Thai border to the north of Siem Reap, and in Pailin, a gem-mining center in northwestern Cambodia, some 10 kilometers (6 miles) away from the border, which the Khmer Rouge seized a year ago, the sources who declined to be further identified said.

MANILA (OCT. 9) - The world economy is again heading toward "stagflation," two decades after the oil shock of the seventies, the head of the Asian Development Bank (ADB) has warned.

Kimimasa Tarumizu said persistent high oil prices due to the Gulf crisis would affect much of Asia and that the rise of three trading blocs based on the dollar, yen and mark could jeopardize world economic growth.

He made the remarks in a speech to a meeting of the International Iron and Steel Institute in Australia on Monday, copies of which were made available here Tuesday by the Manila-based ADB.

The probability of slower growth in the West and recession in the U.S. economy has "substantially increased" and "the return to a period of stagflation characteristic of the 1970s can no longer be excluded," Mr. Tarumizu said.

Stagflation, a term coined 20 years ago, describes persistent inflation combined with near zero growth and relatively high unemployment.

Mr. Tarumizu said this prospect "could be compounded" by other factors which existed before the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, among them the U.S. fiscal and trade deficits, possible economic realignment after the end of the Cold War and polarization of the world economy.

He said the disruption of the oil market due to the Gulf conflict "could necessitate a significant reappraisal of earlier projections," adding that a permanent rise in oil prices would adversely affect economies of oil importers.

Mr. Tarumizu said the U.S. fiscal and trade deficits were likely to strain the world financial markets, while increasing demand for investment funds in Europe would put a squeeze on funds.

"If not properly remedied, (this) may eventually lead to high interest rates, which could seriously affect the heavily-indebted developing countries," he said.

The ADB president said global political changes, while auguring well for the future, could cause a short-term realignment of economic activities which could be "difficult to handle" if they resulted in unemployment.

He said the polarization of the world economy was a "cause for concern", citing the rise of three trading blocs based on the yen, dollar and mark in the late 1980's.

"Should such a trend continue in the 1990s, the future development of the world trading system could be seriously jeopardized and world economic growth would suffer."

Owing to expanding trade and investment with the rest of the world, the prospects for developing Asian countries would depend on how well individual states adapted to the rapidly changing world economic environment, he said.

High oil prices would make the region worse off in terms of economic growth, employment, balance of payments and inflation over the medium term except for oil producers Brunei, Indonesia and Malaysia, Mr. Tarumizu said.

A U.S. recession would also affect export growth while countries with large overseas work forces or large construction contracts in the Middle East could expect lower foreign exchange earnings, he added.

But he said economic fundamentals in the region were "particularly good", and it was likely the southeast Asian and South Asian economies would catch up with the four tigers -- Hong Kong, Taiwan, Singapore and South Korea -- in growth prospects.

Mr. Tarumizu said the "new frontiers" of the resource-rich Indochinese countries and Soviet Asia could boost this "catching up process".

For Asia's so-called Tiger economies, the decade ahead will be one of "transition to mature industrialized status," he added, while China will become the region's "engine of growth" both as a market and a supplier of goods.

LISBON (OCT. 9) - Two new oil fields have been discovered off the north western Angolan coast, the ANGOP news agency, monitored here, reported on Tuesday.

The report quoted the Angolan state-owned oil company SONANGOL as saying that the two fields had been found in exploration block two.

The U.S. oil company Texaco has a stake of 20 percent in the block. SONANGOL holds 25 percent. TOTAL Angola and BRASPETRO each holds 27.5 percent.

One well, named Estrela um, was nine kilometres (five miles) from the coast and was running at the rate of 2,100 barrels per day.

The second well, called Morsa oeste, was 16 kilometres (10 miles) from the coast, and was providing 1,600 barrels per day.

Block two is one of 13 Angolan blocks off the coast south of the Cabinda enclave.

NAIROBI (OCT. 9) - Two Kenyan lawyers were arrested early Monday after security police searched their homes and offices and seized numerous documents, it was learned here Tuesday.

Family members of one of the lawyers, Rumba Kinuthia, said police smashed down the doors and metal grills of his house to gain entry and that he had been "beaten up" in the raid.

They said some 20 police officers entered Mr. Kinuthia's home in Nairobi's northeastern suburb at 4.00 a.m., and made a thorough search.

Mr. Kinuthia was then taken to his Nairobi chambers for a another five-hour search, before being led away with bundles of legal and other pamphlets, including literary works, the sources said.

Mr. Kinuthia left a brief note for the press charging that "he had been beaten up by two police officers during the extremely violent police raid".

Other sources said Mr. Kinuthia's brother and sister had also been arrested, but their whereabouts were not immediately known.

Lawyer Mirugi Kariuki was also picked up from his home at 3.00 a.m. on Monday at Nakuru, 160 kilometres (100 miles) west of here, in a similar raid.

His wife, Susan Wangui, said police demanded that Mr. Kariuki produce Koigi wa Wamwere, a self-exiled former member of parliament from Nakuru North currently living in Scandinavia. They then led Mr. Kariuki away to an unknown destination.

TOKYO (OCT. 9) - There is little likelihood of a further immediate drop in British interest rates following the one per cent cut Monday as the pound joined the Exchange Rate Mechanism (ERM) of the European Monetary System, Bank of England Governor Robin Leigh-Pemberton said here Tuesday.

"I like to think we shall be very careful on further reduction of interest rates unless we can be really satisfied on the front of inflation," Mr. Leigh-Pemberton told a meeting of Japanese bankers.

"The ERM is not a panacea, however," he said, adding: "We shall need to be vigilant in maintaining a firm counter-inflationary policy.

"A tight monetary policy will continue to be needed," he said.

TOKYO (OCT. 9) - Japan's finance ministry will ease regulations from next month on new bond issues to make it easier for companies to raise capital amid rising interest rates and scare money, ministry sources said Tuesday.

The sources said the measures envisaged included doubling from 600 the number of companies allowed to issue unsecured bonds, lowering the companies' required capital reserves and relying more systematically on commercial credit rating firms.

These measures would give the companies more freedom of action and also a greater sense of responsibility in calculating risk, analysts here said.

The sources said the ministry could, for example, authorise a company with a sound financial risk rating to issue convertible bonds or fixed rate bonds without examining its level of reserves or asking for collateral.

Measures aimed at allowing companies to issue securities through banks are also being considered, the sources said.

MOSCOW (OCT. 9) - The Soviet Union's banking system moved a step closer towards decentralization when the parliament in a first reading approved the bank reform law.

Under the bill, the Soviet Union's central State Bank will be removed from the domaine of the government and is to be responsible solely to the Supreme Soviet, or parliament, function as an ''autonomous organ to guid the monetary and credit system''.

In addition, the central banks of the Soviet republics will no longer be branches of the state bank, but rather become autonomous legal entities.

State Bank chairman Viktor Geraschenko described the bank reform bill as being at the ''core of all the planned reforms''. Alexander Orlov, deputy chairman of the parliamentary planning committee, said the bank reform would be the ''catalyst for transition to a market economy''.

A second reading of the bill is scheduled for a later session of the Supreme Soviet, according to the Soviet agency Tass.

BELGRADE (OCT. 9) - The Soviet Union has reduced deliveries of oil to Yugoslavia sharply in recent months, saying that it has reduced output, the Tanjug news agency said here Tuesday.

In July the Soviet Union provided only 250,000 tons of oil and in August 180,000, against an expected 600,000 tons each month.

BONN (OCT. 9) - The Palestine Liberation Organisation (Plo) Tuesday accused the United States of applying ''double standards'' over Washington's attitude to Monday's killing of 22 Palestinians by Israeli soldiers on Jerusalem's Temple Mount.

The Plo representative in Bonn, Abdallah Frangi, criticised the U.S. for blocking a U.N. Security Council resolution condemning Israel and for opposing the suggestion that a U.N. delegation be sent to the occupied territories to assess the situation there.

''While in the gulf crisis, the United States secured the passing of Security Council resolutions resulting in the harshest sanctions against Iraq in no time, they now want to prevent the mere condemnation of Israel's occupation politicians'', Frangi said.

''The double standards of the American attitude will provoke dangerous developments throughout the region,.'' Frangi added.

MOSCOW (OCT. 9) - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has called on communists to prepare for power-sharing with "all progressive and patriotic forces" to help overcome the country's economic crisis.

Speaking on the first day of a two-day plenary session of the central committee here Monday, Mr. Gorbachev asked for the party's blessing as he prepares to announce his plans on October 15 for moves to a market economy.

But he did not spell out what the plans were, saying only they would take account of all the proposals submitted to parliament last month and implying they would include wide-scale denationalizations.

In his opening speech Mr. Gorbachev called on the party leadership to prepare for "a coalition" with "all progressive and patriotic forces".

"Such a coalition could rally around the anti-crisis programme, meeting the interests of the entire nation, all layers of society," he said.

Progressive deputies have been clammering for the resignation of Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov's government and calling for such a ruling coalition.

There is currently only one non-communist in the Soviet government, Culture Minister Nikolai Gubenko.

This was the first time Mr. Gorbachev had spoken of such a "coalition", though he had previously advocated "cooperation" with other "progressive" political forces.

In a speech to the communist party congress last July, Mr. Gorbachev said the party had to revert to "a Leninist concept of its role as a vanguard in society".

The party will fight to keep "its place as ruling party with the context of the democratic process, elections to legislative, central and local organs. In this respect, it will act as a parliamentary party," he said.

Communists, however, should be prepared for "a large cooperation" with "all progressive parties and movements for the consolidation (of society) and in the interests of perestroika," he added.

Mr. Gorbachev's appeal Monday for a grand coalition comes at a time when the party's influence is on the wane and the country faces mounting shortages and public discontent.

Nearly 700,000 members have quit the party in the first eight months of this year, deputy party leader Vladimir Ivashko told the plenum Monday.

But the party remains the country's main political force with just over 18 million members and an all-pervasive organisation.

When Russian parliamentary president Boris Yeltsin walked out of the congress in July saying he was quitting the party, he warned that his departure could spark an exodus "of millions".

But this has so far failed to happen and alternative political parties -- which sprang up after the communists renounced their monopoly on power last February -- have failed to attract a large following, with the exception of nationalist groupings in some republics.

In his speech Mr. Gorbachev also said the main objective of Soviet communists should now be to fight "separatist forces".

"If one does not overcome these negative phenomena, the country might be threatened by Lebanisation, with all its known consequences," he said.

The party should also strive to explain to the people the need for a transition to a market economy and should reject "the inertia of old thinking. All our former ideology presented socialism as the antithesis of the market economy. The market was seen as a conspiracy against socialism.

"That's true. We have conspired against socialism. But only against bureaucratic socialism built after the country turned away from the path it had chosen in 1917," Mr. Gorbachev said.

The "cause of economic and social ills in the country lies in the state monopoly over property which belongs to nobody," Mr. Gorbachev said.

Factories, he added, should become the property of workers' collectives, he also said, implying they should be denationalized.

However, in some sectors, including energy, transportation, communication and defence, industries should remain under state control, he added.

Meanwhile, at the Russian Federation parliament Tuesday, deputy Premier Gennady Filshin warned that the Russian government might consider outlawing the work of certain Soviet ministries on its territory following Mr. Gorbachev's decision to increase wholesale prices across the board.

Mr. Gorbachev's decision will increase the Russian government's budget deficit next year by 70 billion rubles, he said, adding that he might call on the Russian parliament to vote to annul the presidential decree.

BEIJING (OCT. 9) - China is preparing to set up its first pilot oilfield in the Taklimakan Desert in the northwestern region of Xinjiang, to go into operation in late 1991, the official China Daily newspaper said Tuesday.

The decision to set up the oilfield on the desert's northern rim followed the drilling of 27 test wells in the area, it quoted an official of the state-run China National Oil and Gas Corp as saying.

Chinese experts believe the forbidding Taklimakan desert, also known as the Tarim Basin, holds up to 12 billion tonnes of oil, or one-fifth of China's total reserves.

Foreign oil experts believe the estimates may be over-optimistic.

Part of the pilot oilfield project calls for laying a pipeline to Luntai some 40 kilometers (25 miles) away, from where crude oil would be shipped by train to Xinjiang's provincial capital, Urumqi, for refining.

Most of China's oil output now comes from Daqing in the northeastern province of Heilongjiang.

Experts say that if the Taklimakan development is successful, China could sell some of its output to Europe via the Soviet Union.

BERLIN (OCT. 9) - Hundreds of former East German diplomats, thrown out of work by German unification, published open letters to the Bonn government on Tuesday, complaining they were victims of a "professional ban."

In one missive, addressed to Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, the 440 former diplomats accused Bonn of using a "political neutron bomb" in order to take over East Germany's embassies and fire its personnel.

"It is a professional ban against East German diplomats," the signatories said. "Where did you get the right to give only West German officials the job of representing Germany abroad?"

In another letter, to Rita Suessmuth, president of the Bundestag (federal parliament) and party leaders, the diplomats said their firing violated the "basic norms" of the German constitution and the right to work, as well as "the fundamental rules of decency."

The diplomats demanded jobs in the civil service in the newly united Germany or help to retrain in other sectors, recognition of their professional skills and pension rights that take their professional record into account.

The East German foreign ministry, which went into the history books along with the German Democratic Republic on October 3, was widely used by the Stasi secret police and the espionage service as a means of countering dissent and spying abroad.

MANILA (OCT. 9) - Investment in the Philippines rose 31.3 percent in the first eight months of the year, with a monthly record high in August, a Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) official said Tuesday.

This occurred despite the Gulf crisis, threats of a new coup attempt and concerns over the slowdown of the country's economic recovery, Teresita Saplala, head of the SEC investment division said.

Investment totalled 17.9 billion pesos (695 million dollars) in January to August compared with 13.6 billion pesos (615 million dollars) in the same period last year.

Foreign investment hit 4.3 billion pesos (167 million dollars), a 36 per cent increase from the 3.1 billion pesos (142 million dollars) in the same period in 1989, Mrs. Saplala said.

Investments in August alone hit a record high of 3.5 billion pesos (137 million dollars), with foreign investment that month also hitting a record high of 1.0 billion pesos (40 million dollars), Mrs. Saplala added.

Mrs. Saplala said the rise in investment, despite the country's continuing problems, was due to the sharp depreciation in the Philippine peso this year and the end of export privileges for the newly-industrialized countries of Asia, forcing them to relocate their industries abroad.

She noted that the currencies of other developing southeast Asian nations had appreciated this year, making the Philippines more competitive.

She also said foreign investors had grown used to the country's political problems and believed they could nonetheless make a profit here.

HAVANA (OCT. 9) - A heated debate extending to the role of Cuban President Fidel Castro has been raging behind the closed doors of communist party meetings for the past three months as members prepare for the party's Fourth Congress.

The Cuban press has largely ignored the debate among rank-and-file Communist Party members at the meetings in their workplaces, which began in late August and were expanded to include non-union members.

But sources have told Agence France-Presse that the meetings, held in preparation for the congress scheduled for the first half of 1991, have primarily addressed the nation's most immediate problems: the step-by-step introduction of what Mr. Castro has called "a special period in a time of peace" -- what amounts to a war economy to combat the Cuban energy crisis.

The debate has grown out of the communist party's call last February for Cubans to express themselves openly and to take part in setting the agenda by submitting proposals. Topics off-limits were to have been the principle of one-party rule and Mr. Castro's leadership.

Already the discussions have helped shape a series of measures taken these past few weeks: Friday's announced halving of the party's bureaucracy, wage increases in agriculture, and the creation of a people's council in Havana to allow greater popular control over the administration.

According to some sources, the meetings have relentlessly vented criticisms of bureaucracy, with the communist party and its youth branch under fire for alleged abuses of privilege.

In agriculture, the lack of a stable workforce was underscored, and the subject of free peasant markets -- suppressed in 1984 -- has resurfaced frequently as one of the solutions to food supply problems.

The first measure in favor of private production, observers noted, was reported Saturday by the union weekly Trabajadores, which said that residents of Havana province had recently been authorized to raise pigs for themselves.

In another sign of flexibility, a proposal surfaced at one meeting that car owners be allowed to operate their vehicles as taxis to improve transportation.

The question of freedom to travel overseas has been widely discussed. Several sources said authorities would be considering a legislative proposal on the subject.

Some of the hottest arguments have erupted in intellectual circles. At a Theater-Studio meeting, one person proposed to modify Article 72 of the Cuban constitiution, which deals with the election of the head of state. This proposition would include a fixed limit on the reelection of the Cuban president.

At the University of Havana, a speaker suggested that Mr. Castro would be better suited for the post of foreign minister.

One participant at a meeting at the Casa de Las Americas, the institution under the Culture Ministry, angrily declared he never saw the products which were advertised on television or in the press stocked in stores.

On the subject of personal freedoms, an account published in early summer by the Communist youth daily Rebel Youth demanded that "homosexuality no longer be taboo in Cuba."

Although Mr. Castro Friday told AFP that the Fourth Congress would be held in the "special period," many people are wondering how this debate, so multifaceted and at times corrosive, would be allowed to continue.

Several senior Cuban officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, noted that the Cuban revolution cannot give short shrift to the Fourth Congress, seen by some as "the last chance," even if the crisis forces the government to go ahead and make its decisions.

JOHANNESBURG (OCT. 9) - President Frederik de Klerk's visit to the United States last month had boosted South African business confidence, the South African Chamber of Business (SACOB) said here.

SACOB's Business Confidence Index (BCI) showed a significant increase to 94.2 from 91.8 in August, according to the BCI report released Monday.

The August figure was the lowest since February 1987 and the drop was attributed to a wave of black-on-black violence which saw nearly 800 people killed in townships around here since August 13.

SACOB said the reduction in violence and increased indications that South Africa's international isolation may soon be ended had contributed to increased business confidence.

U.S. President George Bush said following his meeting with Mr. De Klerk in Washington on September 24 that the reform process in South Africa was "irreversible".

SACOB warned that the BCI may have overstated business confidence but that there seemed to have been a decline in the level of uncertainty prevalent in the business sector in the past weeks.

The Gulf crisis and increasing oil prices also fueled uncertainty, the report said.

"South Africa remains vulnerable to the dual evils of economic stagnation and rising prices that will accompany a doubling of the oil price," the report said.

Investment by foreign and local investors would continue to be limited due to lack of clarity over future economic policies, the report predicted.

DAMASCUS (OCT. 9) - Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismat Abdul-Maguid concluded talks with Syrian Vice President Abdul-Halim Khaddam Tuesday, saying there was agreement on the Gulf crisis.

He demanded an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and the restoration of the legitimate Kuwaiti government, adding that every effort had to be made to prevent the outbreak of war in the Gulf.

The foreign minister, who arrived here Sunday, added that he had a reply from Syrian President Hafez Assad to a message he had delivered from Egyptian President Hosny Mubarak.

He was due to return to Cairo later in the day.

DARMSTADT, GERMANY (OCT. 9) - Two German men, detained in connection with illegal arms exports to Iraq, have for the first time admitted that they helped Iraq build chemical plants that can be used to make poison gas, a prosecutor announced here Tuesday.

Peter Leifer, former manager of the Hamburg-based Water Engineering Trading (W.E.T.), confessed that his firm delivered plants for military purposes, prosecutor Thomas Brand said.

Ewald Langer, an engineer with the now-defunct Pilot Plant company in Dreieich near Frankfurt, had confessed that his employer sent plants to Iraq that have already started making nerve gas.

Brand said Langer, who was arrested together with Leifer and five other suspects on August 17, had been released on bail since he was only a subordinate and not directly responsible for the exports. A second detained W.E.T. manager has also been released.

Under German export laws, exports of arms to countries at war or international trouble spots are illegal.

Brand said the other four detainees, who were also employed by either of the two firms, continued to deny that they had any knowledge of illegal arms exports to Iraq.

They maintained that the findings of an experts study were false, Brand said despite the fact that the report had produced water-tight evidence that the two firms' exports to Iraq were designed solely for military purposes.

The prosecution hopes that judicial investigations can be concluded before the end of the year to pave the way for a trial.

BRUSSELS (OCT. 9) - The Belgian national bank on Tuesday said it was lowering its short-term interest rates by 0.05 percent.

The fall took the rate on three-month Treasury certificates to 8.90 percent and that on one-month certificates to 8.85 percent.

It was the sixth cut in interest rates since the end of August, when the rate on three-month certificates stood at 9.15 percent.

The bank said the move was a result of the Belgian franc's strength on the exchange market.

The finance ministry had said in May when the franc was linked to the Deutsche mark that it intended to ease the cost of money on the Belgian market in a bid to reduce the state's debt servicing charges.

READING, ENGLAND (OCT. 9) - World snooker champion Stephen Hendry here today offered a 10,000 pound reward for the return of the snooker cue with which he won the title earlier this year.

The youngest winner of the world championship, at the age of 21, paid 40 pounds for the cue which disappeared from the practice ring at Reading's Ramada hotel Monday night.

"It's the only cue I've used since I was 13 and it's like losing an arm," he explained.

"I have got a spare cue, which I haven't used. To get used to a new cue takes months. I feel desperate."

The cue was stolen while the world's No 1 player, who deposed Steve Davis from the top of the world ranking list, was preparing for his third round appearance in the Rothman's Grand Prix on Thursday.

He left the practice ring to get a drink from the bar. When he returned, it had gone.

The reward was increased from 1,000 to 10,000 pounds by Hendry's manager Ian Doyle who said: "It was careless of Stephen to leave the cue unguarded, even for three minutes.

"Now we are just anxious to get it back. If it's not returned, it could have a major bearing on the snooker season."

BEIJING (OCT. 9) - The hijacking of a Chinese airliner that ended with the death of more than 100 persons at Canton airport a week ago was the work of a 21-year-old man from the southern province of Hunan, Chinese aviation officials said Tuesday.

Jiang Xiaofeng reportedly threatened to blow up the Boeing 737 on its flight from Xiamen to Canton shortly after takeoff on October 2 and demanded to be flown to Taiwan.

Aviation officials quoted by the Xinhua news agency said the plane had been given permission to land at ''any airport, within or outside China's borders, including anywhere in Taiwan,'' but a shortage of fuel had forced the pilot to attempt an emergency landing at Canton airport.

The hijacker attacked the pilot as the plane taxied along the runway, Xinhua said, causing a collision with two other airliners on the apron. The ensuing explosion cost the lives of 128 people, including the hijacker and the pilot of his plane.

Jiang Xiaofeng, a purchasing agent for a state body in Hunan province, reportedly had stolen about 17 000 yuan from his employer and was wanted by the police. He had had a previous conviction for theft.

Foreign experts doubt the accuracy of the official Chinese version: they suspect the pilot was told to land at Canton and dupe the hijacker into believing he was in Taiwan.

MOSCOW (OCT. 9) - The Soviet Union is to introduce a new commercial rate for the ruble of around two rubles to the dollar, Soviet state bank president Viktor Geraschenko said Tuesday, a devaluation of almost 70 percent.

Mr. Geraschenko however refused to describe the move from a rate of 0.6 rubles to the dollar, a drop in value of 69.87 percent, as a devaluation, saying it was simply a "new rate" against the dollar to take effect January 1.

The measure, part of the country's moves from a planned to a market economy, will be taken by means of a presidential decree from Mikhail Gorbachev which is currently being drafted.

There are several official ruble exchange rates, but the commercial rate governs most trade deals.

The ruble is not a convertible currency, and Mr. Geraschenko acknowledged during a press conference that its official exchange rate did not reflect its true value.

A tourist rate for the ruble of six rubles to the dollar was introduced last year, but this is used only in banks for tourists bringing in foreign exchange.

On the black market the ruble's value ranges between 15 and 30 rubles to the dollar, and has been falling steadily in recent months.

The government has said it eventually plans to make the ruble convertible, but Soviet officials do not expect this to be possible before the turn of the century, when Soviet commodity prices should have reached world market levels.

LOME (OCT. 9) - Faced with its most violent demonstrations in 30 years, the government has claimed there is an "international machination to destabilize Togo", but striking lawyers organizing a campaign for political change on Tuesday dismissed the plot allegation as "ridiculous".

The government first announced the plot publicly over state radio Monday, three days after four people were killed and 34 wounded in demonstrations in the capital sparked by the trial of two men accused of distributing anti-government tracts.

Interior Minister Yao Mawulkilima Ameyi said in an interview Sunday that 170 people -- including 92 foreigners of "various nationalities" -- had been arrested.

According to an official statement Monday, the plot was hatched by the same group of people who tried to overthrow President Gnassingbe Eyadema on September 23, 1986.

On that day, authorities said 16 people -- eight civilians and eight rebels -- were killed when a 60-man commando unit based in Ghana took to the streets of the capital.

"The acts of violence and vandalism" on Friday "were nothing more than the repetition in a different form of the terrorist aggression" in the 1986 scheme Monday's statement said.

The government said it first learned of the plot from Ivory Coast authorities September 20 who heard the confessions of a Beninese youth, the same man who revealed another plot to kill the Pope during his visit to the Ivorian political capital Yamoussoukro on September 10 to consecrate the world's biggest basilica.

Togolese authorities say the same group was responsible for the plots in 1986, last Friday and the plan to kill the Pope.

The government communique Monday said the coup attempt was led by a son of Sylvanus Olympio, the country's first president who was assassinated in January 1983 in a coup led by then Sergeant Eyadema.

DHAKA (OCT. 9) - Bangladesh was bracing for this year's onslaught of devastating storms, as 50 people were feared killed and hundreds missing Tuesday after the post-monsoon season's first killer storm and tidal waves.

"People should brace themselves to face two to three severe twisters during October and November, a period which we call break or post-monsoon season depressions," one meteorologist said, adding that these two months were the peak period for storms in Bangladesh.

Officials and newspaper reports said at least 50 fishermen were feared drowned off the coast as the storm struck late Monday, while some 500 boats with an estimated 5,000 fishermen on board were missing.

"I was rescued by a passing vessel, but 15 others with me drowned in the Bay of Bengal," said Mohammad Illyas, a fisherman in the southeastern beach resort town of Cox's Bazaar.

The pro-government Dainik Bangla newspaper quoted him as saying that he saw several other large fishing boats turn turtle as strong waves almost shattered the vessels.

Worst-hit were the islands of Sandwip, Hatiya and Urir Char, while the coastal districts of Bhola, Khulna, Cox's Bazaar and Patuakhali were submerged under three feet of sea water.

More than 20,000 people were rendered homeless as tidal waves and winds with a velocity of 60 kilometers (35 miles) per hour flattened houses as well as destroying standing crops.

The meteorologist explained that his office had warned fishermen to stay close to the coast or in safe havens until the weather improved, but many ignored these cautions.

"Many boats do not even carry radios and are in deep sea, and even after they are communicated about worsening weather its too late for them to reach safety " he said.

Local officials reached by telephone in Cox's Bazaar, Bhola and Sandwip spoke of widespread damage to property and crops, and said at least several hundred fishermen were missing.

Bangladesh, where natural disasters strike with depressing regularity, was hit by severe twisters during October and November in 1970, 1985 and 1988 which claimed several thousand lives.

In Swandip, officials said at least 500 homes were destroyed as well as a large quantity of crops after water flooded through a breach in an embankment protecting the area.

In the Tazimuddin sub-district of Bhola another embankment was breached by powerful tidal waves which destroyed many homes and flooded the area, officials said.

Flash floods caused by heavy rains in seven Bangladeshi districts have so far claimed 14 lives, while the death toll from floods since July stands at about 80.

PORT ELIZABETH, SOUTH AFRICA (OCT. 9) - A new, multi-racial nationalism was needed in South Africa, Constitutional Affairs Minister Gerrit Viljoen on Tuesday told the party that entrenched the privileges of the Afrikaner people.

Mr. Viljoen told the Cape Province congress of the ruling National Party that a broader nationalism had to be cultivated.

He also said the current definition of groups of people was unacceptable as it was based on race, calling for a new formula.

The cornerstone of apartheid, the Population Registration Act, classifies people by race. He has said the act will be impossible to remove until the new constitution the government wants to negotiate with black leaders comes into effect

He said a bill of rights would have to be drafted to protect not only minority rights but also group rights such as language, culture and religion.

People who wanted to live in separate residential areas should still have the right to do so, even though there should be no law to enforce separation or exclude other people, he said.

It was not the government's policy to give any one group an advantage over another, he said.

ABIDJAN (OCT. 9) - A senior U.S. official has arrived here to meet parties involved in Liberia's bloody nine-month civil war, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said Tuesday.

Ambassador Donald Petterson, director of the State Department's Liberia Task Force, met with Ivory Coast President Felix Houphouet-Boigny after he arrived Monday at the start of a West African tour, the spokesman said, without disclosing what the two men discussed.

On Tuesday, Mr. Petterson went to the Ivory Coast's interior, presumably to meet with Mr. Taylor and representatives of his National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) near the country's border with Liberia.

The special envoy was to meet "with the parties to the conflict and leaders and officials of ECOWAS (Economic Community of West African States)," the official said.

Five ECOWAS countries -- Nigeria, Ghana, Guinea, the Gambia and Sierra Leone -- have staffed a 6,000-strong peacekeeping force which arrived in the Liberian capital Monrovia in August to impose a ceasefire.

Mr. Petterson's purpose was to "help Liberians find an end to the fighting" and "commence a process leading to a political solution ending in free and fair democratic elections," the official said.

Last month, Assistant U.S. Secretary of State Herman Cohen visited rival rebel leaders Charles Taylor and Prince Johnson in Liberia and travelled to several neighboring West African countries to discuss their involvement in the conflict.

In other developments, about 1,000 Ghanaians who fled the nine-month-old rebellion returned home Monday, bringing the total number of refugees evacuated to Ghana since the beginning of September to about 14,000, the Ghana News Agency said.

BONN (OCT. 9) - The ambassador of Kuwait's exiled government said here Tuesday he does not see any signs of Western countries backing down from their demand that Iraq must allow Kuwait's ruling family to return.

''The statements made by governments and the U.N. resolutions are clear and unambiguous,'' also in regard to a restoration of the legitimate government, Ambassador to Germany Khalid A.M. al-Babtin said in an interview with the German Press Agenca dpa.

There could be no doubt that the demands being made on Iraqi President Saddam Hussein remain unchanged, the ambassaodor said. He was commenting on speculation that the United States and other countries would be prepared to lower their demands in order to achieve Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait.

It was perhaps ''not necessary to keep repeating something that is self-understood,'' he said.

The diplomat said he expected a quick rollback by the Iraqi army in the event of war because officers and men were badly motivated and did not believe that Iraq was fighting for a just cause.

''We have convincing reports that many members of the armed forces reject the occupation of Kuwait. The armed forces saw the war against Iran as a just one but they are not prepared to die for Kuwait.''

Al-Babtin underlined that Kuwaitis were united against the Iraqi occupation. He said Saddam had not convinced a single Kuwaiti to cooperate and that the opposition was also fully behind Kuwait's ruling family because it saw that form of government as a factor of stability.

He called for continued military pressure against Iraq while the search for a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis continued. Saddam must be made to leave the stage because he represented a ''continuing threat'', the ambassador said.

CATARMAN, PHILIPPINES (OCT. 9) - At least 21 people were killed and 29 wounded in a major communist guerrilla attack in the eastern island of Samar before dawn Tuesday, a military official said.

About 300 New People's Army (NPA) rebels attacked an army outpost outside this town and a paramilitary constabulary detachment in the nearby town of San Isidro, the military said.

Seven army men, three constables, seven guerrillas and four civilians were killed, while five people, including two constables were missing and believed kidnapped by the NPA, said Brigadier General Manuel Lanuza, the brigade commander of the army unit involved.

Twenty-nine civilians were wounded, including provincial official Glicerio Mondigo, whose house was torched by the rebels, police said.

The insurgents mined the road leading to the army detachment, manned by a platoon, delaying military reinforcements, they said.

An oil tanker of the state-owned Philippine National Oil Co. which was en route to Catarman when fighting broke out was diverted, military spokesman Brigadier General Emiliano Templo said in Manila.

Military helicopters were seen aloft here shortly after the attacks, apparently tracking down the raiders, witnesses said.

The NPA, the armed wing of the banned Communist Party of the Philippines, has been fighting the government for 21 years.

HARARE (OCT. 9) - Zimbabwe's highest court Tuesday declared that sentences of "solitary confinement and spare diet" are "reminiscent of the dark ages" and a violation of the constitutional declaration of rights.

The latest decision by the supreme court, backed by the attorney general, follows a decision last year which banned corporal punishment as "inhuman and degrading."

Another test case, set for November, could scrap the death penalty.

Although courts may no longer sentence offenders to solitary confinement convicted prisoners may, for the time being, be given the punishment for internal disciplinary offences.

HAMBURG (OCT. 9) - A senior official of the German Federal Intelligence Service (Bnd) arrested earlier this month on suspicion of espionage had access to ''decisions at the highest level of secrecy'', Hamburg-based Stern magazine reported Tuesday.

Quoting security officials, the magazine said the suspected spy, a 47-year-old woman from the Munich area, made Guenter Guillaume look like a ''choir boy''. Guillaume, an agent of the now defunct East German State Security Service (Stasi), was former Chancellor Willy Brandt's personal advisor. He was exposed in 1974, shocking West Germany. Brandt was forced to resign.

The Federal Prosecutor's Office in Karlsruhe confirmed Tuesday that the case was serious. That's why an arrest warrant was issued on suspicion of ''a particularly grave case of treason'', it said.

According to Stern, the unidentified woman holds a doctorate in political science and worked in the analysis section of the Bnd's foreign intelligence department in Pullach, near Munich.

MOSCOW (OCT. 9) - The Soviet Union Tuesday called the shootings of Palestinians by Israeli security forces in Jerusalem on Monday a "crime" that would lead to a serious hardening of positions in the Middle East.

Soviet presidential spokesman Vitali Ignatenko, giving the first official Soviet reaction to the shootings, told a press briefing that the incident highlighted Soviet demands for "a major global effort" in the Middle East.

Twenty-one Palestinians were shot dead and about 100 injured when Israeli security forces fired on a crowd of protesting Palestinians on the Temple Mount in east Jerusalem -- a site considered holy by both Jews and Arabs.

MOSCOW (OCT. 9) - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev will visit Germany next month, his spokesman Vitali Ignatenko confirmed here Tuesday. He also said Gorbachev would go to France in late October.

German sources said it was assumed that Gorbachev would arrive in Bonn in the first half of November to sign the just-concluded German-Soviet cooperation treaty, together with Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

BEIJING (OCT. 9) - Chinese find their sex lives more fulfilling than ever, but women still expect their menfolk to take the initiative in bed, according to a new sex poll.

Of the 500 wives questioned in the survey, 19 percent still think it is "inappropriate for women to initiate sex", and only three percent are bold enough to make the first move, the poll says.

The findings were gleaned by two sociologists, Yang Huizhen and Gu Jianying, in the rural suburbs of Suzhou, a mid-sized city west of Shanghai often reputed to have the most beautiful women in China.

They were published in a Shanghai magazine, Society, and reported Tuesday in the official China Daily newspaper.

Seventy percent of couples who responded to the mail survey said they considered sexual intercourse as a physical and emotional need, and more than half indulged in sex once or twice a week.

An adventurous three percent "use different love-making positions" and 35 percent "experiment with a variety of positions at some time," according to China Daily's precis of the findings.

"Such changes have proved especially rewarding for older couples who need new romantic experiences to revitalize their sex life," it said.

And while many women thought their husbands could try to be more tender to them, 23 percent of the men said they felt angry when their wives turned down their sexual advances.

Some admitted to forcing their wives to have sex, the researchers said, bemoaning the lack of professional sex education in the countryside where nearly 80 percent of China's 1.1 billion people live.

BONN (OCT. 9) - The German government Tuesday expressed ''deep dismay'' at the bloody clashes Monday on Jerusalem's Temple Mount and extreme regret at the loss of life. A statement issued by the Foreign Ministry here said the clashes and their consequences served to underline once more the urgency of finding a solution to the conflict in the Middle East.

The ruling Christian Democrats blamed Palestinian ''troublemakers and agents provocateurs'' for the unrest in which at least 22 Palestinians were shot dead by Israeli police after stones had been hurled at Jewish worshippers.

Michaela Geiger, the Christian Democratic spokesperson on foreign affairs, said the Palestine Liberation Organisation (Plo) and the instigators of the Intifada had obviously planned the outbreak of violence for a long time in order to damage Israel's image and to distract attention from the gulf crisis.

''Unfortunately'' the police had helped achieve this by their tough reaction, Geiger said.

Klaus-Dieter Osswald, an Mp for the Social Democratic opposition, said the clashes were a result of Israel's ''iron fist'' policy.

EINDHOVEN (OCT. 9) - Troubled Dutch electronics giant Philips on Tuesday said it was to axe 4,900 jobs in its information systems division as part of a sweeping reorganisation of its loss-making computer sector.

The information systems division currently employs 15,000 people, and the job losses would come mainly in Europe, Philips said in a statement.

About half the job cuts would come from a cut in the direct sales force in several countries and, given the numbers involved, "compulsory redundancies will be unavoidable," although these would be limited as far as possible.

Philips had announced last month that it would be axing 4,000 jobs in another loss-making sector, integrated circuits.

The company said in July that it would be cutting 10,000 jobs in its computer division, but did not give a detailed breakdown.

The job cuts announced Tuesday were designed to "support the ultimate objective of making its information systems division profitable," it said.

The division would in future concentrate on activities and market sectors where it had "a strong and sustainable position" such as providing products and services to banks, governments, insurance and travel organisations, and image-based office automation systems.

It said it would gradually decrease the development, production and sales of computers, except personal computers.

"The market for image-based office automation systems, using optical data storage, is undergoing rapid growth. Philips is the European market leader in this field," the group said.

It would also be concentrating on service and maintenance of hardware and software and would focus on the production of personal computer-based systems.

On possible cooperation with other companies, the statement said: "Philips still believes that it should first put its own house in order before pursuing alliances in the field of information systems."

ISLAMABAD (OCT. 9) - Pakistan Tuesday condemned the Israeli army and extremist settlers for the ''brutal, inhuman and senseless orgy of violence'' in Jerusalem on Monday and called for international protest against the ''outrage''.

An official statement issued here said the international community should ''initiate appropriate actions to restrain Israel'', but did not elaborate.

Meanwhile the diplomatic mission of the Palestine Liberation Organisation (Plo) in Islamabad said the intifada would continue despite Israeli brutalities.

It also criticised ''the double standard of the American policy'' while implementing different resolutions of the United Nations on Middle East conflicts.

ISTANBUL (OCT. 9) - General John Galvin, supreme commander of Allied Forces in Europe, said Tuesday that NATO would continue strengthening its southern flank where Turkey is sited -- the only NATO country to a border with Iraq.

Despite the trend toward reduced military spending in North Atlantic Treaty Organization states, programmes underway for the past few years would be pursued to improve infrastructure and "increase the quality of forces in the southern region", Gen. Galvin told a news conference here.

"Problem areas in the future could well be in the southern region", he added.

Since the Gulf crisis began two months ago, NATO officials have stressed the danger posed by instability in the region and proliferation of chemical and nuclear weapons in the Middle East.

The signing of the CFE (Conventional Forces in Europe) treaty to reduce conventional weapons would benefit NATO's southern region by allowing more modern weapons to be moved there, Gen. Galvin added.

He welcomed the "unprecedented show of unity" by NATO forces in the Gulf crisis, but said "several nations could do more".

Gen. Galvin was speaking after watching exercises in western Turkey being carried out as part of NATO's annual Display Determination maneuvers.

Asked about the 12 European Economic Community states' plans for closer cooperation in defense, he said he "would not oppose" EEC security policy "as long as it doesn't weaken the trans-Atlantic link, one of NATO's great strengths."

He added that "Europe by itself can't provide for itself the security that it needs" in the face of its "powerful neighbour", the Soviet Union.

MAPUTO (OCT. 9) - Three people have died of cholera and another four have been diagnosed with the disease in Mozambique's capital city of Maputo, the official news agency AIM reported here Tuesday.

Health authorities attribute the epidemic to unhygienic conditions including the accumulation of garbage and stagnant water on city streets, the agency said.

Maputo is the fifth centre in the country to be hit in the past few months by the disease, which has claimed a total of 65 lives in that period.

LAHORE, PAKISTAN (OCT. 9) - Ousted premier Benazir Bhutto said here Tuesday that many "giants" would fall in the popular storm sweeping in favour of her Pakistan Peoples Party (PPP) in the run-up to elections.

Addressing a press conference, Ms. Bhutto intensified attacks on President Ghulam Ishaq Khan asking him to "resign and leave in grace."

The president had rejected the verdict of the people by dissolving the provincial assemblies and dismissing the elected government on August 6, she said, adding that he would be "rejected by the people" at the October 24 polls.

If PPP wins the elections "I will not work with him... I do not want to create another deadlock," Ms. Bhutto said.

Ms. Bhutto was speaking after her appearance in a special court to answer charges of wrongfully allotting land for a hotel project to a firm owned by a relative, and of granting liquefied gas distribution rights to favorites.

As she drove from the heavily guarded Lahore high court after the proceedings, a small roadside group clashed with policemen at a point away from the court area.

The police fired tea gas shells and baton charged the pro-Bhutto demonstrators after they hurled stones at the police, witnesses said.

Ms. Bhutto said the President was "vindictive" and his policy was causing the country losses running into millions of dollars.

Ms. Bhutto said the Islamic Democratic Alliance (IJI) government might try to have the elections postponed because "they are nervous."

The PPP leader, who has been campaigning feverishly in populous Punjab province, said she had noticed a "popular storm as strong as in the previous elections."

"Just as giant in 1988, the so-called giants are going to be falling now in 1990," she said, adding that her opponents were "seeing defeat in front of them."

In 1988 the current caretaker prime minister Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi and former prime minister Mohammed Khan Junejo, president of the IJI component Moslem League party, were defeated in Sindh.

They are now contesting constituencies in Punjab as well as Sindh.

"It is extremely important that elections are held on October 24 and the peoples verdict should be honoured and power transferred to the elected," Ms. Bhutto said.

"The interim government's attitude is absoutely scandalous," leader of Tehrik-e-Istiqlal party, former air force chief Asghar Khan said at the press conference.

"The president has thrown away his mask of neutrality and is busy in planning to rig elections," Mr. Khan, whose party is allied with the PPP, said.

MOSCOW (OCT. 9) - The parliament of the Russian Federation on Tuesday adopted a resolution calling for the application of a radical economic reform program from November 1, regardless of whether the federal government adopts similar measures for the country as a whole.

The move by the largest Soviet republic was aimed at putting pressure on Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to adopt similar measures, including wide-ranging denationalizations and greater regional autonomy, for all the republics.

Mr. Gorbachev is due to announce his own plans for economic reform on Monday.

The Russian parliament, chaired by reformist radical Boris Yeltsin, had adopted the "500-day" plan for transition to a market economy last month and the first reforms were initially due to come into effect on October 1.

But the Russian parliament's presidium delayed the implementation after the federal parliament failed to chose between various options for economic reform and asked Mr. Gorbachev to make a final decision on October 15.

The Russian parliament Tuesday approved the presidium's move, but voted to go ahead with its own reform plan on November 1 whatever Mr. Gorbachev's choice.

The deputies, who represent the largest and most powerful of the 15 Soviet republics, also asked the government to "take measures to defend Russian sovereignty".

Deputy premier Gennady Filshin notably suggested that measures could be taken to annul Mr. Gorbachev's recent decision to increase wholesale prices while keeping retail prices pegged at their present level.

The decision is expected to increase the Russian budget's deficit by 70 billion rubles (112 billion dollars at the official rate), Mr. Filshin said.

Russia might also consider banning the activity of certain federal ministries on its territory, he warned.

The parliament also called on Russians to support the "500-day programme", notably by renouncing strikes and respecting contracts during that period.

The appeal was carried by 165 votes to nine with 16 abstentions.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 9) - President George Bush Tuesday said Israeli security forces that shot and killed 21 Palestinians Monday in putting down rioting in Jerusalem should have acted "with greater restraint."

But, speaking at a press conference, Mr. Bush said the violence at east Jerusalem's Temple Mount would not endanger the alliance of Arab nations facing off against Iraq.

Mr. Bush also said Iraqi President Saddam Hussein should not use "this unfortunate incident" to try to link the Iraqi seizure of Kuwait to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

Israeli security forces used live ammunition, tear gas and rubber bullets Monday to disperse Palestinians gathered on the Temple Mount in east Jerusalem as some of the demonstrators threw rocks at Jewish worshippers below the holy compound. Twenty-one Palestinians were killed in the clashes.

"Israeli security forces need to be better prepared for such situations, need to act with greater restraint," Mr. Bush said. "Now, what is needed most of all is calm on both sides. We want to see the longstanding policy of open access to the holy places preserved."

Asked if the violence would damage the coalition of Arab nations opposing Iraq Mr. Bush said, "I don't think it could do that."

He added, "Let me express my strong feelings about this, my sorrow at this tragedy. It is particularly saddening because of the sanctity of the holy palaces. Violence shattered all this."

The Temple Mount compound, or Haram al-Sharif in Arabic, is the site of Islam's third-holiest site. It is also sacred to Jews.

LUSAKA (OCT. 9) - Zambian authorities have cracked an ivory-smuggling ring and discovered illegal workshops here where tusks of elephants poached in Zambia and neighbouring Zimbabwe were processed, a senior official said Tuesday.

Seven people had been arrested and charged, including two police officers alleged to have transported tusks in police vehicles, said Paul Russell, head of the Species Protection Unit of the Anti-corruption Commission.

In recent weeks, the commission has placed advertisements on state-run television offering cash awards for information leading to the arrest of poachers.

"This has proved the best way of obtaining information," Mr. Russell said.

The two police officers, stationed in the tourist town of Siavonga near the Zimbabwean border, helped poachers transport elphant tusks to Lusaka in police vehicles.

Two other people arrested were said to have helped poachers cross the Kariba Dam which straddles the border.

The arrests led to the discovery of three ivory workshops in the capital, apparently run by dealers from Zaire, Mr. Russell said.

Ivory was partially processed, cut into small pieces and crudely fashioned to make it easier to export undetected.

In raids on the three factories located near the centre of Lusaka, police seized machinery, tusks and partially finished ivory products.

Mr. Russell said investigations were continuing into how the ivory was smuggled out. It is believed the semi-processed ivory was smuggled to Hong Kong, possibly via South Africa or Swaziland.

Conservationists in Zambia say elephant poaching is beginning to pick up after a lull following the international ban on the ivory trade a year ago.

Zambia has an elephant population numbering about 40,000 compared with an estimated 160,000 ten years ago.

The species protection unit was set in April with funds from the United States.

NAIROBI (OCT. 9) - Kenyan security forces have arrested a number of leading dissidents, including the founder of the banned Kenyan Patriotic Front (Kpf), former Mp koigi wa Wamwere, the government announced Tuesday.

The arrests took place on Monday morning. The secret police also detained two lawyers in Nairobi and Nakuru. It was not clear if these arrests were connected with the apprehension of Koigi's group.

Koigi, who was granted political asylum in Norway in 1986, and a number of his accomplices recently entered Kenya using false documents, planning to raid banks and businesses as well as instigating unrest, according to the government statement.

The clamp-down came only days before this Wednesday's ''Moi-Day''-celebrations commemorating the accession of President Daniel arap Moi 12 years ago.

In June 1989, Moi had promised the exiled dissidents freedom from prosecution if they returned to Kenya. Koigi spurned the amnesty offer.

The politician has twice before been kept in prison without trial. A brother of his was recently sentenced to a four-year prison term.

HARARE (OCT. 9) - A magistrate's court hearing was convened on tuesday at the hospital bedside of a soldier of the Mozambican People's Militia who was accused of shooting three endangered black rhinos in Zimbabwe's Gona-Re-Zhou game reserve.

Although there have been numerous politically embarrassing reports in the past of infrequently paid Mozambican security force members crossing into Zimbabwe in search of food or loot, their forays have usually been acribed to the rebel Mozambican National Resistence (Renamo).

In the first case of its kind, Elias Johannes Baloyi was remanded under guard for shooting three rhinos, a buffalo and a leopard with an automatic rifle.

A companion reportedly escaped back over the border on September 25 after a gunbattle with the Zimbabwe army in which Baloyi was injured in the leg.

A Zimbabwean army captain, Edwin Nleya, was murdered last year after alleging that his superiors were involved in large-scale poaching and smuggling in Mozambique, where Zimbabwe has up to 10,000 troops deployed.

Zimbabwe's department of wildlife also announced on Monday that the latest gang of rhino poachers to cross the Zambezi river from Zambia had been eliminated in three "fierce shootouts."

Three were killed and one fatally wounded in the northwestern Hwange game reserve last month and two survivors of the gang were cornered after two gunbattles between the resort town of victoria falls and the botswana border.

Officials said they hoped Zambian-based poaching gangs would be deterred when word reached them that 34 poachers had been killed and 14 captured this year for the loss of 28 of Zimbabwe's 5,000 rhinos, the world's last major wild population of the species.

LUSAKA (OCT. 9) - President Kaunda of Zambia has appointed a commission to daft a new consitution that will paving the way for multiparty elections next year, a statement from the cabinet office said Tuesday.

The 22-member commission is to "examine and determine a system of pluralism that would ensure a government which would be strong enough to rule the Zambian nation and ensure the personal liberties of the people," the statement said.

Arthur Wina, chairman of the Movement for Multi-party Democracy (MMD), and his colleague Akashambatwa Lewanika, have been included on the commission.

The MMD has said it intends to form a broad-based opposition party to challenge Mr. Kaunda in general elections next year.

Other members include prominent lawyers, clergymen, leaders of the ruling party, businessmen and trade union officials.

PARIS (OCT. 9) - French economic growth slowed to 0.2 percent in the second quarter of 1990 after rising 0.6 percent during the first quarter, the French statistical office, INSEE, said Tuesday.

INSEE said household consumption also slowed, hitting 0.6 percent compared to 1.1 percent in the first quarter.

The purchasing power of households, however, rose at the same rate as in the previous quarter at 0.5 percent and the personal savings rate remained nearly stable at 12.7 percent, higher than the 1989 average.

Imports dropped 0.8 percent in volume in the second quarter, and exports were down 3.9 percent.

LEIPZIG, Germany (OCT 9) - The German government is to allocate 671 million Deutsche marks (432 million dollars) for 36 projects aimed at reducing air pollution in the former territory of East Germany, junior environment minister Martin Gruener said here Tuesday.

The projects should reduce dust output from industry by about 45,000 tonnes a year and output of sulphur dioxide by 270,000 tonnes, Mr. Gruener said.

The schemes are part of an overall plan, scheduled to be unveiled in mid-November, aimed at cleaning the environment in the five Laender that joined the federal republic last week, he told ADN news agency.

A large portion of the funds will go toward building a 110-Megawatt power station near Leipzig, a water treatment plant at Dresden and sulphur scrubbers at power plants near the southern cities of Thierbach and Schkopau, he said.

East Germany is widely considered by ecologists to be the most heavily-polluted area in eastern Europe, with catastrophic damage to rivers, forests and soil.

The region's nuclear power plants were shut down earlier this year for fear they could cause a Chernobyl-style disaster.

COPENHAGEN (OCT. 9) - The Israeli secret service is operating on Danish territory illegally, Denmark's minister of justice said here Tuesday.

Danish authorities had previously denied the Mossad was operating in Denmark.

But Justice Minister Hans Engell and the head of police intelligence, Anne Bech Hansen, told a parliamentary committee Tuesday that Mossad was operating in Denmark, breaking a Danish law which prohibits any foreign secret service activity on its territory.

However, Mr. Egell and Mrs. Hansen refuted claims published by a former Mossad agent, Victor Ostrovsky, in his book "By Way of Deception."

In the book he claimed he had worked as a liaison officer at Danish secret service headquarters and in the Mossad's Danish department in Israel.

Mr. Ostrovsky also claimed that Denmark sent all visa requests from Arab citizens to Mossad headquarters in Tel Aviv for an opinion, and that Mossad tapped telephones and questioned Palestinians and Danes sympathetic to the Palestinian cause without the knowledge of Danish authorities.

Torben Lund, chairman of the parliamentary commission which controls the secret service, said the "revelations are worrying and intolerable."

He said it was unacceptable that "Mossad was operating freely on our territory and violating our laws."

SRINAGAR, INDIA (OCT. 9) - Army troops enforced a round-the-clock curfew Tuesday in 12 police districts of Srinagar, summer capital of Indian Kashmir, as 15 people died in running street battles in the city, police said.

Some 125 houses in the city were burned in fires officially blamed on the militants, taking the total number of houses gutted by fire in the Kashmir valley to nearly 1,000 in the last two days, the sources said.

Eleven people were killed in exchanges of gunfire between militants and security forces.

Police said four army troopers also were killed, but there was no official confirmation.

Elsewhere, militants killed four paramilitary Border Security Forces (BSF) men in an ambush overnight at Tanghdar, on Kashmir's border with Pakistan.

In an unprecedented move, the army rounded up hundreds of residents of Srinagar, including four journalists, and made them march at the head of a group of captured militants in a city suburb.

Journalists tried unsuccessfully to establish their identity with government-issued press cards.

The army was called in Sunday when street battles erupted between militants and paramilitary troopers and large fires broke out in the old city, sending hundreds of residents fleeing their homes.

Unconfirmed reports also said the army had raided a hospital in the city's Rainwari district overnight and taken a number of staff and patients into custody.

JOHANNESBURG (OCT. 9) - Police in the nominally-independent homeland of Bophuthatswana said Tuesday they had detained at least 52 political activists at the weekend and might arrest more, the South African news agency SAPA said.

The arrests, at GaRankuwa black township, 20 kilometers (10 miles) west of Pretoria, and at Winterveld squatter camp, 20 kilometer north of the township, were part of a crackdown on so-called "people's courts", state-run radio said.

People's courts are often dominated by youths who, under the cloak of politics inflict brutal punishments like whippings, stonings and even death by the flaming tyre "necklace" on supposed wrong-doers.

African National Congress spokeswoman Gill Marcus Tuesday condemned the detention of ANC members in Bophuthatswana, whose beleaguered President Lucas Mangope is alone among the leaders of the four independent homelands in rejecting alignment with the ANC.

NAIROBI (OCT. 9) - The situation returned to normal in the Rwandan capital Kigali on Tuesday, except for numerous arrests of suspected subversives, while fighting was continuing in the northeast between government troops and rebels who attacked from Uganda on October 1, according to reports reaching Nairobi.

A relaxation of the round-the-clock curfew allowing daytime movement saw the city of 400,000 people resume almost all its normal bustle, with shops, banks, restaurants, government offices and some markets operating once more.

Buses and taxis were off the roads, however, with traffic movements still requiring defence ministry permission. The only obvious signs of the tension of the past few days were the armoured vehicles stationed at main crossroads and the constant identity checks being made by the army.

State radio monitored here in the Kenyan capital said the curfew had been cut back to run from 7 p.m. to 5 a.m.

It quoted foreign minister Casimir Bizimungu as saying that 500 suspects had been detained in Kigali. But Belgian TV on Tuesday showed film of an estimated l,500 people, including women and children, being held in Nyaminambo stadium, where they were short of food.

As diplomatic sources said fighting was continuing in the north-east, persistent rumours spoke of fresh concentrations of rebel Rwandan refugees passing at the Ugandan border to join the original insurgent force which the Kigali authorities have put at 10,000 armed men.

Dr. Bizimungu, speaking late Monday, said that figure could double or triple if recruitment among Rwandans in the Ugandan army continued.

About 200,000 refugees of the minority Tutsi tribe have settled in Uganda since massacres first carried out by the majority Hutu in 1959, and about 4,000 Tutsi joined the Ugandan army.

The minister said the aim of the rebels was to set up a "feudal minority regime", a reference to the old Tutsi aristocracy ruling Rwanda and neighbouring Burundi.

The Rwandan Patriotic Front, or Inkontanyi, which has reportedly joined the invasion, said it was open to the Hutu as well as the Tutsi and aimed to overthrow the "corrupt" regime of Major-General Juvenal Habyarimana, who took power in 1973.

The Front complained about the presence of Belgian, French and Zairean troops. The European soldiers have been sent to Kigali -- 480 Belgian, and 300 French -- to protect nationals and supervise their evacuation, while 500 crack presidential Zairean troops have been assigned specifically to support General

Habyarimana.

The French foreign ministry on Tuesday urged the 350 French citizens still in Rwanda to leave, saying a worsening of the situation was feared. Since the rebel attack, about 1,000 foreigners have been evacuated.

In Brussels, the coalition government met to review the situation in the former Belgian territory in eastern Africa, and several ministers voiced unease that Belgian troops were perhaps seen as lending respectability to the Kigali regime's tough crackdown on suspects.

"There is real embarrassment," a government source said. Foreign Minister Mark Eyskens told Rwandan ambassador Francois Ngarukiyintwali the government was "concerned" about the way the Rwandan authorities were enforcing law and order, an official communique said.

"Mr. Eyskens called him to order, and was very firm, in the name of the whole government," the government source elaborated.

The Belga news agency said Belgium's ambassador Johan Swinnen had asked the Kigali authorities for up-to-date information regarding human rights, including the exact number of prisoners, their visiting rights and respect for proper legal procedures.

The independent paper Le Soir reported Belgian paratroops were guarding strategic points like the airport, leaving the Rwandan army free to "take care of arrests, deportations to the stadiums and prisons, even executions".

BERLIN (OCT 9) - Barclays Bank plc on Tuesday became the first British bank to open an investment office in the former territory of East Germany and said it would launch a campaign to heighten British interest in investing there.

The head of the east Berlin-based business centre, Peter Storey, said the enterprise would chiefly seek to lend to medium- and large-sized eastern German companies involved with basic infrastructure, such as communications and industrial parks.

"We're looking for a credit volume of roughly 200 million (Deutsche) marks (129 million dollars) in the first year," he said.

Similar offices would open shortly in the east German cities of Weimar and Dresden, Barclays officials said.

A "roadshow" seeking to entice the British public to invest in the reconstruction programme through Barclays will be launched in December, and pass through London, Birmingham, Bristol, Manchester and Leeds, he said.

Barclays' executive director for overseas operations, Humphrey Norrington, stressed the long-term gains in investing in the former territory of the German Democratic Republic.

But he warned that the All-German parliament had still to resolve "very severe problems," such as the ownership of land, and that east German firms had to learn fundamental accountancy rules and western management techniques.

Barclays last Friday announced it had purchased Merck, Fink und Co., one of Germany's largest private banks.

ADDIS ABABA (OCT. 9) - Ethiopian Foreign Minister Tesfaye Dinka said Tuesday that the United States and the Soviet Union should help reactivate peace talks on ending the long-running civil war in northern Ethiopia, which were broken off at the beginning of the year.

Mr. Dinka told the Ethiopian News Agency (ENA) on return from the U.N. General Assembly in New York that he had briefed U.S. secretary of state James Baker and Soviet foreign minister Edouard Sheverdnadze on the deadlock to the peace process caused by Eritrean People's Liberation Front (EPLF) refusal to engage in negotiations.

He said he discussed with them possibilities of resuming the talks.

"These two world powers and others could contribute towards peace by helping to break the deadlock and resume negotiations", ENA quoted him as as saying.

At the end of two rounds of preliminary talks under the chairmanship of former U.S. president Jimmy Carter, the EPLF, fighting for independence for the Ethiopian Red Sea coastal province of Eritrea, overran the port of Massawa in February and subsequently said it would no longer return to the negotiating table.

The Ethiopian minister also said his meeting with Mr. Baker was an indication that Ethiopian-U.S. relations, which had been frosty for 10 years, were now improving.

HAMBURG (OCT 9) - Fear of a Gulf war has caused many tourists to cancel trips to Israel, Israeli Tourism Minister Gideon Patt said Tuesday.

Speaking at the congress of the American Society of Travel Agents (Asta) here, Patt said that in September, 27 per cent of all tours booked for Israel were cancelled. Although there were no accurate figures, even more trips were cancelled in October, he said.

Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2.

Patt called the killing of 22 Arab protestors on Jerusalem's Temple Mount by Israeli security forces on Monday ''a very unhappy accident''. On the whole, Israel was a peaceful country whose hotels would be full again after the end of the Gulf crisis, he added.

GENEVA (OCT. 9) - The director-general of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) said here Tuesday he had been assured that all proposals on farm subsidies will reach Geneva in time for next week's international trade talks.

The director-general, Arthur Dunkel, said that to date the only firm proposal on farm subsidies, the main stumbling block to agreement on the so-called Uruguay Round, had come from Japan.

Agriculture ministers of the 12 EEC nations on Monday postponed a decision to cut farm subsidies which were to be presented at the international trade talks in Geneva starting on October 15.

The EEC ministers said they would meet again on October 16 to discuss the proposals by the Community's executive commission that by 1996 the EEC should cut subsidies to farmers by 30 per cent of the 1986 level.

Mr. Dunkel, however, told a press conference that he had received assurances that all proposals will arrive in time for the the start of the crucial trade talks on October 15.

He said that the assurances were made by the respective heads of delegations who attended a preparatory meeting here Tuesday for the Uruguay Round negotiations.

Mr. Dunkel added that all sides in Geneva wanted to reach a draft agreement to present to the ministerial meeting in Brussels December 3-7 which was tasked with finalising the Uruguay Round.

Last week, the president of the group which will negotiate on agriculture, Aart de Zeeuw, said that he was seriously concerned about the trade talks because of delays in hammering out farm subsidy proposals.

In Luxembourg on Monday, EEC ministers and the EEC Commission disagreed on the size of cuts to be negotiated.

This was seen by negotiators here as a bad omen for the opening of talks between the EEC and the United States, which is demanding that state aid be cut by 70 per cent.

In private, GATT officials note that the EEC is not the only participant to have caused delays.

They fear increasingly that the negotiations will develop a crisis atmosphere which would prejudice attainment of the objectives laid down when the Uruguay Round was launched in Punte del Este in Uruguay in 1986.

BOGOTA (OCT. 9) - The Colombian Justice Ministry Tuesday rejected a U.S. extradition request for a suspected cocaine trafficker, saying Washington filed its petition three days late.

A ministry statement said the suspect, Salomon Shourter Benitez, was still being held by police on orders of a Colombian judge in the Caribbean coastal city of Barranquilla, where he faces charges of forgery and fraud.

Mr. Shourter Benitez was arrested July 26, and under a U.S.-Colombian extradition treaty, Washington had until August 24 to formally demand he be turned over to face drug trafficking charges in the United States.

The Justice Ministry said the U.S. request was not filed until August 27, and so was rejected.

President Cesar Gaviria recently announced that drug traffickers who turned themselves in would not face extradition to the United States, although there was no immediate evidence that the case of Mr. Shourter Benitez had been affected by this order.

Colombia resumed extraditions of suspected drug kingpins to the United States late last year following the assassination by suspected drug traffickers of leading presidential hopeful Luis Carlos Galan.

The resumption of extradition sparked protests from some Colombians, including national legislators, who fear their national sovereignty is being compromised to help fight the U.S. war on drugs.

Extradition has proved a powerful weapon against leaders of the wealthy and influential drug mafia who have been able to routinely blackmail and bribe their way out of Colombian prisons.

LONDON (OCT 9) - A one-million-pound banknote that was legal tender for just five weeks in 1948 brought 23,100 pounds (45,500 dollars) at auction here Tuesday.

The note was one of only eight printed for funds used in the Marshall Plan, set up by the United States to revive European economies after World War II.

Six notes were destroyed and the seventh was sold in Australia in 1977 for a mere 8,371 pounds (14,000 dollars).

AMMAN (OCT. 9) - Radical Palestinian leader Abul Abbas on Tuesday vowed to strike "swiftly and sharply" in response to what he called U.S.-supported Israeli terrorism.

Mr. Abbas said in a statement received here that his Palestine Liberation Front (PLF) would answer "Zionist terrorism and U.S.-encouraged state terrorism ... in all places."

He warned that the PLF response to Monday's killing of 21 Palestinians by Israeli police in east Jerusalem would be "swift and sharp."

"The abject massacre ... will not prevent us from pursuing the armed struggle and stepping up our fight against the enemy by hitting his bases and forces of aggression everywhere," he said.

The PLF claimed responsibility for an attempted Palestinian commando landing on the Israeli coast last May 30, which was to have been in retaliation for the murders of seven Palestinian workers by a lone Israeli gunman near Tel Aviv.

Mr. Abbas on Tuesday said it was for "world opinion to determine who are the real terrorists and to see how the U.S. administration covers its crimes, massacres and scorn for international resolutions."

NEW DELHI (OCT. 9) - Indian security forces Tuesday shot dead a Sikh militant in Punjab after 19 people were killed in the northern state overnight, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said.

The 19 included 10 militants and four security troopers, PTI said.

It said the Sikh man, Jaspal Singh, a hardcore militant wanted for about 100 murders, was killed in a gunfight in Punjab's Ropar district.

Punjab's Director-General of Police, K.P.S. Gill, was quoted by PTI as saying Mr. Jaspal Singh was second-in-command of the Khalistan Liberation Force, a militant force campaigning for a separate state in Punjab.

The militants shot dead three paramilitary troopers at Hotian in Punjab's Amritsar district. A police constable, Nirmal Singh, and an unidentified militant died in a gunfight.

Village leader Virsa Singh was gunned down by militants in Batala district. Another five militants were killed in fighting with security forces at four places elsewhere in the state, the agency said.

Police found six bullet-riddled bodies of militants in the state's Majitha, Faridkot and Amritsar districts. PTI said the police believed they were killed in factional fights overnight.

Indian forces also shot dead two unidentifed men when they illegally tried to enter India through the border from Pakistan, PTI said.

India accuses Pakistan of giving military aid to Sikh militants, a charge rejected by Islamabad. Some 2,000 people have died in separatist-linked violence in Punjab so far this year.

JERUSALEM (OCT. 9) - Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir warned Tuesday that Israel would refuse a visit to the occupied territories by representatives of the United Nations Security Council.

Yemen, backed by France, proposed on Monday a three-member Security Council mission to the West Bank and Gaza Strip to investigate the killing by Israeli police of 21 Palestinians during disturbances in east Jerusalem.

The proposal came during consultations among Council members at U.N. headquarters in New York.

"Israel will not accept a mission from the Security Council," Mr. Shamir said in remarks reported by Israeli radio, adding that he hoped such a decision would not be taken by the Council.

Mr. Shamir also dismissed a statement Tuesday from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein that Iraq possessed a new missile capable of striking Israel.

"Saddam Hussein wants to drag us into the Gulf crisis so that he can transform it into an Iraqi-Israeli conflict," Mr. Shamir said. "We will not help him with such a plan."

TUNIS (OCT. 9) - The Arab League Tuesday called on the world community to ''foil'' Israeli government dreams of expansionism and establish ''a Greater Israel at the cost of Arab areas''.

It said in a statement in reaction to Monday's fatal shooting of 22 Palestinians by Israeli police in annexed East Jerusalem that the internationalcommunity should pressure Israel to pull out of the territories it occupies.

Strong measures should be taken to safeguard Palestinian civilians, it said.

The Chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organisation (Plo), Yassir Arafat, asked King Hassan Ii of Morocco to call for an emergency meeting of the Islamic Conference Organisations's Al-Qods (Jerusalem) Comittee which he heads.

Faruk Kaddumi, the head of the Plo's political department, handed over to the ambassadors of Britain, France and Italy in Tunis a letter asking for a U.N. Security Council investigation committee to be sent to the Israeli-occupied territories, the Palestinian news agency Wafa reported.

LUXEMBOURG (OCT. 9) - Implementation of the ambitious plan to create a single market among the 12 nations of the European Economic Community (EEC) could be delayed by the slow pace of enabling legislation in member countries, Italy warned here Tuesday.

Italy holds the current presidency of the EEC until the end of the year.

Its minister of European affairs, Pier Luigi Romita, told a press conference here that the European Parliament needed to accelerate procedures necessary for the installation of a single economic market on January 1, 1993.

He said the EEC members have adopted only a little more than half the 279 laws necessary to create a market without frontiers among the 12 EEC members, and only 20 of these laws had been passed by each of the 12 countries.

"I am worried about the consequences of this delay for economic unity," Mr. Romita said, adding that he intended to propose a loosening of internal EEC procedures to speed up the legislative work.

Mr. Romita was speaking after the monthly meeting of EEC ministers charged with European affairs. It lasted only three hours, because so few legislative projects were sufficiently advanced to be discussed.

He lamented the fact that the ministers knew already of topics, due to be discussed at next month's meeting, that would have to be postponed because the European parliament had not yet examined them.

These were three proposals to liberalise the sale of medicines and one on biotechnological patents, he said.

Diplomatic sources say the European parliament has a waiting list of about 200 pieces of legislation.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 9) - Iraqi forces have taken three more Americans hostage in Kuwait, bringing the total number of Americans held by Iraq to at least 104, the State Department said Tuesday.

Two of the Americans were seen Sunday at the Melia-Mansour Hotel in Baghdad and the third was taken to the Regency Hotel in Kuwait, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said.

Bagdad has not provided a list of those it has taken into custody, nor has it responded to U.S. demands for the evacuation of 69 Americans who need emergency medical care, she added.

But some 400 Americans, mostly women and children, and members of their families were expected to be evacuated Wednesday from Iraq and Kuwait on Boeing 747 chartered by the U.S. Government.

The flight leaves Bassorah, Iraq, and will stop over in London before heading on to Raleigh, North Carolina, Miss Tutwiler said.

BAGHDAD (OCT. 9) - Tens of thousands of people poured into the streets of Baghdad Tuesday night calling for holy war against Israel and denouncing the killing by Israeli police of 21 Palestinians during riots in east Jerusalem.

Iraqi authorities earlier in the day had called for demonstrations, both in Iraq and throughout the Arab world, to show solidarity with Palestinians living under Israeli occupation.

In Baghdad, demonstrators called for the liberation of "Israeli-occupied Palestine" through jihad, or holy war.

They carried banners pledging that "the crime of the Al-Aqsa mosque will not go unpunished."

Israeli police opened fire on Palestinian stone-throwers near the Dome of the Rock and the Al-Aqsa mosques, both revered Islamic shrines, in east Jerusalem on Monday.

Demonstrators chanted "the stone is the symbol of Iraqi and Palestinian strength," alluding to a Palestinian uprising in the occupied territories in which Arab youths have hurled stones at Israeli troops.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein earlier Tuesday announced that Iraq had developed a new missile, which he named Al-Hijara (Arabic for stone), that could reach Israel.

JERUSALEM (OCT. 9) - Police Minister Ronnie Milo will name an independent commission to investigate the killings by Israeli police of 21 Palestinians during disturbances here Monday, an official disclosed Tuesday.

Mr. Milo decided to abolish a police investigating team that he himself had named earlier in the day because he feared that its conclusions would not be accepted as impartial, the official added.

"He has taken into consideration the feelings of Israeli Arabs and, with the support of Prime Minister (Yitzhak) Shamir, will soon name an independent commission of inquiry," the source said.

The Israeli press and much of the political community here has sharply criticized the police for failing to foresee or prevent the disturbances near the Islamic and Jewish shrines that triggered the killings.

SANTIAGO (OCT 9) - Police stormed a foreign exchange dealership here Tuesday and arrested five gunmen shortly after they released five hostages they had held for seven hours.

None of the hostages was harmed, although unconfirmed reports indicated one of the holdup men was killed during the police attack.

Police said one gunman was arrested earlier in the day when they surprised the robbers as they were trying to flee with 16,000 dollars they had stolen from the establishment, located on the eigth floor of an office building.

During the siege, six employees were held hostage as the gunmen demanded to be flown to Cuba, police said.

One of the hostages was released three hours after the police siege began.

It was the first time a holdup in Chile had turned into a hostage incident, police said.

MEXICO CITY, (OCT 9) - Mexican police have made their biggest drug bust to date, confiscating almost six tonnes of cocaine valued on the street at more than eight billion dollars, it was announced Tuesday.

Attorney General Enrique Alvarez said police made the seizure at the Mexican-Guatemalan border Saturday after a shoot-out with suspects at a hidden airstrip.

The suspects escaped but police found the 5.8 tonnes of pure cocaine, which was sealed in 172 bags and several large cans, as well as weapons.

Mr. Alvarez said Mexican authorities were tipped off two months ago about large sales of cocaine -- which authorities said came from the Colombian Medellin cartel -- in Guatemala.

Police set up a special special patrol to watch for smugglers handling that cocaine, which was destined for the United States, Mr. Alvarez said.

He said the seizure was the largest yet in Mexico.

In almost two years, Mexican authorities have seized almost 70 tonnes of cocaine.

NEW YORK, UNITED NATIONS (OCT 9) - U.N. Security Council members Tuesday took up U.S. and Yemeni resolutions on Monday's bloody clashes in Jerusalem, diplomats said.

Israeli police opened fire, killing 21 Palestinians and injuring some 150 others, after a group of Jews worshipping at the Wailing Wall were showered with stones, officials said.

The U.S version condemns the violence and what it terms an excessive Israeli response, and calls for U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar to send a delegation to Jerusalem to probe the incident, diplomats said.

Yemen's proposal -- presented on behalf of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) -- calls on the Security Council to carry out the investigation.

The United States, which according to diplomatic sources had threatened to veto the Yemeni draft resolution, met with the four other permanent members of the Security Council to discuss its own resolution.

The permanent members, with veto rights, are Britain, China, France, the United States and the Soviet Union. The council is also made up of 10 rotating members.

PLO U.N. representative Zuhdi Labib Terzi said the U.S. proposal made no sense because "it denies the council the right to take action."

Diplomatic sources expected the Security Council to vote on one of the resolution later Tuesday.

Chinese Ambassador Li Daoyu said he had reservations on the U.S. draft resolution.

TOKYO (OCT. 10) - Hungary's International Economic Relations Minister Bela Kadar, here on visit, has called for Japan to step up economic cooperation with his country to help it out of an economic plight, the Japanese press reported Wednesday.

Mr. Kadar made the call in a meeting with Japanese reporters at the Japan National Press Club Tuesday, saying that "Japan and Hungary have much greater potential to expand economic cooperation as good partners."

He arrived here Monday for talks with Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto and other officials on economic relations between the two countries.

Referring to the worsening economic plight in his country, Mr. Kadar said Hungary's exports to former east European communist allies fell 33 per cent in the first nine months of this year.

Hungary has also been hit by the surge of oil prices triggered by the Gulf crisis.

He said Hungary was making every effort to switch its semicentralized planned economy into a full-fledged market-oriented economy to induce investment by Japan and other industrial countries.

Hungary also intends to privatize national assets equivalent to 1.3 billion-1.8 billion dollars over the next 18 months, he said.

Mr. Kadar said Hungary will also liberalize imports of more than 90 per cent of the goods it buys from abroad by the end of 1992.

When an x-ray revealed strange objects in his intestines, he was taken to a Madrid hospital where he defecated 130 balls of cocaine.

Spain is regarded as the main gateway for smuggling South American cocaine into Europe and last year Spanish police seized 1.8 tons of the drug, double the amount captured in France.

TEHRAN (OCT. 9) EFE - Iran Tuesday urged the United Nations to intervene to protect Arabs in the Israeli-occupied territories in response to the +horrible crime+ committed by Israeli police in killing some 24 Palestinians in East Jerusalem.

A Foreign Ministry statement broadcast on Radio Tehran denounced +energetically the horrible crime committed Monday by the Zionist regime+ and urged the United Nations Security Council to "put pressure on the Zionist regime to end the genocide of Palestinians".

According to Arab sources, the some 24 Palestinians shot dead Monday by Israeli police were protesting attempts by Jewish extremists to lay the foundations of a temple on an Islamic holy site in East Jerusalem.

The Iranian statement said Israel had taken advantage of the Gulf conflict and the presence of a U.S.-led international force in the area in response to Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait +to arrogantly carry out crimes of such a nature+.

"The 'intifada' continues to be the first concern of the Islamic world and no problem should eclipse the Palestinian problem," the statement added, referring to the 34-month popular uprising by Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied territories in which more than 1,000 Arabs have died.

The Security Council adjourned Monday without reaching a decision on a request by the Palestine Liberation Organization for the U.N. to step in to protect Palestinians in the West Bank, Gaza Strip and East Jerusalem areas occupied by Israel.

"The Security Council should not concern itself only with the rights of people when the interests of the superpowers are in play," the statement added.

The United States has been a prime force behind a series of U.N. sanctions against Iraq in response to its invasion of Kuwait.

The statement also called on "all Moslems to free the territories occupied by Israel".

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has offered to withdraw from Kuwait in exchange for an Israeli pullout from the Occupied Territories.

Saddam warned Israel Tuesday that it had long-range missiles capable of reaching its territory.

SANTIAGO (OCT. 9) EFE - The Chilean government is to sell off its remaining 22 percent stake in the LAN CHILE airline, a minister said Tuesday.

The vice president of the Corporation of Public Works (CORFO), Rene Abeliuk, who is also a minister in President Patricio Aylwin's government, said CORFO was ready to go ahead with the privatization "at any moment" and that other minority stakes would also be sold off.

The sell-off was part of the government's policy to offload "all that is dispensible" and he added that other government minority shares would also be sold.

Abeliuk said that further privatizations had not yet been approved by the government, but three categories had been drawn up in principle.

They were companies which would remain wholly under state control, those where it planned to retain a 51 to 70 per cent share, and those that could be completely privatized.

MOSCOW (OCT. 9) - The Soviet Union Tuesday condemned the killing of 21 Palestinians by Israeli security forces the previous day and called for a United Nations mission to be sent to Jerusalem to investigate.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry said the U.N. should show the same unanimity in its approach as it has shown in relation to the Iraqi aggression against Kuwait.

The U.N. Security Council passed a series of resolutions against Baghdad for its invasion of Kuwait in August.

The action by Israeli police, who claimed to have moved in to stop Palestinians stoning Jews at Jerusalem's Wailing Wall, aggravated the current Middle East crisis, the ministry said.

It also put more obstacles in the way of finding a political solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict, the ministry statement said.

TOKYO (OCT. 9) KYODO - MITSUBISHI RAYON CO. PLANS TO RAISE PRICES FOR ACRYLIC FIBERS IN NOVEMBER DUE TO THE SURGE IN CRUDE OIL PRICES AND HIGHER LABOR COSTS COMPANY OFFICIALS SAID TUESDAY.

BUT THEY SAID THE MARGIN OF THE PRICE HIKE IS STILL UNDER CONSIDERATION BECAUSE OF LARGE PRICE FLUCTUATIONS FOR NAPHTHA, A CRUDE OIL BYPRODUCT USED IN MAKING ACRYLIC FIBERS.

AMONG OTHER SYNTHETIC FIBER MAKERS, TEIJIN LTD. HAS ANNOUNCED PLANS TO RAISE PRICES FOR POLYETHYLENE FIBERS BY 10 TO 20 YEN PER KILOGRAM FOR OCTOBER-DECEMBER SHIPMENTS.

INDUSTRY SOURCES SAID IT TAKES TIME FOR A PRICE HIKE IN ACRYLIC FIBERS AND OTHER SYNTHETIC FIBERS TO BE REFLECTED IN TEXTILE PRODUCTS BECAUSE OF THE MULTILAYERED PROCESS OF PRODUCTION.

THE FIBER PRICE INCREASES CURRENTLY BEING PLANNED WOULD BE FELT IN FALL AND WINTER CLOTHING PRICES NEXT YEAR, THEY SAID.

TOKYO (OCT. 9) KYODO - THE DAI-ICHI KANGYO BANK LTD. HAS REVISED UPWARD ITS PROJECTIONS OF GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT (GNP) GROWTH FOR THE CURRENT FISCAL YEAR ENDING MARCH 31, 1991, DESPITE THE GULF CRISIS, BANK OFFICIALS SAID TUESDAY.

THE BANK FORECASTS GROWTH FOR FISCAL 1990 AT 5.6 PERCENT, UP FROM A JULY PROJECTION OF 4.6 PERCENT, THEY SAID.

THE OFFICIALS ATTRIBUTED THE UPWARD REVISION TO CONTINUED GROWTH IN INDIVIDUAL CONSUMPTION AND CAPITAL INVESTMENT.

THE JAPANESE COMMERCIAL BANK, HOWEVER, HAS DROPPED ITS PROJECTIONS FOR GROWTH IN FISCAL 1991 TO 3.6 PERCENT, THEY SAID, BECAUSE THE EFFECTS OF HIGHER INTEREST RATES AND PLUMMETING STOCK PRICES WILL RESTRICT COMPANY EARNINGS AND LIQUIDITY AND SLOW DOWN THEIR CAPITAL INVESTMENT.

THE BANK'S PREDICTIONS ARE BASED ON AN AVERAGE YEN/DOLLAR RATE OF 142 YEN FOR FISCAL 1990 AND OF 131 YEN FOR 1991, AND AN OIL PRICE OF 22.8 DOLLARS PER BARREL THIS YEAR AND 25 DOLLARS PER BARREL IN 1991.

OSAKA (OCT. 9) KYODO - THE OPENING OF THE MULTIBILLION-DOLLAR NEW KANSAI INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT, NOW BEING BUILT ON A MAN-MADE ISLAND IN OSAKA BAY IN WESTERN JAPAN, IS LIKELY TO BE DELAYED BY SIX MONTHS TO A YEAR, AIRPORT COMPANY OFFICIALS SAID TUESDAY.

IT WAS ORIGINALLY SLATED TO OPEN IN MARCH 1993. THE OFFICIALS OF KANSAI INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT CO. BLAMED THE DELAY ON FAILURE TO RESOLVE A LONG-STANDING DISPUTE WITH U.S. COMPANIES SEEKING AIRPORT CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTS. THEY SAID THE DISPUTE HAS MADE IT DIFFICULT FOR THEM TO PLACE FORMAL ORDERS AS QUICKLY AS THEY HAD PLANNED.

THE DISPUTE WITH THE U.S. INTENSIFIED IN JULY WHEN A U.S. COMPANY LOST ITS BID TO BUILD A GROUND TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM FOR THE NATION'S FIRST 24-HOUR INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT.

THE CONTRACT FOR THE "PEOPLE-MOVER" SYSTEM, VALUED AT 40 MILLION DOLLARS TO 45

MILLION DOLLARS, WAS AWARDED TO A LESS-EXPERIENCED JAPANESE FIRM.

THE AIRPORT HAS BEEN THE CENTER OF A MAJOR TRADE DISPUTE BETWEEN THE U.S. AND JAPAN FOR MORE THAN THREE YEARS SINCE THE U.S. FILED A COMPLAINT THAT COMPANY COLLUSION AND "NONTRANSPARENT" BIDDING PROCEDURES WERE UNFAIRLY BLOCKING FOREIGN FIRMS' ACCESS TO THE JAPANESE CONSTRUCTION MARKET.

THE TWO NATIONS SIGNED AN ACCORD IN 1988 TO FACILITATE FOREIGN ENTRY INTO JAPAN'S CONSTRUCTION MARKET AND A NUMBER OF AMERICAN FIRMS HAVE WON BUILDING CONTRACTS SINCE THEN, BUT U.S. GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS COMPLAIN THAT BID-RIGGING CONTINUES IN JAPAN.

COLUMBUS, INDIANA (OCT. 9) KYODO - TOYOTA AUTOMATIC LOOM WORKS LTD. WILL LAUNCH FULL-SCALE PRODUCTION OF FORKLIFTS IN COLUMBUS, INDIANA, IN A MOVE TO ALLAY POSSIBLE ADVERSE IMPACT STEMMING FROM A HIGHER YEN, COMPANY OFFICIALS SAID TUESDAY.

THE NEW COMPANY, TOYOTA INDUSTRIAL EQUIPMENT MFG. INC., SET UP JOINTLY WITH TOYOTA MOTOR CORP., WILL PRODUCE 5,000 FORKLIFTS ANNUALLY AFTER REACHING FULL-CAPACITY OPERATION NEXT YEAR, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

THE EXTRA CAPACITY OF THE COMPANY'S JAPANESE FACTORY RELEASED BY SUCH U.S. PRODUCTION WILL BE ALLOCATED TO MEET A BRISK JAPANESE DEMAND FOR INDUSTRIAL MACHINERY, THEY SAID.

THE MOVE IS ALSO EXPECTED TO DIFFUSE CRITICISM FROM COMPETITORS IN THE U.S. OVER A SURGE IN EXPORTS FROM JAPAN.

THE OPENING CEREMONY FOR THE NEW FACTORY WAS HELD TUESDAY IN COLUMBUS, WITH SOME 350 PEOPLE, INCLUDING PRESIDENT YOSHITOSHI TOYODA, ATTENDING THE GATHERING.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (OCT. 9) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

IN THE NEWS:

World stock markets are trading lower today. ... In London, the FTSE is off more than 46 points in midday trading. ... The NIKKEI drops 135 points. ... U.S. stocks overseas ate unchanged to slightly lower. falls to $39.45. ... The HOUSE and SENATE reach agreement on an emergency spending bill and PRESIDENT BUSH says he will sign the measure which allows the government to continue operating until Oct. 19. During this time Congress will flesh out a deficit reduction package outline which was also approved yesterday. ... CONTINENTAL AIRLINES has ordered 25 BOEING 757 jets and taken options on 25 more. ... MOTOROLA says it has settled a long-running patent dispute with HITACHI.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

The FEDERAL RESERVE is scheduled to release its report on consumer installment credit today. ... PHILIPS N.V. is developing a digital tape recorder that will also be able to play conventional analog cassette tapes.

FROM THE BEARS:

"We are allocating minimum exposure to stocks," says STEVEN APPLEDORN of SWANSON CAPITAL MANAGEMENT. "There is a bad undertone to the market with a predisposition to sell." He says there is the possibility of a "severe break" in the market. He says better earnings and a budget deal would make him more interested in stocks. ("Investor's Daily", 10/9)

EDWARD KERSCHNER, chairman of PAINEWEBBER's investment policy committee, says continued pressures on corporate earnings over the next few quarters could sink the Dow Jones Industrial Average to as low as 2000. (WSJ, 10/9)

STOCK MARKET:

MR. PHIL RETTEW, a market specialist for MERRILL LYNCH, says the market will probably "saw-tooth" higher for one or two months until the Dow reaches its peak in the 2650 to 2750 range. "After this rally, [the market] is going down again to a lower low." He adds that the next slide will make the July-September decline "look like a walk in the park." (WSJ, 10/9)

"At this point there is a limited upside to the market," says MICHAEL BENSON of LEHMAN BROS. But he says there is "enough cash around that the downside is also limited." (FNN "World Business Update", 10/9)

"The markets assume that we will get a [budget] deal ... it's not sure what that deal will be," says MARSHALL ACUFF of SMITH BARNEY. He says the market "senses" that the Fed will ease, but that a deal will have to be worked out before any action is taken. Without that deal and subsequent easing, "All we can see is a rally in a bear market," according to Acuff. (FNN "Marketwrap", 10/8)

"The market's trying to price in this emerging 'doom and gloom' story on the U.S. economy," says SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS analyst LISA FINSTROM. "We're waiting for lower interest rates, and we're waiting on the budget for that." ("Nightly Business Report", 10/8)

"The lack of volume made the day inconclusive," says LARRY WACHTEL of PRUDENTIAL-BACHE SECURITIES INC. "Our market responded to the gains overseas, but a rise in oil prices during the day and a general malaise caused stocks to drift lower." ("Investor's Daily", 10/9)

A study done by analyst DOUGLAS LOEFFLER, in the San Francisco office of SCUDDER, STEVENS & CLARK, shows that both new highs and new lows tend to underperform the market. One year after a stock appears on the new-highs list it is likely to have performed five percentage points worse than the market. New lows tend to lag behind the market by more than 13 percentage points. (WSJ, 10/9)

STOCK TIPS:

"I'm feeling very discouraged about what potentially awaits other [insurance] companies," says GLORIA VOGEL at BEAR, STEARNS & CO. "This is a national problem." TRAVELERS shares have fallen more than 6 to 14 3/8 in two days after the company forecast a huge quarterly loss because of real estate problems. UDAYAN GHOSE at SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS has a sell rating on Travelers and has cut his 1991 earnings forecast for AETNA. Despite problems in the insurance industry as a whole, Vogel recommends buying AMERICAN INTERNATIONAL GROUP and MARSH & McLENNAN. Some other analyst picks: CHUBB, GENERAL RE, LINCOLN NATIONAL and CAPITAL HOLDING. ("USA Today", 10/9)

In trying to identify stocks that will withstand the widely predicted recession, analysts are looking to the '81-'82 downturn as a guideline. "HERSHEY, if anything, is better-positioned than" in the prior recession, says MICHAEL WARSHAWSKY of SWISS BANK CORP. He points out that the company has sold the cyclical FRIENDLY ICE CREAM CORP. Shares of PEP BOYS auto parts and service gained 30% in the last recession, and PROVIDENT NATIONAL BANK analyst JOHN FRANCK says the company is well positioned for this round of economic problems. "If the recession is not tremendously severe, Pep Boys will come through unscathed," says Franck. ("Investor's Daily", 10/9)

The cash content and the overall value of the Union led bid for UAL has been slightly lowered, lessening the chances it will be accepted. "Of course, with it being lower, it wouldn't be as appealing to the board," says DAVID PIZZAMENTI of NOMURA SECURITIES. The original bid was over $300 per share, whereas this most recent offer may be as low as $150 per share. "The economics for UNITED AIRLINES have turned down, the economics have changed dramatically for the banks and therefore the difficulty in getting a deal like this done has probably gone up substantially," explains RICHARD BOVE of DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS. (FNN "Marketwrap", 10/8)

UAL "is a $150-a-share stock on its own merits," says KEVIN MURPHY, an analyst with MORGAN STANLEY & COMPANY. He adds that UAL should trade at that level when the industry enters a better period, with strong earnings that the airline has shown in good times. "I don't see why the board would accept an offer that emasculates the balance sheet." (NYT, 10/9)

"The stocks I like are kind of in the middle ground. They're not broken down badly, but they're well off their highs," says G. KENNETH HEEBNER, portfolio manager at CAPITAL GROWTH MANAGEMENT. Among his current favorites are the pharmaceutical concern SYNTEX and retailer MERRY-GO-ROUND ENTERPRISES. (WSJ, 10/9)

WESSELS, ARNOLD & HENDERSON analyst PETER SCHLEIDER has lowered his earnings estimate for software developer PARAMETRIC TECHNOLOGY, but says the fundamentals remain strong. "We think the stock's a strong 'buy' and continue to think the company is in a premier position in design automation," says Schleider. ("Investor's Daily", 10/9)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (OCT. 9) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"The only thing left supporting the dollar is the possibility of military confrontation in the Mideast," says DAVID GILMORE, senior foreign exchange analyst at McCARTHY, CRISANTI & MAFFEI. (WSJ, 10/9)

Yesterday's currency market was "lackluster," according to TIMOTHY BARTON of HARRIS TRUST & CO. He says technical factors and the weak economy have depressed the dollar. ("Investor's Daily", 10/9)

"You can see the world's lack of confidence in our budget-making process with the dollar being down as much as it is," says TIMOTHY CLARK, a stock market analyst at AVATAR ASSOCIATES. (WSJ, 10/9)

"Although we have what we call a budget accord, the real problem with the dollar is the deficit," says MICHAEL BENSON of LEHMAN BROS. "Until we really make some headway on the deficit, I don't think there'll be too much confidence in the dollar." (FNN "World Business Update", 10/9)

"The central banks have learned that intervention really doesn't work," when trying to support the dollar, says DONALD GOULD of HUNTINGTON ADVISERS. "The only way to support your currency, ultimately, is through higher interest rates." He says with the U.S. teetering on the brink of recession, a hike in rates is unlikely. (FNN "Marketwrap", 10/8)

NICHOLAS SARGEN, international fixed-income analyst at SALOMON BROTHERS, says the dollar will be under pressure regardless of how the budget logjam is resolved. "If you don't get something, there's a loss of confidence," he says. "If you do get something, the Federal Reserve eases interest rates." (WSJ, 10/9)

MERRILL LYNCH financial economist DAVID HORNER says the biggest improvement in the most recent budget compromise "is that this one passed." He says reconciliation between the House and Senate bills, which must be completed by mid-October, entails "a tremendous amount of work." He says the resolution will probably lead to a Fed easing. (CNBC "World Business", 10/9)

THE ECONOMY:

Business incorporations declined 3.1% in 1990's first seven months, following a 1.1% drop for all of 1989 according to a report issued by DUN & BRADSTREET. Unease about the economy, financing problems, a tight labor market and rising oil prices are being blamed. "What we're really seeing is a poor environment for entrepreneurism," says DOUGLAS HANDLER, a Dun & Bradstreet economist. (WSJ, 10/9)

"If the dollar does hit some new lows, that's one way to get ourselves out of a recession," says EMORY UNIVERSITY international economics professor JEFFREY ROSENSWEIG. "I hope the Fed doesn't cut off our head [by raising rates] to support the dollar." ("Investor's Daily", 10/9)

IN WASHINGTON:

"If this is the best [budget deal] they can do, it certainly reflects poorly on the competence and guts of Congress," says MURRAY WEIDENBAUM, who was chairman of the COUNCIL OF ECONOMIC ADVISERS under President Reagan. "Everyone is fed up," says GAIL WINSLOW, vice chairman at FERRIS & CO. "We won't know what the bottom line will be until [Congress] is done erasing, making changes and adding all their little goodies." DAVID HALE, chief economist at KEMPER FINANCIAL SERVICES, finds the budget situation "bleak." "We won't know the final outcome for some time, but it looks like there will be a downhill slide in quality from the first deal.." ("USA Today", 10/9)

The current budget compromise being discussed in Washington "is worse than last week's deal," says JOHN ENDEAN of the AMERICAN BUSINESS CONFERENCE. "It means less spending control, higher taxes, probably on business and a lack of enforceability long-term." But Senate Majority leader GEORGE MITCHELL (D. - Maine) says, "Failure to adopt this resolution will continue and deepen the crisis which already exists."(FNN "Marketwrap", 10/8)

"We will not know what's going to happen to the budget until after the election," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist at "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "There will be a lame duck session. There is no way the appropriations committee will appropriate before Election Day, so I just think we're in a stupendous psychological mess." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 10/8)

OYSTER BAY, NY (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Acclaim Entertainment, Inc. (NASDAQ: AKLM) today reported a 56 percent increase in net income for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1990, representing its third consecutive record fiscal year.

Net income for the year was $14.2 million, or $0.77 per share, as compared to $9.1 million or $0.54 per share for the previous fiscal year. Net sales were $141.5 million, up 105 percent from the $69.1 million recorded last year.

"Our 1990 fiscal year results represent quite an achievement," says Gregory E. Fischbach, chairman and chief executive officer of Acclaim. "Revenues once again surpassed our expectations and margins remained healthy in a year that included the acquisition of LJN Toys, Ltd. and the subsequent disposition of its promotional toy lines, expansion of our overall operations, increases in direct marketing, and the sourcing of our own computer chips."

For the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990, net income was $4.7 million or $0.25 per share as compared to $3.1 million or $0.18 per share for the same period in 1989. Net sales for the quarter totaled $43.4 million, up 74 percent from the previous year.

During fiscal 1990, Acclaim purchased LJN Toys, Ltd. from MCA, and subsequently streamlined and repositioned the LJN line of Nintendo software products while divesting itself of the majority of LJN's less profitable toys lines. Acclaim also entered Nintendo's(R) Game Boy(TM) compact video system software market with three new titles under the Acclaim and LJN labels, in addition to introducing several new video games for the Nintendo Entertainment System (NES)(R), a new line of SuperPlay hand-held electronic video games and a dual wireless remote controller system. In addition, the company commenced distribution of its products in Mexico, and established subsidiaries in Europe and Canada to support its increased growth overseas.

"With the anticipated release of Game Boy, SuperPlay Hand-held and NES video games based on 'The Simpsons,' one of the hottest licenses on the market, plus several other key licenses in our title lineup, we're extremely excited about Acclaim's outlook for the coming year," Fischbach added.

Acclaim Entertainment, Inc. is a leading publisher, marketer and distributor of home entertainment products under the Acclaim and LJN labels. These include Nintendo Entertainment System software, Nintendo Game Boy compact video system software, wireless remote controllers and hand-held electronic video games.

BOCA RATON, FLA. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Office Depot Inc. (NASDAQ: ODEP) announced today that its sales and earnings have increased significantly during the third quarter and first nine months of 1990, compared with its 1989 results.

For the quarter ended Sept. 29, 1990, sales increased to $165,315,000 from $83,421,000 in 1989 while operating profits increased to $4,274,000 from 1989 levels of $1,827,000. Net earnings increased 67 percent to $2,545,000 ($.16 per share) from $1,623,000 ($.10 per share) in 1989.

For the nine months ended Sept. 29, 1990 sales increased to $444,711,000 from $210,747,000 in 1989 while operating profits increased to $11,106,000 in 1990 from 1989 levels of $5,445,000. Net earnings increased to $7,027,000 from $4,839,000 in 1989. In the first nine months of 1989, net earnings included an extraordinary credit of $532,000 relating to utilization of net operating loss carryforwards.

During the third quarter, comparable store sales increases were 14 percent for the 50 stores which have been open for more than one year. Comparable store sales have been affected by the large number of new stores opened in existing markets.

The company's store expansion program continued in the third quarter with the opening of 14 new stores, including stores in new markets of Durham, N.C., Baltimore, Pittsburgh, and Milwaukee. As of Sept. 29, 1990, Office Depot operated 103 stores in 19 states. On Oct. 8, 1990, the company opened 3 additional stores. Management anticipates that Office Depot will have approximately 120 stores in operation by the end of 1990.

During the third quarter, Thomas Daniel joined the company's senior management as vice president, merchandise and general merchandise manager. Prior to joining Office Depot, Daniel was senior vice president of Merchandising for Pace Membership Warehouse in Denver, Colo.

Office Depot Inc. operates Americas largest chain of large volume office supply stores that sell first-quality brand name office products primarily to small and medium-size businesses.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - BP, ARCO, Exxon, Phillips, Mobil and Chevron, principal owners of the Prudhoe Bay oil field in Alaska, America's largest producing field, announced today a plan to invest over $1 billion in additional gas handling facilities on Alaska's North Slope.

The additional gas handling facilities are expected to increase Prudhoe Bay liquids production by some 100,000 barrels a days starting in 1995, and will result in the recovery of additional liquids in the range of 330-450 million barrels over the life of the field.

Commenting on the new investment, Chairmen Robert Horton of BP and Lodwrick M. Cook of ARCO said, "At a time of American concern about long-term oil supplies this project will make a welcome contribution and shows Alaska's potential to add significant domestic reserves. We will continue to work together as a team to develop the nation's largest oil field. The benefits will fall to Alaskans and all other Americans as well as to the Prudhoe Bay owners."

The field's two operators, BP Exploration Alaska and ARCO Alaska, Inc. also agreed to undertake a joint review of operations to reduce operating costs by sharing common services and other cooperative efforts to increase operating efficiency.

Finally, the principal owners resolved other issues between gas interests and oil interests which had arisen as a result of the original operating agreement. Resolving these issues paves the way for future field development projects which could further add to the field's ultimate recoveries.

The gas facilities handle gas that is lifted with the oil from the Prudhoe Bay field and reinject it into the reservoir. This latest project will increase the field's gas handling rate to an average of 7.5 billion cubic feet per day. Other benefits from the project include the production of more miscible gas which will allow expansion of the existing enhanced oil recovery project.

The Prudhoe Bay Working Interest Owners comprise BP, ARCO, Exxon, Mobil, Phillips, Chevron, Marathon, Amerada Hess, Louisiana Land and Exploration, Texaco and Shell.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Wyse Technology, the world's leading general-purpose terminal manufacturer, today entered the X Window terminal market with a high-performance network terminal. To further strengthen its position in the UNIX environment, Wyse also announced a new line of UNIX-based multiuser systems with X support.

The company's new high-performance network terminal, the WY-X5, offers features customers have come to expect of Wyse, including superior performance display technology, connectivity and advanced ergonomics. It is the first product co-developed by engineers from Wyse's UNIX-based advanced systems and terminal business units, and according to market analysts sets a new price point in the X terminal market.

"Wyse is the leader in almost every segment of the terminal market. Our experience in displays, as well as our expertise in UNIX software, position the company to be a leader in X," said Arthur Lipton, Wyse's senior vice president and general manager of terminal business. Wyse Offers Full Range of UNIX Systems

The new UNIX product line announced today, the Series 7000i, strengthens the mid-range of Wyse's advanced systems product family. It complements Wyse's low-end Series 5000i and the high-end Series 9000i, giving the company a full range of UNIX-based systems. Wyse introduced the first in the series, the Model 740, today with additional models planned for 1991.

The Series 7000i Model 740 brings True Symmetric Multiprocessing (TSMP), first used in minicomputers, to a new entry-level price point of less than $18,000. Because it is based on TSMP, the system gives users the full processing power of each additional central processing unit (CPU). Benchmark studies performed by AIM Technology, a leading UNIX systems performance measurement company, have shown that Wyse's implementation of TSMP offers superior performance at prices significantly lower than competitive systems.

The Series 7000i architecture will support one to four 33MHz and 50MHz i486 microprocessors. The Model 740's single i486 CPU configuration can handle up to 64 active users. It can be configured for UNIX multiuser environments or as a server on an Ethernet local area network or act as a host for X client applications. Pricing and Availability

The WY-X5 has a suggested list price of $1,799 including mouse and keyboard. It will be available in the first quarter of calendar year 1991. Wyse will distribute the WY-X5 through original equipment manufacturers (OEMs) and qualified UNIX resellers, including those currently selling Wyse's advanced systems.

The Series 7000i Model 740 will ship in December 1990 with a single 33MHz i486 CPU, supporting up to three Intel i486 CPUs by mid-1991. The Model 740 ranges in end user prices from $17,500 to $31,450 in typical configurations. The Series 7000i will be sold exclusively through Wyse's indirect channels of distribution.

Wyse Technology is a leading independent supplier of microprocessor- based products, which include terminals, IBM PC-compatible computers, monitors and multiuser systems. The company sells its products through customers that add value, such as distributors, value added resellers and original equipment manufacturers. Headquartered in San Jose, Wyse operates sales offices across the United States and in Canada, Australia, Hong Kong and Western Europe.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - CBL Medical Inc. (NASDAQ: CBLM) announced today that the Physician Groups under management contract have secured a revolving line of credit with Towers Financial Corp. The line of credit provides the Physician Groups with $5.5 million on competitive terms.

The proceeds of this financing will be used by the Physician Groups to pay a portion of their accrued management fees due to CBL Medical, and repay other indebtedness to prior lenders. Under the terms of this financing, the Physician Groups will have resources to finance growth in existing centers and to open additional medical centers. A new center in Salinas, Calif., is planned to be opened before year-end, with other centers scheduled to open in 1991.

Robert B. Mishkin, president and chairman of the board stated: "The Physician Groups' revolving line granted by Towers Financial relieves CBL Medical of the burden of funding current and future growth of our medical centers. In short, this line of credit will completely satisfy the current and foreseeable cash requirements of CBL Medical and the Physician Groups."

CBL Medical Inc. currently operates seven medical centers in the state of California. These centers specialize in forensic reporting and in the treatment of patients who have sustained primarily work- related injuries.

PRESTON, MD. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Preston Corporation (NASDAQ: PTRK) announced today that it has decided to close two of its operating subsidiaries Reeves Transportation Company of Calhoun, Ga., and Pioneer Transportation Systems, Inc., of Hurlock, Md. Reeves and Pioneer will not accept any new business as of Oct. 10, 1990. Preston Corporation emphasized, however, that all freight currently in process will be delivered and picked up according to schedule. Carpet Services, a profitable West Coast warehousing division of Reeves, will continue operating its facilities as well as the Reeves terminals located in Texas.

As a result of the closings, Preston Corporation expects to establish a $17 million after-tax loss reserve, or $3.06 per share, which will constitute a charge to earnings in the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990. The company anticipates reporting a loss of approximately $3.37 per share for the third quarter of 1990 compared to earnings of $.03 in 1989 due to the poor operating performance of Pioneer and Reeves combined with the liquidation expenses. While the closings will necessitate modification of certain loans, the company expects that cash liquidation proceeds from the assets of Reeves and Pioneer will, after the payment of the expenses of the closings, approximate $15 million which will be used to reduce debt.

William B. Potter, president and chief executive officer, said, "Preston Corporation management and the board of directors concluded after an intensive financial and operational review that Reeves and Pioneer do not justify continued investment by the company and its shareholders." Efforts to find a buyer for one or both companies have been unsuccessful. Preston is working closely with Reeves and Pioneer's affected employees to help them find suitable job opportunities and with their customers to ensure them of as smooth a transition as possible.

Potter said, "The company and the management at Reeves and Pioneer have made every effort over the last several years to return Reeves and Pioneer to profitability, but neither company has been able to overcome the considerable problems affecting its particular market."

"Losses for Reeves and Pioneer escalated in the third quarter resulting in a combined pre-tax loss of $8.3 million for both companies for the first nine months. Both companies have been hurt by widespread consolidation in their markets, problems in the long-haul truckload industry, rising fuel costs, falling prices charged to customers, higher operating costs, and increased insurance expenses in both Workers' Compensation and Auto Liability. Reeves, in particular, has been severely impacted by the dramatic decline in new construction and softness in the carpet industry," added Potter.

Looking to the future, Potter further noted, "Preston Corporation can now fully devote its resources to its other subsidiaries which are doing very well in the short-haul, less-than-truckload segment of the trucking industry. We remain committed to providing our customers with the highest quality services, our employees with personal and professional growth, and our shareholders with higher earnings."

Potter stated that third quarter results, to be released within the next two weeks, will show that revenues at Preston Trucking Company, Preston's largest subsidiary, increased by 14 percent as the company continues to focus on high-quality services in its regional markets. Saia Motor Freight continues to turn in an outstanding performance with revenues up over 20 percent. Smalley Transportation, Florida's largest intra-state carrier, has increased its revenues by 7 percent in a very competitive market.

Potter said, "Our recent actions mean that going forward we have eliminated the losses associated with Pioneer and Reeves. This, in turn, enables us to pay down debt, reduce interest payments, strengthen the corporation's cash flow, and have sufficient capital to meet the needs of Saia, Preston, and Smalley. We are anticipating a profitable fourth quarter that, in an uncertain economy, should be a positive indicator of the earnings improvement that is possible in the coming year."

Pioneer was formed by Preston Corporation in 1980 and is an irregular route, truckload carrier providing van, flatbed and refrigerated service to truckload shippers primarily in the Eastern United States. Reeves was acquired by Preston Corporation in 1985 and is a carrier specializing in shipments of carpet and carpet-related products from Georgia and North Carolina throughout the United States.

Preston Corporation is a holding company which, through its subsidiaries, transports freight by truck for a wide range of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers. The subsidiaries include Preston Trucking Company, Inc., of Preston, Md.; Saia Motor Freight Line, Inc., of Houma, La.; and Smalley Transportation Company of Tampa, Fla.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Spearhead Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: SPRH) today reported net earnings of $581,000 or $.12 per share, on net sales of $8,540,000 in its first quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990. In comparison, last year the company had net earnings in its first quarter of $578,000, or $.12 per share, on net sales of $9,457,000.

Based on first quarter results, Spearhead anticipates a stronger overall Halloween season and first half than last year. Orders for second quarter shipments are significantly better than last year at this time. Spearhead said that its new Lite-Stik(TM) product line was a strong contributor to sales in the first quarter. Overall sales of Halloween products were on plan for the quarter, but lightly behind last year because of a timing difference in shipments. "Excellent Lite-Stik performance is helping our Halloween business grow and gain market share, and our transition to non-guaranteed sales to retail chain stores is working as expected," Wes Laseski, chairman of Spearhead Industries, commented. "We are also pleased with the positive contribution by our U.K. subsidiary as the result of significantly improved product marketing there, and we expect the U.K. business to strengthen during the year."

The company noted that in August it completed a private placement of $1,600,000 of subordinated notes with associated stock warrants.

MILFORD, OHIO (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Structural Dynamics Research Corporation (NASDAQ: SDRC) today reported record earnings and revenue for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Net earnings for the third quarter of 1990 increased 48 percent to $3,331,000 compared to $2,251,000 for 1989's third quarter. Revenue rose 28 percent to $29,945,000 compared to $23,449,000 for the same period last year. Earnings per share were $.24 compared with $.17 per share for the same period in 1989. Common shares outstanding, including equivalents, were 13,864,000 and 13,434,000 for 1990 and 1989, respectively. All share and per-share data have been adjusted to reflect the two-for-one stock split effective on April 27, 1990.

Earnings before income taxes for the third quarter increased 49 percent to $5,208,000 compared to $3,486,000 for 1989's third quarter.

Net earnings for the nine-month period ended Sept. 30 increased 53 percent to $8,807,000 compared to $5,770,000 for the same period in 1989. Revenue rose 24 percent to $83,713,000 compared to $67,537,000 for the same period last year. Earnings per share were $.64 for nine months compared to $.44 per share for the same period in 1989. Common shares outstanding, including equivalents were 13,758,000 and 13,313,000 for 1990 and 1989, respectively.

Earnings before income taxes for the nine-month period increased 53 percent to $13,770,000 compared to $9,007,000 for the same period in 1989.

Ronald J. Friedsam, SDRC chairman and chief executive officer, said, "Earnings have now increased in each of the last 17 consecutive quarters when compared to each of the prior years' quarters. Revenue from our software products division grew significantly, increasing by 37 percent over the third quarter of last year."

During the third quarter, SDRC received the largest software contract in its history, a contract from the General Electric Aerospace Group. SDRC's I-DEAS software was selected as the standard for mechanical design automation at GE Aerospace, and will be used for the design, drafting and analysis of its products. The estimated value of this multiyear contract is in excess of $4 million. In addition to GE Aerospace, SDRC continued to receive an increasing number of large software orders during the quarter. "This continuing trend of large software orders illustrates the important role that SDRC's products and services are playing at major companies worldwide, and further indicates our industry leadership position," said Friedsam.

SDRC is a leading international supplier of mechanical computer- aided engineering software and engineering services used by automotive, aerospace, and industrial manufacturers for the design, analysis and testing of sophisticated mechanical products. The company's products and services significantly reduce product development time and cost, and result in superior product quality by enabling customers to optimize product designs prior to production. SDRC employs more than 900 people and has 36 offices in 12 countries throughout North America, Europe and the Far East.

SCHAUMBURG, IL (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Motorola, Inc. (NYSE: MOT), today reported higher sales and earnings in the third quarter and first nine months of 1990.

Third-quarter sales rose 12 percent to $2.70 billion from $2.41 billion in the third quarter of 1989. In the first nine months, sales reached $7.95 billion, up from $6.97 billion a year ago.

Third-quarter earnings were $102 million, or 78 cents per share, compared with $89 million, or 69 cents per share, in the third quarter of 1989. Non-recurring charges during the quarter were offset by non- recurring gains. Earnings in the first nine months were $390 million, or $2.98 per share, compared with $366 million, or $2.82 per share, a year earlier.

Net margin on sales was 3.8 percent in the third quarter, compared with 3.7 percent a year ago, while in the first nine months, it was 4.9 percent against 5.2 percent in the prior year.

Gary L. Tooker, president and chief operating officer, reviewed the following third-quarter results of Motorola's major operations, compared with the year-earlier quarter:

Sales in the Communications Sector rose 7 percent and orders increased 17 percent. Operating profits were lower, due to continuing investments in new systems, the development of the radio data communications business, and costs associated with the previously announced consolidation of the Mobile and Portable Products Divisions.

In the United States, order growth was paced by government markets. Internationally, orders grew most rapidly in the Asia-Pacific region.

Demand remained high for trunked and secure voice two-way radio systems and radio data equipment. Key paging orders were received in Canada, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Thailand and New Zealand. Shipments of the new Wrist Watch Pager began during the quarter.

The Semiconductor Products Sector's sales increased 14 percent to reach a record for any quarter. Orders rose 9 percent, and operating profits were higher as a result of improved operations, as well as non-recurring gains on settlement of intellectual property disputes.

Orders were higher in all major regions, led by Asia-Pacific and Japan. Among key market segments, order growth was highest in communications, automotive and consumer.

Within major product categories, orders were higher for digital signal processors and for bipolar and CMOS gate arrays. Orders for microprocessors, microcontrollers, bipolar analog and MOS digital analog products also increased. In memories, record orders were achieved for fast static random access memories, although dynamic RAMs remained under pricing pressure.

In the General Systems Sector, sales advanced 34 percent and orders rose 54 percent. Although the core cellular telephone businesses continued to advance operating profits were lower, primarily because of heavy incremental investments in technologies such as digital cellular, wireless in-building networks and personal communications networks. These technologies should lay the foundation for future cellular growth.

The national telephone company in Indonesia awarded Motorola a contract to supply the country's cellular telephone network. Motorola also was qualified as one of three potential suppliers of infrastructure equipment for a digital cellular network in Germany. In the Computer Group, the new MultiPersonal (TM) Computer was introduced in 11 European countries.

Information Systems Group sales rose 8 percent and orders increased 31 percent. The operating loss was greater as a result of the previously announced sale of the Codex Corp. headquarters building in Canton, Mass.

Codex introduced its first product for the Integrated Services Digital Network (ISDN). UDS continued to experience rapid growth in the high-speed dial-up modem market.

The Government Electronics Group's sales declined 7 percent and orders were 45 percent lower. Operating profits were higher. Motorola's radio frequency subsystem on board the Magellan spacecraft has been successfully transmitting scientific data from the spacecraft to tracking stations on Earth.

In the Automotive and Industrial Electronics Group, sales increased 13 percent orders rose 9 percent and operating profits were higher. The group began shipments of anti-lock braking system control modules.

RIVERTON, WY (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. Energy Corp. (NASDAQ/NMS: USEG) announced today that its board of directors has declared a 10 percent stock dividend on its common stock, payable after November 16, 1990, to the record holders of the $.01 par value common stock at the close of business on November 1, 1990. The stock dividend will entitle the holders of the company's common stock, on the record date, to receive one additional share of that stock for each ten shares held by them. The company's board of directors has determined that the financial results achieved during the most recent year warrant a dividend payment.

John L. Larsen, president of U.S. Energy, said, "On January 31, 1990, the company announced that it intended to distribute shares of the common stock of its subsidiary, ATEC of Wyoming Inc., to the company's shareholders. That proposed spinoff of ATEC had been part of a plan to obtain financing for ATEC, in order to benefit the company's shareholders by reducing ATEC demands on the company for capital. The planned spinoff of ATEC was delayed as the company prepared documents to satisfy regulatory requirements, and sought the desired funds for ATEC. Because of apparent adverse changes in market conditions, the financing that had been planned for ATEC following the spinoff did not materialize. As a result, the record and payment dates for the ATEC spinoff were never established," he concluded.

After consideration, the board determined that a dividend of the company's stock would be preferred by its shareholders over a dividend of ATEC shares. It was also believed that the distribution of shares of ATEC would frustrate the original intent of the proposed spinoff - to aid ATEC in raising capital. The board accordingly determined that the 10 percent stock dividend announced above was to be declared in lieu of the previously announced dividend of ATEC shares. That previously proposed spinoff of ATEC shares has been shelved by the company, unless and until the board subsequently determines that a distribution of ATEC shares would benefit the company and its shareholders, by facilitating ATEC's capital formation. The dividend of company stock is also designed to allow shareholders to participate in the benefits of the company's recent success, while permitting the company to reinvest in cash assets in the business.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Carter Hawley Hale Stores, Inc. (NYSE: CHH), today announced that it has reached an agreement to sell its wholly owned subsidiary, Thalhimer Brothers, Inc., to May Department Stores Company (NYSE: MA) for approximately $325 million, subject to closing adjustments which the company expects to result in approximately $15 million in additional proceeds. The company anticipates that the transaction will be substantially free of tax and close prior to year end.

Carter Hawley Hale intends to use the proceeds to strengthen its balance sheet by reducing debt by approximately $320 million. Approximately $180 million in debt associated with Thalhimers will be repaid with the proceeds and the remaining $140 million will be used to reduce the company's short term borrowings under its receivables securitization facility. Carter Hawley Hale's earnings per share and fixed charge coverage will improve on a pro forma basis as a result of the transaction due to the reduction of direct overhead related to Thalhimers and the paydown of debt previously mentioned.

The sale is part of a strategic realignment of the company which will enable it to concentrate its resources on its West Coast divisions. Carter Hawley Hale intends to consolidate administrative activities, eliminate redundant functions, and reduce overhead in its four divisions and the corporate office. These actions, which will be implemented over the next 12 to 18 months, are designed to substantially reduce annual operating costs in the current fiscal year and going forward.

Bank of America has agreed to lead a $100 million working capital facility, of which $75 million will be provided by Bank of America and $25 million will be syndicated to other banks. The facility will be secured by a combination of cash and real estate.

Carter Hawley Hale will concentrate its capital expenditures over the next two years on store modernization, with approximately $110 million targeted for this effort. The company will open two new stores, which are already under construction, in fiscal 1991 and no new stores in fiscal 1992.

Carter Hawley Hale purchased Thalhimers in 1978. It presently operates 26 stores in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee, and had annual sales of $446 million in fiscal 1990. The close of its sale is subject to several conditions, including the expiration of the waiting period required by the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvement Act of 1976.

After the transaction, Carter Hawley Hale will operate 88 department stores under the names of The Broadway-Southern California, The Broadway-Southwest, Emporium, and Weinstocks.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - United HealthCare Corporation (NASDAQ: UNIH) said it has negotiated the repurchase from Warburg, Pincus Capital Company, L.P. of a warrant for 2,222,222 shares of United common stock. The warrant, held by Warburg since February 1988, would have enabled Warburg to purchase the shares of United stock for $4.50 per share.

United Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Kennett L. Simmons said United will repurchase the warrant for $22,430,533 in cash. This price was determined by applying a discount to the closing price of United's common stock on Oct. 8, the date of the agreement.

"We see this as a very positive step for United HealthCare and all of our shareholders," Simmons said. "The warrant has been considered in United's reported weighted average shares outstanding during the past three years. With the warrant's removal, we believe our reported earnings per share for both 1990 and 1991 should be strengthened," Simmons said.

Simmons said United's strategy will continue to be to maintain a strong balance sheet and cash reserves that will enable the company to take advantage of business opportunities as they arise. After repurchase of the warrants, shareholders' equity will total more than $110 million, and unrestricted cash will total over $50 million.

Warburg continues after this transaction to be United HealthCare's largest single shareholder, currently owning approximately 4.5 million shares of United common stock.

United HealthCare Corporation is a national leader in health care cost management, serving both the providers and purchasers of health care since 1974. The company's services include HMOs, PPOs, multiple option and point of service plans, pharmaceutical cost management, managed mental health and substance abuse services, utilization management, workers compensation/casualty services, specialized provider networks, employee assistance services, medicare and managed care programs for the aged, health care evaluation services, and administrative services.

HOUSTON (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Global Natural Resources Inc. (AMEX: GNR) announced today that its wholly-owned subsidiary, GNR International (Turkey), Inc., has been awarded oil and gas exploration licenses covering 945,936 acres in southwestern Turkey. These licenses (the "Isparta Block") are located in the Taurus Belt in the Antalya District and were issued for a primary exploration term of four years, extendable for an additional four years. The first-year work commitment includes collection and evaluation of data, photo-geological study and field mapping. GNR International (Turkey), Inc., owns 100 percent interest.

James C. Niven, chairman of Global, stated, "We are pleased to acquire the exploration rights to this prospective region known to have oil seeps at the surface. This acquisition continues our strategy of expanding Global's portfolio of international opportunities."

On Sept. 27, Global announced the formation of a joint venture in the Soviet Union to develop oil fields in Tataria. This was one of the first joint ventures formed to engage in this type of activity between an amalgamation in the USSR and an American company.

Global Natural Resources Inc. is a Houston-based energy company engaged in the exploration, development and production of oil and gas in North America; owns an interest in long-term oil and gas production sharing contracts in Indonesia; and has a joint venture project in Tataria-USSR.

WILMINGTON, N.C. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Reeds Jewelers, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: REED) today announced sales and earnings for the second quarter of fiscal 1991 ended Aug. 31, 1990.

Net sales for the second quarter were $10.6 million, up 5.1 percent from $10.1 million for the comparable period of fiscal 1990. Net loss for the quarter was $64,000, compared to a net loss of $113,000 for the comparable quarter last year. This was equivalent to a net loss of $0.02 per share for the second quarter this year versus a net loss of $.03 per share for the same quarter last year.

Gross margins were lower during the second quarter, falling from 44.5 percent to 43.1 percent of net sales, primarily as a result of more special merchandise sales events during the quarter compared to the same quarter of last year. Selling, general, and administrative costs decreased to 55.6 percent of net sales from 57.0 percent.

Alan M. Zimmer, Reed's president and chief executive officer, said that he was pleased with the improvement over last year; the $.02 per share loss compares favorably with losses of $.03 per share in the second quarter of each of the last three years. Comparable store sales were positive in each of the three months of the quarter and were up 6.6 percent over the same period last year. Year-to-date comparable store sales are up 9.4 percent.

Sales for the first six months ended Aug. 31, 1990 were $21.2 million, up 7.8 percent from $19.7 million for the same period last year. Net earnings for the first six months were $1,000; during the first six months of last year, the company lost $131,000, or $.04 per share.

During the fiscal quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990, Reeds opened new stores in Savannah, Ga., and Columbia, S.C., which are the second stores in each of those markets, and completely remodeled one store. The net addition of two stores during the quarter brings the total number of stores operated by Reeds to 64 at Aug. 31, 1990.

Reeds Jewelers is a specialty retailer presently operating 64 stores primarily in enclosed regional shopping malls in 12 states principally in the Southeast. The company specializes in the sale of fine jewelry, emphasizing customer service.

BRAINTREE, MA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Grossman's Inc. (NASDAQ: GROS), announced today that the Shidler/Holman Group, which had been seeking to take control of the Grossman's board through solicitation of stockholder consents, delivered to the company before yesterday's final deadline consents which represent substantially less than the majority of Grossman's common stock needed to elect any of the insurgent group's nominees. In addition, the company has received a substantial number of revocations of written consents from Grossman's stockholders which could significantly reduce the number of effective consents delivered by the Shidler/Holman Group. As a result, all current Grossman's directors will continue to serve on the Grossman's board and none of the Shidler/Holman nominees will join the board.

"On behalf of all the directors I want to express to Grossman's stockholders the board's deep sense of gratitude for their support of our management and business strategy," Thomas R. Schwarz, chairman and chief executive officer of Grossman's commented. "Shidler and Holman are real estate financiers, not retailers, and they never came forward with a plan that made any sense for Grossman's. Our stockholders saw that clearly," he continued.

"Responding to the Shidler/Holman consent solicitation has been costly to the company and its stockholders. We look forward to getting back full-time to our real job -- strengthening our company and creating value for our stockholders," Schwarz said.

ATLANTA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - BellSouth Enterprises Inc. and Sony Corporation of America today signed an agreement to run a technical and limited user trial of a wireless communications system in the state of Georgia.

The trial will take place over a three-month period beginning in late 1990 and will include approximately 35 users.

"We see this joint effort with Sony as a first step in exploring the ranges and possibilities of new wireless technologies," said Eric Ensor, assistant vice president - Worldwide Wireless Strategy for BellSouth Enterprises. "BellSouth Enterprises is committed to the growth and development of wireless communications, and we are eager to begin looking at these new types of services in actual trial settings. This is the first in a series of trials we will be conducting to determine the potential of this powerful new portable communications technology for our customers."

The trial will involve eight public base stations and 35 single-user base stations which have a transmission range of up to 200 meters each. All trial users will have digital handsets capable of placing outgoing calls through the public base stations. Some users will have single-line base stations in their homes and/or offices which allow for incoming and outgoing calls on the handsets. Users may also be provided with pagers to be used in conjunction with their handsets during portions of the trial.

Sony has made arrangements to provide the hardware and the software required for this test from a current equipment manufacturer in the United Kingdom, and BellSouth Enterprises will provide the necessary management and operating infrastructure. The system will be modified to operate on expanded cellular band "B" in the 846.5 to 849 Mhz range. This frequency band is already licensed to BellSouth Enterprises for other purposes. BellSouth has filed with the FCC for an experimental license to conduct this trial.

"We believe that the knowledge we gain from this trial will be fundamental to our development of next-generation wireless systems," commented Michael Lang, market development manager - Telecommunications Product Division for Sony. "BellSouth is clearly a leader in network technologies, and our association with them should enhance our understanding of the consumer expectations of future telephone services and products."

"BellSouth companies have been in the business of personal communications for over 100 years and we will continue to employ to the fullest emerging technology to offer our customers the most useful, efficient and cost-effective service available," added Ensor.

BellSouth Enterprises' Wireless Strategy Group was recently expanded to study the market and technical viability of a number of wireless systems. The group is currently completing a nationwide study of broad-based market opportunities for personal communications systems. The Wireless Strategy Group is part of BellSouth Enterprises which manages a group of companies within BellSouth Corp. (NYSE: BLS) that provide telecommunications and data processing equipment, mobile telecommunications services and directory advertising publishing services throughout the world.

Sony markets a broad line of consumer telecommunications products including cordless and feature telephones, telephone answering devices and accessories, and recently established a research laboratory in northern New Jersey to support the development of telecommunications technologies.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - GE Aircraft Engines and Pratt & Whitney have agreed to study the feasibility of developing a propulsion system for a Mach 1.5 to Mach 3.5 long-range high speed civil transport. The study could lead to joint development and engine production.

Depending upon study results, the partners will establish a division of responsibilities for later phases of the program.

"America's two leading engine makers are teaming to develop the next-generation propulsion system for supersonic commercial aircraft," said Arthur E. Wegner, president of Pratt & Whitney. "We recognize neither company could realistically embark on this project alone. By working together we will greatly increase the prospect of resolving the enormous technical issues, while also evaluating methods to address the significant business issues associated with developing a supersonic transport engine."

Brian Rowe, senior vice president of GE Aircraft Engines, concurred, adding, "We look forward to taking on the technological challenges presented by a supersonic transport propulsion system. We're convinced the road to success lies in this cooperative effort between GE and Pratt."

Samuel C. Gilkey of GE and Richard W. Hines of Pratt & Whitney have been named program managers to lead their respective company's activities. They will participate in a joint strategy board to direct the program.

Subsequent phases of the project could include technology development and validation, system development, engine certification and production. GE and Pratt & Whitney will work closely with aircraft manufacturers to explore the 21st century market potential for a high speed civil transport. The companies anticipate that full certification of an aircraft could occur as early as 2005.

MONTVALE, NJ (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Effective immediately, Lehn & Fink Products, a leading international marketer of household, personal care, industrial and do-it-yourself products, will change its name to L&F Products, today announced Michael Gallagher, president and chief executive officer.

As Lehn & Fink Products, the company was part of Sterling Drug Inc., its parent company since 1966. The Eastman Kodak Company acquired Sterling Drug in 1988.

"Our name change signifies that we are now, officially, an independent operating unit of Kodak," said Gallagher. L&F Products has annual sales of approximately $1 billion, which would make it a member of the Fortune 500 as a stand-alone company, according to Gallagher.

The company recently streamlined its organizational structure, and now has three operating units: a household products group, a do-it- yourself products group and an international organization.

These three operating groups encompass over 100 brands, most of which command leading positions in their respective categories. Brands which L&F Products manufacture and market include Lysol disinfectants, Minwax woodcare products, Thompson's exterior waterproofing products, Chubs baby wipes, Red Devil enamels, Mop & Glo floor wax, Ogilvie home perms, Resolve carpet cleaner and d-Con rodenticides.

L&F Products is based in Montvale, N.J. and employs over 3,000 people in the United States and abroad.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Carter Hawley Hale Stores, Inc. (NYSE: CHH), today reported a net loss from operations for fiscal 1990 of $9.5 million, or a loss of 37 cents per share, compared with net earnings from operations of $7.4 million, or 34 cents per share, in fiscal 1989. This year's loss reflects a substantial LIFO charge of $22.2 million in 1990 compared with $.3 million in 1989. Excluding LIFO charges and interest, operating earnings were $172.2 million in fiscal 1990 compared with $173.1 million in fiscal 1989.

This year's loss includes pretax income of $12.7 million, representing interest on income taxes refunded as a result of a favorable settlement of IRS examinations. It also includes other expenses of $4.8 million, comprised of costs for corporate buying consolidations partially offset by gains on the sale of assets; and an after tax charge of $16.5 million for costs not covered by insurance that resulted from the earthquake in the Bay Area early in the fiscal year.

The net loss for the year was $26.0 million, or a loss of $1.03 per share, compared with net earnings of $13.5 million, or 62 cents per share, in 1989.

Last year's net earnings include a pretax charge of $6.0 million for Market Services; an after tax charge of $9.2 million for the early retirement of debt; and an after tax credit of $15.3 million due to the adoption of FAS No. 96 "Accounting for Income Taxes."

Sales for fiscal 1990 were $2,857.8 million, an increase of 2.5 percent compared with the $2,787.4 million reported in 1989. Excluding Oakland, which was closed because of earthquake damage for most of fiscal 1990, from both years, total sales increased 3.8 percent while comparative store sales increased 2.0 percent.

The net loss from operations in this year's fourth quarter was $19.5 million, or a loss of 70 cents per share, compared with a loss of $7.3 million, or a loss of 35 cents per share, in the fourth quarter of 1989. This year's loss reflects a LIFO charge of $16.7 million compared with a LIFO credit of $2.7 million in last year's quarter.

This year's loss for the quarter includes the $12.7 million in interest income; other income of $1.1 million, which reflects gains on the sale of assets net of costs for corporate buying consolidations; and an after tax charge of $6.0 million to cover costs from the earthquake in the Bay Area.

The net loss in this year's fourth quarter was $25.5 million, or a loss of 92 cents per share, compared with a net loss of $8.3 million, or a loss of 39 cents per share, in last year's period.

Last year's net loss for the quarter includes the $6 million pretax charge for Market Services and an after tax charge of $1 million relating to the early retirement of debt.

Sales for the fourth quarter of 1990 were $623.3 million compared with $624.6 million in 1989, with the decrease due to the Oakland store being closed in this year's period. Excluding Oakland in both years, total sales increased 1.3 percent and .9 percent on a comparative store basis.

At the end of the fiscal year Carter Hawley Hale operated 115 department stores under the names of The Broadway-Southern California, The Broadway-Southwest, Emporium, Thalhimers, and Weinstocks.

ANN ARBOR, MI (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Republic Bancorp Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: RBNC) today announced record earnings for the bank holding company for the third quarter and first nine months of 1990. Net income for the third quarter of 1990 was $423,000, an increase of 62 percent over the $261,000 reported for the same period in 1989. Net income for the first nine months of 1990 was $930,000, an increase of 61 percent over the $579,000 reported for the first nine months of 1989.

These are the highest quarterly profits ever recorded for the company and 1990 year-to-date net income now exceeds net income for all of 1989. The increases result from an improvement in net interest income, which was up 22 percent over the third quarter of 1989 and 20 percent over the first nine months of 1989. The company's total assets as of the current quarter end were $486 million vs. $470 million reported one year ago.

WHITE PLAINS, NY (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - IBM today introduced its first medialess Personal System/2 (see note), the PS/2 (note) Model 55 LS (LAN Station), ideally suited for customers to use as a local area network workstation. The medialess workstation provides customers an easy-to-install, cost-efficient system with greater data security and protection. The Model 55 LS, based on IBM's best-selling Model 55 SX, comes with either a Token-Ring or Ethernet adapter card and is configured without a hard disk or diskette drive. The LAN station can be upgraded with an optional diskette drive and a hard disk.

The PS/2 Model 55 LS is configured with a Remote Initial Program Load (RIPL) feature, allowing customers to easily install the system in either a Token-Ring or Ethernet local area network. Local area networks enable several personal computers, or clients, to be linked together to share a wide range of resources, such as files, software and printers.

"Our customers have told us they need this type of medialess workstation for data and program security and cost efficiency," said James A. Cannavino, IBM vice president and general manager, Personal Systems line of business. "The PS/2 Model 55 LS is ideal for today's growing LAN installations."

Based on a 16 megahertz (MHz) 80386SX microprocessor and IBM's Micro Channel (note) architecture, the PS/2 Model 55 LS comes with 2 megabytes (MB) of memory, expandable to 16 MB of total system memory and two available 16-bit expansion slots. In addition, the system has a hard- disk storage bay and a diskette drive bay, should storage options be required in the future.

DENVER (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Newmont Mining Corp. (NYSE: NEM) today announced that it has amended its earlier Registration Statement for sale of common stock and warrants, so as to exclude any primary offering of stock. Unaffected by the amendment are a secondary offering of 8.4 million shares of Newmont Mining Common Stock, made on behalf of an affiliate of Hanson PLC, and an issue of warrants to purchase an additional 6 million shares. Agreement has been reached between Newmont and Hanson whereby Newmont will pay 80 percent of the proceeds from the sale of the warrants to Hanson for calls on 6 million shares of Newmont Mining stock held by Hanson. Newmont would thereby not be required to deliver any of its own shares against warrants that are exercised.

The amendment eliminated a proposed offering by Newmont of 3.6 million new shares of common stock.

Newmont Mining's decision to omit any sale of new shares was based on price movements in its stock since it first filed the Registration statement on Aug. 30, 1990.

The offering of the shares of Newmont common stock and the warrants will be made by means of a prospectus under the Securities Act of 1933.

Affiliates of Hanson PLC currently own 49 percent of Newmont. Following the sale of the 8.4 million shares covered by the amended Regsistration Statement, Hanson's interest in Newmont will be reduced to 36.9 percent. If all of the 6 million warrants and associated calls are exercised, Hanson's interest would decline to 28 percent.

Newmont Mining is a leading pure gold company which owns 90.1 percent of Newmont Gold Co., North America's largest producer, and 100 percent of Newmont Exploration Ltd., a company engaged in the worldwide exploration for gold. Newmont Mining also owns 24 percent of Newmont Australia Ltd.

BUFFALO, NY (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Ecology and Environment, Inc. (AMEX: EEI) reported record revenues and income for the fiscal year ended July 31, 1990; net revenues were up 25 percent to a record high $73.1 million and net income increased 66 percent to a record $4.5 million, or $1.13 per share.

Ronald L. Frank, executive vice president and chief financial officer, announced these results for the company today. Frank attributes the increase in net income and operating margins to the overall growth in net revenues and a greater diversification of the sales base. The company has had continued success in broadening its markets to include a greater number of federal and state agencies as well as private domestic and international customers. During the past six months the company has announced the award of several multimillion dollar projects with a potential total value up to $120 million.

BENTON HARBOR, MI (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Whirlpool Corporation (NYSE: WHR) said today that its third-quarter performance would likely not match levels reached in 1989, correcting an erroneous news report that appeared Monday.

Yesterday's European edition of the Wall Street Journal quoted David R. Whitwam, the corporation's chairman, president and chief executive officer, as saying that profits at Whirlpool would "return to normal" with the close of the third quarter.

"In fact, what we discussed was our expectation that the operating level of our Brazilian affiliates would 'return to normal' following a difficult first half," Whitwam said today of the interview.

Economic conditions in Brazil adversely affected Whirlpool performance during the first half of 1990 as the government in that country took steps to rein in severe inflation. More recently, Whitwam said, the situation in Brazil has stabilized.

Less encouraging, however, are current and forecast sales in Europe and the U.S. of the major nine home appliances.

"U.S. industry sales for August were down 12.6 percent from the same month one year ago; for September, they will be off about eight percent," Whitwam said. "For the fourth quarter, industry sales will probably be down more than 12 percent."

That industry trend, he said, is expected to continue through 1991, when sales are expected to dip another five percent compared to this year. In Europe, meantime, a forecast 1990 industry sales increase of two to three percent has been revised to a one-percent drop.

Whitwam said Whirlpool has responded to the depressed product demand by "taking steps to control costs, inventory and other factors, and we'll continue to do so. However, we do not expect to be able to sustain the level of profitability achieved by our North American operation in the first half of this year."

Whirlpool Corporation is the world's leading manufacturer and marketer of major home appliances. Headquartered in Benton Harbor, the company manufactures in 10 countries and markets products under nine major brand names in more than 45 countries.

FOUNTAIN VALLEY, CA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - FHP Inc. (NASDAQ: FHPC), a multi-state health maintenance organization, has acquired a 99-bed skilled nursing facility (SNF) in Norwalk, Calif.

The facility will provide short-term, sub-acute rehabilitation, not long-term or convalescent care, said FHP President Westcott W. Price III.

"The SNF establishes an important link between acute hospitalization and home health care," said Price. "In it, our members will receive excellent medical care in a warm, home-like environment."

FHP signed a 10-year lease, relicensed the SNF under its name, and hired most of the facility's employees from Life Care Centers of America Inc., the prior operator. The company plans to invest more than $500,000 in renovations and improvements for the facility, which is located at 10625 Leffingwell, near Rosecrans Boulevard and the 605 Freeway.

FHP previously contracted with Life Care to provide skilled nursing services to its members. According to Price, the acquisition reflects FHP's strategy of providing services in-house whenever it is cost effective.

"Since we have more than 300,000 members in Southern California," he said, "a second SNF is a viable alternative. It enables us to provide high quality care at a significant cost savings. We expect a payback on our initial investment in two years."

The acquisition complements FHP's Southern California hospital network of the FHP hospital in Fountain Valley, Charter Community Hospital (an FHP-managed facility) in Hawaiian Gardens, Calif., and the first SNF in Westminster, Calif.

William Mohr has been appointed acting administrator, a position he also held at FHP's Westminster SNF during its first months of operation. He will oversee the transition of ownership, early phases of the renovation and daily operations. Mohr, who has been a licensed administrator for 10 years, anticipates that the SNF's renovation will be completed by January.

FHP Inc. operates staff model (company-operated medical facilities) and Independent Practice Association (private physicians under contract) HMOs in California, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and Guam. It serves more than 560,000 members and is the largest Medicare risk contractor in the western United States. The company is a wholly owned subsidiary of FHP International Corp., based in Fountain Valley.

CAMP HILL, PA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - David G. Starks has joined Keystone Health Plan (KHP) Central as president and chief executive officer.

His appointment, effective Oct. 1, was announced by Robert E. Patterson, chairman of the board of the Capital Blue Cross and Pennsylvania Blue Shield HMO, on behalf of the plan's board of directors.

Starks, with 23 years experience in both government and private industry, has held positions in HMO management, utilization management, health care administration, operations management, data processing, marketing, and government relations. Prior to joining KHP Central, he was vice president for utilization management and provider contracting at Empire Blue Cross and Blue Shield in New York.

Previously, he was senior vice president and general manager of U.S. Healthcare, Blue Bell, Pa., and, before that, deputy director for Health Care Standards and Surveillance for the New York State Department of Health.

Starks said that he was impressed that Keystone's "staff and the plan itself have an excellent reputation in the local community and in the health care industry as well. Add to that the fact that I'm not new to managed care or to the Blues family. I know the products and the philosophy very well, and have a clear idea what direction the plan's owners want to see it take."

Presently a resident of Doylestown, Pa., Starks plans to move to central Pennsylvania with his wife, Judy, and three children. He holds a B.B.A. from St. John Fisher College, Rochester, N.Y., and an M.B.A. from State University of New York at Buffalo.

Operational since 1983, KHP Central is the HMO affiliated with Capital Blue Cross and Pennsylvania Blue Shield. Its 60,000 members work for employers in eight central Pennsylvania/Lehigh Valley counties and receive medical care through the plan's network of 700-plus contracted physicians.

OKLAHOMA CITY (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Fleming Companies (NYSE: FLM) announced today that it has reached an agreement to sell the assets of its Waynesboro, Va., division to Richfood, Inc., a wholesale food distributor based in Richmond, Va.

Fleming currently supplies 77 stores, including 31 IGA stores, in Virginia and West Virginia from a 81,000 square foot warehouse, the smallest of Fleming's 39 distribution centers. The Waynesboro center will be closed before year end and Richfood, which has been named an authorized IGA supplier, will begin serving current Fleming customers in the area.

"The Waynesboro operation, which was purchased in 1978, did well for several years, but the long-term potential was limited," said Dean Werries, chairman and chief executive officer of Fleming. "This sale reflects our continuing program of divesting underperforming assets. We are pleased that the agreement with Richfood will assure continuity of service to our retail customers."

Fleming employs 164 at the distribution center. "We have an outstanding group of associates at Waynesboro and we expect many of them will find positions with Richfood," Werries said.

ATLANTA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - First National Bancorp (NASDAQ: FBAC), Gainesville, Ga., has reported preliminary third quarter 1990 earnings of $5,446,000 for the three-month period ended Sept. 30 compared to $5,399,000 for the same period 1989.

Sept. 30, 1990, total assets climbed to a record $1.572 billion. Third quarter earnings per share of 61 cents compare to 61 cents for third quarter 1989.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, net income of $16,741,000 was up 5.55 percent over 1989. Earnings per share of $1.87 for the nine-month period improved over the $1.78 in 1989, an increase of 5.06 percent.

As of Sept. 30, the company's ratio of primary capital to assets was 9.96 percent, up from 9.67 percent the previous year. Excluding mortgage loans held for sale, the loan loss reserve/loan ratio of 1.37 percent as of Sept. 30 compared to 1.32 percent and 1.15 percent as of June 30, 1990, and Sept. 30, 1989, respectively. For the first nine months of 1990, the company's loan loss provision of $4,020,000, compared to $2,046,000 for the same period in 1989, is a 96.48 percent increase.

For the third quarter, the company reported a 1.39 percent return on average assets and a return on average equity of 15.20 percent. For the nine-month period, the reported 1.46 percent return on average assets and 16.16 percent return on average equity continued to place the company's results well in the upper tier of its banking peer group.

Commenting on per-share results, First National Bancorp Chairman and CEO Ray McRae stated that the third quarter and nine-month performance was most satisfactory, especially considering the additions to the loan loss reserve. "It has been the company's direction to strengthen the loan loss reserve substantially over the past several years and in particular 1990," said McRae. "Although this strategy has impacted 1990 earnings comparisons and will likely continue to do so in the fourth quarter of 1990, the higher position is reflective of the company's response to current industry trends and the slowdown in markets the company serves."

OTTAWA, ONTARIO (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Wesley-Jessen Corporation, the vision care subsidiary of Schering-Plough Corporation (NYSE: SGP) of Madison, N.J., announced it today filed suit here in the Federal Court of Canada charging CIBA-GEIGY Canada, Ltd., a subsidiary of CIBA-GEIGY Ltd., of Basle, Switzerland, with patent infringement stemming from CIBA-GEIGY Canada's sale of 'Illusions' colored contact lenses.

Wesley-Jessen, based in Chicago, markets colored contact lenses under the brand names 'DuraSoft Colors' and 'Complements' in the United States, Canada, and certain overseas countries. These lenses employ patented technology to alter apparent eye color while achieving a natural appearance. Wesley-Jessen holds patent rights in major markets to the lenses and to a process for their manufacture.

In its suit, Wesley-Jessen alleges that CIBA-GEIGY Canada's sale of 'Illusions' colored contact lenses in Canada is an infringement of Wesley-Jessen's Canadian patent rights. Wesley-Jessen is seeking an injunction to block further infringement of its patent rights, in addition to monetary damages and costs.

Charles M. Stroupe, president of Wesley-Jessen, said, "We intend to vigorously enforce our patent rights. We invented this technology," he added, "and we are determined to protect our rights in the colored lens market, the fastest-growing category in the contact lens business in recent years."

The technological advance enabling contact lenses to alter the appearance of even dark eye color while maintaining a natural look was invented and developed by Wesley-Jessen scientists in the mid-1980s. The company's 'DuraSoft Colors' line of contact lenses was a major marketing success following its U.S. and Canadian introduction in 1986. The 'Complements' line of lenses, introduced in April 1990 in the United States and Canada, offers a less dramatic color change for wearers seeking a more subtle change in eye color.

Operating in the United States and Canada and through distributors in 51 other countries, Wesley-Jessen is a pioneering developer of contact lenses, manufacturing and marketing a full line of soft contact lenses and lens care products. Schering-Plough, Wesley-Jessen's parent company, is a research-based company engaged primarily in the discovery, development, manufacturing and marketing of pharmaceutical, health and vision care products worldwide.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - The Student Loan Marketing Association (Sallie Mae) (NYSE: SLM) today reported net income for the third quarter 1990 of $77.9 million, up 18 percent over net income of $65.9 million in the 1989 third quarter and up 5 percent over net income of $74.0 million in the second quarter of 1990.

Earnings per common share were 77 cents for the 1990 third quarter, up 18 percent from 65 cents for the 1989 third quarter and up 7 percent from 72 cents in the 1990 second quarter.

Third quarter results brought net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, to $223.0 million, or $2.17 per common share, compared with net income of $189.6 million, or $1.87 per common share, for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1989.

At Sept. 30, 1990, total assets were $40.3 billion, up 19 percent over $33.8 billion at Sept. 30, 1989, and up 3 percent over $39.3 billion at June 30, 1990. Student loan purchases for the 1990 third quarter totalled $1.3 billion compared to $1.2 billion in the 1989 third quarter. This brings Sallie Mae's total student loan portfolio to $17.9 billion, up 20 percent from $14.9 billion at Sept. 30, 1989, and 3 percent from $17.3 billion at June 30, 1990. Warehousing advances outstanding at the quarter's close were $10.0 billion, compared to $7.9 billion outstanding at Sept. 30, 1989, and $9.7 billion outstanding at June 30, 1990.

At the quarter's end, forward commitments outstanding -- the pipeline for future asset growth -- were $12.5 billion, including $10.8 billion for the purchase of student loans. Approximately 60 percent of Sallie Mae's student loan purchases during the first nine months were takedowns from commitment clients.

During the quarter, Sallie Mae issued nearly $2.1 billion of attractively priced term debt in the capital markets.

At the end of the third quarter, the Sallie Mae Board of Directors increased management's authority to repurchase the corporation's voting and non-voting common stock to 4 million shares. (Of the 4 million shares, up to 1.4 million shares may be voting common stock.) The board also authorized repurchase of all of the corporation's outstanding 9 million equity warrants. Sallie Mae repurchased approximately 600,000 shares of its common stock before temporarily discontinuing its repurchase activities while negotiating with the Department of Education relative to the HEAF matter. Following the announcement of the HEAF resolution, Sallie Mae announced it would resume its share repurchase activities.

Sallie Mae, a federally chartered, stockholder-owned (NYSE) corporation, is the major financial intermediary serving the higher education market. By buying insured student loans and providing other financial services to financial and educational institutions, Sallie Mae replenishes local supplies of student credit. The corporation owns about 30 percent of all guaranteed student loans outstanding today.

WEST PALM BEACH, FLA. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Shareholders of IMNET Inc., (NASDAQ: IMGE) today approved a proposal authorizing the company to sell its recreation business for not less than $24.5 million, subject to receipt of a fairness opinion and board approval of final terms and conditions.

Negotiations are under way for sale of the business to H. Irwin Levy, chairman of IMNET Inc. Proceeds from a sale would be applied to the working capital of IMNET Corporation and to reduce debt. Joseph D. Weingard, vice chairman of IMNET Inc., said, "Sale of the recreation operations will allow us to concentrate our efforts and resources on our document image management business, which is in an industry enjoying rapid growth worldwide."

Kenneth D. Rardin, president and chief executive officer of IMNET Corporation, the company's imaging subsidiary, noted, "We are positioned to penetrate all segments of the market -- government agencies, banking, manufacturing, insurance, utilities, healthcare, education, service and transportation. The actions approved by shareholders today will help us maintain our technological edge, increase sales, provide unexcelled service and gain a greater share of the market."

IMNET Corporation, a wholly-owned subsidiary, headquartered in Pine Brook, N.J., is a leading integrator of PC-based document image processing systems, specializing in applications for the financial community, government agencies and commercial accounts requiring on-line access to millions of documents. The recreation business of IMNET, Inc. leases, manages and operates recreation and community facilities located at the Century Village retirement communities in West Palm Beach and Deerfield Beach, Fla.

In other action at the annual meeting of shareholders, held here today, six directors were re-elected to one-year terms. Roy W. Talmo, a director since 1985, did not stand for re-election, reducing board membership to six from seven.

Shareholders also ratified appointment of BDO Seidman as auditors for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1990.

NEW YORK (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Toshiba America, Inc. announced today that the company is strengthening its procurement activities in the United States in order to increase America's exports by establishing the Procurement & Export Division.

The Toshiba Group projects an exports increase from the United States to a value of approximately $950 million (Y134 billion) by fiscal 1993, a 50 percent increase over 1989. Last year, $633 million of American materials and products, including hard disk drives, X-ray tubes and supercomputers, were procured by Toshiba Group companies worldwide, excluding software and licensing fees. Toshiba Corporation's worldwide procurement goal by 1993 is $1.42 billion or Y200 billion.

To accomplish this increase, Toshiba America, Inc. (TAI), the New York-based headquarters of Toshiba America Group companies in the United States, has established a corporate procurement center to coordinate the purchase and export of American products to Toshiba companies throughout the world. The office will also develop and maintain a comprehensive data base on vendors and materials and their availability in North America.

The new organization, the Procurement & Export Division, was set up in San Francisco and Boston on Oct. 1, which was transferred and enlarged from the Procurement Division formerly organized at Toshiba International Corporation, TAI's power and industrial electrical apparatus subsidiary headquartered in San Francisco. The current nine- member staff will be increased by three: a newly appointed general manager and two more staff members.

"We at Toshiba have been actively promoting increasing exports to improve the world trade imbalance," stated Tadashi Kawaguchi, general manager of the new Procurement & Export Division, "We wish to help promote this policy by increasing America's export to Japan and other countries, especially high-tech oriented and highly value-added products."

A leader in electronics and energy fields, Toshiba America, Inc., as the holding company, oversees five independent companies in the United States and coordinates the companies' overall business operations. These are Toshiba America Consumer Products, Inc., Toshiba America Information Systems, Inc., Toshiba America Medical Systems, Inc., Toshiba America Electronic Components, Inc. and Toshiba International Corporation. Each company integrates all processes from research development to product design to production and sales and service within their respective industry.

MIDLAND, TX (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Parallel Petroleum Corporation (NASDAQ: PLLL) today announced that third-quarter net earnings and net cash flow surpassed those of the first two quarters combined.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, revenues more than tripled to $725,000 from $237,000 in the year-earlier period. Net earnings increased nearly ten-fold to $343,000, or 3 cents per share, from $37,000 in the same period a year ago. Net cash flow (from operating activities, before working capital adjustments) increased to $495,000 from $93,000 in the year-earlier period. For the first six months of this year, net earnings totaled $221,000 and net cash flow $437,000.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, revenues increased to $1.56 million from $624,000 a year ago. Net earnings increased to $565,000, or 5 cents per share, from year-earlier's $99,000. Net cash flow increased to $933,000 from $274,000.

Larry C. Oldham, executive vice president, attributed the improved results for the third quarter primarily to increased oil and gas production and higher sales prices. During the third quarter, production rose to 41,030 equivalent barrels of oil sold at an average price of $17.66 per equivalent barrel. During the third quarter last year, 17,338 equivalent barrels of oil were produced, and the average sales price was $13.66 per equivalent barrel. (For calculation purposes, natural gas is converted to oil at 6 mcf per barrel.)

Oldham said the recent completions of new horizontally drilled wells in the Pearsall area of the Austin Chalk formation, on prospects in which Parallel owns interests, began contributing to revenues and earnings in the third quarter. The company now has interests in eight wells in the area which, at Oct. 1, 1990, were producing approximately 200 barrels of oil and 200 mcf of natural gas per day net to Parallel's interest.

EL PASO, TX (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - El Paso Electric Company's (NASDAQ: ELPA) Chairman and Chief Executive Officer David H. Wiggs Jr. announced today the election of Richard G. Hickson and Travis H. Petty to the company's board of directors.

Hickson, 46, is chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Texas Commerce Bank of El Paso. As CEO of El Paso's largest bank, Hickson serves in major leadership roles in civic organizations focusing on economic and community development. He is a board member and chairman elect of the Greater El Paso Chamber of Commerce, president of the United Way, treasurer of the Industrial Development Corporation, presidential trustee of the El Paso Community Foundation, and a member of the UTEP Development Board.

Petty, 62, is vice chairman of the board of directors of Burlington Resources Inc., where he is responsible for natural gas transmission activities and corporate affairs. Burlington Resources is the parent company of El Paso Natural Gas Co. Petty previously served as chairman of the board and chief executive officer of El Paso Natural Gas Co.

Hickson replaces Robert H. Cutler, 71, who retired in May after 20 years of service. Petty replaces Leonard A. Goodman Jr., 65, who has announced his retirement effective Oct. 31, 1990. Goodman served on EPE's board of directors for over 20 years, and due to the company's mandatory retirement policy, was scheduled to retire prior to May 1991.

In making the announcement, Wiggs stressed the wealth of knowledge and experience that Hickson and Petty have in the financial and regulatory areas.

"Our company and the utility industry is changing dramatically, particularly in the financial and regulatory areas," Wiggs said. "We are facing entirely new challenges in the form of deregulation, increased competition and innovative financial arrangements. The addition of Messrs. Hickson and Petty will greatly assist our company in meeting these challenges."

The election of Hickson and Petty increases the number of new directors elected to the board over the past year to seven. Currently, the board is comprised of 11 directors, including Wiggs. The company does not expect to add any additional directors in the near future.

Wiggs also expressed the company's gratitude to Goodman and Cutler for their leadership and contribution through the years. "Bob and Leonard have devoted many years of service not only to El Paso Electric, but also to our communities," he said.

El Paso Electric is an electric utility serving approximately 240,000 customers in El Paso, Texas and the Rio Grande Valley in Texas and New Mexico.
The company has a 15.8 percent interest in each of the 1,270 megawatt nuclear generating units at the Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station located near Phoenix, Ariz.

ORLANDO, FLA. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Hughes Supply, Inc. (NYSE: HUG), a leading wholesale distributor of building products in the Southeastern U.S., announced today an agreement for the sale of its manufacturing operations to Accord Industries, a newly formed joint venture to be 80 percent owned by investors William C. Weir and Edward W. White, and 20 percent owned by Hughes Supply.

The gain from this sales transaction is to be included in Hughes' pre-tax profit in its third quarter ending Oct. 31, 1990, and is expected to be approximately $1 million. The date scheduled for the closing of the transaction is Oct. 31, 1990. Proceeds from the sale, net of the investment in the venture, should total approximately $6.5 million and will be used to reduce outstanding corporate debt of Hughes Supply.

The sale includes operations that produce PVC pipe, concrete products and certain sheet metal and electrical products. In the most recent fiscal year ended January, 1990, these operations recorded approximately $23 million of the $530 million total consolidated sales of Hughes Supply.

"These manufacturing operations have been profitable over the years," said David Hughes, president of Hughes Supply, "however, they are subject to much greater volatility than our core distribution business. This sale will permit us to give full attention to our principal business of distribution."

Accord Industries will be managed by William C. Weir and Edward W. White. Weir will resign his present position as executive vice president of Hughes Supply. White previously served as chief executive officer of Hubbard Construction Company, Inc. Accord Industries will continue the manufacturing operations in Orlando, Fla., at facilities acquired in the transaction, and Hughes will continue as a distributor of products manufactured by Accord Industries.

ANAHEIM, CA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - As part of their recent growth and expansion in the Sacramento, Calif., market, KXTV recently purchased a second TCS2000 library management cart machine from Odetics. The station will use the latest TCS2000 to replace one-inch video tape machines in the recording and playback of syndicated programming.

KXTV purchased their first Odetics TCS2000 and CWS-500 Cart Work Station(TM) more than three years ago. "At that time, Odetics was the only multicart system with software developed to do what we needed. They also had the larger library capacity we required. It was a natural to tie in our latest purchase with them," said Rod Robinson, chief engineer, KXTV. "Odetics is one of the prime companies I have ever dealt with. They stand behind what they sell, and are responsive to our needs," he continued.

An affiliate of CBS, KXTV is owned by A.H. Belo Corp., with sister stations in Houston and Dallas; Norfolk, Va., and Tulsa, Okla.

Celebrating its 21st year, Anaheim-based Odetics is a leading manufacturer of large library management video cart systems. There are more than 115 Odetics large library management cart machines playing directly to air throughout the world.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, MICH. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Stoneridge Resources, Inc. (NYSE: SRE) announced today that it has recommended to Orange-co, Inc. (NYSE: OJ), Stoneridge's 52-percent-owned subsidiary, that Orange-co adopt a strategy to dispose of all its assets and use the available cash proceeds for liquidating dividends to its shareholders. Orange-co is presently a fully integrated Florida-based citrus production and processing company.

In a letter sent to Orange-co today, Stoneridge congratulated Orange-co's management on its progress in selling assets. Noting the recent decline in Orange-co's stock price and the importance of realizing Orange-co's asset values, Stoneridge recommended that Orange-co adopt a strategy to change its previously announced asset restructuring program into a plan for disposition of all of Orange-co's assets. Then, as cash proceeds become available, Stoneridge further recommended that Orange-co declare a series of liquidating dividends.

Since announcing its asset redeployment program in April 1990, Orange-co has sold approximately 2,760 acres of its citrus groves for cash proceeds of approximately $32,650,000, with sales of additional 360 acres scheduled to close in November. Orange-co owns an additional 13,400 acres of planted citrus groves and 9,400 acres of other real estate. Orange-co also owns several juice processing and fruit packing plants.

Stoneridge also owns 33 percent of Major Realty Corporation (NASDAQ: MAJR), a Florida-based real estate company, and 51 percent of Major Group (NYSE: MJR), a Florida-based real estate developer.

Habig, who are employees of the company, fill spots vacated by Arnold F. Habig, H.E. Thyen and Maurice R. Kuper, who retired from the board.

John Thyen, 52, senior executive vice president, marketing and sales, has been with Kimball since 1961. He was the company's credit manager, a district sales manager for Kimball Piano & Organ Co. and national sales manager for Kimball Furniture Reproductions. He then served as vice president of sales for Kimball Office Furniture Co., before becoming executive vice president, marketing, for the company's Office Furniture Divisions. He assumed his present position in 1987.

Gary Critser, 54, is executive vice president, chief accounting officer and secretary of Kimball International. He joined the company in 1965 as corporate controller. He was named vice president, controller, in 1967 and executive vice president, controller, in 1975. Before joining Kimball he was a certified public accountant with the accounting firm of Seidman & Seidman for six years.

Randall Habig, 36, is the western divisional sales manager for Kimball Office Furniture Co. and Artec. He has worked for Kimball since 1976. He was a district, area and regional manager in the Office Furniture Divisions prior to becoming a divisional manager in 1987. He was named western divisional manager this year.

Shareholders re-elected nine members of the board of directors. They are Thomas L. Habig, chairman; Douglas A. Habig, John B. Habig, James C. Thyen, Anthony P. Habig, Ronald J. Thyen, Leonard B. Marshall Jr., Patricia H. Snyder and Jack R. Wentworth.

JASPER, IN (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Kimball International's (NASDAQ: KBALB) sales and earnings in the fiscal first quarter ended Sept. 30 will be lower than in the year-earlier period, shareholders were told at the annual meeting today.

Douglas A. Habig, president and chief executive officer, reported that sales are expected to decrease about 6 percent and net income is expected to decline between 5 percent and 10 percent.

Habig said market softness caused by the weakening U.S. economy affected results in all of the company's operating divisions.

Profits would have been further eroded, according to Habig, except for efficiency gains achieved by the company's Excellence Programs, which train employees at all levels to be involved in decision making.

Habig said Kimball's financial condition remains strong, allowing management to maintain a long-term positive view. He said the company will continue to invest in its products and people for future success even if recession becomes a reality.

The board of directors increased the quarterly dividend on Class B common stock to 17 cents from 15 cents, Habig reported. The new dividend will be paid Jan. 15, 1991, to shareholders of record Dec. 24, 1990.

In the treasurer's report on the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, James C. Thyen, senior executive vice president, reported sales of $612,956,000 and net income of $43,475,000, or $2.05 per share of Class B common stock. He said sales increased 3 percent and net income advanced 27 percent over the previous year.

RENO, NEV. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Athena Gold Corp. (Vancouver: AGC) and its wholly owned U.S. subsidiary, Athena Gold Inc., today announced that Placer Dome U.S. Inc. has commenced field work for the Stage I exploration program at the Talapoosa Project as outlined under the terms of the definitive Joint Venture Agreement signed on Sept. 12, 1990.

Drilling is estimated to begin in December of this year. Initial field work will entail establishing a grid around the Talapoosa that will cover roughly two square miles. Geochemical and geophysical surveys will be conducted over this area prior to the commencement of drilling. The total expenses budgeted for the Stage I exploration will be a minimum of $400,000.

The company recently signed a mining lease agreement that added 26 claims to the property holdings at the Talapoosa. The 26 claim block, equivalent to approximately 530 acres, is located east of the main Talapoosa reserve area and includes land with surface alteration similar to the Talapoosa.

Athena's land position in the Talapoosa District, amounting to approximately 19-square miles, is located 45 miles southeast of Reno near the Silver Springs junction of U.S. Highway 50 and Alt. 95. Through work programs by Athena and drilling completed by PDUS during the Initial Phase, 82,517 feet of drilling has been completed on the Talapoosa area of Athena's overall holdings from inception of exploration to date. Based upon the results of a geological resource estimate completed in 1989 by Mine Development Associates, the Company estimates that the Talapoosa alone has a mineral inventory of 19.6 million tons containing 1,049,000 gold equivalent ounces at a gold equivalent grade of 0.054 ounces per ton. The deposit is open in two directions and to depth. Athena has identified five additional targets for exploration on the property.

ALEXANDRIA, VA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Gene C. McQuown, formerly vice president, J. E. Robert Companies (JER), has been promoted to senior vice president, announced Joseph E. Robert, Jr., chairman and chief executive officer. McQuown, who will continue as regional manager of the southwest operations, will oversee execution of the $2.4 billion Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) contract awarded to JER last month to manage and dispose of assets from University Federal Savings Association in Houston. The University Federal transaction was the first major asset management and disposition contract awarded by the RTC.

Prior to joining JER in September 1989, McQuown served as regional manager for the Federal Asset Disposition Association (FADA), where he managed the Dallas Region, the largest of FADA's four regions with 135 employees managing approximately $1.8 billion in assets and non- performing loans for 24 separate Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC) related entities.

Previously, McQuown served as FADA's national participations director, managing and overseeing participation loan and real estate owned activities for FADA's Dallas, Atlanta, Denver and Los Angeles regional offices.

In addition, McQuown acted as FADA's portfolio manager for Vernon Savings and Loan with approximately $2.1 billion in non-performing assets. He has previously been involved in real estate, oil, and gas development and held the position of vice president special credits for InterFirst Bank Dallas N.A..

McQuown holds a bachelor of arts degree from Louisiana State University and a masters of business administration degree from the University of Dallas.

Under the terms of the RTC agreement, J. E. Robert Companies will undertake a multimillion-dollar contract over three years to manage and dispose of assets with an approximate book value of $2.4 billion. The assets are nonperforming commercial loans and commercial REO properties that were owned by University Federal.

The assets include approximately $1.5 billion in nonperforming commercial loans and $835 million in commercial real estate owned by University Federal. The asset pool includes 441 nonperforming commercial real estate loans with a book value of $975.6 million; 160 nonperforming land loans with a book value of $568.4 million; 110 foreclosed commercial properties with a book value of $266 million; and 297 parcels of land with a book value of $569.2 million.

J. E. Robert Companies is one of the largest asset workout companies in the country and is currently responsible for the management or oversight of nearly $10 billion in assets. Headquartered in Alexandria, the firm has regional offices covering every major market covering the nation.

SEATTLE (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Air Pacific, the national airline of Fiji, has contracted with Boeing for the purchase of one 767-300 Extended Range jetliner Boeing Commercial Airplane Group confirmed today.

The wide-body twinjet will supplement the carrier's present 747-200 and 767-200ER aircraft in promoting tourism to Fiji. In Air Pacific's operation, the 767-300ER will seat 249 passengers in a two-class configuration.

The 767-300ER is Boeing's biggest twinjet. It can fly more than 7,200 statute miles nonstop and has the capability of carrying more than 300 passengers in an all-tourist arrangement. With a fuselage extension of 21 feet over the 767-200, it also has extra capacity in the cargo holds.

To allow the -300 to qualify for extended-range operations, a fourth electric generator, increased cargo hold fire-suppression capability and cooling sensors for the electronic flight instruments have been added. The -300ER's fuel capacity of 24,140 U. S. gallons contributes to the airplane's exceptional range capability.

Air Pacific, known as Fiji Airways until July 1971, has been in operation since 1947. It currently provides services to Australia, New Zealand and Japan as well as regional operations to the Pacific Islands. In 1989 the airline reported a record profit of U.S. $6.7 million. The carrier has been a Boeing customer since September 1980 when it purchased a 737-200.

Today's announcement brings total Boeing 767 orders to 504 airplanes.

EAST HAVEN, Conn. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Microtech International announced today the implementation of a 24-hour service and repair program on its R45 and Europa 45R removable drive products employing SyQuest mechanisms.

This special one-day repair turnaround on Microtech's removable products was incorporated to address and alleviate any concerns that Microtech customers may have pertaining to Microtech's support of its SyQuest-based products. Microtech customers experiencing problems should contact Microtech's customer service department, where they will be given an immediate RMA number for return of their drive. The product will be serviced within 24 hours from Microtech's receipt of the drive.

Microtech will continue to fully support its customers with SyQuest- based products for the full life of their warranties. However, in order to maintain the Microtech warranty - two years on the R45 and one year on the Europa 45R - all servicing must be done by Microtech or a Microtech Authorized Service Center. Microtech customers are advised that the opening of any Microtech product to repair or swap mechanisms by anyone other than Microtech or a Microtech Authorized Service Center will void all warranties and obligations between Microtech and the customer.

"We do not want our customers to be lured by marketing ploys which may be put out by our competitors where they must pay additional costs, or risk voiding their product warranties," Microtech's President and CEO, Cliff Wildes, commented. "To continue the high-quality service our customers have come to expect from Microtech, they should obtain service directly from us or one of our specially trained Authorized Service Centers. This service is available to them at no additional cost."

Microtech has also instituted a program to consign inventory to its worldwide network of Authorized Service Centers to ensure they are able to address customers' concerns immediately. This additional $100,000 investment above and beyond its existing field repair program will ensure sufficient product is available for any repairs on Microtech removable drives anywhere in the world. Additional consignment inventory from Microtech will be made available for its Authorized Service Centers as needed.

"Microtech has built its reputation on a commitment to manufacturing quality products and developing the best service and support programs in the industry " continued Wildes. "We recognized early in the development of our company that service and support were extremely important to our customers."

Microtech was the first company to offer a five-year warranty on its mass storage subsystems over three years ago, and remains the only company to currently offer five-year warranties on a complete line of hard drives at no extra charge. In furtherance of quality, Microtech continues to support all its mass storage and memory products with its standard 48-hour service program.

For more information about the special 24-hour service available on removables call 800-626-4276.

Microtech International, Inc. is a leading manufacturer of peripherals for Macintosh computers. Microtech International's product line includes mass storage systems (rewritable optical, fixed and removable hard disk drives), tape backup systems and memory expansion boards.

Microtech International was founded in 1985 and is headquartered in East Haven Conn., with a Western regional office in San Francisco and international offices in Hong Kong and Japan.

NOTE: The five-year warranty is offered on hard disk drives sold, delivered and used in the United States or Canada. Certain restrictions and exclusions apply. All product names and logos are trademarks or registered trademarks of their respective owners.

JACKSON, MISS. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Mobile Telecommunication Technologies Corp. (NASDAQ: MTTL) today announced record units in service figures for its SkyPager nationwide paging and voice messaging system.

As of Sept. 30, 1990, the company had a total of 110,900 units in service worldwide. This figure includes 73,600 SkyPager units and 12,900 SkyTalk units in the U.S., as well as 24,400 paging subscribers in the United Kingdom.

Total units in service in the U.S. during the quarter grew at an annualized 137 percent over the 1989 year-end total, and the U.K. subscriber base grew at an annualized 58 percent over the same period. This was Mtel's best quarter in the company's history in terms of subscriber growth.

"The units in service total for the third quarter has surpassed our expectations and we're naturally very pleased," said Robert Fugate, chief financial officer of Mtel. "We are particularly excited by the strong increase in SkyPager sales during the third quarter. Our growth in sales is accelerating at a time when many other companies have seen a slowdown due to overall economic conditions."

Fugate added that the SkyPager system now transmits more than three million messages per month.

Mtel, headquartered in Jackson, Miss., is engaged in businesses that include nationwide paging and voice messaging services in the U.S.; nationwide paging services and paging system manufacturing in the U.K.; interests in other satellite-based telecommunications systems; air-to- ground and marine telecommunication systems; telephone answering service operations; and a digital microwave system serving southern California. Mtel's Common Stock is quoted on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol MTTL.

COLUMBUS, Ind. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Toyota Industrial Equipment Mfg. (TIEM) Inc. celebrated the official grand opening of its new Columbus industrial forklift truck manufacturing plant today at a ceremony attended by more than 500 community leaders and state officials.

"TIEM has expanded its commitment significantly since breaking ground for this world-class manufacturing plant in May 1989 and today we are taking yet another step," said Yasuhisa Koga, president of TIEM. "I am very pleased to announce that we soon begin construction of a 100,000-square-foot distribution center here for Toyota industrial trucks."

The new distribution center will be built adjacent to the manufacturing plant at Columbus. The center will be used for delivery of Toyota industrial trucks to its dealers throughout the central United States. Dealers currently receive their products from distribution centers in Baltimore and Compton, Calif.

Koga said that TIEM's initial capital investment of $40 million in 1989 grew to $60 million this summer. The $20 million of additional capital investment is being used for tooling and related equipment for manufacturing of two additional major components for Toyota forklift trucks - the "upright" or forklift mast and the rear-steer axle assembly. In addition to increasing the percentage of local content, the expanded manufacturing operations will increase employment from 110 to 180 TIEM associates.

The TIEM plant produced its first Toyota forklift truck on May 10, 1990. The 280,000-square-foot manufacturing facility produces 2,000-6,000-pound-capacity pneumatic-tire and 3,500-6,000-pound-capacity cushion-tire forklift trucks. In 1991, 2,000-3,000-pound-capacity cushion-tire forklift trucks will be added to the Columbus production line.

The TIEM plant has a unique production system that utilizes an overhead conveyor and Toyota's original "just-in-time" production system. The products produced at Columbus have the same high quality of workmanship of Toyota forklift trucks produced in Japan. In addition to extensive on-site training in Columbus, TIEM has sent more than 20 associates to Japan for lengthy training at the Takahama plant.

In 1991, the Columbus plant will be producing 5,000 units a year. By the mid-1990s, the annual output is projected to be 10,000 units.

At the grand opening ceremony, TIEM officials presented $50,000 in gifts. Recipients included the City of Columbus, the County of Bartholomew, United Way of Bartholomew County and the Bartholomew Consolidated School Foundation. TIEM also donated a Toyota forklift truck to Ivy Tech, an Indiana vocational school which has a campus in Columbus, and to the Bartholomew Consolidated School Foundation.

FALLS CHURCH, Va. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - First Virginia Banks, Inc. (NYSE: FVB) today reported that despite a slowdown in economic activity and problems experienced in real estate lending in the banking industry, its earnings have remained strong. Net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 was $49,200,000, or $2.30 per share of common stock, compared with $50,832,000, or $2.41 per share, for the first nine months last year. This represents an annualized return on average assets of 1.27 percent for the 1990 nine-month period and 1.41 percent for the same period last year. The return on average stockholders' equity was 13.84 percent and 15.83 percent for the respective periods.

Robert H. Zalokar, chairman and chief executive officer, stated that a reduction in the net interest margin, with insufficient loan growth to offset the effect of the lower margin, has prevented a growth in earnings this year.

For the third quarter, net income was $16,343,000, or $.76 per share, compared with $17,594,000, or $.83 per share, in the third quarter of 1989, which included an after-tax profit of $974,000, or $.05 per share, from the sale of mortgage servicing rights without a similar credit in this year's third quarter. The return on average assets was 1.25 percent and 1.45 percent for the respective periods, and the return on equity was 13.50 percent and 16.03 percent, respectively.

First Virginia's allowance for loan losses has been maintained at a high level in relation to its outstanding loans and its charge-off experience, and it is believed to be adequate to absorb any potential losses, including those arising from real estate related loans. However, in light of an increase in that category of nonperforming loans and the economic outlook, in general, an extra precaution was taken by adding approximately $1 million to the allowance during the third quarter, reducing the third-quarter net income by $.03 per share. On Sept. 30, 1990 the allowance was 1.25 percent of total loans and covered nonperforming assets 1.5 times and annualized charge-offs 4.4 times.

Nonperforming assets totaled $28.25 million, or .82 percent of total loans, much lower than the average for regional banks. Real estate development and construction loans represent only 3 percent of total loans, and First Virginia has no loans in foreign countries or for highly leveraged transactions.

Total loans at Sept. 30, 1990 were $3.394 billion, up 3 percent from $3.289 billion at the end of the third quarter of 1989. Total deposits were $4.622 billion, an increase of 7 percent from $4.300 billion a year earlier. Total assets were $5.276 billion on Sept. 30, 1990, up 7 percent from $4.929 billion on the same date last year, and stockholders' equity reached $489 million, up 10 percent from $445 million last September. On Sept. 30, 1990, stockholders' equity was 9.27 percent of total assets, up from 9.02 percent one year earlier.

VERO BEACH, FLA. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Dixon Ticonderoga Company (AMEX: DXT) has entered into a preliminary letter of intent to sell its graphite and lubricants division in Lakehurst, N.J., and Burnet, Texas, for a total cash purchase price of approximately $16.2 million, subject to adjustments.

President Gino N. Pala announced today that the signing of a binding, definitive agreement, which will be subject to certain contingencies, is expected to take place soon. In addition, the company announced its agreement to sell its refractories division, based in New Castle, Pa.

The company is also under contract to sell its office building in Vero Beach as the final step in the relocation of its corporate offices to Orlando, Fla. Further, the company has contracts to sell its small water and waste treatment operation in Florida and its plant in Newmarket, Ontario, which was closed recently when its operations were moved to more modernized facilities.

The sales of all of these assets, when finalized, are expected to provide the company with in excess of $20 million, which will be used by the company to significantly reduce its outstanding debt -- providing the company with greatly increased flexibility and lower interest expense.

In addition, the company announced that under its inventory reduction program, inventories have decreased $6.9 million since May 1990.

Pala noted, "As we entered into our new fiscal year on Oct. 1, we decided the company's primary focus will be on consumer products for the writing, art and office supply markets. Our current asset redeployment program enhances our financial structure to give us the financial strength necessary to execute our strategies in consumer product sales and marketing."

NEW YORK (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Pan American World Airways today announced details of its "Grand Rewards" program which is the only all- inclusive international incentive travel plan that offers independent packages.

In contrast to traditional incentive travel programs which focus on developing and marketing travel packages for groups, Pan Am's "Grand Rewards" program offers individuals, couples and small groups the opportunity of choosing both the time and place of travel.

"Employers may select the 'Grand Reward' level they prefer from Bronze, Silver and Gold tiers which vary according to the accommodations or length of time they wish to provide their outstanding achievers," said Fran Brasseux, director of association and incentive sales for Pan Am.

Recipients might choose a week-long vacation in England, enjoying the London theater and the English countryside, with deluxe hotel accommodations at one of the Savoy Group of Hotels. Winners might choose to visit a castle in Spain before renting an Avis Europe car for a drive to Italy where they can stay at any of "Grand Rewards'" Ciga Hotel properties in Florence, Rome, Milan or Venice.

Other winners might wish to vacation on the French Riviera, staying in one of the Nice Hotel Associations' luxury properties, or enjoy deluxe accommodations at a Trusthouse Forte, Marriott or Taj Hotel in another "Grand Rewards" destination.

The prices start at $900 per person for extended weekend holidays continuing up to the maximum of $3,000 per person for the Gold level.

"Grand Rewards" also allows more scheduling flexibility for the employers. "Many companies simply cannot afford to have key people out of the office at the same time," said Brasseux. "'Grand Rewards' takes this into account and offers employers the leeway to tailor award travel to their own business needs " she added.

Award destinations include Great Britain, France, Spain, Italy, Germany, Austria, Poland, Greece, Switzerland, India, Barbados, Bermuda, California and Florida. Trip lengths range from extended weekends to nearly two weeks.

The line includes the Epilady hair removal products, the Epilady shower massage products (sold in the United States as EpiSsage) and the Epilady facial sauna. Mepro Epilady, Ltd., controls the patents, trademarks and manufacturing rights to the Epilady product worldwide.

Epilady was invented in Israel in 1986. Mepro Kibbutz Hagoshrim (1987) Ltd. owns all manufacturing rights for Epilady. As one of the most successful personal care products to have been introduced in the last 40 years, Epilady has brought a high level of excitement and profitability to its distributors and retailers.

Seven million units of Epilady were sold in the United States within the last three years. Eighteen million units were sold worldwide in its first 48 months on the market. This resulted in a total of US$1 billion in retail sales. Epilady will continue its marketing efforts in the United States, Europe and Japan.

The previous distributor, EPI Products, Inc., is now in Chapter 11. EPI Products, Inc., will no longer represent Mepro Epilady, receive or sell its products.

Mepro Epilady, Ltd., is now establishing its own distribution network, salesforce and representative groups in the United States. Mepro will be responsible for Epilady product warranties and service and will satisfy customer and trade needs. Mepro will supply the Epilady products that retailers will require with limited shipments available for Christmas sales.

During 1991, Mepro Epilady, Ltd., will rebuild the promotional support for Epilady products in the United States and will introduce new products at the Housewares Show to be held in Chicago in January.

CHICAGO (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - FMC Gold Company (NYSE: FGL) today announced that it is planning to sell its Royal Mountain King assets acquired earlier this year with the acquisition of Meridian Gold Company.

Royal Mountain King is an open-pit mine that has been operating since early 1989 in the Motherlode district of California. In the 1989 start-up phase, 40,000 ounces of gold were produced. Proven and probable reserves are estimated to contain 400,000 ounces of gold.

"Although this property has potential, FMC Gold plans to direct its management time and resources toward developing the Beartrack property in Idaho," said Robert N. Burt, FMC Gold chairman and chief executive officer. FMC Gold has a 71 percent interest in the Beartrack development property acquired as part of Meridian Gold.

FMC Gold Company, formed in 1987 through a combination of FMC Corporation's North American precious metals interests, ranks among the largest gold producers in the United States. FMC Gold reported 1989 production of 329,000 ounces of gold and 5.2 million ounces of silver.

SAN FRANCISCO (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Levi Strauss Associates Inc., the privately-held parent company of Levi Strauss & Co., today reported record third quarter sales. Net income, however, was lower than the same period a year ago, due primarily to last year's gain on the partial sale of its Japanese subsidiary's stock.

For the third quarter ending Aug. 26, 1990, net sales were $1.2 billion, reflecting a 19 percent increase over the $1 billion reported for the same period a year earlier. Year-to-date net sales increased 16 percent to $3.1 billion, up from $2.7 billion reported for the nine months of 1989.

Third quarter net income was $74 million versus $128.6 million for the third quarter of 1989. Net income was 42 percent lower when compared to the third quarter of 1989, which included a $69.8 million gain from the partial sale of Levi Strauss Japan, K.K. (LSJKK) stock. Excluding the gain on the 1989 LSJKK stock sale, third quarter net income would have been down 10 percent when compared to the same period last year due to a higher 1990 effective tax rate.

For the nine months of 1990, net income also decreased to $175.9 million, down 21 percent from the $222.5 million reported a year earlier, due again to the LSJKK stock sale and the higher 1990 effective tax rate. In 1990 the company also recorded an extraordinary loss of $10.3 million, net of tax, from the early extinguishment of debt. This debt was replaced with short-term borrowings at a more favorable interest rate. Excluding these factors, year-to-date net income would have increased by 6 percent.

The company said that third quarter operating income increased 9 percent to $189.9 million, up from $174.6 million in the third quarter 1989. Year-to-date operating income also increased 9 percent to $486.3 million over the $442.2 million reported in the comparable 1989 period.

The company's international businesses continued to drive overall record dollar sales and earnings for that group. The company cited strong demand for its basic denim products in a growing jeans market, particularly its 501(R) jeans, along with favorable foreign exchange rates, especially in Europe, for the positive performance.

In the United States, the company said that its Dockers(R) family of products continued to perform strongly across all market segments, particularly Menswear, Womenswear and Shirts. The company experienced lower dollar sales for its Men's Jeans products, reflecting the continued decline in this market.

As a result of the employee investment and savings plans, the company files its quarterly results with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Levi Strauss & Co. is the world's largest apparel manufacturer. The company designs, manufactures and markets jeans and casual apparel for men, women and children, including slacks, shirts, jackets and skirts. It employs approximately 30,000 people worldwide.

DARIEN, CT (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - The U.S. Air Force is modernizing the air cargo handling facilities at its Travis Air Force Base in Fairfield, Calif., and has awarded a $4.5 million contract to Transact International Inc. (NASDAQ: TACT).

In announcing the contract, Frank B. Carder, president of Transact, said, "This is part of an ongoing program by the Air Force to improve its facilities at a number of bases, including Travis, where we did some work in May of 1985. We're pleased that they asked us to come back."

Carder noted that this new contract increases Transact's order backlog to approximately $12.6 million as of Sept. 30, 1990, vs. approximately $6.8 million a year earlier.

According to Carder, the contract covers the design, fabrication and installation of equipment to upgrade the existing materials handling systems in the air freight terminal at Travis. Included are two new Elevating Transfer Vehicles for handling containers or palletized cargo, each with a capacity of 15 tons, plus a multipallet lift, staging dock conveyor, dock levelers, a powered right angle transfer system, a prepack load/unload station and automatic control system. A large building canopy extension is also part of the improvements, which are scheduled to be completed in October 1991.

Transact International is a specialized design, engineering and manufacturing organization which produces air cargo handling systems for airlines and air freight companies, as well as the U.S. Air Force. The company's executive offices are in Darien, while its manufacturing facilities are in Memphis, Tenn.

WATERBURY, CONN. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Gene C. Guilbert, president of American Bank of Connecticut (AMEX: BKC), Waterbury, announced today that third-quarter earnings for 1990 were $1,405,000 compared to $1,621,000 for the same period in 1989. Net earnings for the first nine months of the year were $4,482,000 compared to $4,416,000 in 1989.

Non-performing loans as of Sept. 30, 1990, represented 1.14 percent of assets compared to 1.02 percent of assets on June 30, 1990. Guilbert said, "Our strong equity position and credit quality are sustaining us through these uncertain times. The level of real estate problems in our area is a continuing concern, and management has again considered it prudent to add to loan loss reserves. The reserve is now at $2,006,00 and is available to absorb losses should they occur."

The value of the bank's equity portfolio required an allowance for unrealized losses of $2,231,000. Although this had the effect of reducing stockholder equity to $29,064,000, it is still a strong ratio to assets of 8.29 percent. "Over the years, security gains have contributed significantly to our earnings but the market's current volatility has cautioned us to substantially reduce the size of this portfolio and increase our liquidity," said Guilbert.

Guilbert said he feels that fundamental market trends are weaker than expected and that a turnaround is not yet in view. Conservative strategies, he feels, will preserve the bank's capital, earnings and stockholder dividend.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - A patent infringement lawsuit was filed today in U.S. District Court here by a subsidiary of American Express Information Services Corporation (ISC) against 900 Million Productions, ISC announced today.

The suit alleges that 900 Million, operator of "The Game," an interactive telephone trivia game, is inducing infringement of ISC patents that cover computer systems and processes which involve interactive telephone games, contests and similar operations.

The suit seeks damages for "willful and wanton infringement" and requests that the court grant a permanent injunction to prevent 900 Million from "further infringement of the patents."

American Express Information Services Corporation, through its Omaha-based First Data Resources Inc. (FDR) subsidiary, holds several patents and has several patents pending relating to interactive telephone systems and processes.

"We intend to vigorously protect our patent rights," the company said. "The interactive telephone services market is a rapidly growing market segment and we have attained our leadership position through our patented systems and marketing expertise."

The suit alleges that three specific patents have been infringed by 900 Million: Multiple Party Telephone Control System (U.S. Patent No. 4939773), which covers grouping callers to one terminal; Telephonic- Interface Statistical Analysis System (U.S. Pat. No. 4845739), covering selection of a specific caller or winner, and Telephone Interface Control System (U.S. Pat. No. 4930150), which covers varying the interface format based upon the number dialed, the time and other criteria.

ISC patents have been licensed to Call Interactive, a joint venture of American Express and AT&T. Call interactive is one of the nation's largest providers of interactive voice services utilizing telephone- computer systems.

American Express Information Services Corporation is a wholly owned subsidiary of American Express Company (NYSE: EXP) and is headquartered in New York.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Julia Roberts and Campbell Scott star in Twentieth Century Fox's "Dying Young," to be produced by Sally Field and Kevin McCormick, it was announced today by Roger Birnbaum, president, World-wide Production for Twentieth Century Fox. The Fogwood Production is directed by Joel Schumacher from a screenplay by Richard Friedenberg, based on the novel by Marti Leimbach.

Roberts plays Hilary O'Neil, a young working-class woman who answers a newspaper ad to take care of dying leukemia patient Victor Geddes, played by Scott. Victor, a wealthy, brilliant and acerbic man who refuses to accept his fate, breathes life back into the apathetic Hilary. Despite their greatly different backgrounds, the two fall in love, tempered by sadness over Victor's worsening condition. When he feels himself slipping away, Victor generously pushes Hilary toward a new relationship with healthy, robust Gordon. But she cannot bring herself to abandon Victor when he needs her love and tenderness the most.

Roger Birnbaum commented: "Our ongoing relationship with Julia Roberts is one of the proudest examples of how we are making movies at Fox. After completing 'Sleeping with the Enemy,' Julia is joining forces with a rare combination of outstanding talents to tell a beautiful story that will touch audiences everywhere. 'Dying Young' is also an example of how we are making movies at Fox, and a project we are all very proud to be associated with."

Julia Roberts stars for Fox in the upcoming thriller "Sleeping with the Enemy " directed by Joseph Ruben and co-starring Patrick Bergin and Kevin Anderson. Roberts received an Academy Award nomination and a Golden Globe Award for Best Supporting Actress for her portrayal of Shelby in "Steel Magnolias," after which she starred opposite Richard Gere in the comedy smash "Pretty Woman." For "Dying Young," she rejoins Joel Schumacher, who directed her in the summer hit "Flatliners."

Campbell Scott will shortly be seen in Bernardo Bertolucci's "The Sheltering Sky," starring Debra Winger and John Malkovich. Scott has also starred in the acclaimed "Longtime Companion" and as Joseph Kennedy Jr., in the ABC-TV miniseries "The Kennedys of Massachusetts." His distinguished stage career includes Broadway productions of Eugene O'Neils "Long Day's Journey into Night" and "Ah! Wilderness," Noel Coward's "Hay Fever" and Mike Nichols' production of Tom Stoppards" "The Real Thing." Scott is the son of George C. Scott and Colleen Dewhurst.

Joel Schumacher comes to "Dying Young" after directing "Flatliners," starring Julia Roberts and Kiefer Sutherland. Schumacher wrote and directed "St. Elmo's Fire," an acclaimed and very successful look at the lives of a group of recent college graduates, before directing the hit supernatural thriller "The Lost Boys."

"Dying Young" will begin filming Nov. 12 in San Francisco and Mendocino County.

Twentieth Century Fox is primarily engaged in the financing, development, production, distribution and marketing of motion pictures throughout the world and is a unit of Fox Inc.

DES PLAINES, IL (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - United Stationers Inc. (NMS,NASDAQ: USTR) reported record sales of $993 million for its fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1990, up 2.5 percent from $969 million the prior year. Net income for fiscal 1990 was $12.8 million, down 48.1 percent from $24.7 million earned in Fiscal 1989. Earnings per share were $0.83, as compared to $1.60 per share the prior year. Weighted average shares outstanding were 15,494,772 for Fiscal 1990, compared to 15,470,580 shares the prior year.

"Our Fiscal 1990 sales growth rate reflects softer overall market demand. Gross margin declined as a result of a shift in our product mix and an increased level of promotional activity. A strong and continuing effort to control expenses enabled us to offset much of the expense associated with our two newest regional distribution centers; therefore, our overall expense ratio increased only slightly," said Joel D. Spungin, chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer.

"As we move forward, we are placing increased emphasis on purchasing, enhancing our marketing programs and continuing our expense control efforts. We are confident that our plans will enable us to capitalize on market opportunities and improve our profit performance," Spungin added.

Fourth Quarter Net sales for the fourth quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990 were $242 million, up 2.8 percent from $235 million for the same quarter the prior year. Net income was $3.1 million, compared to $4.0 million in the year-ago quarter. Earnings per share were $0.20, compared to the $0.26 per share in the year-ago quarter. Weighted average shares outstanding were 15,504,606 in the fourth quarter of Fiscal 1990, compared to 15,485,470 in the same quarter the prior year.

ATLANTA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Colorocs Corporation (NASDAQ: CLRX) announced today that revenues for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 will be in the $5 million range, up 25 percent from a year ago. This is expected to result in a loss for the quarter.

Charles Muench, Colorocs president, said, "Decreased purchases by Colorocs'

OEMs and delayed shipments resulted in revenues less than originally expected for the quarter. Orders and shipments have already picked up in the fourth quarter. Future payments for units for all customers are now secured by bank letters of credit thus relieving the company's credit requirements for the balance of 1990."

Muench continued, "Our earlier expectations that color will become a major tool in business communications are being realized. Over 9,000 units have been shipped using Colorocs' patented technology under its own and OEM names. We expect Colorocs machines to represent a substantial share of total color units placed in 1990."

Because of the markets' acceptance, Colorocs has opened sales offices in Australia and Canada and also is expanding into Taiwan, Singapore, Thailand and Hong Kong through a joint venture called Colorocs Asia. In the U.S., the company's system has increased to 11 branch offices and by the end of this year Colorocs is expected to have Colorocs brand sales and service outlets in over 30 cities compared to one location last year.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Unocal Corp. (NYSE: UCL) today announced plans to close its Edmonds, Washington, marketing terminal by May 1, 1991.

John M. Peck, Unocal general manager of marketing distribution, said the terminal was being closed as part of the company's market restructuring of its retail and commercial motor fuel operations in the Pacific Northwest, announced last year.

"Once the terminal closes, we plan to serve our customers, bulk plants and service stations in northwestern Washington from our Tacoma terminal," Peck said.

Unocal has 28 employees at the Edmonds terminal. Some will be transferred to Tacoma, while others will have the opportunity to transfer to company operations in other Western states.

The 53-acre terminal site on Puget Sound includes 27 storage tanks with a capacity of 697,000 barrels, truck loading racks and maintenance shops. The beach front has been leased to the City of Edmonds for public recreation. An additional portion of the original terminal site was dedicated by the company as a permanent wildlife reserve several years ago.

"We have begun preliminary planning to sell the site once it is no longer utilized as a terminal," Peck said. "We have a small amount of underground contamination, which we began cleaning up several years ago. We expect that clean up program to continue."

The facility handles approximately 100 million gallons of refined petroleum products each year, which are distributed by tank trucks. The terminal receives refined products by marine tanker from Unocal's Los Angeles and San Francisco refineries.

The Edmonds terminal began operations in the 1920s. In the early 1950s, a refinery and asphalt operation were added, but these operations were discontinued and dismantled in the early 1970s.

In October 1989, Unocal announced a restructuring and partial withdrawal of its retail and commercial motor fuel operations in the Pacific Northwest. The restructuring program will leave Unocal with approximately 30 service stations along the interstate and major highways in Washington by 1993.

FAIRFIELD, NJ (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Cantel Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: CATBC) today reported that it had reached an agreement in principle to restructure the company's outstanding senior debt of $17.7 million. Under the proposed agreement, the company's senior lenders will receive (i) a cash payment of $1.5 million, (ii) $8 million face amount of senior notes, bearing interest at 1 percent above prime and payable over a three year period commencing during the third year following the closing of the restructuring, (iii) $1.5 million face amount of senior notes, bearing no interest and repayable over the three year period following the closing of the restructuring, (iv) $6 million of redeemable preferred stock, and (v) common stock equal to 25 percent of the company's outstanding common stock on a fully diluted basis. The redeemable preferred stock will include provisions for the senior lenders to acquire additional equity in the company in the form of warrants or conversion rights.

The proposed agreement is subject to the holders of the company's 11 percent senior subordinate debentures due Jan. 1, 1994 agreeing to exchange such debentures for shares of the company's Series B preferred stock on terms satisfactory to the company and the senior lenders. Consummation of the transactions is subject to the negotiation of definitive agreements between the company, the senior lenders and the holders of subordinated debt.

In May 1990, the company sold its building in Fairfield, N.J. for $1.87 million, resulting in net proceeds of $1.6 million. The proceeds will be used for the initial cash payment to the senior lenders referred to above. The company's executive offices and warehouse facilities are now located at 180 Passaic Avenue, Fairfield.

The company also announced the discontinuation of its Graphic Arts Division in the United States. The liquidation of inventory from this division was completed in Sept. 1990. Although sales from the Graphic Arts Division in the United States accounted for $14.3 percent of the company's consolidated sales in fiscal 1989, it sustained reduced sales in fiscal 1990 and operating losses during both years.

ANN ARBOR, MI. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Daedalus Enterprises, Inc. (OTC: DDEI) announced today earnings of $687,000, $1.07 per share, on revenue of $5,596,000 for the year ended July 31, 1990, down from earnings of $995,000, $1.73 per share, on revenue of $4,915,000 for the preceding year. The reduction in net earnings is primarily attributable to increased research and development in fiscal 1990 and the exhaustion of all tax loss and credit carryforwards which contributed approximately $240,000 to the net earnings of fiscal 1989.

One result of the company's investment in research and development was the introduction of the Airborne Bispectral Scanner (ABS) system in fiscal 1990. The ABS has a selling price of approximately $400,000 as compared to more than $1 million for the company's most popular multispectral system. The ABS incorporates many features which make it more cost-effective and easier to operate. The company believes that this new product will significantly broaden the market for remote sensing systems, and has orders for four of these systems to date.

Backlog as of Sept. 30, 1990, is approximately $2 million as compared to $2,300,000 one year earlier, the majority of which is expected to be filled in fiscal 1991. Several large contracts are in various stages of negotiation. Fiscal 1991 revenue will be significantly impacted by the timing and amount of new contracts currently under negotiation, but is likely to be lower than fiscal 1990 revenue. The company expects to report a loss for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 and perhaps for the first six months of the year. However, backlog at the end of the second quarter of the current fiscal year is expected to be much higher than that of Sept. 30, 1990, indicating the potential for renewed growth in the company's revenue and earnings for fiscal 1992.

Daedalus Enterprises, Inc. is a leading developer and manufacturer of remote sensing instruments used for environmental measurement and monitoring.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - In line with the expanding activities at Morgan Creek, both domestic and international, Morgan Creek has secured $75 million in revolving credit facilities. Making the announcement of these new facilities, Morgan Creek Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Gary Barber outlined two separate lines of credit; one for Morgan Creek Productions (domestic operations) and one for Morgan Creek International.

The domestic line is a facility agented and syndicated by Chemical Bank of New York. Chemical Bank and Signet Bank of Maryland have equal participations, marking Signet's first foray into the entertainment field. The foreign line is managed and agented by Credit Lyonnais bank Nederland -- Entertainment Business Division.

"We are extremely excited to support one of the most successful independents in the industry today and look forward to participating in the continued growth of Morgan Creek," stated John Miller of Chemical Bank.

"These additional funds will be utilized to support both production and distribution activities at Morgan Creek Productions and Morgan Creek International, as well as provide the necessary working capital requirements of the two corporations," stated Barber, who is also president of Morgan Creek International.

This revolving credit facility, together with the previously concluded $100 million joint venture with Nomura Babcock and Brown, and the significant funds invested by James G. Robinson, chairman and chief executive officer, have established Morgan Creek as one of the best capitalized and financially secure independent motion picture companies in the industry. These financing arrangements will provide Morgan Creek with the necessary working capital to meet its upcoming production slate and other expansion plans.

Morgan Creek released two box office hits this past summer: "Young Guns II" (gross to date more than $40 million), "Exorcist III" ($25 million) and the No. 1 movie in America last week, "Pacific Heights" (currently at $9 million).

NEW YORK (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of ITT Corporation (NYSE: ITT), following its regularly scheduled meeting which was held at the facilities of the New York Stock Exchange, today announced an increase in the annual dividend rate on the company's common stock to $1.72 from $1.60. The board voted to increase the quarterly dividend by 3 cents -- from 40 cents per share to 43 cents per share -- payable on Jan. 1, 1991 to shareholders of record at the close of business on Nov. 8.

Rand V. Araskog, ITT chairman and chief executive, said the decision of the board to increase the dividend at this time reflects the company's performance and sound financial position which have been enhanced by our debt reduction and share repurchase programs. "These significant programs clearly have benefited, and will continue to benefit the shareholders of ITT," Araskog said.

"Though we are currently operating in a recession, our outlook for ITT into 1991 justifies a dividend increase," Araskog continued. The ITT chairman emphasized that, unlike many insurance companies, ITT's Hartford subsidiary does not have any junk bonds or non-performing real estate assets in its investment portfolio. "The product, service, and geographic diversity of ITT provides us with resiliency in an economic downturn," Araskog said.

Araskog said that the company's share repurchase program continues. ITT has repurchased 32.5 million shares, representing an investment of $1.8 billion, since the inception of the program in 1987. This includes 11.7 million shares repurchased in connection with the establishment of an employee stock ownership plan. In 1990 the company has repurchased 8.6 million shares to date. The company has authorization from the board to purchase up to an additional 5.4 million shares.

CONCORD, CA. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Office Club (NASDAQ: OCLB), the nation's original membership warehouse chain offering brand name office supplies, furniture, business machines and computers at discounts up to 75 percent off list price, has announced several changes in its senior management.

Mark Begelman, 42, President and Chief Executive Officer, has also assumed the role of Chairman of the Board of Directors of The Office Club Inc. This promotion was unanimously approved by the Board in August.

Begelman has been with Office Club since 1986; prior to that he was Senior Vice President and General Manager of the furniture rental operation of the John Breuner Co., a subsidiary of British American Tobacco. He has also served as a Divisional Merchandise Manager of the Miami-based Jordan Marsh, and as Home Furnishings Buyer at Abraham & Strauss.

Howard Matthews, 36, the former Chief Financial Officer of Office Club, has been promoted to Executive Vice President/Chief Administrative Officer. As CAO, Matthews will oversee all finance, MIS and administrative operations for the rapidly growing company.

Before jointing Office Club in 1986, Matthews served as Corporate Controller at CBS Inc., where he developed a leveraged buyout plan for divestiture of the Pacific Stereo division. He later became CFO of Pacific Stereo.

Gary Foss, 47, has joined Office Club as Executive Vice President/Merchandising & Marketing. His most recent position was as President and Chief Executive Officer of Home Express. Prior to that, he spent 23 years with Mervyn's and its parent company, the Dayton Hudson Corp. He was also President and CEO of Brandon's, a Dayton Hudson start-up company.

"I am particularly excited about joining Office Club because I think it is in the same position that Mervyn's was in the 1970s. It has the same tremendous potential for growth," said Foss.

"I am also very impressed with Mark Begelman's management goal of building a major, dynamic company while maintaining the tight-knit culture of a small business. Our goal is to maintain rapid growth but without the usual layers of bureaucracy," Foss added.

Office Club's two new Executive Vice Presidents join Sam Gentles, 35, Executive Vice President/Operations, who oversees the daily operation of the warehouse stores and the entire sales staff.

Begelman said the management changes were necessary as Office Club continues its meteoric growth. There are currently 49 Office Club warehouse stores throughout nine Western states, with another two stores opening this year and plans for 20 to 25 additional stores in 1991.

Office Club stock is traded on NASDAQ under the symbol OCLB.

RICHMOND, VA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Tredegar Industries, Inc. (NYSE: TG) announced today that it fully supports The Procter & Gamble Company's (NYSE: PG) efforts to accelerate the adoption of municipal solid waste composting in the U.S., Canada and abroad.

To supplement these efforts, Tredegar has been actively involved in the development of new materials to replace the existing backsheet for disposable diapers with a compostable material.

Tredegar's Film Products Division is a major supplier of the polyethylene film used in a variety of personal and health care products, including P&G's Pampers(R) and LUVS(R) disposable diapers.

P&G has announced that it will begin testing new compostable materials for diapers in 1991.

John D. Gottwald, Tredegar's president and chief executive officer, said: "We have been testing new materials for some time now. One of our strengths is technical development and our number one priority is to produce a compostable backsheet. This is an opportunity to further strengthen our long-standing relationship with P&G."

GREENWICH, CT. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Lep Group plc (NASDAQ-NMS: LEPGY) notes that ADT has acquired a further 7.5 million shares in Lep, so that ADT's holding now represents some 27.3 percent of Lep's issued share capital.

Lep always welcomes all bona fide long term investors and it assumes that ADT is such an investor since both Lep and ADT have significant interests in the North American electronic security market, interests that are competitive. Therefore, there is no scope for Lep to have a relationship with ADT other than as a pure arm's length investor.

Lep has just announced a well received set of interim results. It has secured and is further developing a significant position in key markets with excellent growth prospects, namely:

- European physical distribution - international freight forwarding - electronic security

Lep has an excellent record and its prospects as an independent public company are first class. Neither the intrinsic nor strategic value of its businesses and assets have in any way been fully reflected in the recent prices at which ADT has been buying Lep's shares.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Cherne Medical, Inc. (NASDAQ: CHNE) announced today that Charles F. Cuddihy, Jr., 64, president and chief executive officer, has resigned, effective immediately, and that David L. Printy, 44, has been named chairman, president and chief executive officer. Printy joined the company in July 1990 as chairman and has served on the board since 1987. In addition, the company announced that Mel I. Feldman, 46, has been named national sales manager, a new position, also effective immediately.

"I am pleased to have had an opportunity to be part of Cherne Medical for the last 20 months," said Cuddihy. "Now that David Printy is on board, I feel confident about turning the company over to his leadership."

"As Cherne Medical moves out of the product development phase, we need to build our sales and marketing force," said Printy. "With 20 years in the medical industry, Mel Feldman has the experience to oversee the sales and marketing of the Cherne System. He has consistently exceeded sales goals for the cardiovascular products he has managed, and we are pleased he is bringing his broad sales, management and industry experience to Cherne Medical."

Prior to joining Cherne Medical, Feldman was vice president of sales and marketing for Mankind Technologies Incorporated, a medical electronics company in St. Petersburg, Fla. From 1986 to 1990, he held several sales and marketing positions with General Electric Medical Systems, most recently serving as cardiology marketing manager. In this position, he was responsible for all diagnostic cardiology imaging modalities, accounting for more than $100 million in sales to GE Medical Systems.

From 1971 to 1986, Feldman held sales and marketing positions with several diagnostic imaging and medical products companies, including IVAC Corporation, a division of Eli Lilly; Baxter-Travenol Labs; and G.D. Searle.

Feldman received a bachelor's degree in business law and an M.B.A. in marketing from the University of Tennessee.

Cherne Medical, Inc., based in Minneapolis, manufactures and markets the Cherne System, a new, non-invasive, stress-free cardiac diagnostic instrument

STAMFORD, CT (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - General Signal Corporation (NYSE: GSX) announced today that its General Railway Signal (GRS) unit received notice from the City of Taipei, Taiwan, Republic of China, that it has been awarded a contract to provide signal control equipment for their new rail transit system.

The total value of the contract is $102.9 million (U.S.), of which the GRS content is approximately $50 million. Work on the project will commence shortly with delivery expected to begin in 1992 and completion scheduled for 1997. Specifically the award calls for the design, production, test and installation of a control system similar to what GRS provided to the Washington, D.C. Metro. The work will be on two lines currently under construction, which total 20 miles (33 km) and includes 31 stations. Approximately one-third of the work will be in subways, one-third on the surface, and one-third on elevated structures.

Taipei, located in the north of the island, is the capital of Taiwan with a population of 2.5 million people. This will be the first of several heavy rail transit systems to be built in Taiwan.

NEWPORT BEACH, CA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Donald E. Schrock has joined Hughes Aircraft Company as a group vice president and manager of the Microelectronic Circuits Division. He succeeds Karl H. Reissmueller, who is retiring at the end of the year after 32 years with the company.

Schrock, 45, comes to Hughes from Applied Micro-Circuits Corp., San Diego, where he served for the past five years as vice president of operations. Prior to that, he was vice president and general manager of the Data Productions Division of Burr Brown Corp., Tucson, and earlier was with Motorola Semiconductor, Phoenix, for 15 years.

In his new post at Hughes, Schrock will also be responsible for the Advanced Circuits Technology Center in Manhattan Beach and the Semiconductor Products Center in Newport Beach, both previously part of Reismueller's responsibility.

Reismueller, 59, has been involved in the development and manufacture of advanced microelectronic products for military and space applications for most of his long career with Hughes. Named division manager at Newport Beach in 1985 and group vice president two years later, he served for the previous 15 years as product line manager for hybrid microcircuits.

Hughes' Newport Beach operation, with more than 1,200 employees, specializes in high-technology microelectronic products including large-scale integrated circuits, hybrid microcircuits and frequency control devices.

ROCKY MOUNT, NC (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - The Board of Directors of Boddie-Noell Restaurant Properties, Inc. (AMEX: BNP) today declared a $.34 per share dividend for the quarter which will be paid on November 15, 1990 to shareholders of record on October 30, 1990. The annualized dividend would equal $1.36 per share, providing a return of 13.4 percent based on yesterday's closing price of $10 1/8. This is the thirteenth consecutive quarter in which BNP has either increased or maintained its quarterly dividend.

Comparable restaurant sales for the period, upon which BNP's percentage rent is based, were essentially flat in the third quarter and up 3.4 percent for the nine month year-to-date period. The positive sales trends experienced in the first half of the year have moderated, due in part to weakness in overall consumer spending reflecting news about a potential recession and events in the Middle East.

Resultingly, revenues also were flat for the third quarter and up 1.0 percent for the year-to-date period. Earnings for the quarter mirror the results of last year at $.28 per share.

Year-to-date earnings are up slightly at $2,285,153 or $.80 per share, an increase of 1.9 percent over 1989. Cash distributable to shareholders generated this quarter was $986,763 or $.35 per share, compared to $986,415 generated in the third quarter of 1989. Total cash available for future distribution to shareholders was $1,090,508 at September 30, 1990.

Following are the combined Statements of Operations and Cash Distributable to Shareholders for the three and nine months ended September 30, 1990 and 1989.

Boddie-Noell Restaurant Properties, Inc., a real estate investment trust, owns the land and buildings associated with 47 Hardee's restaurants operated by Boddie-Noell Enterprises, Inc. BNP completed its initial public offering of 2,600,000 shares of common stock on May 27, 1987.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Alpha 1 Biomedicals, Inc. (NASDAQ: ALBM) and Eugene Tech International, Inc. of Allendale, N.J., announced today that they concluded an agreement in August 1990 for the development and future marketing of Thymosin alpha 1 in the Republic of Korea.

Under the terms of the agreement, Eugene Tech International, Inc. will seek to undertake clinical trials and regulatory approval of Thymosin alpha 1. Alpha 1 Biomedicals, Inc. will retain manufacturing rights for Thymosin alpha 1.

Separately, Alpha 1 announced that it has completed the purchase of certain rights in the United States for Thymosin alpha 1 from Hoffman-La Roche, Inc., of Nutley, N.J. Under a licensing agreement to Alpha 1, Hoffman-La Roche previously had, at its sole option, the right to buy back Alpha 1's license to Thymosin alpha 1 for certain medical indications, including the treatment of cancer and hepatitis B, and as a vaccine adjuvant.

Alpha 1 has made a payment to Hoffman-La Roche in exchange for Hoffman-La Roche terminating its right to buy back the license to Thymosin alpha 1.

Alpha 1 is a Washington-based biotechnology company that is engaged in the development of pharmaceutical products for the treatment of immune system deficiencies and resulting diseases. The company's principal products, the Thymosins, are natural and synthesized hormones of the thymus gland which act as modulators of the body's immune and neuroendocrine system. Clinical trials also have indicated a potential usefulness of Thymosin in increasing the effectiveness of influenza and hepatitis vaccines in elderly and immunocompromised individuals, and in treating several kinds of cancer.

CINCINNATI (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - The Procter & Gamble Company's (NYSE: PG) chairman and chief executive, Edwin L. Artzt, told shareholders at their annual meeting here today that unit volumes for the July-September period were up strongly and represented another all-time record quarter for P&G. He added that final figures won't be available until later this month.

Commenting on the general condition of the economy, Artzt stated, "There is little doubt that the U.S. economy is showing recessionary signs. The increase in GNP year-to-year has dropped from 2.5 percent in the second quarter of 1989 to 1.2 percent in the second quarter of 1990. Consumer purchases of goods and services were up only 0.3 percent in the same three month period, although purchases of the kinds of products P&G makes have held up better than the overall average."

Regarding the likely impact of a recession on P&G's performance and plans, the chief executive told shareholders, "Past experience says that while our business is not recession-proof, we should expect to be able to grow the company's sales and earnings satisfactorily through a period of reduced economic activity." He went on to add, "We will conduct ourselves as we always do when things get tough. We'll pull in our belts, we'll work even harder to offer consumers better quality and value in our products, and we'll move forward with plans for the growth and expansion of our business worldwide."

Expressing optimism about P&G's business in the year ahead, Artzt noted that the company is considerably more diversified than it was ten years ago. "Our business is more global with better than 40 percent of our sales coming from international operations, and our major brands are generally healthy and well positioned competitively within their categories worldwide," he said. He also stated his intention to continue his predecessors' tradition of focusing on the company's long-term interests.

Artzt devoted the remainder of his remarks to a discussion of the company's environmental program and initiatives. He told shareholders, "We at Procter & Gamble feel a real responsibility to help preserve our world's environment through research, education and action. Our policy is to be proactive -- to be out front -- and not merely responsive to pressure on environmental issues."

Focusing on solid waste, Artzt shared the company's objective. "We envision a world in which a bare minimum of products and packages is tossed away. We envision that what does get thrown away will be reused, recycled, composted or incinerated -- with landfills used only as a last resort."

Artzt said, "We need to deal with organic solid waste in a different way. We need to compost it and return it to the environment as nutrient rich humus. Municipal composting is exciting technology and it really works."

In closing, Artzt said, "We are proud of what we are doing, but we still have much to do, and we will get it done with dispatch."

In voting at the annual meeting, all directors whose terms were due to expire were elected to terms expiring in 1993.

Five shareholder proposals, opposed by the board, were rejected.

NEW YORK (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Gerald Greenwald, chief executive officer of United Employee Acquisition Corp. (UEAC), stated today that: "We regret that United's board of directors has rejected our effort to stabilize the airline and provide value to its shareholders through employee ownership. We continue to believe that employee ownership is the only answer for employees and stockholders alike. Our latest proposals -- and the valuable employee concessions to finance them -- will remain available briefly for consideration. The three unions are working under open contracts and must now also return to traditional trade union activities while continuing to pursue employee ownership."

UEAC had submitted to the board of directors of UAL Corporation (NYSE: UAL) two alternative proposals to acquire UAL.

The first proposal, with a face value of $205 per share, provides that shareholders of UAL would receive, for each share of UAL, $70 in cash, $31 in senior secured notes, $18.50 in Series A equipment trust certificates, $23 in Series B equipment trust certificates, $32.50 in senior exchangeable preferred stock and a contingent payment obligation that would provide to shareholders as much as $30 per share in cash if UAL achieves certain earnings or asset targets.

The cash portion of the consideration would be payable from a number of sources including $750 million in financing provided by equipment vendors. Proposals from the relevant providers of such funds with respect to substantially all such cash financing, were described to the board.

The $511 million of Series A equipment trust certificates would be senior obligations secured by 14 Boeing 757 aircraft and three spare engines with an appraised value of approximately $639 million, would bear interest, payable semi-annually in cash, at 11.5 percent per annum; and would be payable as to principal in five equal installments from the eleventh through fifteenth years after issuance.

The $611 million of Series B equipment trust certificates would be senior obligations secured by ten Boeing 747 aircraft, 27 DC10 aircraft and 23 spare engines with an appraised value of approximately $873 million; would bear interest, payable semi-annually in cash, at 11.5 percent per annum; and would be payable as to principal in six equal installments from the third through eighth years after issuance.

The $689 million of senior secured notes would be secured by substantially all of the assets of UAL and its subsidiaries, excluding those assets otherwise pledged as collateral; would bear interest, payable semi-annually in cash, at 12 percent per annum (or at the option of UAL, 14 percent per annum, payable 9 percent in cash and 5 percent in additional senior secured notes); and payable as to principal in two equal installments in the sixth and seventh years after issuance.

The $722 million of senior exchangeable preferred stock will pay dividends at 12 percent per annum, cumulative, payable quarterly in cash, and matures 12 years after issuance.

The contingent payment obligations would provide to UAL shareholders, five years from the date of issuance, an amount from $0 to $30 per share (up approximately $667 million), based on the future performance of UAL.

The offer was constructed to provide a fair noncontingent price to UAL shareholders in the existing volatile economic environment, with the possibility of as much as $30 per share of additional consideration if UAL's performance exceeds certain performance criteria.

A second proposal was presented to the UAL board to provide assurance that a transaction could be completed even if no outside cash was available at the closing. That proposal consisted of $178 per share of senior secured notes and $25 per share of senior exchangeable preferred stock.

The $3.957 billion of senior secured notes will bear interest at 9 percent per annum, payable semi-annually in cash, and would be payable as to principal in three equal installments in the fifth, sixth and seventh years after issuance. Such notes would be secured by liens on substantially all of the assets of UAL and its subsidiaries.

The $556 million of senior exchangeable preferred stock will pay dividends at 12 percent per annum, cumulative, payable quarterly in cash, and matures 12 years after issuance.

KANSAS CITY, MO. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Applebee's International, Inc., (NASDAQ: APPB) announced today that as of Saturday, Oct. 13, there will be 150 franchisee and company owned and operated Applebee's restaurants open, 12 under construction and 21 new sites approved. Applebee's has been approved for franchising in all 50 states and, as a result, is reviewing a significant number of new franchise applications. The company began the year with 113 restaurants.

The company pointed out that, while site approvals do not always result in new restaurant openings, the number of sites approved is a reasonable indicator of new restaurant potential.

Abe Gustin, president, said that the 150th Applebee's restaurant, opening Oct. 13 in Conyers, Ga., is owned by franchisee William F. Palmer. "It's particularly gratifying to us that Bill Palmer, who founded Applebee's in 1980 is the person to reach the 150 restaurant milestone for us. Mr. Palmer is one of our best franchisee operators and the Conyers restaurant is his eighth Applebee's unit."

Applebee's also said that it has purchased approximately 86,000 shares of its stock under a stock buy-back program announced Sept. 17, 1990. The company indicated that it will continue to purchase its shares at current market prices which it believes do not reflect the real valuation of the company.

Applebee's International, Inc., headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., develops, franchises and operates a rapidly expanding national chain of restaurants under the trademark Applebee's Neighborhood Grill and Bar.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Satellite Transmission and Reception Specialists (STARS) President, David G. Olson and STARS Production Services Inc. (SPSI) President and Chief Operating Officer, Angelo Ricco, announced today that the company is completing the major facilities expansion of its existing satellite television transmission service capabilities in the Los Angeles area.

The new STARS facility is located in Sherman Oaks, Calif., and contains tape origination, duplication, playback, standards conversion, post production, distribution capabilities, and administrative offices. The center is interconnected with the Pac-Tel fiber network, regional fiber carriers, the STARS digital and analog microwave network, the SPSI New York Tape Center and the STARS Los Angeles and Houston domestic and international satellite teleports.

STARS West Coast facilities now provide direct access to the Hollywood telecommunications hub. The state of the art services establish STARS as a prime single source for television news, entertainment and sports networks and independent producers seeking a full service provider to serve their distribution and communications needs.

Olson said: "This expansion of our presence on the West Coast represents a major new resource for our existing television and cable broadcast customers. It also provides an important opportunity for the cost efficient management and distribution of the products of independent producers and syndicators. STARS continues its commitment to building the most diverse communication network available anywhere in the world."

Ricco concurred and added: "The expansion to the West Coast was a direct response to meet the needs of our major film and broadcast customers. The combined capabilities of STARS on the East, West and Gulf Coasts is essential to our ability to meet the demanding standards of our customers in the industry."

STARS owns an international satellite communication network with facilities in Los Angeles, Houston, New York, Denver, and Mexico City. SPSI is a wholly owned subsidiary of STARS with full service tape centers in New York and Los Angeles.

ARMONK, NY (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - A new booklet on the basics of municipal bonds, A Municipal Bond Primer, has been published by MBIA Corporation (NYSE: MBI), the leader in the municipal bond insurance business. The Primer's author is Leon J. Karvelis, Jr., executive vice president of the corporate development and marketing services division at MBIA Corporation. Karvelis has more than 20 years of experience in financial guarantee insurance and public finance.

A Municipal Bond Primer describes the advantages of owning tax-free securities and provides readers with the who's, what's, when's, where's how's and why's of one of the few tax shelters still left for investors. The booklet is written in clear, concise language, and chapters range from How do I decide what kind of bonds to buy? to Is there a way to compare the return on taxable and tax-free investments? A Municipal Bond Primer is available for $3 from MBIA Corporation. Call 914-765-3891.

"The Primer is aimed at the American taxpayer who knows that investing in municipal bonds can cut his taxes, but doesn't know much about how bonds work " Karvelis said. "We called it 'A Municipal Bond Primer' because it's a text that covers the basic elements. It cuts through the jargon and mystery, and gives a prospective investor enough knowledge so that he or she can talk to a broker about municipal bonds with some degree of assurance."

Municipal Bond Investors Assurance Corporation insures municipal bonds, including new issues, bonds traded in the secondary market and those held in unit investment trusts and mutual funds. MBIA Corporation is a wholly owned subsidiary of MBIA, Inc.

NEW YORK (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - ITT Corporation (NYSE: ITT) named five individuals and five teams of employees winners of the 12th annual Harold S. Geneen Awards at a dinner here last evening at The Sheraton Centre Hotel and Towers.

Named for ITT's chairman emeritus, the employee awards program was established in 1979 to identify and recognize ITT employees worldwide for outstanding achievements that significantly benefit the corporation. Each of the winners received cash awards and the coveted Harold S. Geneen Galaxy trophy in recognition of their achievements.

Rand V. Araskog, ITT chairman and chief executive, presented the awards to the winners before an audience of top ITT officers and members of the ITT Board of Directors. In his remarks, Araskog congratulated the select group of winners for their outstanding accomplishments, which exceeded the high standards against which nominees were judged for the top management awards. "These winners stood out among their colleagues for their determination, willingness to take risks and make the tough decisions that are necessary to generate outstanding results," Araskog observed during the awards presentation. Araskog added that these qualities reflect the business philosophy of Geneen, for whom the awards are named.

The winners were chosen from candidates representing dozens of ITT companies around the world. Originally established to honor creative management, the awards program was subsequently expanded to include individual and unique team achievements.

With the exception of top senior executives reporting directly to Araskog, virtually all of ITT's 119,000 employees were eligible for consideration.

The 1990 winner for creative management was Gerhard Reuber, Manager, Development and Tools, ITT Teves in Bergneustadt, Germany.

The four winners for individual achievement were: Sherman A. Murphy, Director, Communications Technology, ITT Hartford, Hartford, Conn.; Douglas E. Ott, Senior Technical Consultant, ITT Avionics, Nutley, N.J.; Georges Peeraer, Controller, ITT Promedia, Antwerp, Belgium; and James K. Pratt, Director, Statistical Management Programs, ITT Headquarters, New York.

The five awards for unique team achievement were presented to: the ALQ-136 Radar Jammer Team of ITT Avionics in Clifton, NJ; the Fullers Team of ITT Sheraton in Seattle, WA; the Galfer Team of ITT Teves in Barge, Italy; the Gallium Arsenide Technology Center Team of ITT Defense in Roanoke, Va.; and the Japan Management Team of ITT World Directories in Tokyo and Osaka.

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - General Public Utilities Corp. (NYSE: GPU) has won Electrical World's 1990 James H. McGraw Award for its contributions to nuclear plant technology.

In accepting the award, Standley H. Hoch, chairman, president and chief executive officer of GPU, stressed that the award belongs to GPU's employees.

"I am very proud to accept this award on behalf of GPU and all of the many people at GPU Nuclear Corp. Their technical skills and hard work have enabled the corporation to remain a leader in developing technologies in the nuclear area," Hoch said.

Electrical World is a leading trade publication for the utilities industry.

GPU Nuclear Corp., a subsidiary of General Public Utilities Corp., is responsible for the operation, maintenance and management of GPU's nuclear facilities.

GPU won the award for its "significant and unique contributions to the advancement of the technology for operating, maintaining and decommissioning nuclear units," according to the citation from Electrical World. GPU was specifically cited for its work in developing and using pre-programmed robotic equipment.

Parsippany, N.J.-based General Public Utilities is the nation's 15th largest investor-owned utility. It provides approximately 39 billion kilowatt hours of electricity for approximately 1.9 million customers through three operating companies -- Jersey Central Power & Light Co., Metropolitan Edison Co. and Pennsylvania Electric Co.

The Electrical World awards are given annually to recognize accomplishments that contribute to the advancement of the electrical industry. In addition to the Technology Award won by GPU, other awards were given for Management and Leadership and Design. The awards were presented at ceremonies in New York City on Oct. 4.

DECATUR, GA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - DFSoutheastern Inc. (NASDAQ: DFSE), the holding company for Decatur Federal Savings and Loan Association, today announced that it will continue its strategy of increasing its reserves for possible loan losses throughout the balance of this year.

The company is anticipating that this strategy as well as continuing concerns about the economy will reduce earnings for the third and fourth quarters of 1990.

"We consider this move to be prudent and in keeping with our conservative management practices. Our decision to accelerate additions to the loan loss reserves will provide more comfort for all investors regarding our future earnings potential," commented Robert C. McMahan, chairman of the board and chief executive officer.

"We have noted that the values on commercial real estate properties continue to fall because of excess capacity and other economic concerns in the Southeast. We are finding that general weakness in the economy combined with the current interest rate environment is affecting the demand for this type of property. We remain cautious; therefore, we will continue increasing our reserves," added McMahan.

Decatur Federal Savings and Loan Association, the wholly owned subsidiary of DFSoutheastern Inc., has 28 branch offices and five mortgage loan offices serving metropolitan Atlanta and north Georgia. Fairfield Mortgage Services Inc., a wholly owned mortgage subsidiary of Decatur Federal, operates 15 mortgage loan offices in Georgia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama and north Florida. ST. LOUIS (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Credit Systems Inc. (CSI), one of the nation's largest third-party processors of credit cards, named as executive vice president W. David Huddleston. Huddleston has nearly 30 years of experience in the financial services industry.

Huddleston's primary responsibilities will include CSI's new business acquisition and marketing programs. "We are extremely pleased to have someone with Dave's experience join the CSI team," commented Philip E. Sattler, president and chief executive officer. "CSI prides itself on understanding its customers' business, and Dave's knowledge of the bank card business from a user perspective makes him uniquely qualified to direct our new business programs."

During his career Huddleston has been responsible for a wide range of credit card activities. Most recently, he developed and installed a national credit card program for The National Trust for Historical Preservation, Washington, D.C. This involved contractual negotiations for bank processing, operating procedures and development of a marketing plan for approximately 530 cities in more than 30 states.

From 1982 through 1988, he was president of Associates National Bank, where his responsibilities included overseeing a two-million-customer base of both Visa and MasterCard accounts. He also served as executive vice president of Associates Corp.

Huddleston has also served as senior vice president of retail lending of Crocker National Bank. His first assignment there was to restructure and correct problems in the Credit Card Division. Earlier, he had been hired by Cleveland Trust Co., now Ameritrust, to initiate its BankAmericard Division.

Founded in 1967, CSI was one of the nation's earliest credit card processors. Today it provides services to about 1,000 financial institutions. In fiscal 1990, CSI's combined MasterCard Visa private label dollar volume exceeded $6 billion. CSI currently processes about two million cardholder accounts and serves 100,000 merchant outlets. While originally formed as an association of Midwestern banks, the company is now a national processor serving banks as far west as the Bank of America in California and as far east as Butterfield Bank in Bermuda.

PARSIPPANY, NJ (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Armco Inc. (NYSE: AS) announced that it will use a proration rate of approximately 53 percent in connection with the purchase of its outstanding 13-1/2 percent senior notes due 1994. As a result approximately 53 percent of notes validly tendered by each noteholder will be purchased by Armco. The amount purchased with respect to each noteholder will be rounded up to the nearest $1,000.

As previously reported, the amount of notes to be purchased by Armco is being prorated because Armco had agreed to purchase up to 30 percent of the outstanding notes and more than 30 percent of the outstanding notes were tendered in connection with the recently-completed solicitation of consents to an amendment to the note indenture.

Payment is intended to be made to the tendering noteholders on or about Oct. 15, 1990. Payment of the consent fees is intended to be made on or about Oct. 9, 1990.

CINCINNATI, (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Directors of The Procter & Gamble Company (NYSE: PG) today voted to continue, until the year 2000, the 80 percent shareholder voting provisions in the company's Amended Articles of Incorporation and Regulations.

The provisions require an 80 percent shareholder vote for certain major corporate transactions. These include: 1) transactions with a 5 percent shareholder, 2) increases or decreases in the number of directors, 3) removal of directors, 4) changes which provide for staggered board terms and indemnification of officers and directors, and 5) any amendments to the articles or regulations which change the 80 percent voting requirements.

These provisions, adopted by the company's shareholders in 1985, expressly authorized the directors to extend the provisions from 1990 until the year 2000.

UPPER DARBY, PA (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Bell Savings Holdings Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: BSBX), the holding company parent of Bell Savings Bank PaSA, announced today that it is revising its financial statements for the fourth quarter and year ended June 30, 1990.

During the course of closing Bell Savings' year-end accounts, it became apparent that certain loans not classified at June 30 had thereafter become materially delinquent or otherwise exhibited weaknesses. In keeping with management's determination to conduct the operations of Bell Savings in a fiscally conservative manner, and in light of the continuing deterioration of the region's real estate market and general economy, management concluded that the most prudent course was to adjust upward by $8.8 million its earlier estimate of an appropriate provision for losses for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, rather than accounting for such increase as of Sept. 30, 1990. Additionally, management charged off $14.2 million in loans and $2.9 million in interest previously accrued, which resulted in an increased tax benefit of $3.9 million.

In an earlier statement, the company announced a fourth quarter 1990 loss of $10.9 million and a $23.3 million loss for fiscal 1990. With the adjustments described above, the fourth quarter and fiscal 1990 losses for the year ended June 30, 1990, are $18.7 million and $31.1 million, respectively.

The loss of $18.7 million, or $7.47 per share, for the fourth quarter 1990 compares with net income of $701,000 or $.28 per share for fourth quarter of 1989. The loss of $31.1 million or $12.44 per share for fiscal 1990 compares with net income of $4.4 million or $1.74 per share for fiscal 1989.

As a result of the additional charge to operations, the company further increased its deficiency in risk-based capital to $25.4 million, and now also falls short of the core capital requirement by $7.8 million. The company continues to exceed its minimum tangible capital requirement. The company is preparing a revised capital plan reflecting these changes which will be filed with the Office of Thrift Supervision within the week. The capital plan provides for a return to full capital compliance within the next several years.

MOUNT KISCO, N.Y. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - TWA Getaway Vacations Christmas and 1991 Hawaii prices and brochure are now available.

The 1991 Getaway Hawaii program has been expanded, with the addition of more than 30 new properties, an Escorted Hawaii program, Special Honeymoon and Senior Savings packages, "Kids Free in Room policy," and a new Getaway Value promotion.

New, Easy-to-Read Format for 1991 Brochure

The 1991 brochure has undergone a format change, making it easier to read and compare the excellent value-for-money packages offered. All hotels/condos are rated by industry standards and guidelines, and hotel/condo descriptions feature easy-to-understand symbols indicating whether the hotel/condo is participating in the Special Honeymoons and Senior Savings packages, Kids Free in Room policy or has been designated a special Getaway Value. Beachfront properties are indicated with a beach umbrella symbol. Both three- and seven-night package prices are listed for each property, with both an exterior and interior picture.

Special Honeymoons and Senior Savings

In conjunction with hotels throughout Hawaii, Getaway is offering special free Honeymoon and Senior bonuses. For example, all Hyatt's on Oahu, Maui, Kauai and the Big Island offer champagne upon arrival for honeymoon couples or a room upgrade to the next category for seniors. Sheraton Hotels in Hawaii are offering champagne plus a room upgrade to the next category for all honeymooners and seniors (with a minimum of three-night stays.) Selected Outrigger Hotels in Hawaii are offering a free mini photo album for all honeymooners and seniors. Hilton Hawaiian Village offers honeymooners a room upgrade to the next category. In all, more than 65 hotels are participating with Getaway on the special Honeymoons and Senior Savings packages. (All special bonuses are complimentary when booking Getaway Hawaii packages. Certain restrictions may apply. Senior age policy differs at each hotel, starting at 60 or 62 years of age.)

Escorted Hawaii -- New for 1991
New to the 1991 Getaway Hawaii program is an 11-day Escorted program, visiting Oahu, Maui and Kauai. Sheraton Hotels in Hawaii and Getaway have teamed up to offer all first class hotels -- Sheraton Princess Kaiulani in Waikiki (Oahu), Sheraton Maui on Maui and Sheraton Kauai on Kauai. Included in the package are all hotel accommodations, based on double occupancy, full American breakfast daily, half-day sightseeing on each island, special highlight dinners including a luau on Oahu, welcome Mai Tai punch cocktails upon arrival at each hotel, roundtrip air from St. Louis and 30 other Midwest cities, inter-island airfare and services of a tour director from arrival in Oahu on Day 1 to departure from Oahu on Day 11. Prices start at $1,989 from St. Louis and 30 other Midwest cities. (Low add-ons are available from all other TWA gateway cities.)

Kids Free in Room at Selected Hotels
Hawaii is a great destination for families, and in 1991 Getaway has highlighted those properties featured in the Hawaii program which allow children to stay in their parents' room free of charge. Policies vary between hotels, but ages of children who may stay free range from 12 and under to 21 and under. Children are free in the room with parents when using existing bedding.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - First Empire State Corporation ("First Empire") (AMEX: FES) announced 1990 third quarter earnings per share of $2.12, an 18 percent improvement from the $1.79 earned in last year's third quarter. Net income in the recently completed quarter was $14,402,000, up 12 percent from $12,857,000 achieved in the comparable period a year ago. During the first nine months of 1990 net income totaled $40,972,000, or $5.99 per share, rising 7 percent and 13 percent from 1989's $38,202,000 and $5.29 per share, respectively. The 1989 nine-month results cited exclude the cumulative effect of a change in accounting principle recognized in the first quarter of last year.

First Empire's earnings subsequent to Sept. 28, 1990, include the operating results of thirteen former branches of Empire Federal Savings Bank of America ("EOA"). On that date, First Empire's principal banking subsidiary, Manufacturers and Traders Trust Company ("M&T Bank"), assumed approximately $1.2 billion of deposit liabilities of the Western New York division of EOA and acquired approximately $450 million of loans principally secured by residential mortgages. In connection with this transaction, M&T Bank received approximately $800 million in cash, net of a $12 million purchase premium.

Net interest income on a taxable-equivalent basis rose 22 percent to $59.8 million in 1990's third quarter, compared with $49.2 million a year earlier. This increase was driven by growth in average earning assets which were up 13 percent over last year's levels. Net interest margin, expressed as an annualized percentage of average earning assets, was 3.72 percent for the third quarter of 1990, widening from 3.45 percent a year ago.

First Empire's third quarter provision for possible credit losses was $6,709,000 compared with last year's third quarter provision of $3,396,000. The increased provision was principally the result of higher net charge-offs, which totaled $4,898,000 in the recent quarter compared with $1,801,000 in 1989's third quarter. The larger provision, which exceeded net charge-offs by $1,811,000, together with $3,000,000 added to the allowance as a result of purchase accounting adjustments on the acquisition of EOA loans, raised the allowance for possible credit losses to $70.6 million at Sept. 30, 1990. Principally as a result of acquiring the EOA loans, the ratio of allowance to total loans fell to 1.29 percent, from 1.34 percent at June 30, 1990. Without the acquisition of EOA loans, this ratio would have grown to 1.35 percent at Sept. 30, 1990.

Nonperforming loans were $45.0 million at Sept. 30, 1990, compared with the $27.2 million a year ago and $37.7 million at June 30, 1990. First Empire's allowance represented 157 percent of nonperforming loans at Sept. 30, 1990. Its ratio of nonperforming assets to total assets at Sept. 30, 1990 was .61 percent.

First Empire State Corporation is a bank holding company whose subsidiaries include M&T Bank, The East New York Savings Bank and The First National Bank of Highland.

LOS ANGELES, (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Santa Fe Pacific Pipeline Partners L.P. (NYSE: SFL) announced third quarter 1990 net income of $17.2 million, or $0.89 per unit, 8 percent above net income of $15.9 million, or $0.82 per unit, for the same period last year.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, net income of $47.9 million, or $2.47 per unit, was 8 percent above net income of $44.4 million, or $2.30 per unit for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1989.

Third quarter revenues of $49.9 million were up $1.0 million or 2 percent over the same period in 1989. Volumes transported during the quarter were even with 1989. Operating expenses of $23.6 million were $0.8 million of 3 percent less than the prior year quarter due to lower power and other field operating expenses partially offset by higher depreciation and property taxes. Interest expense increased $0.6 million due to less capitalized interest during the 1990 quarter.

Revenues of $146.3 million for the nine months ended Sept. 30, were up $6.1 million or 4 percent over the 1989 period as a result of increased volumes and higher tariffs. Operating expenses were up $0.9 million or 1 percent due to increased depreciation and field operating expenses partially offset by decreased power costs. Interest expense increased $1.7 million due to less interest capitalized during the 1990 period.

Capital expenditures for the third quarter and the first nine months were $5.2 million and $17.8 million respectively. Capital expenditures during the fourth quarter are expected to be approximately $10-12 million.

Santa Fe Pacific Pipeline Partners L.P. is one of the largest independent pipeline common carriers of refined petroleum products in the United States. It is the largest in the western United States in terms of product deliveries, barrel miles transported and pipeline mileage. The partnership serves six western states with approximately 3,300 miles of pipeline and 14 truck loading terminals.

HOLYOKE, MA. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Affiliated Banc Corporation (NASDAQ: ABCV) today announced operating results for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990.

The corporation incurred a loss of $6,772,000 for the third quarter as compared with net income of $1,004,000, or $0.27 per share, for the same period in 1989. The net loss for the nine months was $9,704,000 compared with net income of $1,283,000, or $0.34 per share, for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1989.

Assets totaled $533,201,000, a decrease of 6.3 percent compared with total assets of $569,084,000 a year earlier. Net loans outstanding at the end of the quarter were $468,479,000, a decrease of 7.8 percent from the year-earlier total of $508,296,000. Deposits totaled $487,704,000, compared with $479,954,000 for the same period a year ago, an increase of 1.6 percent.

At the beginning of the quarter, the allowance for possible loan losses was $8,650,000. After loan charge-offs of $6,123,000, write- downs for loans transferred to other real estate owned in the amount of $893,000, and additions of $6,114,000, the balance at Sept. 30, 1990, was $7,748,000. Additionally, assets held as other real estate owned were written down by $1,519,000. At Sept. 30, 1990, non-performing loans were $43,286,000, other real estate owned and in-substance foreclosures totaled $27,550,000, bringing total non-performing assets to $70,836,000.

Affiliated Banc Corporation's sole subsidiary, Vanguard Savings Bank, is a state-chartered savings bank insured by the FDIC. Headquartered in Holyoke, Vanguard currently serves western Massachusetts through eight banking offices.

#90282p2983 10/09/1990 ~PR Newswire

SCOTTSDALE, ARIZ. (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Kroy Inc. has introduced a new typestyle cartridge that creates 3 of 9 bar code labels economically on its DuraType 240 SE lettering systems.

With the new cartridge, users can make high-density, thermal printed 3 of 9 bar code labels on laminated tape that is heat- and scratch-resistant.

The $549 retail price of the 240 SE represents a considerable savings over competitive bar code printers and PC-based systems which can cost several thousand dollars. The 3 of 9 bar code font retails for $99.95.

With its thermal transfer technology, the 240 SE can generate as few as one readable bar code if only one is needed. Many systems waste labels by printing quantities of dozens or even hundreds to obtain a few readable bar codes.

Since the 240 SE is compact, weighing less than four pounds, it takes up much less space than a PC-based unit.

The 240 SE was introduced earlier in 1990 as the premium member of Kroy's DuraType family of lettering systems. It can be used for lettering memos, slides, charts, graphs, signs and badges.

The unit features a 16-character display screen for text editing and a standard typewriter-style keyboard. Easy-to-understand function keys create a variety of special effects including italic, underline, outline, shadow, bold, condensed, expanded, mirror, vertical and negative image.

Resident in the system is a typestyle corresponding to Helvetica medium in 10 point -- which is approximately the size of type used in business letters. A total of 26 typestyle cards are available. Changing typestyles takes only seconds -- the user selects a font card and slips it into the slot just above the keyboard.

The 240 SE allows the user to switch from one color cartridge to another in seconds. The drop-in cartridge contains 600 inches (50 feet) of lettering tape and its own cut lever.

The printer utilizes a thermal transfer process which is virtually silent. Lettering is produced in 240 dots per inch (dpi) resolution on 1/2-inch-wide strips of adhesive-backed clear tape with black letters and opaque white tape with black, red or blue letters.

The user can automatically print alpha or numeric sequences for sequential labeling. A "repeat" function key allows repetition of text and numbers for frequently-used labels.

A major technological innovation of the system is the way the letter image is protected from damage. It prints characters onto the back of a transparent or opaque tape, which is then laminated inside the machine, creating a scratch-resistant finish.

Kroy introduced the world's first lettering machine in the 1970s. Since then, the Scottsdale-based company has sold more than 500,000 units through its global dealer and distributor network.

SEATTLE (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - The CHEMPRO division of Burlington Environmental Inc. today announced that its corporate laboratory has been awarded accreditation by the Washington State Departament of Ecology for analytical performance on 32 separate methodologies. The CHEMPRO laboratory is the first industrial laboratory in Washington state to receive state accreditation.

The accreditation involved a lengthy evaluation and audit process. A team of Ecology auditors systematically reviewed all CHEMPRO analytical systems: personnel, facilities, equipment and supplies, sample management, data management, quality assurance/ quality control procedures, methodologies, and performance evaluation sample results.

According to the Ecology General Findings and Recommendations, the system audit concluded that the CHEMPRO laboratory "is well managed and operating under conditions which encourage generating data of known quality" and that CHEMPRO personnel were performing their jobs "in a technically correct and professional manner."

CHEMPRO laboratory manager, Kathy Kreps, acknowledged the significance of receiving the accreditation. "As a non-commercial lab, we provide chemical analysis to support our waste management services. As such, CHEMPRO is not required to be accredited. We sought to earn the certificate of accreditation as an added measure of scientific precision for our customers who can be assured that CHEMPRO analytical work meets stringent State standards."

The CHEMPRO Laboratory operates to support the waste management services offered to customers nationally. Burlington Environmental Inc. is a diversified environmental service firm offering hazardous waste management, environmental engineering and exploration services to commercial, industrial and exploration services to commercial, industrial and governmental customers throughout the United States. ST. LOUIS (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - We've all seen ads like this: ...Attention all residents of Jefferson, Lincoln and Washington Counties! If you like to wear Western boots...Ponderosa Boots has the style, size and color to fit you. And we stock more boots than anyone in the state! Call us toll-free today for size, style and pricing information: 1-800-GET BOOT...

In business, the spur to success can be the right targeting: If the primary customers are reached -- for example, boot wearer -- a business has a much greater chance to kickup its sales.

The obstacle: Many businesses can't even get into the saddle because it can be expensive to "target" key customers.

That will change soon in the Southwest with Southwestern Bell Telephone's (SWBT) new, cost-effective inbound long distance service called "MaxiMizer 800(SM)."

The service lets businesses receive toll-free calls -- like "Ponderosa Boots'" 1-800-GET-BOOT -- from customers throughout regional calling areas on the business' main line or on a separate line. Each regional calling area, also known as a "LATA," includes many towns and cities. For customers who expect heavy 800 calling, a separate line may be more practical.

SWBT has filed a tariff for MaxiMizer 800 services in Missouri and Oklahoma. The company plans to make similar filings soon in the other three states it serves.

"We believe MaxiMizer 800's strength is its affordability and flexibility. Customers can use their regular business lines," said Kirby Collins, SWBT's product manager for MaxiMizer 800. "Customers can conduct their daily business and receive 800 calls from regional calling areas all on the same phone lines without adding any new equipment."

Collins added that businesses can continue to use their existing Call Management services (such as Call Waiting) for both incoming and outgoing calls.

Businesses may expand their marketing to more than one regional area by adding the "Variable Call Destination" feature. The option lets the business have one inbound 800 number, but the calls ring in one of the business' locations in each respective regional area.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. is a wholly owned subsidiary of Southwestern Bell Corp. and provides network exchange service to nearly 9 million customers in Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas and Missouri.

BANGKOK, Thailand (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - Bechtel has signed a $1.5 million contract with a Thai government agency to help prepare a regional plan for the development of the Southern Seaboard of Thailand. The planning effort will focus on the feasibility of creating a multi-billion-dollar "land bridge" across Thailand's narrow southern peninsula. The feasibility study could include a complex of railroads, highways and pipelines linking the Indian Ocean to the Gulf of Thailand.

"This land bridge megaproject would serve as a major industrial base for Thailand," said F. Richard Erskine, Bechtel's senior regional representative for Thailand. "Besides the transportation components, the project ultimately could include two seaports, petroleum processing, the exploitation of offshore gas fields, support industry and related urban development.

"The Southern Seaboard land bridge has the potential to cut transportation time for Middle East crude oil bound for East Asia, and refine it into finished products along the way. The facilities might also attract shipments of a variety of other products in the Asia- Europe trade marketplace," Erskine added.

The Thai government's Office of the Southern Seaboard Development Committee (OSSB) chose the team of Bechtel, Nippon Koei, Ltd. of Japan and two Thai companies, Asian Engineering Consultants, Ltd. and Southeast Asia Technology Co., Ltd., over four other international teams for the job. Funding for the regional plan study is being provided by the World Bank. Work will start immediately.

The economic development of the Southern Seaboard area is a hallmark economic program of the Thai government, and has the strong support of business leaders in that area. A key requirement of the plan is ensuring the preservation of the existing environmental quality, and the continuation of opportunities for tourism, agriculture and fisheries development in the region.

The Southern Seaboard project award is the latest success in a strong first year of operations for Bechtel's Bangkok Office, which opened in January. The company's other Thai projects include engineering and technical consulting services for a $400 million olefins plant to be constructed in Rayong Province development of a major shrimp farm for Aquastar Ltd. on the Gulf of Siam and work in the Eastern Seaboard Region.

Bechtel, one of the world's largest professional engineering and construction firms, currently has 98 major projects under way in 17 countries and is working on 1,450 projects of all sizes worldwide. Bechtel's other Pacific Rim offices, in addition to Bangkok, include Tokyo, Seoul, Beijing, Shenzhen, Hong Kong, Taipei, Jakarta and Melbourne.

TORONTO (OCT. 10) PR NEWSWIRE - Alias Research Inc. (NASDAQ: ADDDF) today announced Upfront(TM), software ideally suited for use in the initial stages of creating and sketching 3D space and form. Upfront allows any professional who works with space, including architects, interior designers, facility planners and set designers to quickly create fully shaded 3D sketches on Macintosh computers.

Alias Upfront is the first true conceptual 3D application software for the Macintosh. Upfront is simple to use yet compelling in its approach to working and sketching in three dimensions. The product was developed for the up front stage of the design process to compliment CAD software where detail drawings and modeling occur once conceptual directions have been determined. Suggested list price for Upfront is U.S. $895.00 and is available immediately. The product will be sold through a limited number of authorized value-added Apple dealers.

''Alias' corporate objective is to provide creative professionals with application software that make the computer a tool,'' commented Stephen Bingham, Alias' president and CEO. ''Upfront is an entirely new development at Alias and it is just the beginning of our move to address the personal computer market with sophisticated, yet easy to use software focused on specific vertical markets for design and communication professionals.''

Alias Research Inc. is the leader in 3D computer graphic software technology for design, science and entertainment. In addition to its new personal computer software products, Alias offers worldwide distribution of a full line of integrated software products for powerful 3D computers from Silicon Graphics, Inc. and IBM. Alias is a public company based in Toronto, Canada and is listed on the NASDAQ exchange under the symbol ADDDF.

SAN FRANCISCO (OCT. 9) PR NEWSWIRE - The federal jury in Detroit awarded an independent computer maintenance company, Virtual Maintenance Inc., a $25.3 verdict against Prime Computer Inc., one of the nation's largest computer manufacturers. The case involved the antitrust violation known as a "tying arrangement," by which Prime required customers who wished to purchase certain software updates from Prime to also purchase hardware maintenance from Prime. Prime has revenues of over $500 million per year in hardware maintenance, and in the three- state area in which Virtual intended to compete (Michigan, Indiana and Ohio). Prime generated profits of $60 million in hardware maintenance last year.

Virtual is in the business of maintaining computer hardware; in the three states where it operates, it has garnered over 50 percent of the market for the maintenance of MAI/Basic Four computers and Lundy terminals. In 1989 Virtual tried to institute a business plan for penetrating the market for the maintenance of Prime minicomputers.

Virtual was unable to implement this plan, however, because of a tying arrangement used by Prime to foreclose competition. This tie had a particularly heavy impact on the companies which sell design services to Ford Motor Co. In order to sell to Ford, which purchases in excess of $1 billion a year in such services, these companies must have a certain software program for computer-aided design and computer-aided engineering (known in the industry as CAD/CAM).

Prime has the sole right to distribute this CAD/CAM software program, but Prime would not license the program to any company which did not also purchase Prime's hardware maintenance service on Prime's 50 Series minicomputers. Because of this tying arrangement, Virtual alleged that it was unable to enter the business of maintaining Prime's minicomputers. Virtual brought suit in 1989, and, in a five-week trial which ended today, asked the jury to award it $8,453,000 in damages. The jury awarded that amount, which will be automatically tripled under the federal antitrust laws. Virtual also has a right to collect its attorney's fees and costs from Prime.

Virtual is a member of the National Computer Service Network (NCSN), the largest organization of independent computer maintenance companies. Ronald Katz, one of Virtual's attorneys and general counsel of the NCSN, stated "the size of this verdict and the fact that it follows on the heels of a similar verdict by an independent computer maintenance company against Hewlett-Packard in Cleveland last April, sends a message to computer manufacturers that juries strongly disapprove of the methods which they have been using to foreclose competition. There are many tying arrangements in the computer industry now similar to the tying arrangement which was involved in this case. I suspect that many manufacturers will now be changing these arrangements."
